Running Trades Object to Arbitration

WINNIPEG (CP) — Counsel for three running trades brotherhoods said Thursday conventional arbitration procedure is "completely inappropriate" for settling disputes such as the one over CNR proposals to extend certain crew runs.

Maurice Wright of Ottawa made the statement while continuing his final submission before the Freedman commission, established in the wake of disruption of service on the CNR last fall caused by crews booking sick.

The workers were protesting CNR plans to implement runthroughs — extension of crew runs beyond established change-off points—last Oct. 25. The government announced Oct. 26 an inquiry would be conducted, the CNR postponed the runthroughs and normal service was restored after a weekend of disruptions.

Europe Observes 20th Anniversary Of End of War

By REUTERS

Nations that fought in the Second World War paused today to remember the end of the long European conflict 20 years ago.

Paris will celebrate V-E Day with pomp and splendor, as it did in 1945.

And in most capitals of Europe there will be speeches and remembrances.

The Soviet Union and Poland will hold their main ceremonies Sunday, with a military parade in Moscow expected to unveil new weapons, including a giant rocket about 40 yards long.

There also will be no special celebrations in London.

But in Paris, President de Gaulle's review of a 5,000-man parade on the Champs Elysees will be followed tonight by a giant fireworks display.

Bancroft Water Treated

TORONTO (CP) — Remedial measures have been taken against radioactive contamination of drinking water in the uranium mining areas of Elliot Lake and Bancroft, the Ontario health department reports.

The department's annual report, tabled in the legislature Friday, said an intensive study is under way to determine whether other measures are needed.

There were only two polio cases in 1964 for a total of 1,000 persons in programs for polio. He said infection from tuberculosis is still at a high level.

HIT IN FOOT

The Cedarville and the 424-foot Norwegian freighter Topdalefjord collided in thick fog four miles east of here.

Ripped in her port side, the Cedarville limped to the nearest dock for shallow water beaching but sank within 24 minutes.

A foghorn signal by the Cedarville was not answered by the Topdalefjord before the vessels collided, a survivor said Friday.

James Lietzow, 18, of Rogers City, a wiper on the Cedarville, said "We blew for the boat (the Topdalefjord) but the boat did not blow back."

Asked if anyone thought the ships would collide, he replied: "A guy in the laundry forward saw we were going to hit and he got the hell out."

Lietzow said he went on deck and before he could get over the side, ran into a life raft the Cedarville tilted. He said he fell between the ship and the liferaft and into the water.

When he came to the surface, he was near a life raft and got aboard. Two other men already were on the raft.

"All of a sudden she (the Cedarville) went," he said.

Survivors told of clinging to life rafts in ice-cold water.

"I'm incredibly lucky," said Anthony W. Romys, 49, a Great Lakes seaman for nearly 20 years.

Romys said he was asleep on an upper deck of the Cedarville and, awakened by an alarm bell, leaped into a lifeboat.

The water temperature was reported in the low 40s.

The Cedarville's three dead were identified as Capt. Arthur Jacobsen, 56, father of five children; Edmund H. Jungman, 51, deck watchman, father of two, and Reinhold S. Radtke, 48, third engineer, father of seven.

Both Hasbe and Radtke lived in Rogers City, Mich. Jungman lived in the inland town of Frederic, Mich. All the missing men lived in Rogers City.

All Hope Gone For 7 Missing In Frigid Water

MACKINAW CITY, Mich. (AP)—Boats and planes continued today to search for more survivors of Friday's freighter collision, but rescue workers believe the seven seamen still missing perished in the frigid waters of the Straits of Mackinac.

Three men are known dead as a result of the mishap in the fog-shrouded straits, the narrow stretch of water which separates Michigan's two peninsulas.

"No one could survive the cold water this long," said Dr. Nicholas Lentini, chief of surgery at Cheboygan Community Hospital where five injured men were treated.

All the victims were members of the 35-man crew of the U.S. Steel Corp.'s 588-foot Cedarville, a limestone carrier.

PM Urges National Unity

By STEWART MacLEOD

MONTREAL (CP) — Prime Minister Pearson told 1,000 people Friday night that the federal government, while recognizing the growing responsibilities of the provinces, will never relinquish its responsibility for the welfare of Canada.

"It is not going to betray or surrender that responsibility," he told a banquet at a $50-a-plate dinner of the Liberal Federation of Canada (Quebec).

"It is going to maintain the power and the authority to discharge it."

Mr. Pearson talked about the growing vitality of the new Quebec, the "booming" Canadian economy and the forged playoff with the next election, but it was the subject of national unity that brought out repeated bursts of applause.

"The people of this province — and I honor them for it—are determined to move forward with purpose and with confidence to a great future for themselves, inside Canada."

DRAWS APPLAUSE

This was greeted by applause. There was another outburst when he said that the Confederation pact of 100 years ago may have to be revised "but Canada, from sea to sea, remains and will remain."

Mr. Pearson moved back and forth from English to French—but most of his speech was in English—as he hammered out his theories on national unity across the huge, crowded hotel convention hall. He perspired under bright television lights.

". . . We must reconcile the feelings and aspirations of the people of Quebec with the requirements of a united Canada. And that can be done, I know it can be done—not by arguing and disputing over abstractions and theories but by the application of common sense and will and mutual understanding.

"In this spirit, we will maintain a single state in which two major European cultures and languages, which have been here from the beginning, can grow and flourish, along with other languages and peoples who have since joined us, to our very great advantage."

Only "co-operative federalism" could Canada survive.

BANS CO-OPERATION

"Co - operative federalism, however, I should add, means co-operation on both sides. It cannot operate on a one-way street and lead anywhere—ex-

Unfinished, Urgent Business Awaits Alliance Says LBJ

WASHINGTON (CP) — President Johnson, in a message obviously aimed at France, told Europeans Friday that "unfinished and urgent" business awaits the Atlantic Alliance.

"The peoples of the Atlantic will not return to that narrow nationalism which has torn and bloodied the fabric of our society for generations," Johnson said.

He added in an apparent take - it - or - leave - it note for France: "We will go all together if we can. But if one of its cannot join in a common venture, it will not stand in the way of the rest."

The speech was pinned on the 20th anniversary of the end of the Second World War in Europe.

It contained Johnson's first major policy declaration about the troubled Atlantic Alliance since late last year, when he called off American efforts to sell NATO the concept of an internationally - manned fleet of surface ships bearing nuclear - tipped missiles.

France was particularly opposed.

In the broadcast, Johnson called for more efforts to "banish the slow erosion of the Iron Curtain" via trade and said the U.S. Congress will be asked to appoint broader trade with Communist Europe after consultation with Atlantic allies.

There must be agreement reached with the Soviet Union to end tensions, Johnson said, and progress in coping with numerous economic problems. German reunification must be pursued, more help provided for developing countries and new forms found for more effective common defence.

Johnson did not specify the mixed-manned fleet plan again but said "all Atlantic nations who wish to do so have a right to share in collective nuclear defence, while halting the spread of nuclear weapons."

He reviewed progress he said has been made on both sides of the Atlantic since the end of the war and accepted a portion of U.S. blame in refusing to face up to pre-war aggression.

Jury Deadlocked so Klansman Will Face Second Murder Trial

HAYNEVILLE, Ala. (AP) — Attorney - General Richard Flowers of Alabama says a Ku Klux Klansman whose murder trial ended in a deadlocked jury Friday will be tried again.

And, he added, "when people realize that this is not going to be swept under the rug as just another civil rights incident, that this is a murder trial, we may get a conviction next time."

Collie Leroy Wilkins Jr. of Fairfield, Ala., remains free today under bonds totalling $60,000 after a jury trying him in state court for the murder of a white woman civil rights demonstrator failed to agree on a verdict.

Ten of the 12 male jurors had voted for conviction, but the remaining two held out for acquittal. Circuit Judge T. Werth Thagard declared a mistrial 24 hours and 20 minutes after he had put the life of the 21-year-old Wilkins in the jury's hands.

A first-degree murder conviction could have brought the death penalty.

Flowers, the state's chief legal officer, said he expects the renewed Klansman to be called to trial again in the fall term of court in September.

Two other Klan members also charged with slaying Mrs. Viola Liuzzo of Detroit, Mich., still are awaiting trial, and the charges against them also have been carried over to the September term. Those defendants are Eugene Thomas, 42, and William Orville Eaton, 41, both of Sessemer, Ala.

The three Klansmen also are under federal indictment on civil rights charges. They are free on $10,000 bond each on the federal indictments and $10,000 the first-degree murder counts in state court.

Senate Reform Studied

By WILLIAM NEVILLE

OTTAWA (CP) — Judging by their speeches on the current Senate reform bill, one could almost conclude that a member of Parliament's attitude toward that hallowed upper house is governed by his chances of getting into it.

The Liberals, now in power and thus in a position to select its members, look on the Senate, for the most part, as a valuable and respected part of the parliamentary system, open to minor improvement but well worth maintaining.

The Conservatives, who have enjoyed power and the Senate appointments that go with it, are of a generally like mind, although they do not think much of Liberal appointments or Liberal improvements.

The three minority parties, none of whose members ever has enjoyed the $15,000 a year, for life free of electoral worries enjoyed by senators, are of a strikingly different mind on the whole subject of Canada's upper house.

The New Democrats take a plague - on - your - whole-house stand and want the Senate abolished. The Social Credit and Creditiste groups do not go that far, but they want major

Govt. Aids Building Of Homes

By JAMES NELSON

OTTAWA (CP)—The government Friday announced another move to bolster construction activity, in effect cutting drastically the down payment required on houses built with National Housing Act loans.

The announcement was hailed by representatives of the Canadian Construction Association and the National House-Builders Association currently attending a conference in Ottawa.

Citizenship Minister Nicholson, minister in charge of the federal government's housing program, announced the maximum loan that may be borrowed under NHA for all forms of residential construction other than apartments is raised to $18,000.

The ceiling previously was $14,000 on a three - bedroom house and $15,000 on a house with four or more bedrooms.

The effect of the announcement is to cut the amount required for down payments.

For example, a four-bedroom house with a lending value of $21,000 may now be purchased with a down payment of $5,000, instead of $5,400, on an NHA mortgage at its current rate of 6¼ per cent interest.

A three-bedroom house with a lending value of $20,000 may now be purchased with a down payment of $2,750 instead of $3,100.

France Has Lost Battle In Gold Duel With Dollar

NEW YORK (AP) — France has lost a battle in its gold fight with the U.S. dollar.

That is the opinion this week of those in the international financial community who assessed French President de Gaulle's efforts to promote a return to the gold standard.

One New York economist described the French president's efforts this way:

"He's out to punch you hard but his military logic. It is unlikely that as a general he ever advocated frontal assault on forces that out-gunned him 8-to-1. Yet, economically, that is what he did when he attacked the dollar. The result, of course, is that he has been repulsed and is in a weaker bargaining position than before."

The banker based his comparison of economic strength on the gross national products of the two nations: France about $78,000,000,000 in 1964, the $634,600,000,000 in the U.S. GNP is the total output of goods and services in a year.

The U.S. contends that the strength of a nation's currency depends on the strength of the economy behind it, not on gold reserves. Even so, the U.S. owns almost two-thirds of the free world's gold supply.

The French deny that they attacked the dollar or its ally, the British pound sterling. They contend their position has been consistent in seeking reform of the international gold exchange standard.

The present gold exchange standard rests on the U.S. dollar as a reserve currency which can be converted at any time into gold by a foreign government at a fixed rate of $35 an ounce.

But during their heavy purchases of gold earlier this year — carried out with considerable public fanfare — the French questioned the stability of the dollar into gold. They contended the dollar is a weak currency.

Also, they urged revision of the gold exchange standard to eliminate the dollar as a key currency and re-establish the old basis whereby gold, not dollars, would be the medium for meeting international payments.

U.S. Plane Shot Down After Raid

SAIGON (Reuters)—An American plane was shot down in North Viet Nam and a U.S. soldier was killed in separate incidents Friday, officials said here today.

On the political front, three leaders of last February's abortive coup were sentenced to death in absentia by a military tribunal Friday night.

The American plane, an air force F-105 Thunderchief jet fighter - bomber, was hit by ground fire while on a raid over North Viet Nam.

The pilot was rescued from the South China Sea.

White Supremacists Win Rhodesia Vote

Although the whites are in the minority in Rhodesia — 217,000 whites to 4,000,000 Africans — they control the voting.

The 50-seat A roll is made up largely of white voters. Most Africans vote on the B roll, which has just 15 seats.

The results from the B roll were not complete, but Smith was assured of a two-third majority in the 65-seat Parliament.

All but a few Africans boycotted the elections and the Rhodesia Front party did not contest any of the B roll seats.

David Butler, 38, leader of the opposition Rhodesia party, lost his seat as the white voters swung to the government.

Smith's government wants independence from Britain, and Smith has threatened to make a unilateral declaration of independence if Britain does not heed his demands.

Britain, however, has made it clear it will hand over power only to a government supported by a majority of the people. Both the British Labor and Conservative parties support this policy.

New Five-Man Dominican Junta Formed

From Reuters-AP

SANTO DOMINGO (CP) — Crisis, - weary citizens of the Dominican Republic had two governments to choose between today as the surface complexion of a civil war changed abruptly.

Besides the "constitutional government" of rebel leader Col. Francisco Caamano Deno, the Dominicans now have a new five-man military-and-civilian "government of national reconstruction."

This group, sworn in Friday, replaced the old loyalist three-man military junta which declared itself the provisional government after the overthrow April 24 of the civilian junta led by Donald Reid Cabral.

Brig. - Gen. Antonio Imbert Barrerra, president of the new reconstruction government, said he is ready to talk at any time with Caamano.

Caamano, on the other hand, still claims that his forces speak for the Dominican Republic as its legitimate government. He has said his rebels will accept no coalition government formula involving the military junta.

Imbert offered an olive branch to the rebels and uncommitted Dominicans with his declaration that "we don't see Communists behind every door, although we know there are some of them here."

The U.S. contends that Communists and left-wing elements seized control of the uprising against the Reid Cabral junta.

Imbert is one of two survivors of the band of plotters who ambushed and killed dictator Rafael Leonidas Trujillo in 1961. A longtime friend of exiled ex-president Juan Bosch, he was instrumental in Bosch's overthrow.

The reconstructionists were sworn in at the heavily guarded National Congress Palace and set up their headquarters there. They met briefly with representatives of the Organization of American States before the swearing-in ceremony.

Imbert told reporters who asked if the U.S. had played any role in formation of his government: "No sir, not at all."

Meanwhile, an uneasy calm prevailed with the armed rebels on the watch from their virtually surrounded enclave as U.S. troops and supplies shuttled up and down the corridor between the capital and the city from the international safety zone to the strategic Duarte bridge across the Ozama River.

Caamano told a press conference an attempt will be made Monday to reopen banks in the battered east quarter of the city controlled by the rebels. Other businesses in the city have been reopened this week, but operations are far below normal.

Caamano said businesses in the interior will not open their doors until he tells them to.

A Dominican naval officer had told The Associated Press earlier, however, that forces of the loyalist military controlled the interior.

Seek to Raise $37,000 Here For Sick Children's Hospital

At a meeting at campaign headquarters for the Hospital for Sick Children for this area, it was announced that the chairmen of the current campaign to raise funds for the Hospital for Sick Children are Robert Lansing of G. T. Lanning Limited and Kenneth G. M. Rose, local barrister, both of this city.

His honor Judge J. C. Anderson has consented to be honorary chairman of the campaign.

This campaign is to go forward in conjuction with a province wide campaign which is to raise a total of approximately $2,000,000 and it has been suggested that the citizens in the Belleville area might be pleased to make contributions somewhere in the area of $37,000.

The local area to be covered comprises Hastings and Prince Edward counties and the county of Lennox and Addington, covering Napanee, Picton, Madoc, Marmora, Tweed, Stirling, Trenton, Deseronto and Belleville.

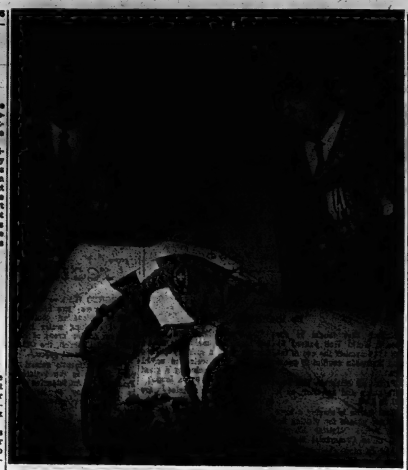
The doctors of the area have already indicated their enthusiastic backing of this campaign and it is anticipated that with the assistance of the general public, the amount requested to be raised by this district should be a realistic one.

No general campaign or house-to-houses canvas is anticipated, the campaign being planned to be on a personal basis, but, contributions from the general public will certainly be most gratefully accepted and can be mailed to P.O. Box 294, Belleville, and a receipt for charitable donation purposes will be of course shortly forthcoming.

The story of the Sick Children's Hospital was recently made the subject of an address to the local Rotary Club when it was particularly pointed out that the hospital's facilities are most seriously overcrowded. It is to be noted that in the last year there have been as many as 38 children from this immediate area who received care from this outstanding hospital.

Lake Opeongo Still Wearing Coat of Ice

Early season fishermen are going to have a short wait yet before they hit home of their favorite northern spots, according to an Algonquin Park guide.



The popular Lake Opeongo is still wearing a healthy winter coat of ice, and, according to the guide, will not be open until at least May 15.

The ice has cleared from all the smaller lakes off Opeongo, but getting to them is the problem. Access to the smaller lakes is off Opeongo so with the ice there, it just can't be done.

One of these, Lavielle, is closed to fishing this year, but the others are open.

Included among those just waiting for the fishermen are Merchant, Happy Isle, Red Rock and Dickson.

So, with a break from the weather (and in the ice), the Park will be receiving fishermen aplenty in about one week.

All Hope

Gary, Ind., with a limestone cargo, and the Topdalsford, heading for Port Arthur for a grain shipment, smashed together in fog so thick that visibility was reported at barely 50 feet. The straits were reported calm at the time.

The Cedarville's plunge to the bottom of 80 or 90 feet of water came quickly.

A spokesman for the Mackinac Bridge Authority said the Cedarville sent a radio "May Day" distress call at 10:19 a.m. and she sank at 10:19. They had collided at 9:55.

The Topdalsford, with her bow reported smashed, anchored for examination and then proceeded to Sault Ste. Marie.

The coast guard searched the straits all night. Planes were to join the hunt today.

Witnesses said the Cedarville was hit on the port side about amidships by the Norwegian vessels.

The Cedarville was reported approaching the straits and was about to make its turn into the channel proper when the collision took place.

Woodrow Harvis, freelance writer and photographer of Detour, Mich., quoted an unidentified Cedarville survivor as saying his ship "gave a shudder" after the collision and then "went straight down — like a stone."

The demonstrations were excellent and I am very impressed with the way they were labelled so that the audience could tell what was being done and who was doing it," he said. "I have never seen anything better in my years of inspecting corps in Ontario."

The inspecting officer then congratulated the Quinte Corps for its fine record of public service during 1964. In particular, he congratulated Mrs. Joseph B. Beasley of the Picton Nursing Division for her outstanding contribution of 940 hours of public duty in 1964, a record, he said, which probably can not be beaten in Canada.

Membership Declines in Boy Scouts

OTTAWA (CP)—Membership and financial problems took the shine off the 1964 operations of the Boy Scouts of Canada, Lt.-Gen. Howard D. Graham of Oakville, president of the movement's national council, said Friday.

He told the council's annual meeting membership is a recurring problem. There was a three per cent decline in 1963.

Last year, membership managed an increase of one - half of one per cent, but the number of potential scouts increased by 3.8 per cent during the same period.

The movement "can perhaps take a little comfort" in last year's increase with the hope it is a reversal of the declining trend. Cub and scout membership now stands at 279,600.

Airman Fractures Leg In Mishap Near Golf Club

Accidents in and around Belleville last night sent five persons to hospital.

Most serious mishap occurred on Highway 2 when cars driven by Belleville veterinarian Dr. John G. Hamilton and airman Gilles Lefebvre, 119 Wright Avenue, collided near the Bay of Quinte Country Club.

Lefebvre, whose small German car was wrecked, received a broken leg and head injuries. Dr. Hamilton was treated for cuts.

The brakes on the bicycle failed at the intersection and the machine ran into the side of a passing school bus.

At Catherine and Everett streets, 23-year-old William Dunn, 27 Murney Street, suffered lacerations when his motorcycle crashed into the side of a car driven by David Morton, Thomasburgh.

On Dundas Street West near the Bay Bridge road, Mrs. Erica Featherstone received head and face cuts when a car driven by her husband, Charles, was struck by a panel truck. Police say the truck driver, Jack Allen Wilson, Albert Street, lost control of the vehicle after a tire blowout.

On the Point Anne lane a dog leaped from the back seat of a moving car and caused the driver, 17-year-old Michael Martin Cook, to lose control. Police said the automobile took out five mail boxes before the youth could bring both car and dog to a full stop.

An Island, Part of the Main

John Donne, the Elizabethan divine, said that no man was an island, entire unto himself.

Richard J. Needham, Toronto Globe and Mail columnist, says Donne was wrong. "Man," says Needham, perhaps quoting, "lives in an unbreakable solitude and an eternal silence."

Needham is right. But Donne was right, too.

Man, at one and the same time, is an island, yet is part of the main. And until we can grasp the paradox of the co-existence of the truth in these two contradictory statements, we do not come near the understanding man, and therefore do not begin to understand ourselves.

(But do we ever understand ourselves?) The psychiatrist, peeping into the unbreakable solitude of an individual's inmost thoughts, perhaps learns more in that fleeting glimpse than the thinker himself manages to comprehend about himself in a lifetime.)

H. G. Wells, writing, if we are not mistaken, in his earlier days, in "What I Believe" raised race, the human race, almost to the role of a deity. Wells, rejected the idea of the immortality of the individual as absurd, yet claimed for himself and for all men a role in the ages to come by virtue of membership in the human race.

This reminds us somewhat of the Oriental stress on a father having sons and on the sons recognising their debts to their father. But whereas the Oriental's link with the future seems, to the Occidental mind at least, to depend on the physical, on the tie of a common blood, Wells' claim to kinship with man unborn was wholly independent of any necessity to sire offspring. It sprang solely from his being a recipient of the wisdom acquired by men ages long dead, and his hope that, through communicating with his fellowmen, he would pass along to them things learned and, perhaps, add some small increment to this legacy of knowledge and understanding.

Much the same feeling, but without the strangely metaphysical approach which seems to fit so ill with Wells' customary habits of mind, can be discerned in Bertrand Russel, that latter-day seeker who sighed in high hopes amid sleet. The human race, if it spared earlier disaster wrought by nature or by man himself, is doomed, says Russel, to freeze slowly to death in the flickering rays of a dying sun. Yet, to safeguard man's path to that certain doom, an old man of ninety will sit on wet pavement and trudge off to jail in an effort to prod man into avoiding thermonuclear suicide of his own making.

Needham, in the same column in which he disputes Donne's famous dictum, but in an entirely different connection, observes that "each of us accepts the existence of insoluble personal problems." That is man living in an unbreakable solitude, beyond help. But, Needham says, "we can hardly bear to think that there may be no solution to the problems of humanity as a whole." And that is man joined to the main, with his invincible belief in the future of mankind. If he lost that faith, if he became convinced that there was no way of curing the ills of the world, could man survive? Would there be any reason for him striving to do so? Inherent in Russel's conviction of the slow and inexorable approach to a frozen world is the hope that, before the sun goes down for the last time, there will be a day of glory for mankind.

Beatles Still Around

Those celebrated Britons, the Beatles, have faded somewhat from the musical popularity polls. In the current "Top Twenty" list they have just managed to squeeze into 20th place with a number called "Eight Days a Week."

We like the Beatles more than most. They have rhythm . . . style, and yet they remain likeable, down-to-earth young men in their own right. Those young Canadians who remain faithful to them will have a chance to see and hear them again when they visit Toronto this summer.

Fifteen years ago two popular pieces were played so often they nearly drove us out of our minds. They were "Sparrow in The Treetops" and "Mockingbird Hill." The latter is still heard occasionally and we listen to it with a feeling close to nostalgia, and without the gnashing of teeth that accompanied its rendering in an earlier time.

However, we can say right now, without equivocation, that the Number One hit of today, a saccharin-coated, asinine piece of fluff about Mrs. Brown and her daughter, may safely and swiftly be consigned to the place where all such hits ultimately go, and no tears will be shed by us.

Parliamentary Parlor Games Played by Party Rebels

By RICHARD JACKSON
From The Intelligencer's Ottawa Bureau

OTTAWA — Although Parliamentary events could prove him wrong at the very most Monsieur-of-Common-Truth knows the Honorable Members should be ready to be counted on Confidence-in-Government vote, Social Credit Leader Robert Thompson believes Prime Minister Pearson's minority Liberal Government is safe.

Safe because he, believing Parliamentary stability more important than political manoeuvring, is prepared to prop it up — with an involuntary assist from Conservative rebels whom he accuses of being more anxious to discredit Diefenbaker than destroy the Administration.

And safe, that is, barring two things:

1. A sudden change in prime ministerial mind. Up to now, whether he has meant it or not, the prime minister has said he doesn't want an election and will carry on, as he has for two years now, as the headed a majority administration.

2. A sudden Parliamentary revolt in the Commons engineered by somebody carelessly losing count of who's voting and how, and who's away and why, on some tight division.

The prime minister almost has to be taken at his word that he wants to avoid an election and keep going.

For, as he has correctly pointed out, he had been acting as if his was a solid majority Government.

Look at the big decisions we have taken, he has said, and the risks we have run — risks that stronger, even the majority Governments in the past have not dared face — such as remaining that new flag through a snarl-filled reluctant Parliament and by closure at that.

PLOTS

But the prime minister under pressure — and right now he is subject to some buffeting within his Parliamentary caucus and in the high command of the National Liberal Federation — conceivably could reverse his field and go for election.

Today, the big decisions we have taken, he has said, and the risks we have run — risks that stronger, even the majority Governments in the past have not dared face — such as remaining that new flag through a snarl-filled reluctant Parliament and by closure at that.

Former Prime Minister Louis St. Laurent was the last to try it, back in 1953, and when the candidates found the location voters boycotting their campaign films, so the vote by self away down on election day, they called dear old "Uncle Louis" irresponsible, arrogant, and contemptuous of the public good.

So that by all the counting and accounting — and there is no more popular indoor sport in these political parts — the campaigning won't start until September for a late October vote, if at all.

Won't start, that is, in the next few weeks or even the next few months except by Parliamentary accident.

For the simple reason, he suspects, that the ever-leading Conservatives aren't going to let it happen.

Not, mind you, because they love the Liberal more, but their leader, Alvin Hamilton, less.

Basing his accusation on the recent confidence votes in the Commons, one, one, of the 94 Conservatives were absent, and on the other, 31 played Parliamentary hookey, one of the things that at least some of the Sixty Away Tories were only trying to further undermine the Diefenbaker leadership.

COUNTER-PLOTS:

After that first non - confidence vote on Government's program as outlined in the Throne Speech, Chief rest the plot act to the 28 Commons - ousting Conservatives.

It had been the one time, not just in this Session but in this minority Parliament, that all four Opposition parties had been united. If they had been on the job they could have toppled the Government by 136 to 129.

But the Government survived easily, by 106 to 93, with 28 absentees or abstaining Conservatives not voting, many of them, insists Mr. Thompson, simply because they wanted to show Parliament and the country that they not only weren't following John Diefenbaker's leadership, but were openly defying it.

So what happened on the second round, the opening confidence vote on the Budget?

Thiet-one Conservatives failed to vote, three more than previously.

These They rebels, says Robert Thompson, in their desire to discredit Dief, are destroying a little plot by a gang of Liberal hot - heads to bring on the defeat of the Government and force their reluctant prime minister into an election.

On the same vote which the 31 Conservatives absent, 26 Liberals were absent, and it was a relatively close squeeze for the Government with a margin of 16 votes.

To keep Parliament in operation so the nation's business can be done, Thompson and a small band of other "splinter" opposition MPs swing in behind the Government to "prod the fun in these Parliamentary parlor games that the rebels of the two major parties like to play.

Let Us Rest

Vancouver Times

As long as election talk continues we must continue to ask: what good would an election do now? Scandals and internal crises continue to plague the major parties. There is no evidence that the country is ready to move decisively into one camp or another. A new vote now would merely replace the House of Commons with a House of Fractions. Let us rest a bit.

Seat Belts Useless if Not Buckled

By SYDNEY J. HARRIS

Speaking of auto fatalities, as I was the other day, reminded me of a recent Circuit Court decision in Sheboygan, Wisc., in which a jury was assessing damages against a motorist involved in a collision.

The jury decided that the failure of the other motorist to use seat belts was a form of "contributory negligence," and was sufficient cause to reduce the amount of damages by 10 percent.

This strikes me as an extraordinarily sensible attitude. Not to have seat belts ought to be a crime, and not to use them is the height of folly. Yet, according to a survey by the Society of Automotive Engineers, while the installation of belts keeps increasing, they are used less than half the time on ordinary short trips.

Here, again our basic irrationality displays itself. The time most of us strap on our seat belts is when embarking on a long trip on the highway, and this is precisely where they are least needed, for the accident rate on the superhighways is the lowest of anywhere.

We are most disinclined to use seat belts on brief trips around our own neighborhood — but most traffic deaths (three out of four) occur within 25 miles of home. And more than half the accidents causing injury or death are at speeds under 40 miles an hour.

Not using the belts should be considered as much a matter of contributory negligence in an accident as defective headlights, worn-out brakes, or failure to signal. If damages are consistently reduced on this basis, the public will be quick to wear them as automatically as we switch on the ignition.

I say this out of no sense of superiority, for I am as lazy and thoughtless as the next man in this vital matter. Indeed, most of the time I am shamed into using the belts by the children, who are quite conscious of their values. When driving alone, I often neglect to put them on, especially "just" to scoot across town.

The New York Times reports that the major auto manufacturers are planning the installation of rear seat belts, as well, as standard equipment for the 1966 models, with Chrysler already installing them on the 1965 models. But installing them and getting people to use them are sedans of a different color.

One manufacturer in Trenton, according to the Times, has added an electronic device to the belt, so that the car's ignition will not work unless the belt is locked in place. But what most of us need is an electronic device in the brain that lights up "Danger" when we crawl behind the wheel of a car. At present, all that seems to light us is "Combat."

Sunshine, Medication Can Trigger Porphyria Attacks

By JOSEPH G. MOLNER, M.D.

Dear Dr. Molner: My 13-year-old daughter had porphyria, which I am told faincurable.

Please tell me what it is, and if it can be fatal, in language I can understand. — Mrs. R. W.

Certain necessary chemicals in the body are colored, hence are called pigments. Blood is red; other pigments control the color of the skin, hair, eyes. They are present for purposes other than merely giving color, of course. The red, iron-containing cells of the blood are the cells which carry oxygen, for one example.

Now when the body is unable to handle certain of these pigments properly, we have a disease called porphyria. (Other diseases can involve other pigments. Jaundice is one example.)

With porphyria, attacks can be triggered by too much sunshine; the use of barbiturate medications; some infections; or attacks may occur during menstrual periods.

Various systems of the body may be affected, but violent abdominal pain is one of the common consequences. Mental symptoms may and sometimes weaken as may occur. One of the diagnostic signs is that urine is discolored and becomes a dark burgundy on standing. Then chemical analysis reveals the presence of porphyrin.

The underlying cause is an inherited trait — in short, it is hereditary, but it is not overly common.

It is incurable, but you must not think of it in terms of a fatal disease. Indeed, some patients recover from it automatically over a period of years, although they haven't been "cured."

There is no specific treatment. Rather, the goal of the doctor (and the patient) is to prevent attacks. In the main this means avoiding excessive sun, especially if its skin seems to be affected in attacks; avoiding barbiturates in any form; and avoiding infectious processes. (It is wise to avoid sulfa, however.)

If sedation is needed, tranquilizers may be used, but not barbiturates. Steriods (cortisone-type hormones sometimes are tried.

Dear Dr. Molner: Is the fluoride which is put in drinking water the same as that which is found naturally in some localities? What is fluoride made of? Is it available in drug stores? — J. C. S.

Generally speaking, sodium fluoride is used in drinking water, when found naturally in water it is more usually calcium fluoride. Either contains fluoride, which is the important element. Fluorine isn't made of anything. It's a chemical element. Tablets can be obtained from druggists.

Dear Dr. Molner: Our doctor told us not to eat pork unless we cooked it for 33 minutes or we might get a parasite disease called trichinosis. Is this a wives that gets into your body? If it is, I shall never eat pork again. — Mrs. E. P.

Yes, the trichina can exist in pork, and if the live eggs or worms get into your system, you can get trichinosis.

But that's no excuse for not eating pork. Just be sure any trichina will be destroyed by proper cooking.

The 33-minute figure is probably good enough for ordinary purposes, but with a very large pork roast, a longer time would be necessary. For complete safety, be sure that the meat is thoroughly cooked all the way through — until it is a greyish color, not pink. Pork is a highly nutritious meat.

There is such a thing as beef tapeworm as well as fish tapeworm. Thoroughly cooking provides safety from all of the worms. You aren't going to stop eating beef now, are you? I trust not.

Quiet Please

Couldn't a society so sophisticated it can shoot a tiny atomic power plant into orbit around the earth develop apparatus to efficiently quiet a truck's engine?

The answer seems as obvious as the need to get tough with three-wheelers and irresponsible motorists who have "straight pipes" instead of mufflers on their cars.

20 YEARS AGO

Civic projects under consideration by the local city council for the post war period were the topic of discussion at the regular dinner meeting of the local Y's Men's Club held at the "Y" on Thursday evening.

The many projects now under consideration as outlined specifically included the sewage disposal plant, flood control measures for the Moira River, the Riverside Drive project and the need of a bus station in this city.

Construction of a sewage disposal plant was discussed by the speaker as being the only way in which Belleville's waterfront could be cleaned up, and any work on beaches projects or water - front parks would be more or less useless until this was completed. Work on the Belleville Beaches south of the hospital was also brought to a standstill because of water pollution in the bay.

MR. AND MRS. JOHN RICHARD REYNOLDS

Reynolds – Asselstine

Large baskets of blue sprayed white carnations mingled with white snapdragons formed the background setting in the Church of St. Michael the Archangel, Belleville on Saturday, May 1, 1965 when Mary Elva Frances Asselstine of Belleville, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Roy Asselstine, Dundon, Ontario, was united in marriage to John Richard Reynolds, son of Mr. and Mrs. Percy Reynolds, Corbyville R.R. 1. Father T. J. Boyle of St. Michael's officiated at the ceremony.

Traditional wedding music was rendered by Miss Dorothy Grant who also accompanied the soloist Mr. Clifford Hunt, cousin of the bride in appropriate renditions.

Given in marriage by her father the bride chose a traditional floor-length gown of French chantilly lace with the fitted bodice featuring a batteau neckline enhanced with pearls and sequins. The full bouffant skirt was highlighted with tiers of lace swept to a chapel train. An elbow length three-tier veil flowed from headdress of chantilly lace studded with seed pearls and sequins. She carried a bouquet of red roses.

Mrs. Betty Ann Vance, sister of the bride as matron of honor and the bridesmaids Mrs. Sandra Galpin and Miss Judy Asselstine, sister of the bride were identically attired in floor length dresses of pean de soie featuring scooped necklines at back. The bell-shape skirts were accented at the back with a flowing panel of matching material and wore a large cabbage rose to the hemline. Each wore a large cabbage rose headdress with matching veil in matching color to the dress. They carried crescent shape bouquets of pink carnations.

Mr. Richard Downing attended the bridegroom and Mr. Gordon Downing and Mr. Douglas Vance were the ushers.

Immediately following the wedding, dinner was served at Club Canara with a reception later in the afternoon, at which time music was supplied by Frank Howard and his orchestra. Mr. Howard is a fellow worker of the bride at City Hall.

The bride's mother received the guests wearing a pink shantung dress with matching lace overcoat with white fox cape, pink and white accessories and a corsage of pink and white rosebuds. The bridegroom's mother assisted, wearing a pink lace-overlay dress with matching coat, white accessories and a corsage of white rosebuds.

For the honeymoon trip to Florida, U.S.A. the bride chose a powder blue knitted wool suit trimmed with white fox fur, shoes and bag in black and white basket weave design, other white accessories and a corsage of pink rosebuds.

Guests were present from Oshawa, Toronto, St. Catharines, Niagara Falls, Rochester, London, Detroit, Quebec, Kingston, Napanee, Trenton, Tweed, Marysville, Lonsdale, Read, Shannonville, Gananoque, Corbyville, Foxboro, Carrying Place, Picton, Ste. Marie, Cobourg, Colborne and Florida.

Previous to the marriage the bride was honored at several miscellaneous showers and included one at the home of Miss Anne Chambers, Catherine Street when her fellow workers at City Hall were present; a shower given by Miss Audrey Mountney and Miss Bev. Young, at the home of Mrs. Ray Doyle in Shannonville assisted by Mrs. Doyle's mother, Mrs. Joseph Foresell, and another at the home of Mrs. Harold Hoyckes in Belleville.

Nursing Duties More Onerous Says Speaker

NIAGARA FALLS Ont. (CP) Speakers told delegates to the Victorian Order of Nurses meeting Friday of mushrooming nursing duties as well as increases in services which the order offers.

Dr. Gustave Gingras, executive director of the Rehabilitation Institute of Montreal, expressed fear that nurses are being "engulfed in an administrative and technical labyrinth."

Speaking to about 240 delegates at the order's annual meeting, Dr. Gingras said that in the present state of hospital affairs not only nurses are losing their identity but "the patient becomes and feels more anonymous."

Contributory factors are new techniques and administrative developments, shortage of personnel and emergence of a common denominator across the country brought about by the standardization of hospital insurance schemes."

Jean C. Leask of Ottawa, director - in - chief, said that "the willingness of branches to explore ways and means of extending service and to undertake new patterns of organization is in keeping with the tradition of the order."

She said that in 1964, 1,134,000 visits were made to nurses than 119,000 individuals. Fifty-two per cent were mothers and babies, compared with 57 per cent in 1960.

THEATRE TALK

"The theatre is a mirror of the world." — Julian Beck, founder of the Living Theatre off Broadway in New York City.

While Sister Mary Florette modestly insists that her various courses in religious instruction, journalism, stage-production, TV presentation and drama taken at Wisconsin's Marquette University, New York's Fordham University, Ontario's Hart House and Waterloo Collegiate are but "mere drops in the bucket" as far as endeavor is concerned, she holds only high praise for the part drama plays in her work as English teacher at St. Michael's Academy, Church Street.

"Since it is my business as an educator to teach the truth," says Sister Mary Florette, "it is my belief that the drama, better than any other art medium can reveal the truths of life which serve the touchstone of judgment.

"Drama portrays what life is and what it can be, in terms of conflict and struggle, and the ideals which must be clung to. It offers concrete concepts of life's problems, its terrors, its joys and what to do about them.

"In taking part, children partake of experience and so are better helped to comprehend and evaluate life. They learn the lessons in a most impressive manner; lessons they will not be likely to forget.

"Oh, I know, to say that the drama educates, civilizes, reveals the grandeur of Mankind's creative impulse, his moral and religious power, renews and refreshes a spiritual need as well as material and economic progress can not wholly satisfy, sounds very lofty.

"But it is not in the least. Drama should be a central and not remote part of every day life. For man has need to dream, and being an idealist by nature must have his dreams. The drama aids him to maintain them."

"Since drama represents "a slice of life" I do not feel that the successful presentation of such from so-called "good-stock" or the extreme "shock-with-a-twist-ending" plays. Children must have access to good modern plays in order to receive realistic concepts of life's problems in the world at large."

"In this respect, many feel that the successful presentation of this year's school production of Ugo Betti's play "The Queen and The Rebels" which is a modern symbolic play for modern pupils with a dual message of order over disorder and ultimate hope for all, places Sister Mary Florette well abreast of the times.

This play, she says, was first presented by the CBC five years ago, though she had previously studied it at Marquette University under Father Walsh, "to which great credit is due." Its presentation in Belleville is only the second time therefore that it has appeared in Canada.

"Another wonderful thing about drama in the school," continued Sister Mary Florette, "is the magic way it leads pupils right to the teacher's goal: love for literature! Never again will do the words on a printed page been lifeless and dead.

"Needless to say drama gives splendid training, physically and mentally. I have in mind a 16-year-old student, who had won an award in last year's play, "Antigone" in spite of the fact it was the first time she had acted. Yet this year she was asked to join the Drama Club of 200 members in the Toronto High School which she now attends."

"When did you first become interested in the drama?" we ask the Immaculate Sister who for seven years, wrote a column for the periodical "Canada Register" and is the authoress of a religious text-book currently used in Catholic schools.

"From my night say I've always loved the dramas; its in my blood. In my home village where we were a large family, there were at least four of us from our family in annual Parish plays.

"It's difficult to tell what shaper us whos we're young. Small little things taking part in school plays. Writing and reading on sketches as a young teacher for our pupils, to increase their interest."

"Or again, while studying a production of a tragedy at Hart House which so impressed, stirred and shocked me, I said to myself:

"What is real life passing before my eyes. For the emotional experience I am a better human being. This is what the theatre is for!"

We are indebted to Sister Mary Florette for her valuable remarks concerning the teaching of drama in the school for which we thank her.

Since the love for the drama born in school often leads one into further, more interest and participation in the theatre, we have asked Mrs. Charles Wilson, wife of Mr. Charles Wilson, to speak on behalf of the little theatre of the community next week.

Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Bone Happily Wed 50 Years

A family anniversary party, the first time all members will have been together in many years, will mark the golden wedding anniversary this Saturday for Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Bone of 27 Bay Street.

Attending the family party will be their four grown children, a daughter and three sons, and their seven grandchildren.

Residents of Belleville since their marriage in the Colborne Methodist Church half a century ago, Mr. and Mrs. Bone have lived in the same home on Bay Street for 63 years.

Mr. Bone was born in England, coming to Canada in 1911 where he went to work for the railway as a fireman. Mrs. Bone, the former Rose Blanche Perrill, was borne at Balmoral Lake, north of Havelock, the family later moving to Grafton where her father was a section hand.

SINGS IN CHOIR

Then one day the young country girl visited a family in Belleville where her husband-to-be was boarding and the rest is history.

The couple are members of Christ Church. Mr. Bone has sung in the choir for many years.

Classed as a locomotive engineer at 21 years of age, Mr. Bone served overseas in World War I as a locomotive engineer in France for two and a half years. He retired from the railway eight years ago.

Now Mr. Bone helps around the house, keeps busy in his big garden and does a lot of walking.

Their only daughter, Mrs. William Schutz (Dorothy) lives in Montreal; one son Jack a retired airman, works for the welfare department in Toronto; Allan is an electrical engineer with the Army at Kingston, and Maxwell serves with the RCAF and lives in Belleville.

Lighting the Way

By Walter S. Crone

HIS WORD GAVE HIM AWAY

Recently, some of our newspapers carried the account of a man in the state of Oklahoma who rustled 300 head of cattle. He sold them for $50,000, then hit the trail for far off Brazil. There, he began to enjoy "living it up." One evening, while in a tavern, and with the encouragement of a few drinks, he began to talk loosely. In addition to other things, he boasted of his drinking friends of his skill as a cattle rustler.

Some one heard his boasting who notified the police. His description was then forwarded to the FBI in America. He was on their wanted list for transporting stolen goods across state lines. They arranged with the Brazilian authorities to expel this rustler as an undesirable alien. He was then escorted on board ship to New York, where he was promptly arrested by the FBI.

Cattle rustling, like any other crime, cannot be condoned. However, the likelihood is that this man might never have been caught had he never boasted of his skill. His words gave him away. It is a good thing to carefully weigh our words. A controlled tongue will save us . . . and others . . . a good deal of trouble through life.

Going Places

Tourism Brings New Glory Where Naval Heroes Ruled

By SHIRLEY AND BOB SLOANE

ANTIGUA, W.I. — Few places in the Caribbean, closely as many highly individualistic aspects as Antigua. Among West Indian Islan, It is a character.

Tourist-wise, Antigua is in the rags stage now. Its last period of glory ended in 1806, when the most famous British naval base in the Western Hemisphere, Nelson's Dockyard at English Harbour, was closed and allowed to fall into ruin until it was restored by private initiative 30 years later.

Its engineers workshops, mast houses, sawpit and crew Admiral Nelson's bed have been rebuilt. However, all the property houses today are a handful of working boatwrights and fishing native ladies who, between tourists to buy seashell necklaces.

The harbor and yard are again being used as a port of entry. Luxury yachts, ketches, and sloops from all over the world find their way here to take advantage of Antigua's brisk winds, some of the world's best for sailing. An always-striking sight from the shoreline's endless series of coves and bays is a fully rigged sailing ship swaying the wind.

From the commanding hill known as Shirley Heights above English Harbour, it is easy to see how and why the British Admiral Rodney, Lord Nelson, Hood and Rodney, were able to control the Caribbean against the Spanish, Portuguese, French and Dutch.

EMPLACEMENTS STILL SEEN

Almighty military garrison based here, to protect the bay naval station, and the heavy gun emplacements still can be seen. Just below them are the roofless and weedgrown ruins of the barracks.

The glorious era of privateers, buccaneers and great sea battles in the Caribbean during the 18th Century, through which the British secured much of the Indies, still revolved about Nelson's Dockyard.

But there is a new sight on the landscape from Shirley Heights these days, the Marmora Bay Hotel and Casino, complete with grape tabs. Thereby hangs the tale of Antigua's new glory — tourism.

The travel boom, nurtured by the fair sailing winds, the dry semi-tropical climate, and miles of virgin beaches just crying out for hotels, burst on Antigua with force during the past few ... that the island still hasn't quite adjusted to it.

The impression is of a poverty - stricken Caribbean island still trying to harvest its townbuy wind-whipped fields of sugar cane and graze its donkeys and goats, while in isolated pockets of luxury, strange, pale foreigners play a farmer's wages for two weeks of what the farmer has always had free — sun, sand, and the deep blue sea.

It all started with the Mill Reef Club and properties, a millionaire's enclave on the southeast coast where only invited guests, members' taxi drivers and delivery men may tread. It was the first and most lavish of the private developments of the Caribbean, its complex of plush homes, golf course and club worth many millions. Reportedly it was planned after a world-wide search for the ideal site, wherein points were awarded on the basis of climate, political conditions, health, convenience, and contentment prospects.

OLD WAYS DIE HARD

Antigua (pronounced An-tee-ga) is only a little 100-square-mile island of 62,000 people, and the individualistic old ways of old days die hard, if at all.

For example, as we look out our sliding glass door at the plush Jolly Beach Hotel, we observe Dandy the Donkey grazing on the hotel lawn. He does not get out of the way when guests pass, and no one expects him to.

At Galley Bay Surf Club, a pet deer roams the grounds. In all the hotels, little yelling, breasted birds popularly known as "sugar birds" flit through the open-air dining patios and help themselves to leftovers. If there aren't any, guests obligingly put out crusts and dishes of moistened sugar. Goats, chickens, and an occasional cow roam all over, including the streets of the colorful little capital of St. Johns.

Most of the hotel operators are individualists of one stripe or another. William Weyer, a retired Royal Canadian Air Force officer, with long gray locks, operates the Beachcomber, a place which reflects its name. He advises incoming guests that if no one is around when they arrive, "make yourself at home, pour yourself a drink, and relax."

Peter Deeth gave up flying for a local airline to make himself at home and relax running The Inn, overlooking English Harbor. Bill De Coudres, a former Pan Am pilot and executive now the world set landed on Antigua to run the posh Hawksbill.

ADDICTED TO GAME

Antiguans — with the exception of a few Barbadians — are the only West Indians addicted to a game of African origin known as "Warri." Played with sticker nuts on a wooden board that looks something like a muffin tin, it is a little like backgammon, and requires the mental agility of a champion chess player combined with the training of a certified public accountant. Naturally, all the taxi drivers and barmen are expert at it. Mrs. Barbara Miller, a displaced New Orleanian who runs a shop called the Pink Mongoose in St. Johns, will patiently and fritlely try to teach you, professor.

St. Johns still has a couple of town criers who ring out advertisements on holidays. They will be happy to cry out for your wife for you for $1.20 an hour if your planes leaving and you haven't sets her since she stepped into the Pink Mongoose.

It also has Lazarus the Porter, who handles deeds and warrants and things at the customs house and is an expert on whether they are made out properly — even though he can't read or write.

There's also a distiller who proudly features not the usual rum, but his own rye and bourbon, an enterprise all but unique outside of Ontario and Kentucky.

But so it goes in Antigua, which it wouldn't be if it weren't unique.

SHAPING the EARTH

MAN: THE EXTERMINATOR

The ELEPHORNIS of Madagascar, about 10ft. high. One of its eggs was equivalent to 183 CHICKEN eggs. Having no enemies on the ground, these walkers forgot how to fly.

Man eliminated another giant bird the MOA, living in New Zealand. It stood about 9ft. high.

There are still walkers in existence - the OSTRICH, the EMU of South America, the KIWI in New Zealand, the EMEU and the CASSOWARY in Australia. Certain birds that attract attention by their plumage and those considered harmful may soon be exterminated by mankind.

The DODO, a GIANT PIGEON, was DISCOVERED on the Isle of Mauritius in 1505. Man invaded the Isle and by the end of the 17th century, it was EXTERMINATED the bird.

Mrs. Oliver's drapes tell the dramatic story of clean electric heating

Mr. and Mrs. R. Oliver live in an electrically heated home near Peterborough. The Olivers are one of the many families recently interviewed throughout Ontario to discover their personal opinions of electric heating. Here are some of their comments:

"Electric heating is clean, very clean. There's no dust or film left on my windows, walls or drapes. I notice the cleanliness particularly with the drapes. We have lived here for three years and haven't had to clean them yet. In our other house, I had to clean them every year."

"I don't have to wash my walls as often as I did in our previous home. They stay clean longer here. They really do."

"When you have company, you don't find yourself having to rush around dusting at the last minute. Electric heating certainly does cut down on the work."

"We would recommend electric heating 100%."

Families all over Ontario echo the Olivers' comments. However, there is more to electric heating than cleanliness: Electrically heated homes, insulated to Hydro standards, cost no more to heat than homes with other systems. Flameless electric heating is quiet, safe and offers room-by-room or zone temperature control. With all its advantages, no wonder so many people are turning to electric heating for the comfort, convenience and economy they want in a heating system.

Lack of Household Skills Real Handicap for Girls

DEAR ANN LANDERS — Yesterday I told my daughter, who is 13 years old, that she must learn to iron her own blouses and skirts. Her reply was, "It is your duty as a mother to keep house and take care of your family. Part of housekeeping is the washing and ironing."

Maurine isn't a spoiled child. She has never been one to sass me. Her grades are very good and everyone remarks on how bright she is.

I did not answer her because I didn't know what to say. I would hate to have my family feel that I am not doing my duty. Is Maurine right? If she is wrong please explain where her reasoning breaks down. — PERPLEXED MOTHER.

ANN LANDERS

DEAR PERPLEXED — It is a mother's duty to take care of her family. And part of "taking care" of children means teaching them to be self-sufficient and training them to take care of themselves.

A mother isn't doing her children a favor when she allows them to grow up with no household skills.

A girl who can't cook, iron, clean, and sew hems and buttons is severely handicapped. I feel sorry for a young man who selects such a girl for his wife. And I feel sorrier for the girl because learning these skills after marriage can be extremely difficult.

DEAR ANN LANDERS — I am writing a few words for the lady who was unhappy because her husband Ben didn't compliment her on the chopped herring.

If she is smart she will just keep making chopped herring for a month and see what happens. If Ben doesn't ask for it she should forget the whole thing already because she will never be able to please him

I had the same problem with sauerkraut and dumplings. I never got the dumplings yellow or hard enough to suit my Kurt. One time they were hard enough but not yellow enough. The next time they were yellow enough but not hard enough. I used to get so frustrated I'd go into the bathroom and bawl.

Finally, I decided I could never make dumplings to please him so I quit trying. Three weeks later Kurt begged me to try them again so I did. Well, he praised me to the skies — said they were the best dumplings he ever ate. Maybe this will work for Ben's wife. I hope she tries it. — MARTHA.

DEAR MARTHA — Thanks for the hint on how to test a man's interest in special dishes. I agree. And if after a month he doesn't request the dish, forget it already.

Do you lean on cigarettes as a social crutch? You may regret it later. Send for Ann Landers' booklet, "Teen-Age Smoking," enclosing with your request 10c in coin and a long, self-addressed stamped envelope.

Ann Landers will be glad to help you with your problems. Send them to her in care of this newspaper enclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

A Lift for Living

May Month of Fundamentals Like Life, Home and Mother

By REV. HAROLD E. KOHN

This miracle month of May calls us to be attentive to fundamental things. May speaks of essentials, of spring's plenty that overcomes winter's scarcity, of a creativeness which is greater than the world's destructiveness, of growth that conquers stagnation, of excitement that vanquishes boredom.

May is a month of a million births. This month the first fawns of spring will open wide eyes upon wonders spread lavishly around them. Coonlets and chunky woodchuck babies will first see the light of day. Nests are being built by our winged neighbors, and some eggs still be hatched before May merges into June. Already dandelions have flowered. Yellow and lavender violets and adder's-tongues bloom under our spreading beech trees.

Now quickens that process that is elemental to life on earth, photosynthesis. Our tallest trees and smallest plants of woodland and meadow drink deeply of spring sunlight and rain, and in each plant laboratory the light and water transform nutrients from soil and air into plant food. The plants in turn become nourishment for animals, and so life thrives because it is attentive to this fundamental thing, photosynthesis.

MAY RESTORES JOY

Maybe May is so heartening, bracing and refreshing because it turns our minds from the trivia that so often engage us to the essential elements that are the cosmic backing upon which we lean. And maybe we could restore joy to life on any day of any month if we would, for even a little while, become so attentive and appreciative of life's elemental blessings — available to us all — that we would forget to fret about the lack of luxurious nonessentials that are within the reach of only a few.

May is an appropriate month for the celebration of Mother's Day and to think of home, for home is one of life's fundamentals. It is there we learn to laugh and weep and discover what is worthy of our laughter and tears. There, too, we learn to love good and hate evil to the measure that parents love and hate and according to their standards and values.

In the home we learn unselfishness from that woman, called "Mother," who pretends she doesn't care much for pie when she finds there are only four pieces to serve five people. We catch a contagious concern for the sick and the hurt from that good soul whose temperature rears to 104 degrees whenever her child's temperature reaches 100.

Home is a place of heart-keeping more than house-keeping. It is a place for building mutual respect, self-confidence, and confidence in others, enduring affection, fidelity to high principles, hopes and dreams.

A good home is the best place on earth to learn patience and how to get along with other people, a lesson all people of all nations desperately need in our time. It is here, in the home where people of different sexes, ages and interests abide together, that we learn that differences need make no differences in our care for each other.

Home is the one place where the world's greatest are ordinary people, where ordinary people receive extraordinary attention and affection, and where every nobody is really somebody. Mother sees to that!

A few weeks ago, when we celebrated Good Friday, we read again from John's Gospel the moving expression, "There stood by the cross of Jesus His mother." Even a cross of execution could not separate Christ from His mother.

In our worst hours and in our best the influences of mother and home are always with us. Thus, every day is unavoidably Mother's Day.

Man's Capacity for Destruction Hastens Humanity's Downfall

By Dr. Stuart E. Rosenberg

Shock, horror and unbelief were everywhere moments after John Kennedy's assassination. For all of its banality and perversity, the human mind is yet unwilling to believe that man can be so cruel, that hate can be so violent, that life can be so cheapened.

The death of a great man and of a public servant is our responsibility, the responsibility of all free men. We have killed him, too. How? We are always killing great men, destroying leadership — not by sniping from tall buildings in some maniacal or violent way — but by our mercilessness, our passionate hates and our unkind incivilities. With our tongues we destroy; we take lives with our minds. We cannot easily abide greatness, and often we do not know how to follow greatness. Few have mastered the great art of discipleship — the ability to walk peacefully and gratefully in the ways of a leader. From the days of Sinai we continue to "murmur against Moses." We hasten the decay or the death of greatness by our own incapacity of being faithful disciples.

We are, all of us, complicated, uneasy, often cussed — no one of us can escape the sinfulness of his nature. Life is tragic and there is hate in man's heart. The man who loves is also the man who can hate. The man who can dream is often one who forbids others to dream. This is why every time a good man dies, a young person leaves, a loved one is lost, we must ponder the profoundly tragic dimensions of life. And meditating on tragedy, we must learn to love our beloved while we have them — our parents, our children, our teachers, our friends and neighbours. We must learn to light our lights while there is still flame to be received.

The same airplane which carried John Kennedy as President returned to Washington with Lyndon Johnson as President. In the midst of darkness there is no other way but to light our light. We die, and a child is born; we are not forgotten, but we cannot always be remembered, because new life, new lights, new days beckon. The mark of maturity is to thank God for the light, even though we do not understand why there is darkness. The mark of strength is to kindle a flame even when your heart is breaking.

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Four show girls who worked in topless costumes won acquittals Friday on charges of indecent exposure. Their three bosses, tried for allegedly keeping disorderly houses, were also acquitted. "I expected the acquittal verdicts," defence lawyer Melvin Belli said in an interview. "What we do in San Francisco may not be what they do in Iowa or even Manhattan, but it's acceptable in sophisticated San Francisco."

STUDENT COUNCIL election rally at Belleville Collegiate saw noisy students range up and down the corridors carrying placards and noise-making machines.

Senate

changes — changes which might improve the chances of a Social Credit or Creditiste supporter becoming a senator.

That's the way the discussion went Friday as the Commons began debate on second reading on the government's bill to retire future senators at age 75. Current members of the upper house would have the option of continuing on for life at $15,000 a year, as their original appointments specified, or retiring at 75 with an $8,000-a-year pension.

Little was heard during the debate on the specific question of an age limit. Much was heard, however, on the relative merits of the senatorial system.

The NDP tried to amend the legislation to make it abolish the upper house. Deputy Speaker Lucien Lamoureux ruled the amendment by Robert Prittie (Burnaby-Richmond) out of order and the House sustained the ruling by a 99-18 margin.

SEE NEED FOR CHANGE

Social Credit and Creditiste spokesmen concentrated on the need for change.

The present senate, they said, is dominated by party financiers, or, even worse, Liberal and Conservative financiers. Proposals for change ranged from a suggestion for a minimum age of 50, instead of 30, to demands that the provinces be given the right to name one-third of the senators.

Monday the House turns to the first supply motion of the session with the opposition given the chance to test the government through non - confidence motions on any subject of its choosing. The debate is to carry through until Tuesday night.

Bob Burns BCI Student Council Head

The halls and corridors of Belleville Collegiate resounded to spirited high pressure pre-election ballyhoo Friday noon, as students went all-out in a noisy prep-rally to boost the cause of favored candidates for student council office.

Candidates campaign leaders and other supporters, decked out with crazy hats and armed with noise-making gadgets, banners and placards, ranged up and down the halls giving out with the old college yell.

Then with the pre-election rally ended, students got down to the more serious job of voting.

With the ballots counted Bob Burns is the new BCI Student Council president. Other officers are Ricky Loynes, 1st vice president; Marilyn Clarke, 2nd vice president; Jane Murdock, corresponding secretary, Mae Kin Seto, recording secretary, and Bob Murdock, treasurer.

P. M. Urges

cept perhaps to a collision.

. . . If it doesn't work, there will be no Canada. And if there is no Canada, what will become of its parts; of its provinces; of its distinctive national identity on this northern half of our continent, with the most powerful people in the world pressing from the south — pressing against a divided people in the north.

"This is a cause worth fighting for."

The warmest audience reaction came from Mr. Pearson's vow to "work together for a genuine Canadian spirit and identity in a united Canada."

The prime minister said there have been "tremendous achievements" in the last two years, when his government held office. We are on our way and moving ahead from the point now reached. The next steps may lead to a general election."

But he quickly added: "The date for that new and decisive stage, I can't reveal, because I don't know. Que sera, sera."

MAKE SURE THEY LOSE

The opposition parties "breath fire and slaughter and threaten our extinction every day, but when the test of voting comes, the Tories make sure that they lose it and thereby avoid a far bigger loss. As the Bible puts it, 'The wicked flee when no man pursueth.'

"But one day they may miscalculate, or we may calculate. The die will then be cast, so that votes can be cast."

He said there have been "unfair and unfounded" allegations levelled against some of his Quebec ministers "by partisan extremists of the opposition."

"There may be more.

"I tell you tonight that I believe in the integrity and the honor and the patriotism of my cabinet colleagues from Quebec . . . I know that they do not think — any of them — that Canada without Quebec, or Quebec without Canada."

GIVES WOMEN ADVICE

TORONTO (CP) — Women were advised to take a more active part in politics Wednesday because any policy devised, discussed and organized by men does not reflect the thoughts and feelings of women. Mrs. F. E. Lewis, president of the Ontario Women's Liberal Association, told the Tuesday Luncheon Club the Liberal party is not using the full talents of its women members.

The Golden Years

Annuities in Retirement - - - What They Can Do for You

By THOMAS COLLINS

Many responsible life insurance executives think you're missing a bet in planning your retirement finances unless you pick up an annuity or two.

Life insurance companies sell annuities, so it can be presumed they would have more than a passing interest in the matter. But they make three interesting points.

Annuities, they explain:

1. Provide an income that you can't outlive.

2. Tell you exactly what your income will be and when you will get it;

3. And let you forget the whole thing.

The last point has become a major factor in the selling of annuities. Once you buy an annuity, and turn your money over to the life insurance company — or whoever sells it — you can fold your test. All the worrying over where to invest the money in order to guarantee your monthly check is now up to the annuity company. In fact, it wouldn't want you to worry and wouldn't listen to you if you did. It probably has a staff of some of the finest investment experts in the country. It also has — and feels — a terrible responsibility, because if the life insurance companies in this country ever failed we all would be moving back into caves.

CONFUSE SOME

In the main, annuities are confusing to people of retirement age. There are too many different kinds, and too many opinions. An executive of the Southwestern Life Insurance Company, Joe N. McKinney, offers a chart to explain them.

A man in the U.S. at age 65, he says, can pay a single premium of $10,000 and get the following:

1. A life annuity of $68.76 a month with 10 years certain. This means the person will get the payment as long as he lives, but if he should die early, payments would be continued for 120 months in any event;

2. A life annuity of $66.07 a month with installment refund. This also guarantees the payments for life. But if the total payments prior to death are less than the $10,000 investment the balance will be paid to beneficiaries in continuing income;

3. A life annuity of $64.36 a month, with cash refund. This provides the payment for life, but if the total payments prior to death are less than the investment the balance will be paid to beneficiaries in a lump sum;

4. A life annuity of $73.69 a month. This guarantees payments for a lifetime, but no payments are made after death.

COSTS VARY

The cost of an annuity, and what it will offer, vary from one company to another. Mr. McKinney's program, while less costly than some, is fairly typical of what the better life insurance companies offer.

You would be wise, if you want an annuity, to go first to the life insurance company holding your life insurance policies, ask for facts and figures . . . and then shop around a bit. You would be wise also to consider swapping your life insurance policies for an annuity instead of coming up with $5,000 or $50,000 to buy one. Many men by age 65 now can be assured that their wives will have security without the life insurance, and thus no longer have a real need for it.

One problem with annuities — as with bank and savings and loan accounts — is that the investment won't grow with the growth of the country and probably won't pay anything extra if inflation comes. Common stocks will . . . and also can wipe you out.

As Mr. McKinney says, "In stocks, you can lose everything and still be alive, but with annuities you can lose heavily only if you die early."

BILL TAKES EFFECT

OTTAWA (CP)—The bill establishing the contributory Canada Pension Plan took effect last Wednesday with only Quebec on the outside. Prime Minister Pearson told the Commons Friday Quebec was the only province that notified the federal government within the 90-day period allowed after Royal Assent that it would not participate.

City's New Police HQ Now Is Officially Open

Today the corporation of the city of Belleville finally broke a pattern in the complex of its municipal organization.

The official opening of the new police headquarters on Campbell Street saw the citizens of the city accord the process of justice administration the physical dignity due a crucial civilized process.

For the new quarters house not only the public law enforcement agency but — something that perhaps has not been paid sufficient attention — the court room and law offices of the city's magistrate court.

The tradition of combining both local judicial and police functions under one roof, of late, has been called into question. However, this event is not the occasion for debating the philosophies of that higher social issue.

For years, a much more basic argument has centred around the administration of justice and the enforcement of law in this city. Today, that argument has been, to a great extent, resolved.

It involved the environment in which these twin functions were forced to practise in the public interest.

The grubby surrounding in which, for many years, the law was enforced and justice safeguarded in this city, were scarcely high tribute to a sense of public dignity.

To be fair, however, awareness of the problem became more acute as time advanced. For years, various city councils tackled the problem without success, until a stroke of latter-day fortune placed the present building at the city's disposal.

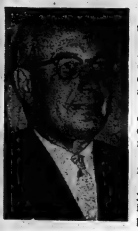
The final result now is witnessed in the new quarters officially opened today.

While not altogether an ideal solution, the new local police and justice quarters are at least a vast improvement over the premises of yesteryear.

The project proved a model of rehabilitation. All that could skilfully be done to furnish the building with an atmosphere of dignity and modern organization has been achieved.

Public thanks in no small measure are due to the works chairman John Deacon, police commissioners Judge J. C. Anderson and T. Y. Wills and Mayor Jack Ellis.

Not forgetting city council, whose final approval made the project a reality. Granted, that approval was given grudging by some — and with sound reason or they rightly held a new building was the ideal solution — but the overal achievement has been a satisfactory one.



The essence of that achievement is the public acknowledgement of the necessary respect due local law, order and justice — without which no enlightened community can truly be said to flourish.

New Environment for Law, Order, Justice

Law, order and justice were projected into a new environment today in Belleville.

While housed in a more-than-50-year-old building, the city's police department and magistrate's court now will function in quarters designed to meet the social expectations of the times.

This is a plain fact which scores of citizens discovered for themselves when they toured the new law and justice administration offices on Campbell Street today.

While the exterior of the building may raise some doubts on cursory inspection, a tour through the edifice reveals an atmosphere in crackling keeping with the times.

It showed that the city of Belleville may now count among its corporative possessions the most up-to-date small-city police department in Ontario.

The contemporary effect is due to an architect's skill in rehabilitating an old interior. However, once inside, the appearance is backed up by the professional functioning of the complex.

In a main blue-white color theme, the building has been redesigned and furnished to match the needs of highly-sophisticated police work.

Communication is the crucial key to the revamped organization.

Immediately off the lobby is a small communications bureau housing a radio transmitter, burglar and bank alarms and monitors, and the latest innovation in instant police contact — a telex machine.

The telex provides Belleville police with almost-simultaneous contact with nearly 100 provincial and municipal police points in the province.

It brings not only speeded-up efficiency in modern police alerts, but also a greater degree of the secrecy sometimes vital to mutual law enforcement efforts.

A brief step up from ground floor level brings the visitor to the offices of the department's traffic and safety officers.

Several brief steps down to the basement area introduces the cell blocks and a garage with electronically-controlled doors guarding the rear of the premises.

The doors are controlled from the desk of the duty sergeant with one happier advantage. A cruiser may now quietly enter the station and its prisoners taken directly to the cells without having to parade in full public view.

Investigation of cases and hearing of charges against them, is centred on the third floor of the building. Here are located the magistrate's court and the detective offices.

Close by are the offices of the court clerk and the justices of the peace — and the detective offices.

These also include fair-sized twin offices and darkroom for the department's identification work in photographs and fingerprints.

The new headquarters also has one more striking feature. It only has a handful of neighbors on the short city block that is Campbell Street. Five of them are defence lawyers — and the office of one legal partnership faces directly across the street from the magistrate's courtroom.

City Police Win Space Race!

At Last! There's Room for Modern Methods

If the officer on the beat has stars in his eyes these days they're there for good reason — his force has just won a space race.

The new Campbell Street headquarters has more vital significance, however, beyond providing bright working conditions for the department.

At long, long last the force has room to install and operate the equipment and work systems crucial to modern police work.

The 41-man department headed by Chief J. B. McLauchlan is now on operational par with any city law unit in Ontario outside Metro.

Today's official opening gave some hint of it to the general public.

Among the new additions most obvious were the department's new communications bureau on the ground floor and the dark room and identification offices of the detective unit.

Pride of the new communications set-up is a teletype machine providing hookups with most police points across Ontario.

The system is as simple as it is speedy. Messages may be transmitted immediately after dialing each police department's telex code, I've general alerts the message is simply flashed to Toronto where it is transferred to tape then transmitted simultaneously around the province.

The identification bureau is indispensable to modern police work, incorporating photography, fingerprinting and the cataloguing of clues in general. The Campbell Street headquarters counts a full-equipped spacious darkroom with its identification unit.

Filing systems — basic to police work — can now finally be expanded and revamped, thanks to the space factor.

Offices also now are available to the heads of various units in the department. Even the duty sergeant now has a private office off the public lobby.

The men can also keep in training — in physical trimness and trigger control — without leaving the building.

A gymn is available on the second floor while deep down in the reaches of the building construction of a gun range now is nearing completion.

Space has made for the best working conditions yet known to the force. Constables now are provided with a room lunch area, personalocker and shower facilities in the basement.

CHIEF CONSTABLE J. B. McLAUCHLAN

'What?---A Ticket? For No Sleigh Bells?'

Nothing more lucidly illustrates the gradual process of social change than nuisance laws — those measures devised necessary by contemporary society to eradicate more p lapsey manifestations.

For instance, in 1860 the town of Belleville only had two police constables — John Roach and James Wilson.

In summer they were called on to arrest anybody swimming in the Moira River between 8 a.m. and 9 p.m. Such pursuits, apparently, called for daylight exposure of flesh comfortable enough to be indecent.

In winter, if you drove sliestly down Front Street on your sleigh there was little un-telling Roach and Wilson: "Dammit men! I've got all me bells— but me clippers are frozen!"

The by-law specifically stated: "Persons driving with a sleigh are obliged to have two or more sleigh bells affixed to the harness of the horse or harnesses.

Belleville's ordinances included a by-law preventing anyone keeping "more than 25 pounds of gunpowder at any one time on his premises where fire is used."

Of course, the same by-law permitted you to play all day with your gunpowder inside town limits — providing every other building, street or highway was 200 feet away. Both constables had to ensure this — among everything else.

By the way, whatever did happen to Roach and Wilson?

First Office Over Fire Hall

Belleville's police were once housed over a firehall near the Upper bridge. They were moved in 1873 to the new city hall. The modest market square building — possibly the city's oldest public edifice — was taken over by the force in 1906. It was headquarters for 60 years.

The present force has 41 men, with five uniformed sergeants under staff inspector Ralph Hutchford. There are seven plainclothes officers directed by detective inspector Harold Reid.

Hugh McKinnon : From the Black Donnellys to Belleville!

The Strongest Strong Arm of the Law!

by Harry Mulhall
Staff Reporter

A row occurred in Buchanan's Hotel last night among a party of young men who were drinking. The row becoming general, resulted in the breaking of a number of bottles by the crowd, who seemed masters of the situation when the Chief of Police arrived on the scene and summarily landed the whole crowd in the street."

No need for the Intelligencer of the day to name the chief of police who performed that single-handed feat of law enforcement one summer's night in 1878.

Everyone in the Quinte district knew The Chief. And every community in the province might well have envied Belleville for having such a man as its chief constable.

For in Hugh McKinnon the community of Belleville — then Canada's youngest city — had literally and figuratively one of the strongest arms of the law anywhere in North America.

And if ever an Ontario town needed such a man to embody the law at the time that Ontario town was Belleville.

When he strode into town in February 1877 its peacekeeping record, or what was left of it, was an object of wide ridicule. When he left, almost a decade later, the reputation of the police force was wholesomely respected.

In Belleville, the routine administration of the law started running downhill with the dismissal in late 1876 of the town's police chief.

No one could agree on a new appointee and — to compound the issue — the former incumbent refused to quit.

The argument split council, the police commission, even the bench into opposing factions and Belleville found itself with two police chiefs.

The situation disintegrated New Year's Eve when the Grand Trunk Railway workers struck, vowing to halt all traffic. Belleville was a terminal point and the strikers swarmed the station. The local police force, compromised by local politics, was useless. Council panicked, petitioned for troops and nine workers welcomed in 1877 A.D. with bayonets prickling their already-aroused passions. The natural result was a shambles of rioting which brought widespread criticism.

At city hall, however, the factions, long past the point of sense and dignity, fought over a chief constable's appointment.

Warily, a fractious magistrate suspended a police sergeant for refusing a serve a warrant. The sergeant refused to be suspended. The magistrate ordered a constable to serve it. The petrified officer explained to an alderman if he did exercise the document his chief, recognized by some as the official police head, would suspend him. If he didn't, on the other hand, the magistrate who recognized the opposing claimant to office, would also suspend him.

In this situation there was justification for the Intelligencer editor who complained: "The police haven't made an arrest for a week."

Obviously, it could go no further. Council finally resolved to fix senses and begin seeking outside for a new chief.

For once, the town's hapless police committee had fallen on happy times, for in one letter was sealed the fate of local law administration for the next decade.

It was an application from Hamilton, signed Hugh McKinnon.

References to Mr. McKinnon's capabilities also came from Hamilton's police chief. But the public record of the man already had gone before him.

Even at that date, the name of Hugh McKinnon the law enforcer was something to conjure with.

A powerful figure of a man, he combined the nimbleness of a Scottish mind with great physical strength and endurance. The first already had won him renown as a provincial detective, the second as a heavyweight champion athlete of North America.

It was a formidable character recommendation for a man in the police service of his time and in any region but the Anglo - Saxon Ontario of the day, might have made him a fabled figure. He was a walking blend of details and strongman — a Pinkerton and a Wyatt Earp.

As a provincial detective working out of Caledonia he already had made his mark in the early years of Confederation but it was his adventures with the historically-notorious Black Donnellys near Lucan that created province-wide admiration.

By 1870 that Irish immigrant family had sufficiently terrorized the Queen's peace officers and citizens in the Lucan district to merit attention from the central authorities. As its police agent in the area the provincial government sent McKinnon to judicially gather evidence for conviction.

McKinnon not only cased the Donnellys, he lived and slept among them until he had sufficient evidence for arrest. Then he returned with warrants and took five of them into custody.

The fact his witnesses refused to testify against the hideous crew or who were thus released by default, removed not a whit from his reputation.

FIRST LAWMAN

By the year's end even the staid Intelligencer was moved to comment: "It is to be placed to the credit of the chief that he has succeeded within 11 months in making the force, which was completely disorganized, thoroughly efficient; that the number of arrests was greater than in any previous year; that the receipts from fines more than double those of any other year in the history of Belleville."

ENDS SHABBILY

It was the type of public encomium that would be confidently rehearsed during the next ten years as the chief gave good measure for salary at his application and on February 10, 1877, the burly, heavy-moustached, champion athlete and sleuth was sworn into office. He then spent a quiet weekend surveying his new beat.

It was no easy mark in the best of times. With a demoralized, ridiculed police force it was the worst of times.

It was a lusty era, when the law had trouble enough making itself respected under normal conditions. Violence was a natural resource when men differed, and it was not confined to the matching of brawn — but, often bullets. The contemporary western pioneers were not the only continentals fairly free with a gun. Belleville newspapers of the day are peppered with reports of pistol shots haphazardly fired by everyone from lunatics and irate householders and hoboes.

The same newsbeats reveal that Belleville also had its share of houses that were not homes.

But the days of impunity were now numbered.

Down on the motley with mighty law-enforcing strides marched McKinnon — reorganizing the force, mincing down the streets, bustling bar-room brawlers and sleuds into the cells, giving the town its first taste of a strong arm of the law.

By the year's end even the staid Intelligencer was moved to comment: "It is to be placed to the credit of the chief that he has succeeded within 11 months in making the force, which was completely disorganized, thoroughly efficient; that the number of arrests was greater than in any previous year; that the receipts from fines more than double those of any other year in the history of Belleville."

ENDS SHABBILY

It was the type of public encomium that would be confidently rehearsed during the next ten years as the chief gave good measure for salary at his application and on February 10, 1877, the burly, heavy-moustached, champion athlete and sleuth was sworn into office. He then spent a quiet weekend surveying his new beat.

In the meantime, he continued his relentless pursuit of law enforcement.

Instilling big - men with a respect they had never before known, he gave them new uniforms, patterned after the New York fashion; drew up a series of strict regulations for their behavior and marshalled them as a forceful if small, disciplined body as Belleville incorporated itself as a city on Dominion Day 1878.

Then he settled down to real, organized law enforcement.

His engagements on behalf of the law ranged far and wide beyond Belleville and won him note throughout the province.

Tracking thugs and rivermen operating singly or in gangs, pursuing horsethieves and murderers, McKinnon met a relentless pace. His physical endowments were matched with a sleuth's intelligence, so that he never moved until he had an airtight case. His methods won him conviction after conviction.

Whether the challenge demanded intellectual application or brawn, courage, nothing was too great to escape his attention — enforcing the law.

Such an era of dramatic, when police news provided heaven from the heavy political and social pages, filled the press columns. And Ontario readers regularly digested the adventures of Belleville's police chief. The names mean nothing now but then caused wide attention. Subscribers read of McKinnon's revelations of the extensive counterfeiting ring in Prince Edward County and the murder of a man called Bell and how McKinnon single-handedly brought him to justice for the crime; how McKinnon marched brains and brawn with Tobe Emmons Edith's pugilist eventually cornering the thugs.

NEARLY FATAL

McKinnon's last year in the city's service opened in typically melodramatic fashion with encounters — and one last heroic gesture that nearly cost him his life.

A newspaperman's dream as much as a criminal's nightmare, The Chief kept the press humming with good copy almost immediately after the New Year's bells stopped pealing.

His memory for men revealing his unravelling of an arson conspiracy in which he had arrested a couple named Bell.

January 13th, local readers avidly through the details of a determined police assault on brothel activities in that orb of iniquity on Zwicky's Island.

January 18th the reading was even hotter as the Intelligencer trumpeted: A Social Scandal — Bride of a few hours robbed of her treasure." The robber was McKinnon and the treasure a bigamous wretch from out of town of course — whose assaults on local virtue had been promptly uncovered by The Chief.

McKinnon hunting down horse thieves; McKinnon leading his men against a gang of railroad robbers; McKinnon taking time out to arrest a drunk; McKinnon facing down a crazed armed man after a shooting spree in the city's north end.

But all of the story-making exploits, the one which likely gave him most satisfaction before relinquishing his Belleville command, was what the out-of-towners proudly called his encounters with the notorious Coffin McDonald."

Alexander McDonald, to give his natal name, had one more claim to fame besides being a native of Thurlow township. From the newsbeats of the day he emerges as one of the most delightful rouges in Ontario history.

An engaging cheat, liar and robber, he was a veritable Scarlet Pimpernel. He could fleece a lawyer as smartly as a bumpkin, purse long enough to steal a horse, trade it for cash, then spend both into thin air.

He delighted in having the last laugh. Once he appeared in a Belleville court and disappear innocuously attired then turned on a motion when a spectator recognized McDonald's coat as his own wedding clothes, stolen. The night before his marriage months before!

On another occasion McDonald slipped over the walls of Hastings county jail and disappeared into the county. He paused long enough to purloin a batch of chickens owned by a county constable hunting him — then left enough evidence so the officer would know who had called.

On top of all this — to add insult to public wrath — he obtained family ties with his namesake John A. Macdonald, the Prime Minister himself!

Since he was a native of Thurlow, sooner or later he crossed swords with McKinnon. In the early rounds of the duel, the sleuth pinioned his adversary and at last, it seemed to the people of Ontario, MacDonald had met his match. But McKinnon's initial triumph was shortlived.

VIRTUOUS ACT

Up before the assizes, MacDonald turned in a virtuoso performance as a man victimized by drink. The judge, apparently much affected, ordered the supreme character to the local jail for one month — during he would see the error of his ways.

McKinnon seethed at his opponent—to quote The Intelligencer—"called divine blessings upon the judge's head as he was being led from the prisoner's dock."

In no time flat, the irrepressible McDonald slipped quietly over the jail wall and the duel was on again.

McKinnon the detective, however, finally figured the fatal flaw in his opponent's character. The gay trickster, while a classic rogue, was a scrupulous family man. He was dearly attached to his wife and could not abide the roving career without the odd trip home.

McKinnon kept all points alerted and eventually received a dividend. Someone reembling McDonald was seen near Shannonville. In dead of night, the chief assembled a party of men and struck out for the home in Thurlow.

There was a brief woodland chase, gunfire by a nervy policeman, and the game was in the bag.

McKinnon hailed his quarry before the bench and this time had the satisfaction of sending him get seven years—in the maximum security of Kingston penitentiary.

It was The Chief's last big investigation in Belleville, but not his last adventure.

The year 1886 had been a catastrophic one for fires in the Quinte district, with Belleville among the hardest hit.

In the early hours of an October morning the fire bells tolled again and the brigades turned out—this time to the Dafoe House, Belleville's biggest hostelry and one of Canada's leading provincial hotels. Its destruction was at once obvious and firemen concentrated on rescuing the inmates. Among them were The Chief and his aging mother.

The Intelligencer recounts what happened next:

"Chief McKinnon probably had the narrowest escape. He turned back to rescue his aged mother, who had passed her 80th year. He became confused on approaching a stair way which led to safety turned away, thinking . . . that he must be going into the hottest of the fire. At this critical moment, when he had turned away from the city avenues of safety and was feeling the effects of dense smoke he was found by officer Patrick Hayes, who was hunting for him, and taken into safety. Mrs. McKinnon was rescued by being taken from her room window."

Two weeks later the Intelligencer had reason to mention The Chief again, this time in a cryptic one — like statement: "Chief McKinnon is a candidate for the Chiefiaship of the Hamilton Police."

One morning shortly after a glum constable confirmed the end of the McKinnon reign in Belleville when he told a police reporter: "Well he's going to Hamilton, and I don't know whether I'm sorry or glad."

The sense of loss was common to the city. McKinnon was a prize possession, who had become an institution, and a front of civic pride.

However, the association between man and community ended on a happier note.

The police commission, in tribute to their famous servant's service declared to give a bonus of $75 — one month's extra pay.

When roll came before city council an argument ensued.

Echoing slaughter, if familiar sentiments, one alderman was quoted as declaring "while he believed the chief was entitled to every consideration from the citizens of Belleville for his performance of duty he was opposed to voting away public money."

The grubbiness of the wrangle ended in embarrassment as McKinnon rose and declined the gratuity since "any opposition to the granting of it robbed the gift of the pleasure that would accompany it."

Then McKinnon headed for even greater things and a more appreciated career, went back to Hamilton — from whence he had come 10 years before.

McKinnon's Police Rules

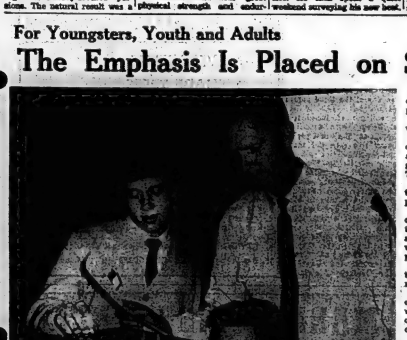
Hugh McKinnon, as Belleville's first chief constable, set the pattern of police conduct to this day.

The rules were under the rules he printed as necessary to revitalizing an otherwise demoralized force :

No constable could be "less than 5 feet 10 inches in height."

"He must be quiet, civil and orderly in his conduct and deportment."

"He must act with coolness and firmness in all cases, even in times of extreme peril. The police must act together and protect each other in the execution of their duty; who ever shrinks from danger or responsibility at such a time, will be discharged as unworthy."



No constable might "use any baton or other offensive weapon except in cases of self-defence or to prevent the escape of a felon — and then with caution."

"Prisoners must not be pulled or dragged along the street, but if unable or unwilling to go, a cart, hac, or cab, should be obtained if possible, taking care to prevent a specification of the expense to the Police Magistrate at the investigation."

Constables "shall, on discovering any pickpockets in any crowded place, call out in a loud voice and give notice of such characters being present."

The Emphasis Is Placed on Safety First

TEENS AND TOTS get safety instruction from officer Bob Hall. Top, at traffic clinic headquarters and in classroom (below.)

Prevention today is so pertinent to police work that the badge pinned to a traffic officer's cap.

Not only do the thousands of car-driving adults see it in action each week days, but also it is graphic parade before some 7,000 city youngsters.

The force's new headquarters today gave some idea of the prevention program extent.

The public viewed the new offices of the department's traffic detail, its equipment and facilities for meeting those with complaints and those complained against.

It is an accepted fact that the appearance of any of these — with their mobile units — at once restores the balance of orderliness along traffic routes.

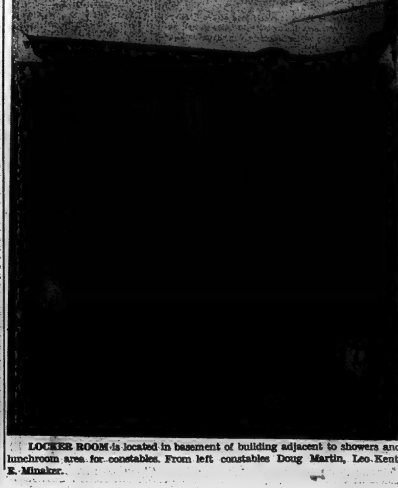
However, it is the unseen men who must sort out the details of traffic incidents. Their new offices allows them at least interviews , in an atmosphere that may assist the calmer judgments of all involved, directly or indirectly.

On the pre-school stage of highway safety is the department's traffic clinic, now many years in being after its inauguration by Sergeant Sam Cook; and more active than ever as its significance catches on.

SAFETY includes round-the-clock traffic patrol.

This now is the boat of a specially-appointed safety officer — Constable Robert Hall. Each Wednesday night from now on Constable Hall will conduct traffic safety clinic in the gymnasium unit of the building that has practically reorganized for the occasion.

Here, each driver may take a painstaking examination to exact from himself his own road reactions. Most of them will have their reactions recorded by a notable attendance of older drivers — who just want to be on the safe side.



Attendance at the clinic, incidentally, has no stigma. Good or bad as a driver, the pupil can only win. It exists merely as a courtesy gesture by local police in the interests of accident prevention.

Constable Hall is still responsible for the third — perhaps the most important — safety programming. It involves the city's 7,000 schoolchildren and soon his regularly visiting and lecturing them on safety measures.

In this sphere, his program of late is being expanded to take on more than traffic hazards. Children now are being gently tutored by the officer in what their immediate reactions should be on encountering strangers under suspicious circumstances — in the interests of wider community safety.

Since it is a matter of psychology, this provides the program's greatest challenge.

"It's vital," says the officer, "to convince them (the students) that certain persons must be avoided — without leaving them with the impression that they must forever be aware of people they do not immediately understand."

SPORTS SLICES

By Geo. H. Carver
Sports Editor

If Don "Turk" Barclay had a green stamp for everything he's done in and for sport in this village he'd come out wearing a pair of mink coats.

I don't think he's ever slipped a disc playing chess or checkers; he may have strained a wrist in a brisk round of bridge with Lou Sarzo, Gordie Ball and others of the McFarland's Bridge Club or he may have mangled a molar in a Hallowe'en apple-bobbing contest.

The "Turk", one of the most likeable and popular athletes to hail from the Old Lady of the Moira, has been transformed to other parts. He will reside in Brantford, due to employment consideration with the Northern Electric Company.

"TURK" BARCLAY

Since his junior days and during them Turk has been closer to hockey than tape to a goalie stick.

He is an original member of "Toots" Holbury's HI-Speeds—or any other name—juniors of long ago, a loveable clan that congregates every year to play shinny and count noses—among other things.

His hockey forte was the third pipe in a goal-net. He was rated one of the best goalies in junior ranks and later when necessity demanded he donned the pads for senior clubs among them the world champion McFarlands.

"Turk" never got a "tummy-full" of hockey but once he got a mouthful of puck. He bet his front teeth against a hard-driven puck—and the rubber won, five molars to nothing. Then after Bobby Green had attempted the same thing with the same result. Or was it vice versa?

He will perhaps be best remembered for his yeoman service with the Belleville McFarlands, particularly in the latter days of the OHA, Allan Cup and world tournament triumphs.

In the goal nets he was a great clutch-player. He was one of the best firemen extant but he had his off-moments as a "starter."

In the main he was "Mr. Dressing Room." He was the keeper of the wardrobe, the "listener" of aches, the guardian of the athletic the "stancher" of minor blood flows; assistant stitcher and the grand vizier of the sticks, puck and other equipment department.

If needs be Turk could transform to a private eye. Once while the McFarlands were travelling in Germany, a shipment of some 500 hockey sticks turned up missing. Turk traced them down alone, went broke in the doing, borrowed money off an RCAF sergeant and once travelled on the same train as the team without knowing it.

But the shining feather in his hockey cap came the night the Turk was named the goalie in an intra-club exhibition game played here by the Montreal Canadiens.

The famous Rocket Richard was on an opposing line—and in his prime. If the Turk was awed he didn't show it. Richard swept in on him time and again—and the Turk, hanging on grimly kicked out everything that came at him during the first period.

Other members of the Canadiens, delighted with seeing the Rocket blanked, took up a "fattace" collection and presented it to the Turk.

Nor was hockey the sole sports love of the Barclay life. He was an outstanding softball player and at one time won the city senior league batting championship.

He was a member of Don McNevin's Glen Ray juniors that won the all-Ontario junior "A" championship in two straight games at North Bay in 1952.

Then he took up golf.

For some time Turk has been a member of the Bay of Quinte Country Club, shooting that little white ball at a hole with passing ability. I don't imagine he will ever be an Arnold Palmer or win the Canadian Open, but he has something to his credit that a lot of much better golfers are trying to achieve.

As was noted yesterday, Mr. Barclay said his farewells to the Country Club course in a blaze of hole-in-one glory. He "one-bounced" his ball into the cup at the 12th hole, the first of his golf life and, I hope, not his last.

I don't think Turk Barclay has an "enemy" in the city or wherever he has travelled in his love of sport. Even if he had I'm sure they would join a host of sportswriters and other friends in wishing him the best in his new environment. In my book it couldn't happen to a nicer guy.

Willie Mays has National League pitchers seeing double again.

Mays, who gets $105,000 a year to parade his talents for San Francisco Giants, put on another one-man show Friday night by hammering two solo homers in a 4-3 loss to Los Angeles Dodgers.

That gave Mays five homers in the last four games and a major league-leading total of 10 in just 22 games.

Meanwhile, Bob Gibson of St. Louis Cardinals pitched a one-hitter in a 2-0 victory over Philadelphia Phillies, allowing only a fourth inning single by Johnny Callison as he posted his fifth victory without a loss and his third shutout.

Houston's Dave Giusti also brought his record to 5-0 by grabbing the victory in the Astros' 5-4 triumph over Chicago Cubs. In the only other game played, Pittsburgh Pirates edged Cincinnati Reds 5-4 on Manny Mota's decisive single.

Mays got off to a fast start last season, hitting above the .400 mark in the early going. He continued to hit well but in the home run department he's exactly where he was May 8 last year.

CEPEDA IS AILING

The sport by Mays came at just the right time for the Giants, who were forced to place slugging Orlando Cepeda on the disabled list for 30 days because of his ailing right knee.

The Dodgers eventually cracked a 3-3 tie in the eighth inning to make Claude Osteen the winner with a six-hitter.

Gibson, working effortlessly, struck out eight and walked three while allowing only Callison's single.

Two Philadelphia errors—the Phillies have made 25 in the last 14 games—proved the undoing of loser Chris Short.

The Cubs got started quickly against Giusti and the Astros with Ernie Banks hitting a three-run homer in the first. But Houston took over after that.

BOB GIBSON

Giusti drove home two runs with a double in the second and the Astros wrapped it up with Bob Aspromonte's three - run homer in the fifth.

Trailing 4-3 in the ninth, the Pirates jammed through three runs to beat the Reds. Mota's two - out single drove in the clincher after pinch-hitter Gene Freese singled, Roberto Clemente singled and Roberto Clemente knocked in the second run with a sacrifice fly.

Shift Title Bout From Boston

--Big TV Pay

LEWISTON, Maine (AP) — The storm-tossed Cassius Clay-Sonny Liston heavyweight title fight is banned in Boston and committed to a May 25 date—has found refuge in this Maine textile centre.

With about $4,200,000 in ancillary rights at stake and time running out, backers of the rematch ended a court battle Friday by pulling it out of Boston. They needed a stage quickly, whatever the size, to rescue their closed circuit television commitments around the country.

Gov. John E. Reed of Maine stepped forward and within a few hours the site was shifted to this community of about 14,000.

CASSIUS CLAY

The locale now is the Lewiston Youth Centre, which seats 5,000 instead of Boston Garden with a 13,909 seating capacity. Champion Clay, whose emergency hernia operation forced postponement of a bout from the originally scheduled Nov. 16 Boston date, put his unruffled reaction into the inevitable rhyme:

"When Liston leaves Maine, He'll be in pain."

"I don't care if they stage the fight in a telephone booth," Clay said from his western Massachusetts training camp in Chicopee.

Suffolk County District Attorney Garrett Byrne had sought an injunction blocking the fight in Boston, charging Inter - Continental Promotions Inc. "under auspices other than Inter - Continental."

Assistant District Attorney Jack Zalkind indicated the fight still could be staged in Boston "under auspices other than Inter - Continental."

Sherbrooke Near Allan Cup

SHERBROOKE, Que. (CP)— "We're not letting up for tonight's game," says playing coach Georges Roy of Sherbrooke Beavers, whose club holds a 3-0 lead over Nelson (B.C.) Maple Leafs in the best-of-seven Allan Cup final series.

Roy delivered a pep talk Friday night to his Beavers, one victory away from Sherbrooke's first Allan Cup, emblem of Canadian senior hockey supremacy.

He said he told his players to "get their goals early so we can wrap it up."

Tonight's game could be the final game of the series.

A fifth if necessary will be played in Sherbrooke Sunday, with the sixth and seventh contests slated for Tuesday and Thursday nights.

Sherbrooke has taken 7-3, 4-1 and 9-2 victories in the series.

Roy—whose team has registered 13 straight playoff victories—said the only doubtful starter on the Sherbrooke roster is Dino Mascotto, who has limited blueline service by a pulled stomach muscle.

Commenting on charges by Nelson playing coach Bobby Kromm that the officiating in the series has been poor, Roy said: "You can't blame the referee for nine goals."

"We scored the goals, they didn't," was his simple analysis.

SCORED QUICK GOALS

The Sherbrooke club, ahead 3-0 at the start of the third period Thursday night, rammed home seven goals in the final 20 minutes to wind up on the winner's end of a 9-2 score. Four of their last-period markers came over a six-minute span.

Nelson has never held the lead in any of the three games played to date.

The collapse of the Maple Leafs' defence was described by Kromm as "the worst period of hockey I've seen our team play all year."

Kromm admits the Westerners have their backs to the wall as Sherbrooke "has everything going for them now."

However, he refuses to concede defeat and says all his squad needs is one victory.

Kromm maintains the club has not given up on his capabilities so far.

After the second game, Kromm wired the Canadian Amateur Hockey Association that the refereeing had been "atrocious" and requested that referee Dutch Vandeslen be replaced.

"I haven't had any reply about this," Kromm said. "Well, if that's the way they do things, okay. I made my point."

Plunging Yanks Lose Another Pair

White Sox Win

By MURRAY CHASE
Associated Press Sports Writer

Looking like anything but defending league champions, New York Yankees plunged below Washington Senators in the American League Standings Friday night and are nearing the lowest team batting average they have ever recorded.

The Yankees dropped a doubleheader to the Senators 4-3 and 7-3 after dropping a twin-bill to Baltimore Orioles only last Sunday.

The double loss left the Yanks with five losses in their last six games and only an 8-12 won-lost record. They are 6½ games off the league pace and now nine percentage points behind the eighth-placed Senators in the standings.

Elsewhere in the league Friday night, Chicago White Sox trounced Minnesota Twins 13-5, Cleveland Indians defeated Boston Red Sox 5-1 and Los Angeles Angels edged Kansas City Athletics 5-4 before losing 6-3.

Jim King won his third game in a week as a pinch-hitter for the Senators, cracking a two-run homer in the seventh inning that wiped out a 3-2 lead Clete Boyer gave the Yankees with a homer in the fifth.

WASHINGTON EXPLODED

The Yankees led the nightcap 3-2 until the seventh when Washington exploded for five runs. Howard drove in the first three with a bases-loaded triple off Pedro Ramos and scored on Woodie Held's homer.

Danny Cater's three-run homer in the seventh inning was the deciding blow in Chicago's fifth straight victory.

Don Mincher, Al Weis and Pete Ward also homered for the White Sox while Harmon Killebrew connected for the Twins, who contributed seven errors to Chicago's attack.

Lois Tiant pitched a five-hitter as Cleveland handed the Red Sox their fourth straight defeat. Leon Wagner singled in a Cleveland run in a three-run third and homered in the eighth.

The Angels extended their winning streak to five before losing the second game Rollever Bob Lee came on in the seventh inning and saved Dean Chance's third victory. Willie Smith drove in three Los Angeles runs.

Fred Talbot stopped the Angels in the nightcap with John Wyatt's relief help and belted a three-run triple in the fourth inning.

Pitching—Bob Gibson, Cardinals, buried a one-hitter, allowing only a fourth-inning single by Johnny Callison, as he won his fifth game without a loss by blanking Philadelphia 3-0.

Batting—Willie Mays, Giants, hit two homers in a 4-3 loss to Los Angeles Dodgers, giving him five in the last four games and a total of 10 in just 22 games this season.

Rather Than Turn Pro

Fran Huck Would Play For Nationals

By BOB TRIMBEE

EDMONTON (CP) — Fran Huck, one of Canada's most publicized junior hockey stars, would rather reach the 1968 Olympics with Canada's national hockey team than turn professional.

The 160-pound centre, who has scored more than 200 goals for Regina Pats in the last two years, is one of three recruits selected by Edmonton Oil Kings for the current best-of-seven Canadian junior hockey final against Niagara Falls Flyers.

Huck says he hopes to join the national team at Winnipeg next fall.

"I want to finish university before I consider a pro contract," he said Friday in an interview.

"I've got two courses to complete (at the University of Saskatchewan) this summer to give me my first year in arts. I think I can complete my degree more easily with the nationals than if I join a pro team.

"I've always wanted to play in the Olympics and Father Bauer (Rev. David Bauer who organized Canada's first truly national team for the 1964 Olympics) recently talked to me about the prospects of joining the nationals.

"A lot of people don't realize the good talent the team has and the difficulties it has to get ready for overseas competition. After 1968 will be soon enough to think about pro. Too many players jump into pro ranks before they are ready."

Huck, 19, still has a year of junior eligibility, but says the current Memorial Cup series will be his last action with a junior club.

FAVORS MONTREAL

He hopes to play for Montreal Canadiens of the National Hockey League "if I decide to play professional hockey."

FRAN HUCK

The Memorial Cup series, which the Flyers lead 2-0, is the second in a row Huck has played for Oil Kings. A year ago Edmonton lost four straight to Toronto Marlboros.

Huck scored the Oil Kings' only goal in a 5-1 loss Thursday. Four of 14 penalties taken by Niagara Falls came as a result of infractions against Huck.

"I wasn't too happy with my play in the game," Huck said. "I've been off stating a couple of weeks and certainly didn't skate or carry the puck well. I can do much better."

Defenceman Jim Cardiff of Weyburn and netminder Wayne Stephenson of Winnipeg, the other two Oil King recruits, also hope for better things when the series resumes Monday night.

"It's not too easy to live out of a suitcase," said Cardiff, "but the three-day layoff will help us more than it will Flyers."

Edmonton, which has lost six straight Memorial Cup games since winning the 1963 title, have scheduled two-hour workouts daily until the next game.

Pulls Leg Muscles

'Mickey Can't Run'--Keane

WASHINGTON (AP) — "Mickey can't run," said New York Yankee manager Johnny Keane. "It's as simple as that."

Thus Keane acknowledged that the Yankees' $100,000 outfielder, Mickey Mantle, once again is having trouble with his legs. This time the diagnosis is a double pull of the muscles in his right leg.

The injury flared up dramatically Friday night after Mantle removed himself from the starting Yankee lineup for the third game of a doubleheader against Washington Senators. He went in as a pinch hitter in the eighth inning, rapped a line drive that shortstop Ed Brinkman knocked down and took three or four steps toward first base. Then, in obvious pain, he limped toward the dugout.

Keane said later Mantle had orders not to run if the ball went in the infield.

Keane said the injury, if aggravated now, could knock Mantle out of action "for a long time." He said whether or not Mantle plays in the next few games will be decided on a day-to-day basis.

The champion dominated Rojas, of San Pedro, Calif., throughout their bout and had a decision clinched when referee Tommy Hart stopped it with just 10 seconds remaining.

THE ARNOLD Palmer Method
by GOLF'S 4-TIME MASTERS WINNER
FITTING YOUR SHOTS TO A PATTERN

Today's lesson is directed largely to golfers who flickby wish to excel at the game. It deals with a finer point of play.

Many highly successful golfers find that it is not best to attempt to hit the ball perfectly straight. A straight shot is most difficult to produce, and therefore an unreliable goal. Those golfers who find it more reliable to develop a swing pattern that produces a slight bend to their normal shots. They find it easier consistently to produce a left-to-right or right-to-left shot than one that flies straight.

If your long-range plans for your golfing future are to shoot par or better, I suggest you work with your professional in developing such a shot pattern.

If you are now a long hitter, you will find the left-to-right shot pattern (for right-handers) the best for accuracy. Shorter hitters may need the added distance one gets from right-to-left shots, which usually produces more roll.

Success of Show Causes Actor to Delay Education

By JAMES BACON

If his series, which recently broke into the top 10 rated shows, continues successful, Vaughn's quest for a doctor of philosophy degree will be seriously delayed.

No actor, or actress, in memory ever was known to be working for a PhD while actively pursuing a theatrical career.

But Vaughn, 23, acts by day and goes to the University of Southern California by night. He already has his Bachelor and Master degrees.

"It takes a good three years to get a doctorate, including one uninterrupted stretch of six months where I could let nothing interfere with my studies.

"Now the show is in orbit and I don't know when I'll ever get that six-month stretch. Meanwhile, I'll continue with my studies."

Vaughn is majoring in political science. Long before former actor George Murphy decided to become U.S. senator, Vaughn visited to run for public office. His figures he has a dozen years left as an actor.

"Then I'll be ready for politics," he says.

Vaughn was a tireless election campaigner for President Johnson. He frequently makes trips to foreign countries.

He recently holidayed in the Soviet Union as the guest of Valery Brumel, the world champion high jumper.

"I found out I was known in Russia," says Vaughn. "The Magnificent Seven, a movie I made some years back, is one of the most popular movies over there.

"I had the red carpet treatment. I even got a big press conference. It's one of the few American movies the Russians have seen."

Single Milk Marketing Bd. Proposed in Legislature By Agriculture Minister

TORONTO (CP) — A compulsory new milk act providing for the establishment of a single milk marketing board to govern the handling of all fluid milk in Ontario was presented to the legislature Friday by Agriculture Minister William Stewart.

He said the new act will be administered by a milk commission, which will replace the existing milk industry board. Because of a transition period allowing for new administrative procedures to go into effect, no fixed date has been set for the legislation to become law.

Mr. Stewart said the milk commission, directed by a civil servant rather than an independent person as recommended by the milk industry inquiry committee, will supervise all aspects of Ontario's dairy industry.

Nothing in the new legislation should affect the price of milk to the consumer, Mr. Stewart told reporters after introducing the bill. However, he didn't rule out a future increase in the price of milk.

While the milk producers marketing board will be responsible for the marketing of all fluid milk, the existing cream producers marketing board and the cheese producers marketing board will continue to operate.

WIPE OUT QUOTAS

The milk producers marketing board will take over the work of the Ontario Whole Milk Producers League and the Ontario Concentrated milk producers marketing board.

Mr. Stewart said producers' quotas in the various marketing areas of Ontario will be wiped out. He rejected the inquiry committee's recommendation that producers be compensated at the rate of 85 a pound for each pound of their quotas.

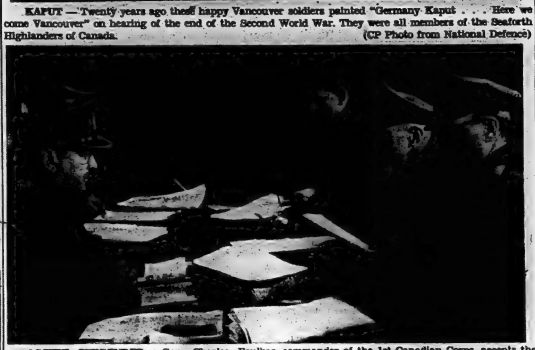
The board, the agriculture minister said. No producer or milk distributor in Ontario will be allowed to operate outside of the board.

He said the legislation provides for conciliation procedures in the event of a stalemate between the various negotiation sectors of the province's vast milk industry.

Advisory committees would be appointed to work with the milk producers marketing board, the cheese producers marketing board, and the cream producers marketing board.

COMMON GROUND

"These advisory committees would provide a common meeting ground for processors, distributors, producers and truckers for the purpose of solving mutual problems and avoiding misunderstanding," Mr. Stewart said.



The intent of the new milk board would be to gradually expand the size of distribution areas in Ontario, providing for increased competition and a freer flow of milk across the province.

The inquiry committee, under the chairmanship of Professor S. G. Hennessy, recommended that distribution areas be wiped out immediately. Mr. Stewart said the department of agriculture could not buy this.

The result would be that smaller distributors would disappear overnight, he said. The new marketing plan, by encompassing all distributors of Grade A milk, would protect the smaller dairies.

Questions and Answers On Highway Travel

Ontario Motor League Eastern Ontario Club

QUESTION: I read your interesting travel column and wonder if you could give me some advice on the Trans - Canada Highway. Where can I obtain a map of this highway? Are there service stations and restaurants available? Are the conditions of the roads? Your help in this would be very much appreciated. Thank you - Mr. T. K., Belleville.

ANSWER: Maps of the Trans - Canada Highway are obtainable at the local CMA or the Chamber of Commerce. These maps are free. The Highway itself is good except for the odd strip which is under repair or improvement. As to the service stations and restaurants, there are not too many, but enough to keep a traveller from worrying, and to supply service if needed. This well - travelled route of 4,860 and varied scenery is considered the world's longest national highway. From Victoria British Columbia to St. John's Newfoundland, a 5,000 mile wonder.

QUESTION: We are interested in camping with our trailer at the Rideau Lakes. Have they a trailer camp there and when does it open for the season? - Mr. J. R. Belleville.

ANSWER: There is a trailer camp by the name of Black Lake Park, three miles west of the junction of Highways 7 and 38. Trailers, camping, toilets, drinking water, fireplaces, swimming. Camping season is from the 1st of May.

QUESTION: We are planning our honeymoon at the end of June. Where could we go to relax and fish within a radius of 300 miles? — D. M., Napanee.

ANSWER: The Laurentians, north of Montreal, are within 275 miles of Napanee, and have lovely motels, good fishing and beautiful scenery. The Adirondacks in New York State are also very beautiful with good accommodations and fishing. This is about 150 miles from Napanee. Or you could go to the Muskoka Lakes about 100 miles north of Toronto, where there are all sorts of resorts, and camping facilities. Long Sault Parkway Cornwall is another delightful spot. Others nearby are Brown's Bay, Ivy Lea, Adolphstown, Prince Edward County, Barry's Bay and Lake St. Peter.

QUESTION: We are newcomers to Canada and we would like to visit Niagara Falls and we have heard so much about it. We know how to get there, but wondered if you could give us more detailed information about this famous landmark? — Mrs. P., Belleville.

ANSWER: Niagara's Thundering Waters are indeed a most interesting subject. At 210,000 cubic feet a second, the waters of Lakes Superior, Huron, Michigan and Erie flow down the Niagara River to plunge 167 feet into the Niagara Gorge. The roar of the water, the clouds of mist rising high above the falls, the fury of the Whirlpool Rapids make a awesome combination of sights and sounds. Three separate waterfalls are discernible: the American, Bridal Veil and Horseshoe. The falls are illuminated at night in a fantazy of color by floodlights. You may, if you wish fly over the falls in a helicopter or ride in a boat for a closer view.

QUESTION: I am hoping to take a trip to Milport, New York shortly. Can you tell me how many miles it is from Belleville, and the best route? — Mrs. W. E. McT., Thomasburg.

ANSWER: The best route is by Hwy. 37 and 401 (Macdonald Cartier Freeway) to the Ivy Lea Bridge, Route 12 to Watertown, 81 through Syracuse to Tully, 281 to Cortland, 13 to Junction of 14 (north of Elmira) then north on 14 to Milport. This is a 286-mile trip from Thomasburg.

Successful Living

Told to Enjoy Life When Boy Friend Stricken Ill

DEAR DORIS — I am 17, and Vic is 19. He came down about five times a week and we were very happy. Then it happened.

He started acting unusual. He was feeling tired and aching in his neck and limbs. The doctor said he had arthritis and put him in hospital, for maybe six months, he said.

DORIS CLARK

I've been to see him and now he tells me to get another boy friend. He said he was sorry that he couldn't take me to shows, roller skating and bowling. He wants me to go out and have some fun.

I told him I don't want another boy. I love him very much. Doesn't he realize that love is stronger than illness or death? He's so young to be crippled like that. Please help me. — HEART BROKEN.

DEAR HEART — Bless you for being young, and noble, and sympathetic! And bless Vic for refusing to cling.

You wouldn't want his concern for you to add to his tensions, would you? Peace of mind is closely linked with the body's successful fight against such a blight as arthritis — at its worst.

I'd suggest you do three things: learn about the various types of arthritis by writing to The Canadian Arthritis and Rheumatism Society, Mr. D. G. Barrett, 157 McLaren Street, Ottawa 4, for their booklet; find out the prognosis for the type Vic has so you'll know what you are likely to be up against; and set Vic free by assuring him you will live a normal life and have some fun.

Whether your love is of the death-defying, permanent type which can weather the storm of a crippling disease is yet to be determined — and at 17 you should not put yourself on the spot to declare such a thing.

May 8, 1945!

The Day "The Big Show' Ended'

By DAVE McINTOSH
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Afterwards, the generals, politicians and historians dwelt in cascades of books on the mighthave-beens.

—Could the Second World War have been ended in 1944 if the Canadian Army had closed the Falaise gap earlier and prevented escape of a large part of the German 7th Army?

—What if the British paratchute drop at Arnhem had been successful?

—Should Gen. George Patton's U.S. 3rd Army have been turned loose to roar across Germany?

But none of these questions seemed to trouble anyone, if indeed they were even thought of, on that glorious May 8, 1945, when they danced in Trafalgar Square, "liberated" booze in Halifax, and the pitiful skeleton tottered from the Nazi horror camps.

VE-Day (victory in Europe) seemed ages coming even in those last few days as German fronts and armies crumbled East and west and Hitler's body was being burned to blowing ashes outside his Berlin bunker.

On the evening of May 2, 1945, the 1st Canadian Parachute Battalion reached Hitler war on the Baltic coast, forestalling any Russian advance in Denmark. It had been the first Canadian unit to land in Normandy on D-Day, June 6, 1944, and made the deepest penetration of any Canadian formation into Germany.

KILLING DIDN'T END

At 8:30 p.m. May 4, Field Marshal Montgomery announced a ceasefire on 21st Army Group front by 8 a.m. May 5 and ordered all offensive operations to cease "from receipt of this signal."

But men were still to die.

There were 60 Canadian Army casualties May 4, one-third of them fatal, and 10, including three airmen, on May 5.

One of the last Canadians killed was Protestant Chaplain Capt. A. E. McCreary of the Canadian Grenadier Guards. He and Lieut. N. A. Goldie had set off on the morning of May 5 in some wounded Germans. Both were killed in circumstances still unknown.

On May 5, Col.-Gen. Johannes Blaskowitz surrendered his 120,000-man 25th German Army to 1st Canadian Corps at a ceremony in the Hotel de Acreid at Wageningen in The Netherlands. More than a year later Blaskowitz committed suicide while awaiting trial as a war criminal.

Altogether, more than 13,000 Canadians died in the liberation of Holland and to this day the remembering Dutch place a wreath at the National War Memorial in Ottawa every May 5 and throughout the year bring flowers to Canadian graves in Holland.

RESISTANCE CONTINUED

Though the Germans had capitulated on Montgomery's front, Nazi supreme headquarters was still trying to mount some kind of last-ditch fight against the Americans.

About 2:15 a.m. May 7, a signal came into Montgomery's headquarters. It was taken down by Canadian Col. W. W. Lockhart, now chief of communications in the external affairs department.

The signal came from Admiral Doenitz, Hitler's successor, giving General Jodl, then at Eisenhower's Allied Supreme Headquarters, the authority to sign a surrender.

The signal was telephoned to Allied headquarters 400 miles away and 20 minutes later, at 2:41 a.m., the surrender document was signed in the schoolhouse at Reims. The Second World War in Europe ended the following midnight.

The diarist of the Queen's Own Rifles of Canada recorded simply: "There is no celebration but everybody is happy."

On VE-Day, Gen. H. D. G. Crerar, commander of the 1st Canadian Army (who died a few weeks ago), received a letter from Montgomery.

"My dear Harry:

"I feel that on this day I must write you a note of personal thanks for all that you have done for me since we first served together in this war.

"No commander can ever have a more loyal subordinate than I have had in you. And under your command the Canadian army has covered itself with glory in the campaign in western Europe. I want you to know that I am deeply grateful for what you have done. If ever there is anything I can do for you, or for your magnificent Canadian Soldiers you know that you need only to ask.

62,000 KILLED

From a Dutch girl came this letter to Gen. Crerar which ended: "I would like to finish this letter in thanking you once more for our liberation and may God bless you."

Nearly 42,000 Canadian servicemen had been killed—37,964 soldiers, 17,100 airmen and 1,837 sailors.

Seven Germans were tried after the war for shooting Canadian airmen who had bailed out. Four of these war criminals were shot. One was hanged. Two served prison sentences and the last was released in 1954.

Maj. - Gen. Kurt (Panzer) Meyer was convicted by a Canadian army court martial in 1945 of responsibility in the mass shooting of 18 Canadian prisoners of war. He served nine years and was released in 1955. He has since died.

Nearly 22,000 Canadians have spent the post-war years with some war - inflicted handicap. There are more than 2,000 amputees: 1,320 men lost one leg; 38 both legs, 410 one arm and 10 both arms; 198 were totally blinded; 362 are paraplegics.

Russia Stages Military Parade At Anniversary

By FRED W. COLEMAN

MOSCOW (AP)—Russia celebrated the 20th anniversary of VE-Day Sunday with a new moon shot, a military display, an appeal for renunciation of nuclear weapons and a new attack on U.S. policy.

The moon shot, Lunik V, was a 3,254-pound electronic instrument package to gather and back scientific information. Tass news agency said it was launched from an artificial earth satellite put into orbit earlier in the day by a multi-stage rocket.

The exact time or place of the launching was not announced, but it presumably took place about the hour the Kremlin gave its first public display of the kind of rockets that have carried its manned space ships into orbit.

Tass said Lunik V was equipped with "measuring devices" but did not say what kind of information it would send back from its 250,000-mile journey.

IS NEAR COURSE

Tass said the rocket at 10 p.m. Sunday was 70,000 miles from the earth and was close to its planned course.

There was no indication of any attempt to radio back photographs of the moon's surface. An earlier Lunik had photographed the dark side of the moon. Nor was there any indication whether the rocket would hit the moon or go into orbit around it.

The U.S. Ranger 9, an 800-pound electronic package crammed with television cameras, sent back more than 5,000 pictures of the lunar surface before crashing into a moon crater March 24.

The Soviet display came during a military parade in Red Square. Thousands of Russians saw the pair of 110-foot, three-stage rockets and four other weapons never seen in public before.

Tass said the giant rockets were solid - fueled and that their range was "unlimited." The agency added "they are similar" to the rockets that launched the Vostok and Voshkod manned space ships.

ARE SKEPTICAL

Western observers were skeptical of the claim that the rockets were solid - fueled. They said that some exterior features were similar to those on liquid - fuelled rockets used in the U.S. space program.

Other weapons not shown previously to the public were a six-rocket anti - tank system mounted on an armored reconnaissance vehicle, 30 new T-62 medium tanks that have been

Tornado Wipes Out Town

PRIMROSE, Neb. (AP) — Spurred by Governor Frank Morrison's promise of all possible aid, national guardsmen, volunteers and residents of this Nebraska community dug in today to clear the debris left by a tornado that ripped a 300-yard path along main street.

Bulldozers, dump trucks, front end loaders and chain saws operated by guardsmen ordered in by the governor have started the cleanup task.

A group of plumbers came in from Norfolk, Neb., to help restore water service and forest service officials were to look over trees to see which could be saved.

The governor visited the community Sunday during an air tour of the tornado - stricken area. He called the storms one of the worst series in the history of the state.

FOUR KILLED

The twister, one of at least 20 reported within a 100-mile radius of Norfolk by searchers Nebraska, left four dead and nine injured in Primrose. No other deaths were recorded but as reports filtered in from more than a score of other communities struck by tornadoes, it appeared the injured list would be at least 25.

In this village of 129 persons 100 miles west of Omaha only five of 14 business buildings remain intact were left standing. about 20 dwellings were destroyed and 18 to 20 more were so badly damaged they appeared beyond repair.

The completeness of the devastation was expressed this way by George Adams, 72, son-in-law of one of the men who founded Primrose in 1902: "This town, like other small towns, was dying, but this tornado sealed the coffin. It can't be rebuilt."

William Davis, who estimated he lost a $50,000 investment represented by his home, two cars, three tractors and a feed lot, declared: "I've had it. I'm going to pile the family in a car and head west. . . A man would be nuts to live in tornado country."

Before the tornado hit," said Davis; "I considered myself a fairly wealthy man. Now I haven't even got a shirt to call my own. I had to borrow one this morning."

The unrehearsed tribute suddenly erupted after a fleeting mention of Stalin as a Russian wartime commander-in-chief in a speech on the 20th anniversary of VE-Day by the new Soviet Communist party leader, Leonid Brezhnev.

The crowd's reaction seemed to strike Brezhnev like a thunderclap. Obviously surprised, he stumbled over his text. But he quickly recovered his composure and abruptly cut off the demonstration by hastily resuming his reading.

The manifestation indicated that, despite nine years of de-Stalinization, there may be many more fans of Stalin in Russia than the Soviet leaders suspected.

THE WEATHER

Synopsis: Another warm day is forecast and temperatures will reach the 80s in many areas. A noticeable change to cooler drier weather will carry into this afternoon and this evening over southern Ontario. A disturbance from Lake Superior will move across central Ontario today and bring the cooler drier air from the west.

Intermittent rain falling over much of the Northern Ontario will move east eastward with the disturbance. Cloudiness is expected to persist throughout most of today. Clearing is forecast tonight as a westerly circulation replaces the cool easterlies. Fair and mild weather is anticipated for all of Ontario on Tuesday.

Supply Debate Coming

OTTAWA (CP)—The opposition gets its third opening of the current session today to test the strength of the minority Liberal government.

Few observers expect, however, that the two-day supply debate will leave the government any shorter of votes than it was during the throne speech and budget debates.

One reason is that almost full attendance of the 265 MPs is needed for a combined opposition to defeat the government and force an election.

Another is that the nine Social Credit members have given tacit support to the Liberal party on the grounds the country should not have to face another election at this time.

Social Credit has maintained this position to the extent of voting against motions of nonconfidence moved by other opposition parties that they actually favor.

PROVIDES CHANCE

The supply motion, by which the government gets the spending estimates of several departments formally before the House, provides the opposition with an opportunity to test the strength of the government on any subject it elects choosing.

The minority parties also can offer a sub-amendment with all of them coming to a vote by Tuesday night.

Normal practice is for the leader of the Opposition to lead off the debate and set the overall subject matter for it through the initial non - confidence amendment.

But it is doubtful that any vote during this two-day debate could result in defeat of the government and a turn to the voters to settle the question in the light of Social Credit's affirmed statement that the country does not deserve an election at this time.

Social Credit's position being interpreted without, there does not seem to be any worry on the government side.

Pearson and Lesage Mum On Treaty-making Problem

MONTREAL (CP)—After six hours of weekend negotiations over the thorny treaty - making issue, Prime Minister Pearson and Premier Jean Lesage now will go before their cabinets to see whether there is government support for the course they followed.

Just what that course is remained an official secret after the two men, with several other cabinet ministers and advisers, held two hotel - suite sessions here ,Saturday night and Sunday morning. While no conclusions were reached, pending cabinet discussions, there were indications that the men moved toward a basis for agreement.

At issue is whether Quebec has the right to conclude international agreements in fields under provincial jurisdiction. It has claimed that right. On the other side, the federal government says a province may negotiate details of treaties with foreign powers when the subject matter comes under provincial jurisdiction, but only the federal government may sign treaties.

Mr. Pearson said after the talks that "very satisfactory progress" had been made. Mr. Lesage said "the meeting we've had is going to be very helpful to Canada, the provinces and particularly Quebec."

Expel Soviet Spies

By WILLIAM NEVILLE

OTTAWA (CP)—Prime Minister Pearson was expected to face questioning in the Commons today over the government's expulsion of two Soviet diplomats for trying to bribe two Canadians into espionage work.

The pair — commercial attache A. E. Bytchkov and embassy aide O. V. Polochkin — were sent home to the Soviet Union Friday after being declared "persons non grata" by the Canadian government.

Charges against them included offering two Canadians "thousands of dollars" to secure classified information and even seeking to "compromise" female civil servants.

Word of the espionage case, fifth in this country since the Second World War, was disclosed in a 275-word statement issued Saturday by the external affairs department.

Mr. Pearson, who was in Montgal when the bid broke, declined immediate comment on it. A spokesman said, however, the prime minister would have a statement ready for the Commons when it meets at 2:30 p.m. EDT.

KEPT INFORMED

External Affairs Minister Martin also was out of Ottawa —on a European tour—when the expulsion was announced. Officials said he was kept informed of developments by telephone.

The external affairs statement said Bytchkov and Polochkin were told to leave the country after it was learned "they had engaged in activities incompatible with their official status."

Soviet ambassador Ivan Shpedko was called to the department last Tuesday, informed of the charges, and told to "arrange for the departure" of the two men. They left three days later.

The departmental statement outlined the specific charges

Drums Contain Gravel, Loss Many Thousands

Provincial and federal government investigators are believed probing a theft as extraordinary in value as its method is baffling.

More than 300,000 pounds of cobalt is reported to have been stockpiled on the property of the Deloro Refining and Smelting Company Ltd.

Officials were tight-lipped on the size of the haul, but one said "there was little left" of about 200 drums of cobalt stored there since 1958.

Each drum contained up to 1,300 pounds of the cobalt in pellet-form.

The amount missing would have supplied the Canadian market for more than five years.

The mineral is used in steel-hardening processes.

Investigators said many of the drums had been emptied of the mineral and filled with sand and gravel. Others were discovered empty.

SOUNDED HOLLOW

The theft was first discovered early hat week, when one of the empty drums gave off a hollow sound while being checked.

The inspection was reported being carried out following a federal government decision to release the cobalt for sale.

Detective sergeant Lloyd Lyle, chief investigator of Belleville OPP district headquarters, was sent to the scene and began preliminary investigations Thursday.

Today he was joined by federal investigators and a senior officer from the OPP Criminal Investigation Branch.

NO TIME SET

With OPP officers and Deloro officials at the scene this morning were J. C. Devlin, defence production materials officer, and T. J. Woods, defence production security officer.

Police would cast no light on any clues they might have on the timing of the theft.

It could have occurred any-

2 Britons Get Terms For Spying

LONDON (AP)—Two financially strapped Britons with jobs in top military establishments pleaded guilty today to spying for pay from the Russians and two Red co-workers.

time in the past six years.

The cobalt was originally purchased in concentrated form by the federal government in the Cobalt area of Northern Ontario. It was shipped to Deloro for refining and later stockpiled there. Deloro smelting operations closed down in 1961.

Demolition of company buildings is still being carried out.

Market values of the mineral when first declined was about $3 a pound. Since then the price on world markets has declined.

Neither were investigators revealing any indication they might have of the eventual destination of such a huge amount of cobalt.

One investigator said the markets were being "pleased".

Dominican Rebels Reject Junta's Invitation To Surrender

SANTO DOMINGO (AP) — The Dominican rebels have rejected a surrender invitation from the new five - man military - civilian junta with a reply that they have the morale and manpower to withstand attack.

Gen. Atonio Imbert Barrera, president of the five-man junta, warned Sunday that his forces are ready to move against the rebels. But he said no attack would be launched until every effort has been exhausted to avert bloodshed.

U.S. sources said the Johnson administration would counsel against any renewal of fighting between the opposing Dominican factions.

Imbert invited the rebels to lay down their arms and leave the country if they want to.

Col. Francisco Caamano Deno, the rebel leader, issued this reply from his headquarters in the rebel - held southeast portion of Santo Domingo:

"We have defeated their best troops and the best from the national police force. Do they think that with reserves from the interior they will be able to defeat a people whose morale is higher than it ever was?"

The rebels have charged that eight truckloads of Dominican troops were brought in from the countryside and are stationed in the zone occupied by U.S. troops.

Although there were no official figures available on the size of forces available to the junta, Imbert said his troops were capable of moving against the rebels.

Before the revolt, which deposed the civilian triumvirate headed by Donald Reid Cabral, the Dominican Army was estimated at 25,000 to 30,000 men. Brig.-Gen. Elias Wessin y Wessin, military strongman behind the junta, was said to command 1,500 troops and about 30 tanks, in addition to the Dominican Air Force.

Caamano's high command has estimated there are 20,000 civilians and 3,000 armed forces officers and men ready to defend the rebel cause.

The rebels are hemmed in by the Ushaped zone occupied by U.S. troops and have their backs to the Caribbean Sea.

U.S. forces installed 105-millimetre howitzers in a field in front of the Embajador Hotel on the seaside resort in suburban Santo Domingo which has been an evacuation centre and American headquarters area.

Bulldozers scooped out huge holes for the howitzer emplacements and the cannon were set up facing the rebel area. Access routes to the hotel also appeared to have more troops than usual.

Imbert announced that eight top - ranking military officers had been separated from their commands "for the good of the country" and that all but two of them had left the country.

The officers had long held top jobs in the Dominican's armed forces and are considered

Killer dogs have set back a project of the Belleville Fish and Game Club about three years.

The mangled bodies of six pens pheasants, two Chukar partridge and three doves were found today at the Fish and Game sanctuary on Elmwood Drive.

"It has taken me three years to develop these phases of the club's project" Woodhouse said today "and its all gone for nothing."

Woodhouse raises mallard ducks on the sanctuary and has met with outstanding success. Each year hundreds of these wild birds take off - and annually many return.

He has notified the Department of Lands and Forests, the RCMP and Ontario Provincial Police and investigations are under way.

"Dogs have been bothering the sanctuary for some time now" said Woodhouse "but this is the first 'mass murder' we have encountered."

He raised a pair of wild geese which acted as "policemen", but they began to show hostility toward human beings and he got rid of them.

"Now" he says, "it seems the dogs know they are gone and are coming back for their kills."

He has applied for clarification of acts covering protection from roaming dogs and has decided to take definite action against the dogs, owners or both.

Liberals Want Ontario Rights Bill

WOODSTOCK (CP) — Ontario Liberal Leader Andrew Thompson says his opposition party is urging a bill of rights for the province because of continuing government encroachment on the rights of the individual.

"It is not an intentional encroachment by government but an unfortunately inevitable result of an ever-growing civil service," Mr. Thompson told a Woodstock service club today.

"If's no secret that as government gets bigger, it becomes more and more difficult for the individual to protect himself against the growing bureaucracy of governmental bureaucracy.

U.S. Planes Pound Targets In North Night and Day

From AP-Reuters

SAIGON (CP) — U.S. and South Vietnamese planes began pounding military targets in North Viet Nam at midnight Sunday night and continued the aerial hammering through the day.

Returning pilots report destruction of bridges, highway and railway vehicles, military emplacements and one large junk.

A U.S. spokesman said the planes encountered light to moderate groundfire but that all planes returned safely without sighting enemy aircraft.

One navy jet pilot was killed Sunday when his plane failed to pull out of a strafing dive on a truck during raids on North Viet Nam.

Two U.S. soldiers were killed and eight wounded in a six-hour battle with the Viet Cong 30 miles west of Saigon. It was one of several attacks during the weekend in the Mekong River delta.

ATTACK OUTPOSTS

In the Mekong Delta fighting, the Viet Cong inflicted heavy casualties on the Roman Catholic refugee settlement of Hai Yen. Thes, early today, they attacked a nearby outpost and threw mortar fire on the town. Three South Vietnamese soldiers and seven civilians, including five children, were reported wounded.

Heavier casualties were suffered in a Viet Cong attack on an outpost 45 miles southwest of Saigon early today. Fifteen defenders were killed, seven wounded and four captured.

Viet Cong terrorists seized and held a key stretch of road north of Saigon last Wednesday and foiled government efforts to break through for four days.

Sources reported the Viet Cong set up roadblocks about 90 miles northeast of Saigon on the road to Dalat, stopped all vehicles, and rounded up with their civilian captives so completely that air strikes could not be used.

The Viet Cong apparently moved out of the area Sunday.

The battle west of Saigon began early Sunday when a Communist mortar barrage descended on the capital of Hua Nghia province.

LOSS IS DEAD

Viet Cong mortar barrages were mounted simultaneously on the Hau Nghia towns of Bao Trai, Duc Hoa and My Hanh. A Viet Cong infantry attack hit a Ranger unit guarding a bridge near Duc Hoa.

The operation had cost the South Vietnamese 20 dead, 53 wounded and 10 missing at last report. No information was available on Viet Cong casualties.

Taking advantage of good flying weather, U.S. and Vietnamese planes carried out the second consecutive day of heavy air strikes against the North Vietnamese Sunday.

Communist military targets and rolling stock were pounded by 127 fighters and bombers.

Other attack squadrons reported damaging the Ba Binh military base nine miles north of the 17th parallel, two barracks compounds near Vinh Linh, and two bridges, 19 boxcars and one locomotive along the coastal railway.

HEAVIEST OF WAR

The heaviest raid of the war to date was flown Saturday, when 242 planes carried out an assortment of strikes.

Missing Man's Body Found on Bay Shoreline

The body of an elderly Trenton, town, missing since his left home for work five weeks ago, was found Saturday on the Bedeorville shoreline of the Bay of Quinte.

Police had been seeking the whereabouts of 66-year-old Cecil Bisean, 97 Scott Street, since April 1st. He failed to show up for work at Trenton RCAF Station, where he was a civilian employee.

His body was spotted Saturday by fishermen near the summer cottage of Jack Fralick.

Mr. Bisean lived at home with his wife, a nurse at Trenton Memorial Hospital.

Band Concert Well Received By Assembly

TRENTON — Bandmasters Howard Kelly, Ted Snider and Bram Allington led their bands, (RCD Brass and Reed, Citizens' Band and the North Toronto Salvation Army Citadel Band) through their respective paces in the high school auditorium, to the vast enjoyment of those who had come out to hear the 1965 version of the Military Tattoo. The crowd wasn't "capacity", but it was appreciative and "made the rafters ring" with applause.

The RCAF band started the ball rolling with a varied program, swinging with ease from Beethoven's "Eroica Overture" to "Bugaine Festival"; the CRD volunteers were then joined by Ted Snider's crew and the two went through two "snappy" numbers, one of which was the ever-popular (and especially since the Bridge over the River Kwai), "Colonel Bogey." Then, the stage got really crowded as the North Toronto band joined the other musicians for a rousing "Call to Arms."

Ted Snider demonstrated the progress of Trenton's "own" band, and the off-beat "March of the Siamese Cats," "Green Leaves of Summer," "On Stage With Cole Porter" and "Highlights from the Music Man" served to do this admirably.

The North Toronto band brought the session to the forefront and ended on a serious note with "St. Clements." A reaper thanks.

The program was emceed by Trenton's popular clerk comptroller, (as he is known to his music), "Augie" Larry, and His Worship, Mayor MacDonald and Fraser "Bus" James, president of the sponsoring Kiwanis Club welcomed the members of the audience.

TRENTON, Ont. (CP) — A CBC concert party left the RCAF station here today to entertain United Nations emergency forces in the United Arab Republic.

The group of 17 entertainers includes Miss Canada, Linda Douma; George Armstrong, captain of Toronto Maple Leafs; folk singer Simone Dina; singer Tommy Common and comedian Gordie Tapp.

Ralph Banbury Given Boat, Motor as Gift

TRENTON — A quarter of a century of service to Northumberland County was recognized Friday night by county residents who flocked to honor retiring agriculture representative, Ralph Banbury at East Northumberland Secondary School.

Mr. Banbury was taken back over the years by a skit, "This Is Your Life," and met relatives from as far away as Florida.

A distinguished visitor to the gathering was agriculture minister, William Stewart. Also at the meeting was Douglas Parks, director of extension with the Department of Agriculture, a former resident of Prince Edward County.

Mr. Banbury was presented with an aluminum boat and motor by the farmers of the county and says he intends to do little else but fish this summer.

Mr. and Mrs. Banbury and their teen-aged daughter Julia, will continue to live in Brighton, where Julia attends high school. Another daughter, Eleanor, teaches high school in Ottawa, and a son, Gerald, who is a graduate of McGill University, works with a nationally known food outlet in Chatham.

Drama Society Of School Presents Plays

TRENTON — Promising young thespians walked the boards at Trenton high school Friday night at the school's annual Play Night, put on by the Drama Society.

The most ambitious venture was the sophisticated "Box and Cox," ably handled by Robert Kettle, Brian Sloat and Ruth Ann Campbell.

The "Perfect Gentleman," a comedy in one act, saw Peter Wilkins, June Casbolt, Toni Allen, Ann Fillion and Roy Lewis in starring roles.

"Fright", a mystery play, starred Alfred Flook, Karla Kuhlo, Linda Hamilton, Kerrigan Amey and Kenneth Rideout.

"Meet the Folks," told the story of a "kooky" family, whose members and hangers-on insist on being rugged individualists, no matter what. Art, astrology, opera and clairvoyance are just a few of the pursuits of the "family", played by Paul Menzie, Nancy Treloar, Lori Sweet, Evelyn Garrett, Jim MacDonald, Nancy Tettmar and Gerry Hicks.

The plays were directed by Miss Evelyn Davidson.

Had Brush With Death

BRIGHTON — Four unidentified people had a close brush with death at the intersection of Highway 30 and the CPR-CNR crossing.

Station agent Henry Botting said, "I was just going to give the okay to the fast moving freight coming past the station when I noticed three cars going around the wig wag on the north side of the crossing.

"When the first car got across the tracks, the gate on the north side had dropped, forcing him to stop. The second car stopped directly behind him, and was straddling the tracks. The third car pulled up behind the second.

"There were people yelling and screaming as the train bore down on the cars and some of the passengers got out of the second car. I signalled the train to stop and the brakes were applied, allowing the first car enough time to go around the gate to the right. The second car that had been straddling the tracks went around the gate to the left. The third car waited until the train passed by, then sped off."

Contract Awarded For Overpass

TRENTON — Contractors Stirling were rewarded the contract for the construction of a railway overpass bridge on the new replacement road in Murray Township, at a special meeting of township council Friday afternoon. Cox-Bridge's price of $172,980.40 was the lowest of three tenders. The overpass is located just south of the Telephone Road. Work on the project should start within a week or ten days, according to the township clerk, Angus Gunter.

A Glimpse of the Past

The other evening, in a field hard by the Macdonald-Cartier freeway near Wallbridge, a farmer was tilling his land. The plow he was using did not appear to be the latest—but that did not matter—and it was being drawn across the sloping hillside, with the sturdy big farm home in the background, by two splendid horses.

Here, beside the busy highway and close to what Wordsworth, even in his day, termed "the din of towns and cities," was a scene right out of the past. In an age of increasing urbanization and the almost universal use of tractors and combines and the other trappings of modernity, this was a scene that might have adorned a painting by Cornelius Krieghoff in an earlier time.

The countryside can be vastly interesting, for those with eyes to see. The barnyards of Ontario farms are living examples of Canadiana. The discarded machinery of earlier decades lies abandoned and useless and yet somehow alive, mute evidence of the farming methods of the past.

There is a nostalgia in these symbols of the rural scene and of the long ago. And they go largely unnoticed by our modern civilization, hurrying by in its latter-day automated chariots.

But not completely ignored, fortunately, for in what is described here is the stuff of immortality, the passing of an era that might be captured not only by the written word but on the broad canvasses of the artist.

One who has recognized this and made the rural scene and all its ancient impediments peculiarly his own is Alberta-born Roloff Beny, who began his career as an artist recording the stark beauty of the prairie scene, the farm homes and their bric-a-brac, the implements that no longer serve their turn, the trappings of what was past, derelict and forgotten.

Since then Beny has become a photographer of international fame. In one classic work, "The Roots of Earth and Heaven," he has applied the poetic vision of his paintings to a photographic record of the ancient civilizations of the Mediterranean region.

Beny, a native of Lethbridge, is now engaged in what may prove his most significant work thus far—a new photographic record of the Canadian scene—for the 1967 centennial. In it Canadians will doubtless see a new Canada, a fresh image of this great land that so many fail to see amid the fret and toil of daily life.

Sales Humor

Some years ago a British realtor decided that a touch of humor might inject fresh life into his advertising and consequently into his business.

His approach is to tell the truth about a piece of property and the area in which it is located in a manner that appeals to the Briton's subtle sense of humor. They love it, and that is why his realtor—whose ads appear regularly in the London Observer and others newspapers —is so successful.

Here is an example:—"Chelsea is fashionable, that is why it attracts predatory businessmen, with their awful wives and poorer envious detractors. All being slowly poisoned by the filthy effluvia of Lots Road Power Station, the Gas Works and a strong whiff from Battersea Power Station. (It was only when they found its corrosive fumes were attacking the stone fabric of London's ancient buildings that they did a partial filtration.)

"Anyway this horror of a house has eight rooms, two of them thrown into one with a chimney-piece of red painted marble and a fireplace yellow tiles. A ghastly basement bathroom, dirty lavatorial tiles, old shallow sink and coal fuel hopper. The coal seems recently to have been removed from the bath itself.

"Upstairs the decor is fairly new, clean and in execrable taste. The oilcloth strikes a jarring note throughout. A small patch of earth behind. Lease 40 years. Ground rent sixty pounds. Might interest the many who missed twin No. 46 which we advertised and sold last week. Key at office, but tread with caution on rotten basement boards."

The response to this was such that the house could have been sold many times over.

Men seem frightened of leisure and think that too much of it is "wrong." They like to appear hard workers and to get your sympathy when they say that they are tired. Fatigue in industry is no longer a necessity, but rather a sign of poor management.—Dr. R. Passmore of Edinburgh University.

Need House Trade-in Plan

By NORMAN PEARSON
Commandly Review Review

Housing is for people; it is not a means of steering or propping up a sagging national economy; it is not a means of keeping mortgage and insurance institutions wealthy; it is not for land speculating or for keeping an inefficient building industry alive; it is not for the sake of real estate men or refrigerator salesmen or hardware merchants. Housing is for people, and it is the imaginative human values in our community building we will still talk a great deal and do little to solve our housing problem.

Our showing in the housing field is impressive in quantity, in relation to the wealthy and the people whose fortune is their mortgage.

It is less impressive in terms of community building, and it is down-right disappointing in terms of solving the public housing problem. Five months of major revolution in our housing policy, or the next wave of growth will mean for us the upward and confusion already so characteristic of our major urban centres. We have now reached the age of "suburban renewal."

In an unplanned and unguided urban evolution, it is small wonder that "estate agents" become dominant, and that houses are designed less for their occupants than for their frequent appearances in real - estate listings. The mis-placed view that municipalities have no place in the real-estate market, and problems in business shaping their urban form, seriously and adversely affects our environment, our housing costs and the direction of city development.

Subdivisions still "leapfrog" open yet serviceable areas on the edge of cities, and the general public pays the bill in terms of partly used services, or of the over-extension of services far beyond the actual needs required in terms of acres of land in the logical place. Public transportation and servicing systems should be used to steer physical development into these areas.

The trick is to be 30 years ahead of need, and we lack the judgment and courage to do that. But in many parts of Europe, municipalities frequently own a great part of their area; and they build, sell and rent housing mainly at a high standard of design to ensure that the taxpayer gets the maximum advantage from development trends. Our ramshackle taxation structure and archaic municipal boundaries and functions, combined with lack of strength in our statutory planning system, result in a situation in which planning is a practical impossibility.

Most of the planning and zoning work which now goes on is, in blunt terms, primarily the transfer of land values at the will of developers, to make real estate operations richer, and only secondarily to make decent living and housing conditions fit for us in the main to later generations as a permanent part of Canada.

The problem will not be solved by operation or even by example. The excellent work of the system of design awards, and the efforts of design councils, presently affect only a fraction of the total housing output. While a generation of frustrated architects and planners can for the most part only stand by and watch, the tide of development creates the patterns of future slum areas and presses heavily on available parkland.

The new poor, masquerading in $30,000 houses in odd locations, frantically keep up with symbols of status and with standards which elude them even as they appear in view. The new status symbol is not the outdoor swimming pool, or the barbecue, or the two-car family, or the gotkle kid; it is as simple as elusive, and as treadmill as the stainless steel razor-blade; such is the lunacy of an acquisitive society.

There is no social mobility in Canada, and there are so many pressures on the fragile sensitivities of suburbanites that the "purchase" of houses makes no sense. Mortgage terms and credit buying in most of our communities where people move frequently and where there is rapid uncoordinated and unguided growth have made nonsense of the concepts of stability and equity.

In areas of economic stress, as well as in areas of rapid growth we need means by which an individual owner can "trade-in" a house equitably on some co-operative basis. Such a means would induce greater concern at all levels of government for the quality of neighborhoods. Given a suitable backing on an inter-provincial basis, there would be public authority and a properly co-ordinated valuation system, property could be sold at good times rather than as a forced sale dependent on personal circumstances, and the stock of houses in such a co-operative could be rented.

The hiltsring in the West began 18 years ago today—in 1940—as Germany invaded Belgium, Luxembourg, and The Netherlands. In 31 days after its successful invasion of Denmark and Norway, Holland was rendered within five days and the Germans entered Brussels May 17. Belgium surrendered May 28 and the Dunkerque evacuation of 335,000 Allied forces was completed by June 4. France sued for peace June 17 and an armistice was signed five days later at Compiegne, in the same railway car in which the 1918 armistice was signed.

First World War

Fifty years ago today—in 1915 — the German government sent a message of "sympathy and heartfelt regret" to the United States after the sinking of the Lusitania; HMS Gollath was sunk by a Turkish destroyer in the Dardanelles.

Second World War

Twenty-five years ago today — in 1940 — Winston Churchill replaced Neville Chamberlain as Britain's prime minister; German paratroop forces captured airfields and bridges throughout the Low Countries.

Strictly Personal
Computers Need Human Direction

By SYDNEY J. HARRIS

One of the great fallacies of today is the widespread belief that the computer is "intelligent"—perhaps more intelligent than most people. In point of fact, the computer is extremely stupid, rather than intelligent.

What would you think of a person who knew only what you told him? Who believed everything that you told him? Who blindly obeyed every order you gave him? Who could not invent or discover anything for himself, but must depend implicitly upon someone else to provide him with the basic facts?

Such a person — if one existed — would be virtually an idiot, no matter how well he could count, or combine, or remember every scrap of information he has been given. Such a person would truly be what Aristotle called "a natural slave."

Except for the mentally defective, there are no such persons — for even a small child uses his own judgment, his sense of discrimination, his developed sensory apparatus, to cope with the world. Even a child will not believe everything you tell him, or blindly obey every order you may issue.

For "intelligence," if it is to have any meaning at all, must mean the ability to make free decisions based on a personal value-system.

The computer has no value system. A pebble is just as "important" to it as a production record. Action bears no relation to "Meaning" to it than a baseball. A population figure is just as relevant, or irrelevant, to it as the number of curlicues on a peacock's tail. Everything is the same in everything else to a computer—and thus nothing is superior or inferior, better or worse.

It is, indeed, the very stupidity of the computer that makes it such a useful tool. It does exactly what it is asked to do, and not a thing more. It is the perfect servant, or slave, if you will. Nothing is omitted and nothing is added; there are no deficiencies and no superfluities. This is because the computer does not have a mind of its own.

How can a thing that does not have a mind of its own be considered "intelligent"? It cannot be, and should not be. There is no danger that the computers will begin to run the world; there is every danger that men will begin to worship the computers and imitate their blind, quantitative method of dealing with masses of facts and data.

Our conflicting value-systems cause most of the trouble in human society — but without them we would not have a human society at all. Our task is to refine and reconcile these systems, not to abolish them in favor of some statistical deity that can measure the what" but can never tell us the "why." Only human intelligence can do this.

Cramps Often Psychological Problem, Not Physical One

By JOSEPH G. MOLNER, M.D.

Dear Dr. Molner: I read a letter in your column from a woman thanking you profusely for your booklet on what to do for aching feet, so I am requesting the required 25c in coin and an unstamped, self-addressed envelope for a copy of "How to Stop Leg Cramps and Foot Pains."

If you have the time to read this, my feet would cramp after wearing high heels all day at the office. For some years I did not work, and had little occasion to wear high heels and had no foot problems. Now I have mid-heels to the office, changing to low heels at night. This helps some, but not much.

Here are some psychological experiences which I cannot understand but they might interest you. When I retire at night (my feet never cause trouble during the day) usually the first thought that enters my mind is whether my feet will cramp. Immediately when that thought occurs, my toes start curling up. Some nights the thought does not occur and I have no pain at all.

Now this is really an idiotic experience, but two or three years ago a friend told me, "Put your shoes under the bed upside down, your feet won't cramp." I scoffed but tried it. Believe it or not, it worked for several weeks—until I began forgetting to put the shoes upside down. Now I started again, but it never seems to work after that. — Mrs. L. B.

Physiologically a cramp is a spasm of the muscles. High heels tend to put a decided strain on the muscles. When you go to bed you abruptly alter the pattern of strain. It is then that the tired muscles rebel and go into spasms.

If you think about it—except a cramp—you become more tense, hence more chance of the cramp. It's a striking example of "mind over matter," and many of us have our own peculiar ways of relieving tension headaches. To each his own cold troubles!

The hieroglyphs of the upside down shoes evidently worked because you hoped it would work, and for a time it succeeded in relaxing you. It relaxed you for as long as you half-way expected it to do so.

Massage of foot and calf muscles before retiring may do much to avoid the cramps.

Dear Dr. Molner: What does M low fat diet mean?—Mrs. M. D.

It means to avoid fat as much as possible.

Eat the lean part of meat, not the fat. Stay away from fried foods, because they are high in fat.

Use vinegar, salt and pepper on salads; not oil or mayonnaise. Drink skim milk, because the fat has been removed. Go easy on butter or margarine. Use skim milk instead of cream in your coffee. Or drink it black.

That's all there is to a low fat diet.

Dear Dr. Molner—You wrote that K is possible to enlarge such features as nose and chins, I presume by plastic surgery. How is this done? I have a receding chin. What is the approximate cost?—J. H.

It is done by borrowing fats of bone from some other part of the body, to be grafted. Indeed yes, it requires a plastic surgeon. Since circumstances (and the difficulty in any specific case) vary greatly, the best I can say is that it is that it will run to some hundreds of dollars. For a more exact estimate, ask your regular doctor to refer you to a plastic surgeon for an estimate, and then you can decide whether you want to have it done.

Icebreaker

Port Arthur News-Chronicle

The feat of the CSL grain carrier Saguenay in opening Lakehead navigation without the help of an icebreaker surprised everyone. Perhaps there is a moral for all of us in this unique event. How many of us stand by waiting for an "icebreaker" in our everyday lives? Perhaps if we just forged ahead on our own, we might find that the ice isn't quite as hard or thick as we had imagined.

Predestination Better?

Halifax Chronicle-Herald

The human race is becoming far too knowledgeable. There was a time when people died because of predestination or "fate" had struck. Now, in order to keep breathing long enough to enjoy the Canada pension plan, we are told we must exercise regularly, sleep soundly, eat and drink moderately, inherit healthy genes, smoke not at all, banish tension, and think pure thoughts. Perhaps predestination was better after all.

Construction Round-Up

By BARRY McCULLAGH

Mayor Jack Ellis' address to the Belleville and District Builders' Exchange last week was a challenging one.

He told members they could do much for the industry as a whole if they promoted a realistic apprentice program.

Noting there is a "desperate shortage of skilled tradesmen," the Mayor said the possibility was being discussed of guaranteeing a full year's employment to apprentice seamen in the hope that young men might become interested in what was really a high-paid trade.

The Mayor suggested a close liaison between the Exchange and the Quinte Home Builders who would redound to the benefit of both. He called for a solution to the problem of variation in labor rates and suggested also that establishment of a building repository in Belleville would benefit the industry.

Mr. Ellis revealed he was trying to evolve a plan to license all out of town contractors and to computerize for the disadvantage a local contractor faces when he is paying a business tax in Belleville.

As already announced in The Ontario Intelligencer, the first stage of building for the new Belleville General Hospital is well underway.

Hugh Murray Ltd., general contractors for the boiler house and connecting underground passage to the new hospital wing, has installed basement walls and three giant boilers.

Excavation for the underground tunnel connecting the boiler house to the hospital is also underway.

The boilers are being installed by Dominion Bridge. Tenders for the hospital extension itself will likely be called during the summer or early fall.

Plans of view at the Builders' Exchange include a Department of Defence project for grading and seeding adjacent to one of the runways at Trenton. Tenders are due June 1.

Re-roofing of two hangars at Trenton is another project for which tenders are due June 2. A similar job on a hangar at Mountain View is out for tender.

Other projects for which plans are available at the Exchange include Kirkfield Lift Lock, rehabilitation work; Sacred Heart School, Peterborough; church and Christian education building for Ebenezer Christian Church, Trenton.

Judge Requests Civic Support For Policemen

Judge J. C. Anderson Saturday publicly warned against violently gangtyping on local police officers. Such a case is now before the court in Belleville.

As police commission chairman at the official opening of the new police headquarters on Campbell Street, the judge posed a civic record of support for police officers.

"I know that the citizens of this city are heartily in support of our police force and I can tell you we have a very fine police force," he told the crowd of nearly 200 gathered for the opening ceremonies.

He then recalled a police officer had been assaulted while attempting to break up a disturbance at spectators watched. A recent incident resulted in the arrest of a man who was subsequently remanded in magistrate's court for assaulting a police officer. He did not register a plea and his case has yet to be heard.

Such an incident should not be repeated, the judge said.

"And if it does, and if the parties come before myself — and I suspect the magistrate who succeeds him will be sitting on in this way will not be lightly dealt with."

Japan Booms

National Determination - - - Key To a Modern Economic Miracle

By KEN SMITH
Canadian Press Business Editor

TOKYO (CP)—Japan's post-war economy, an object of envy and frequently concern for other industrialized countries, is entering a new phase. But there isn't much for competitive trading nations to cheer about.

Basically, it means Japan, which has climbed from the ruins of the war to become the fifth largest trader in the world, figures the real battle to win international markets is just beginning—and it wants to be in fighting trim for the coming struggles.

Most visitors here who have had a chance to see the worship and homage paid to economic progress by government, business and labor agree Japan is going to be an opponent of even greater stature during the next decade than it has been in the last.

Explanations by the score have been advanced to account for Japan's amazing rise from the devastation of the Second World War.

Western economists have pointed to the country's unparalleled capital investment which has built up industries unmatched anywhere in the world for modern technology. Others argue low wages are the key and still others say minute defence spending — freeing hundreds of millions of dollars for capital investment — has been the secret.

DESIRE IS KEY

Some still insist the success has been due to United States aid that poured into the country after the war and the huge U.S. expenditures during the Korean conflict.

In the eyes of one Canadian economist who recently visited Japan with a government mission, however, all these points skirt the vital factor—the determination of the Japanese people to become the economic equal of anyone in the world.

"This has to be the most important single item," he argues. "Lots of other countries have received billions from the U.S., have wages even lower than Japan's, don't spend a cent on defence—but they're still only one step out of the stone age.

"That desire helped push Japan into the war, unfortunately, but defeat only made the people admire 'em and envy the West all the more.

"Now they know they don't need the Japanese flag flying over half the world to be economically great. You don't do that any more by winning empires. You do it by selling goods, and that's what they're doing."

To make sure it keeps on doing that, Japan is taking two deliberate steps—first, increasing its industrial competitiveness and, second, consolidating and strengthening its home base.

Industrially, Japan of course is already a genuine giant. So quickly is its manufacturing growing that output has more than tripled in the last decade.

Its steel industry, considered the most modern in the world, has risen from nowhere to rank third in the world with production of 40,000,000 tons annually compared with Canada's 9,000,000 tons and the United States' leading 127,000,000 tons.

Its shipyards now turn out more gross tonnage than its five nearest competitors combined. New industries, such as chemicals, have mushroomed.

In consumer fields, Japanese transistor radios have become an international commodoplace while its cameras now are synonymous with tourism. Automobile output has multiplied 10 times in the last 10 years.

While Japanese businessmen love to point to these successes, they leave no doubt they are looking ahead to future problems instead of counting past glories.

Akira Harada, a director of the ministry of international trade and industry, says the emergence of scores of new countries — most of them entirely dependent on exports to pay to raise their living standards—will revolutionize international trading patterns, so vital to Japan's economy.

"In the first stages of economic development, these countries will have to concentrate on light industries. With their cheap and plentiful labor, they'll be taking the lead in what have been considered our traditional exports such as textiles.

"Soon we won't be able to compete with countries like Pakistan, India and the new African nations in these fields. And no other country will, either.

"So we must complete our industrialization, sell in manufacturing countries and get into the developing countries to supply them with machinery and other capital equipment."

URGED TO SHIFT

This industrialization drive is, of course, scarcely new in Japan. For the last 15 years, as much as 35 per cent of its annual gross national income has been spent on capital equipment.

Now, however, businessmen are being actively encouraged by the government to shift investments from such anticipated slow-growth industries as textiles into expected boom industries such as heavy machinery, petrochemicals and communications equipment.

To try to take the guesswork out of what industries have the brightest prospects, thousands of clerks hunch over desks in crowded government offices daily, poring over statistics, analyzing figures and trying to establish trends.

One Canadian expert who saw the offices at work describes the system as probably the most detailed used by any trading country in the world.

Japan's post - war industrial boom has already raised the country's gross national product to the sixth highest in the world at $75,000,000,000. But it has, in a real sense, built two Japans and that is the reason for the drive to strengthen the home economy.

One Japan has spanking-new factories with up-to-the-minute technologies, capable of competing with any in the world. The other sees a foot - driven lathe, set up in a room of a small house, from which a family scrapes its living.

Another serious gap still exists between urban and rural groups.

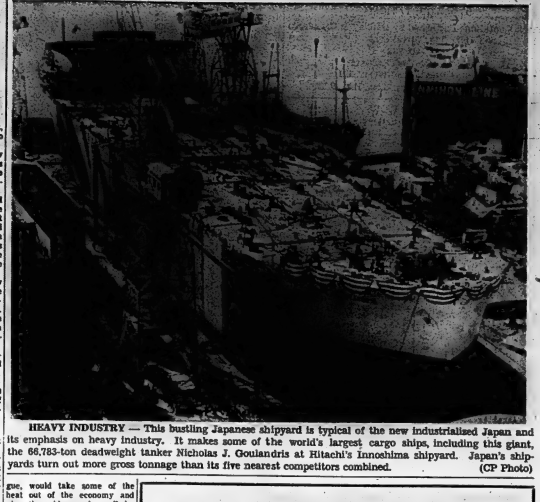
The income of these family sized industrial units is 35 to 50 per cent lower than that of workers in the modern industrial units.

IMBALANCES REMAIN

Quite apart from the effect this has on the country's morale—and that is an increasingly important factor — economists and businessmen are becoming dismayed by the inherent waste of these vital labor resources.

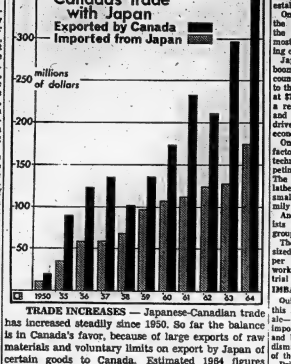
Prime Minister Eisaku Sato gave official recognition to this problem in one of his first statements after taking office last November, calling for stabilized economic growth — for imbalances that had grown up could be corrected.

Shigeo Kurebayashi, a director of the Fuji Bank and one of Japan's leading economists, says unless the growth rate is adjusted so a more equitable expansion is achieved other economic problems cannot be solved.



An annual growth rate of about eight per cent is the general target, compared with 10.5 per cent achieved on average during the last decade.

This reduction, economists argue, would take some of the heat out of the economy and give the widespread small industries a chance to catch up with their high-flying big brothers.



For a Canadian visitor, however, there is an Alice-in-Wonderland quality about talk of reducing the growth rate to "only"—that's the official word —eight per cent.

That would be more than double Canada's average rate during the last decade, and significantly higher than the 5½ per cent suggested in the recent report of the Economic Council of Canada—a target many Canadian businessmen say is beyond reach.

Tomorrow: Japanese industry has hard time meeting domestic demand.

HEAVY INDUSTRY — This bustling Japanese shipyard is typical of the new industrialized Japan and its emphasis on heavy industry. It rises some of the world's largest cargo ships, including this giant, the 66,783-ton deadweight tanker Nicholas J. Goulandris at Hitachi's Innoshima shipyard. Japan's shipyards turn out more gross tonnage than its five nearest competitors combined. (CP Photo)

TRADE INCREASES — Japanese-Canadian trade has increased steadily since 1950. So far the balance is in Canada's favor, because of large exports of raw materials and voluntary limits on export by Japan of certain goods to Canada. Estimated 1964 figures were: exports by Canada to Japan $350,000,000; imports from Japan $174,000,000. (CP Newsmap)

Moscow Rips Into Pearson Peace Try

By JOHN BEST

MOSCOW (CP) — Canada's promotion of international peace-keeping efforts has drawn a hostile reaction in the Soviet Union. Moscow has made it clear it would be happy if Ottawa abandoned the peace-keeping business.

Latest manifestation of this is a loud blast in Pravda against Prime Minister Pearson's proposal for an international force to keep order in South Viet Nam.

"It would seem that some Canadian statesmen are concerned with how to help the Pentagon keep in Viet Nam," the Pravda commentary by N. Dmitriyev began.

To buttress its contention that Canada is acting as an American stooge — boy, the Kremlin called Canadian Commissioner Blair Seaborn's dissent from the majority report of the Viet Nam three-power control commission.

"Despite all the facts," said Pravda, the Canadian representative "in every way justifies the American aggression."

WON'T SHARE COST

Soviet authorities are reported furious over the Canadian decision to publish Seaborn's opinion, which sought to place American attacks against North Viet Nam in perspective against the background of North Vietnamese assistance to Communist guerrillas operating in South Viet Nam.

Observers here note that Russia has always been somewhat suspicious of international peace - keeping operations — though forced by world opinion to go along with them.

In the case of operations sponsored by the United Nations, it has carried its dislike to the extent of refusing to help pay the cost, thereby precipitating a financial crisis in the world organization.

Peace-keeping forces have reduced the Communist capacity for mischief-making in areas where they have operated—notably the Middle East, The Congo and Cyprus.

If the peace-keeping concept continues to take hold of the popular imagination as it has, Communist efforts to foment revolution and strife in different parts of the world could be jeopardized decisively.

The Soviets try hard to discredit the movement in the eyes of Afro - Asian governments, which until now have often looked to peace-keeping efforts.

Recalling last fall's Ottawa conference at which interested countries reviewed the whole question of international police forces, the Pravda commentary said Canadian leaders attempted to dispel the "legitimate opposition of Afro-Asian participants that these UN troops would be used by the imperialist powers for suppressing popular movements."

"It is proposed that the 'international troops' for which Canada has been clamoring on behalf of the Western powers be used for participating in the U.S. aggression in Viet Nam," Pravda contended.

"If these troops are organized, they would be used by the colonialists to combat the national liberation movement of the peoples in other parts of the world."

Russia

in service since 1963, a medium range missile mounted on a self - propelled launching platform with a three-stage liquid-fuelled rocket, about 80-90 feet long.

Marshal Georgi Zhukov, one of Russia's wartime commanders, appeared among the Soviet leaders. It was his first appearance at a Red Square parade since former premier Khrushchev ousted him as defence minister in 1957. He made his first public appearance in eight years at a Kremlin rally Saturday.

In New York, former president Eisenhower, the Allied commander - in - chief in the Second World War, said the time had come for Russia to "rehabilitate" Zhukov.

"He was a very good soldier," Eisenhower said, "and carried his host to make things right in Berlin."

SHIP PARADE

Most of the NATO ambassadors skipped the parade by which observers of diplomatic secrets said was prior agreement. Only the French and Icelandic ambassadors attended.

The reason for the boycott was reported to be an article in Saturday's Pravda by Soviet Defence Minister Rodion Malinovsky, accusing Western countries of combining to suppress national liberation movements.

Most of the Alliance's ambassadors showed up for a Kremlin reception later, but U.S. Ambassador Foy D. Kohler and West Germany's Horst Groepper stayed home then, too.

Malinovsky in a Red Square speech charged that the United States and other Western states were again threatening mankind with war."

But Westerners here considered the speech less harsh in tone than others he has made and more in keeping with the moderate approach to the United States taken by Communist Party Chief Leonid Brezhnev Saturday.

The Soviet leaders also called on "all nuclear powers solemnly to announce to all the world their renunciation of the use of nuclear weapons."

The appeal was contained in a lengthy peace appeal "to all countries" reiterating the frequent Soviet calls for general disarmament.

CHINESE HOLD RALLY

China marked the VE-Day anniversary with a public rally in Peking attended by some of its top-echelon leaders and foreign diplomats.

Pope Paul said "the world's skies are not yet serene this May."

"We pray that they will soon be serene and peaceful," the head of the Roman Catholic Church told a crowd in St. Peter's Square.

Poland observed a minute of silence. Polish Communist leaders watched as 18,000 young people gave artistic, sports and gymnastic shows.

In Czechoslovakia, ground-to-ground rockets were displayed in Prague for the first time at a parade.

PLACES WREATH

In Hungary, Premier Janos Kadar placed a wreath at the Soviet war memorial.

Ambassadors of the United States, Britain and France and major officials of the West German government boycotted an anniversary reception at the Soviet Embassy in Bonn. About 50 people showed up.

A U.S. spokesman explained that U.S. officials had been told not to go partly because of the phrasing of the invitation, which spoke only of "the victory of the Soviet people in the great patriotic war." It did not mention the part played by the other allied nations.

The Soviet Union rejected a protest by the U.S., Britain and France against the participation of East German troops in a military parade in East Berlin Saturday.

Imbert wouldn't say outright that the move was a concession to the rebels, but answered a question by saying this was "as far as we'll go."

(Reuters news agency said their corps was seen as an attempt to win popular support for Imbert's "reconstruction government." At least four of the ousted men were closely identified with the late Gen. Rafael Trujillo, whose 32 - year dictatorship of the Dominican Republic ended with his assassination four years ago.)

BELITTLES CHANGES

Caamano belittled the junta's military shakeup. He blames Wessin and Gen. Juan Jesus de los Santos Cespedes, the air force chief, for the aerial bombardments which he claimed took 1,000 lives in the first week of fighting.

Imbert said de los Santos was remaining. He said Wessin would not be a part of the junta but that no consideration had been given to his removal as commander of the armed forces training centre.

Caamano, while pledging the rebels to respect the cease-fire signed five days ago, said the new junta's formation put the legal status of the agreement in doubt.

The U.S. made a formal move Sunday to obtain tighter compliance with the ceasefire for fear daily incidents could lead to a major new flare-up.

A U.S. note charged seven rebel violations of the ceasefire and protested rebel radio broadcasts were "an incitement to violence." The rebel radio has been calling the U.S. troops "invaders."

At last count the U.S. had 21,800 troops in the Dominican Republic.

In San Juan, exiled former president Juan D. Bosch said U.S. military intervention in the Dominican Republic created more Latin American Communists in a week than the Russians, Chinese and Cubans could make in five years.

Bosch said in an interview that U.S. forces, "instead of stopping another Cuba, will make another Cuba."

Referring scornfully to a U.S. list of 53 Communists said to be inside the pro-Bosch revolt, Bosch said: "There are going to be 53,000 Communists in the Dominican Republic because of the marine intervention, and they will be U.S. - made Communists."

SENTENCED TO DEATH

TEHRAN (AP) — Four men were sentenced Sunday to death by firing squad for the assassination of Iran's Premier Hasan Ali Mansour. Six other men were sentenced to life imprisonment, one was ordered jailed for 15 years and two for five years. All were identified as members of the Moslem terrorist organization, Fedaian Islam.

12-year-old Boys Act As Lookouts for Viet Cong

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

SAIGON (AP)—Barefoot and naked except for shorts, a 12-year-old boy perched like a jungle bird atop a water buffalo, peering into the midnight murk.

He had climbed on the animal's flat back to watch a file of patrolling Vietnamese Rangers outlined against the light of the government military outpost not far away.

Suddenly he saw a Ranger draw a bead on him. He turned to leap and run. A rifle shot split the midnight stillness. The boy spun crazily and pitched to the ground, a bullet through his head.

"Got the little —!" muttered the Ranger. The patrol crept ahead, a bit more hopeful that the Viet Cong would not be alerted in time to stage an ambush.

SERVE VIET CONG

The boy was a Viet Cong lookout. At 12, he already was considered a grownup in his village, one of thousands of teenage and sub-teen youngsters serving the Viet Cong in insurmountable ways.

The lad who spied on the Ranger patrol had been responsible for the deaths of many Rangers. Each time they had left their outpost to patrol an area not far from Saigon, they had been ambushed. Now the young lookout was dead. Another soon would take his place.

The youngsters are recruited from babyhood in guerrilla life, and can be more cruel and dangerous even than the seasoned guerrillas.

Hard and disciplined, they have been trained to live in holes in the ground. They have learned to regard gun-carrying guerrillas as heroes and spies for the moment when they, too, will carry weapons.

A tough youngster can advance swiftly. By 14 or 15, he might carry a gun with a village unit. By 16 or 17 he might be a member of a district unit with hopes of transfer to a province or zone command.

He—or she—performs many tasks: That of informer to turn in those who resist paying Viet Cong taxes or perform acts hostile to the Viet Cong; that of coolie to carry guerrilla supplies; that of laborer with the regulars, digging trenches.

GUNS KILL MORE

REGINA (CP)—There were 71 firearm accidents in Saskatchewan in 1964, 13 of them fatal, compared with 57 accidents and 19 deaths in 1963.

Two Accidents Cause Injury, Heavy Damage

MADOC — Two accidents happened last week in the village. Mr. Charles Spencer is in satisfactory condition in Belleville Hospital following an auto accident on No. 62 Highway. It happened near the old Catholic Cemetery when the car which he was driving left the road and struck a telephone pole. The car is reported to be a complete loss. Mr. Spencer was attended by Dr. George McGie and rushed to hospital by La Salle ambulance of Tweed.

Carl Pigden, son of Mr. and Mrs. Ross Pigden is in the Belleville General Hospital as a result of an accident which occurred Wednesday evening when the bicycle which he was riding was in collision with a car driven by Mr. Grant Brett. It happened at the intersection of No. 7 and No. 62 highways. Carl was treated by Dr. Parkin of Marmora and taken to the hospital. He received lacerations to his head and face and an injury to one leg.

Both accidents were investigated by the Madoc O.P.P.

Amateur Performances Good Start for Budding Actress

DEAR DORIS — Ever since I was seven I practised singing and I dreamed of becoming an actress and a singer. My Mom says I have this talent.

DORIS CLARK

So my parents suggested that I write and ask you where I could become an actress and how, and how to help my singing career. I'm fairly well built in school, and I sing hymns, jazz, rock 'n' roll, and a little they bit of opera (In a squeaky sort of way.)

I wrote to many actors and actresses and never got any response. — YOUR FRIEND.

DEAR FRIEND — First and foremost is a good general education. Then a bread-and-butter vocation; unless you want to take a chance on starving.

Meanwhile keep on with the amateur performances and begin with singing lessons when the teacher feels you are ready.

If you didn't give the actors you wrote to any more identification than you gave me, they had little chance of answering. Write again for detail about acting schools when you decide you can trust me with your name and address on a stamped envelope.

Susanna's Family Fare

HALF A CENTURY

Dear Susanna—Our parents will be celebrating their 50th wedding anniversary soon. We would like to have open house in their home for them, but it is all quite new to us. Could we do without the punch since there will be no alcohol used? Does it have to be sandwiches and small cakes as at so many of these occasions Your suggestions about decorating and procedure would also be gratefully received— Mrs. J. E.

Punch is certainly not necessary. Tea and coffee set up at the dining room table are ideal, and this affords you the opportunity of honoring certain relatives and special guests by asking them to take turns pouring. However, I would have some sandwiches on hand for any small fry who may be attending.

Instead of sandwiches you can either have a buffet laid out where each guest helps himself to a tempting plate of cold meat, sliced fowl, salads, jellies, pickles and a roll—or, if this is too elaborate, another alternative would be buttered fruit bread, deviled eggs, cherry tomatoes with a cheese or salad filling, celery, hors d'oeuvres, cheese straws and small meat or mushroom tarts. Since these latter items require heating, it might mean extra help in the kitchen to keep the plates replenished. In either case colored mints and raw sugared fruit eaten with toothpicks make a scrumptious dessert change.

A low flower arrangement on the table with a gold number fifty in the centre is a nostalgic touch. Long gold ribbon streamers extending from the bouquet are pretty. This idea could be carried out throughout the house with similar bases or containers of flowers. The use of candles is important and nosegays tied to the base of the holders look darling. This is almost all the decoration you need, although the serviettes, book matches and doilies are attractive done in gold and perhaps the couple's initials could be imprinted on them.

It is fun, and of great interest, to have an album of old pictures on display. These could be ones of their wedding and pictures of some of the relatives and friends who would be attending.

It is wise to have nosegays assigned to take photos. So the addition of a guest book for everyone to sign will give the anniversary couple happy memories afterwards—this too, will require almost constant supervision.

I've enjoyed every minute of discussing the thrilling occasion of your parents' 50th anniversary. Just hope I have supplied you with enough variety of ideas so that you can choose those which suit their particular needs.

Love and best wishes to you all.—SUSANNA.

Ann Landers

Moonlighting on Beach Makes Problems for Sandy

DEAR ANN LANDERS — My problem is so embarrassing I couldn't hold my head up if anyone should ask me with it.

My husband and I are in our 40's. Our children are grown and we have moved to a part of the country where there are beautiful beaches. Our cottage is on the ocean with a lovely sand beach right outside our door.

Since we have moved here my husband and I have enjoyed many moonlight swims. Not now he wants to go beyond that. He gets amorous in the water and on the beach and I have a difficult time getting him into the house.

ANN LANDERS

Is this normal? What is the matter with a middle-aged executive who gets such crazy ideas? Has he been seeing too many French and Italian movies or what?

If you say it is all right and to go along with it, I will review my thinking and try to adjust. Thank you very much. — SANDY.

DEAR SANDY — I am not going to say it is all right and to go along with it because I don't know how much privacy you have around your place. Unless you know — and you are completely isolated — my advice is to go in the house where you belong.

DEAR ANN LANDERS — I was struck by the letter from the 13-year-old boy who said he never opened his mouth to speak until he was four years of age. Now he says he talks all the time and it bothers him because his friends call him "Gabby."

I believe the problem is deeper than your reply suggested. The child who does not speak is silent for a reason. He is so alienated from one or both parents — so angry and filled with rage — that his silence is a way of punishing them for making him feel unloved and unwanted. So he cuts them out of his world.

Overtalkativeness is compensation. Such a person is in agony because he cannot communicate his great need for love and understanding. He must find out, through therapy, why he did not talk in the early years. Then he will understand why he talks too much now. — DR. X.

DEAR DR. — I appreciate it when an expert alerts me to an aspect of a problem which I missed. This gives my column an added dimension which is invaluable; not only to me but to my readers.

I overlooked the significance of the boy's early silence. You caught it and related it to his present problem. Thank you for writing.

DEAR ANN LANDERS — Our children are seven and nine years of age. They love to watch TV. My wife thinks this is great because it keeps them out of her hair for hours on end.

After dinner the children sit in front of the set until they can't see straight. When I tell my wife to put the kids to bed she says, "They will go when they get tired." The kids end up falling asleep on the floor. I have to undress them and carry them to their beds. Sometimes it is 11:30 p.m.

This goes on night after night. My wife sees nothing wrong with it. What do you say? — ONE AGAINST THREE.

DEAR ONE — When children have a mother who is afraid to tell them what to do their only hope is a father who will take over.

Starting tomorrow tell the children they have a bedtime schedule. The seven-year-old should be in bed at 8:00 p.m. and the nine-year-old at 8:30. And don't take any kp.

INDIVIDUAL TURKEY PIES

Sometimes when you are dining out and you scan the menu, you will find outlined in a "box" in the centre of the page a "Chef's Special" and it turns out to be individual chicken pie.

You trust this august creature's judgement and you order it and it comes steaming hot from the oven and it is good.

Pretend I'm the chef and trust me when I recommend Individual Turkey Pies. I promised these to you last week and suggested you freeze left over turkey meat (after making turkey soup)(stay with me) for this very purpose. Any cooked turkey or chicken meat will serve this purpose.

MONDAY

Dinner Menu

by Mary Moore

(Oven Dinner)
Baked Meat Loaf with Mushroom Gravy; Baked Jacket Potatoes; Shredded Carrots; Shredded Lettuce and Spanish Salad; Pumpkin Pie; Tea.

INDIVIDUAL TURKEY PIES (makes six 4½ x 1¼") Pastry

2/3 cup shortening, 3 tablespoons butter, 2 cups sifted but not sifted flour (more), 1 teaspoon salt, ¼ cup cold water. Filling

2 medium carrots, cubed, ½ Spanish onion, chopped, ½ package fresh frozen green peas, unthawed, 2 chicken bouillon cubes, 1 teaspoon salt, 1½ tablespoons flour, 2 tablespoons cold water, 2 cups coarsely cut, cooked turkey meat, 1 beaten egg, (to brush top of pastry).

First, put the carrots and onion on to cook together in 1¾ cups boiling water and cook until barely tender.

Meanwhile make the pastry but cutting the shortening and butter into the flour and salt until they are like sprinkling. Sprinkle water over, tossing with fork until flour is dampened and pastry forms a loose ball. Roll out to 3/16" thickness and cut out 8 rounds, a little larger than tops of your individual baking dishes. Each round of pastry should be gashed to let steam escape.

When vegetables are tender, drain and measure liquid. You should have 1½ cups—if some has evaporated add hot water. In this 1¾ cups liquid dissolve the chicken bouillon cubes and salt over heat. Mix the flour and cold water to smooth paste and stir into vegetable liquid until thick. Keep this quite warm.

Into 6 individual baking dishes distribute evenly the carrots and onion, fresh frozen green peas and the turkey. Pour the hot broth evenly over each cover with cut-out and gashed pastry rounds. Brush top of pastry with beaten egg. Bake at 400 deg. Fahr. for 12 or 13 minutes, then reduce heat to 375 deg. Fahr. and bake 20 to 25 minutes longer, or until liquid begins to bubble through gashes and pastry is rich gold.

These are excellent—one reason being they hold the heat so well—it's a matter of fact you could burn your tongue on them! If absolutely necessary you could hold them for a little while in the warming oven if your husband isn't home on the dot.

Special Note—If you put these in individual foil pans or ovenproofware, they may be frozen before or after they are baked. But if you freeze them and put them in the oven frozen, they require longer baking time. If they are baked before freezing, to thaw and reheat bake them at 337 deg. F. about 35 minutes, or until piping bubbles. If they are unbaked before freezing bake at 425 deg. F. 35 to 40 minutes or until bubbly.

LEATHER

Despite the bewildering number of leather care preparations on the market today, only a few simple remedies are needed to keep leather in good condition.

Let's clear up some of the confusion about leather care by discussing the two ways of tanning leather.

Vegetable tanned leather is cured with extracts of tree barks. It's easily tooled, moulded and stamped with gold leaf. For these reasons it's used to bind books, make hand-tooled bags, saddles and boxes.

Vegetable tanned leather suffers from an incurable condition called powdery chemical decay. The disease is caused not by poor care or neglect, but by changes in the leather itself. If you let a book-binding or old belt sleep that looks brittle, dry, cracked, and flaky, it probably has chemical decay. You can stave off complete disintegration by smoothing polyvinyl acetate emulsion over the entire surface.

Polyvinyl acetate emulsion is a common milky-white resin glue that turns transparent as it dries. Ask us for the brand name.

Dilute the glue half and half with water, smear it all over the surface of the leather with a brush, knife, or your fingers. It looks messy when wet, but dries to form a clear plastic coating.

Chrome leather is tanned with salts of chromium. It's tough, durable, not easily harmed by leather's chief enemies, sulphuric acid, water, insects and mildew. Most modern leather products are chrome tanned.

Both vegetable and chrome leather need the same care. Wash them with nothing but saddle soap. Lubricate with neatsfoot oil, but don't overdo it. Ask for a simple leather conditioner and preservative.

From your druggist, buy a few ounces of anhydrous lanolin. Get a small bottle of neatsfoot oil from a hardware store. In a cosmetic jar with a tight lid mix equal parts of both oils. Use this leather conditioner once or twice a year. After applying to the leather, it may take two days for the lubricant to soak in and be ready for polishing.

Silicone dressings are invaluable when used to coat new leather. Used on old leather, they merely seal in destructive acids and should be avoided.

Next week, books, prints and documents. Send any questions to the Curator, Hastings County Museum, telephone 968-2751.

Hon. Kelso Roberts Opens New Police Headquarters, Many Dignitaries Present

BUILDING OFFICIALLY OPENED — Judge J. C. Anderson and Mayor J. R. Ellis opening the new police building on the steps and insert right shows Hon. Kelso Roberts and the mayor at official opening.

The telephone rang at 2.00 p.m. Saturday at police headquarters and two tots were reported missing.

The young couple — a boy and girl aged five and two years — were later found safe and sound in the Lemoine Street area. However, had their disappearance triggered an emergency it could not have been better timed.

The call coincided with official ceremonies marking the opening of the new Campbell Street headquarters and every police officer, heavily reinforced by out-of-town colleagues, was on duty.

About two hundred people crowded the narrow confines of the building to hear Lands and Forests Minister Kelso Roberts formally declare the building open.

Another 1,200 thronged the building Saturday and Sunday as the force played host for open house.

Police chiefs from municipalities as far removed as Oakville and Cornwall were in the visiting parties which also included two judges, four magistrates and members of the Ontario Police Commission.

Highlight of the event came when the city police, headed by Chief. J. R. McLauchlan, welcomed public works chairman Jack Deacon as an honorary police officer.

Rehabilitation and outfitting the 50-year-old building for modern police work was largely the responsibility of the works chairman.

PRESENTED WITH SCROLL

It was the force's way of saying thanks.

Marking the appointment, a scroll and engraved police badge were presented Alderman Deacon. However, the authority vested in him was not deffced.

Mayor Jack Ellis told his fellow councillor the title did not give "snoop power to settle a parking ticket."

Among the invited guests were Judge Alan Sprague, Belleville lawyer recently raised to the bench; Chief Magistrate Arthur Elsie; magistrates R.B. Baxter Brigdon; E. C. Jackson of Madoc; P.C. Bergeron, Cornwall, and Fred Hayes Toronto — son of the force's deputy chief J. Clair Hayes.

The federal government was represented by Robert Temple, MP Hastings South and Ontario by Clarke Rollins MPP Hastings East and deputy speaker Elmer Sandercock, MLA Hastings West.

Kelso Roberts, a Bellevillian who recalled learning to swim at the old YMCA building, said the project combined modern efficiency with a care for the taxpayers.

The speeches were as brief as the weather was fine, and soon the public was ushered indoors to inspect the new premises — remodeled at a cost of $165,000.

The women of police association members set up refreshment tables in the building's gymnasium where they served a steady succession of visitors both Saturday and Sunday.

Joseph Gould, Liberal MLA, Dies in Toronto

TORONTO (CP)—Joseph Gould, 52, Liberal member of the Ontario legislature for Toronto Bracondale since 1959, died Saturday after a lengthy illness.

Arthur Frost, Progressive Conservative member for the same riding until the 1959 general election, died Friday, also after a lengthy illness. He was 68.

Mr. Gould, a criminal lawyer in Toronto, was one of six candidates for the leadership of the Ontario Liberal party at last fall's convention. He lost on the first ballot.

The prosecution claimed he received a total of $14,000 in nearly four years of spying.

Sgt. Percy Sidney Allen, 33, an army clerk in the defence ministry, was sentenced to 10 years' imprisonment for selling defence documents to the embassies of the United Arab Republic and Iraq for the equivalent of only $182. Allen, arrested March 16, had told police he became "desperate for money" after his wife underwent a cancer operation. They have four children.

Sir Frederick Elwyn Jones, the attorney-general, prosecuted both cases.

Bossard pleaded guilty to five counts of violating Britain's Official Secrets Act. The maximum penalty could have been 70 years.

He was seized in March by intelligence agents as he left a London hotel where he had set up a secret operation for photographing aviation ministry documents in a rented room.

At the time of his arrest, Bossard was making $7,000 a year as an official of the aviation ministry's guided weapons division.

OFFERED HELP

Sir Frederick said Bossard, a former attache at the British Embassy in Bonn, claimed he was approached in a London bar in 1961 by a man representing himself as a Soviet Embassy official. The man suggested he could help Bossard financially in return for intelligence information and other meetings were arranged.

"I was trying to get some translation work from German into English, my income having been considerably reduced since returning from Germany," Bossard told the police. "At that time, I was fairly heavily in the red."

Bossard said he received £300 ($600) from the agent as a starter—"and in view of my desperate financial straits, I accepted the £300 and agreed to supply information."

Bossard said his usual method was to select guided weapons files at his office and then "take them to a hotel room and photograph suitable extracts during my lunch period."

He said he had used part of the money to pay off debts on his automobile and had banked the rest.

Bossard, an electronics expert, said in a statement:

"I can only say I deeply regret my activities against the interests of the state and can only say they were virtually forced upon me by my desperate financial state on returning from Germany."

The brief trial in Old Bailey courthouse was told he had been in Soviet employ since 1961, getting his instructions from "dead letter boxes" in quiet country areas near London and from musical programs broadcast twice monthly by Moscow radio.

He said he had memorized five times each bearing a certain significance. When the Soviet radio broadcast Moscow Nights on certain days of the month, it meant "all is well."

against the two men as follows:

"In one instance, a Canadian civil servant was paid thousands of dollars to gather information and documentation in Canada, the purpose of which was to assist in the establishment of espionage activities in Canada and other countries, and to perform economic intelligence tasks, including the provision of detailed information on the Trans-Mountain pipeline system in Western Canada.

"In another instance, a naturalized Canadian citizen was paid thousands of dollars to provide technical information in the electronics field related to the defence industry and to compromise other Canadians, including female employees of the government. The object of securing their assistance in obtaining access to classified information."

As in other attempted espionage incidents, the moves backfired on the two Russians.

The two Canadians, who were not identified, went to the RCMP and, "as a result of this co-operation by conscientious Canadians," the RCMP were able to halt the Soviets before there was "any damage to Canadian interests."

Other than the facts as set out in the departmental statement, little information was available on the affair.

External affairs sources said the government wanted to "play down" the incident as far as possible to try to save any damage to Soviet - Canadian relations. The administration also hoped to avoid any chance that the Russians would expel Canadian diplomats from Moscow in retaliation, informants said.

Bytchkov, a blonde, stockily-built man in his early 40's, was a familiar figure in local diplomatic circles. Neighbors at his apartment in the Sandy Hill district where the embassy is located, called him "a very pleasant man."

Polushkin, who had his wife and daughter with him here, was not as well known. He lived in another Sandy Hill apartment which also houses the Soviet information service.

Ontario Needs Action To Make It Liveable Young Liberals Are Told

TORONTO (CP) — Ontario Liberal Leader Andrew Thompson says that unless Ontario undertakes an aggressive program of regional development, rich areas of the province will get richer while poor areas get poorer.

Mr. Thompson, addressing the annual meeting of the Ontario Young Liberal Association Saturday, warned that Ontario needs action to make it liveable.

"We can strangle our cities in the congestion of cars and can strangle the beauty of our surroundings with concrete," he said.

The Young Liberals deferred most of their controversial resolutions at the meeting, which was held on the theme "The young revolution — where is it going?"

DEFERS DECISION

The convention put aside until next year a resolution calling for widening the grounds for divorce, discussion of a new constitution, and a resolution passed on from last year calling for compulsory teaching of French from Grade 3.

The resolution on divorce would have widened the grounds for divorce to include three years' desertion, five years' incurable insanity, 10 years' imprisonment, homosexuality and cruelty.

Discussion of the new constitution, which includes a clause to lower the maximum age for young Liberals to 29 from the present 35, fell through when only five delegates—less than a quorum — turned up to debate it. The chairman rounded up 25 of the 175 delegates to discuss the proposal later in the day and they voted to defer discussion until next year.

The convention urged the provincial government to open up currently restricted areas in northwestern Ontario for hunting, fishing and tourism, and launch a reforestation program under the Agricultural Rehabilitation Act.

Almost-Extinct Eskimo Curlew Shot by Hunter

By STAN BENJAMIN

PHILADELPHIA (AP)—James Bond listened intently as the voice crackled through the telephone:

"I think I have something rather interesting to show you."

Interesting indeed! Bond had expected to find some old birds in Barbados, but he hadn't anticipated this.

To an ornithologist like James Bond, the discovery of a bird headed for extinction can be as exciting as the capture of a master spy by the fictional "Agent 007" created by the late Ian Fleming.

"One hundred years from now, this may be the last known specimen of the Eskimo curlew," Bond explained.

To Bond's trained eye, the bird, shot by a Barbados hunter, offered another slight clue in the mystery of the vanishing curlew.

WAS TASTY DISH

Once abundant and popular as a tasty dish in the American colonies, the number of Eskimo curlew dropped sharply between 1870 and 1890. Hunters shot many of the trusting birds, but many ornithologists, Bond among them, think other factors also were at work.

Bond believes the answer may be in the birds' far-ranging migratory habits. After breeding in the Arctic reaches of Northwestern Canada in the spring, the birds migrate southeastward to Labrador in the summer, then make their way thousands of miles southward, to reappear in Argentina, feeding in the Pampas during the winter.

Bond has a theory that changes in conditions on the Pampas — not fully understood but perhaps caused by the rise of the cattle industry — may have contributed even more than North American hunters to the curlew's downfall.

The finding of an Eskimo curlew in Barbados helps to confirm this migratory route and the fact that the bird was still pretty far from some stopover point to Bood's idea that the curlews may have been able to make the flight from Labrador to Argentina non-stop.

The 65-year-old James Bond is in a sense, the same fellow who ruthlessly fought against such villains as Goldfinger and Dr. No. Author Fleming once admitted he lifted the name from the byline of the bird expert's 1936 book, Birds of the West Indies.

Hees Urges Canada to Use Vast Reservoir of Goodwill In Europe and Middle East

VANCOUVER (CP)—George Hees says if Canadians do not take advantage of a tremendous reservoir of goodwill in Europe and the Middle East "we should have our heads read."

Mr. Hees, president of the Montreal and Canadian stock exchanges and former Conservative trade minister, today urged greater individual efforts to increase exports.

He said in a speech to the Vancouver Board of Trade world trade week banquet that the goodwill has been built up over the years.

All things being equal, businessmen would rather deal with Canadians, provided the Canadians go to them, country to make the necessary personal contact, he said.

Mr. Hees said proposed Canadian Development Corp. is economic and political folly that will result in increased taxation, and the federal government should reconsider the proposal and withdraw it.

He described a system of uneconomic companies being supported by the Crown corporation because of pressure exerted on politicians.

The corporation, announced in the recent federal budget, would use profits from such established Crown corporations as Air Canada and Polymer—a synthetic rubber and chemical plant—to balance losses incurred by uneconomic companies which could not meet financing charges.

The federal government, having lost the profits of the Crown companies, would be forced to increase taxes to take their place, said Mr. Hees.

A copy of his speech was released to the press in advance of delivery.

Mr. Hees said the stated purpose of the development corporation is to finance private business enterprise. But any sound enterprise could achieve financing through existing institutions. Those that could not had shown clearly that they could not compete and make a profit.

Young Liberals From Quebec Change Tune

By GERARD ALARIE

QUEBEC (CP)—The Quebec Young Liberal Federation held a weekend meeting at Quebec City because it does not agree with the Fulton-Favreau formula, which has received the approval of the executive of the provincial senior Liberal federation.

The formula would allow Canada to modify her constitution without having to submit modifications to the government of the United Kingdom for approval.

Premier Jean Lesage, who attended the closed session of the young Liberals' meeting Saturday, said there was "a friendly exchange of opinions on the Fulton - Favreau formula and other subjects."

Maurice Bonvouloir, president of the Quebec Young Liberal Federation, asked if his group approved the formula, replied "No, and it's for that reason that we're holding this caucus today."

However, talks with delegates at the end of the closed meeting indicated that several among them had come around to Mr. Lesage's point of view.

CHANGES MIND

One of the delegates, Ronald Poupart, representing the County of Ste. Marie, said: "Before the meeting I was squarely against the Fulton-Favreau formula. Now, my attitude is exactly the opposite of what it was before."

He added that several other young Liberals had undergone a similar transformation during the meeting.

Mr. Lesage, speaking to reporters after the meeting, said discussions dealt with "the points of the formula which are most difficult to interpret."

Among these "difficult to interpret" points was the veto right which is to be given to all Canadian provinces, delegates said.

According to the formula, any major change in Canada's constitution would have to receive the approval of all provincial legislatures and that of the federal government.

Irving Berlin Will Be 77 On Tuesday

NEW YORK (AP) — Irving Berlin is 77 Tuesday and one of the people least interested is that fact is Irving Berlin.

"It leaves me cold," he said during a brief business trip to New York City from the mountain home in the Catskills where he spends much of his time.

Berlin will spend his birthday there, with some of his family around to help him celebrate quietly. But he said he wasn't particularly looking forward to it.

"I'm looking much more forward to what I'm going to do after my birthday," he said. "The question is, are you going to be a grubby old man, or are you going to write another song?"

He said his health is fine. He doesn't show his age.

Recently, he said, he finished seven new songs for a movie, to be produced by Metro - Goldwyn - Mayer and called Say It With Music. In the same movie, he said, there also will be 25 old songs, including the title song, all by Irving Berlin.

Since he first sold a song for 33 cents in 1909 (Marie from Sunny Italy), Berlin has written the words and music for more than 900 songs, and a high proportion of them are all-time hits.

De Gaulle Faces Revolt By 'Parliament' of Euromart

STRASBOURG, France (Reuters)—President de Gaulle faces a new revolt today by members of the European Common Market's "parliament" who want more control over the activities of the 6-nation economic community.

The revolt against de Gaulle's policies was expected to come out into the open at a six-day session of the common market's parliamentary assembly which opens here today.

France, a member of the common market, has consistently soft-pedaled the community's evolution toward a parliamentary - controlled European super-state.

But the other members—Belgium, West Germany, Italy, Luxembourg and The Netherlands—have insisted that the practically powerless parliamentary assembly should be made an an effective instrument for democratic control over the community's administration.

The common market was set up in 1957 with the aim of removing trade barriers between member countries, creating eventual political unification.

A debate on a report to be presented to the assembly Tuesday will give the parliamentarians a chance to demonstrate their opposition to what they regard as their treatment as "yes men" to the member governments.

The report deals with recent proposals by the community's executive commission to create a common market treasury.

These proposals have already been practically rejected by the French government.

They provide for, member states to transfer to a market treasury — instead of national treasuries—the proceeds of customs duties paid by outside importers.

This money would also be used to create a common agricultural fund to finance the community's farming policy after July 1, when the present arrangement of paying for it through national contributions and special levies, which is regarded as inadequate, comes to an end.

The commission also suggested the parliamentary assembly should be given more powers in matters of common foreign trade policy and enhanced community.

Other issues scheduled to be discussed by the parliamentarians include the community's trade relations with Communist countries, relations with Turkey —a common market associate— and the question of community air transport.

Frank Tyndall, football coach at Queen's University for, lo, these many years modestly shifted the mantle of success from his shoulders to those Tricolor gridders who won five intercollegiate titles for him in the last ten years.

One of the best college football mentors in Canada, Mr. Tyndall told Albert College athletes at their annual athletic presentation banquet Saturday night that victory was due mainly because "we were fortunate enough to get hefty players then other schools."

In the lean years, he said, the school could not get enough students to turn out for football, and those that did "failed to join" but at that, he added, "we learned a lot by losing."

There was a certain lag of interest in the game on the part of some players, said Mr. Tyndall, "and we had to concentrate on them heavily to get the best out of them."

He recalled an incident which included Lou Bruce, one of Queen's all-time greats and later a fine professional footballer.

"I was lecturing the squad on certain plays and told them that most players were lost off-tackle. I turned and saw Bruce talking to a player and taking no interest in what I was saying. I thought I would check on him. I called to him and said, 'Bruce, where are most football games lost?'

Bruce turned and looked at me. I know he had not heard what I said but he came back with this answer:

Mr. Tyndall warned the students against letting success "go their heads". Never underestimate the opposition no matter how good you are."

He recalled that two years ago Queen's swept through the season undefeated and were scheduled to meet the University of Alberta for the Canadian Intercollegiate championship.

"Defeated as because we underestimated them," he said. "They were fired up — we were not. It makes all the difference in the world if a team collectively and individually have the attitude of wanting to win — and give just enough to get by with."

Paying with the attitude of wanting to win generally find themselves well ahead of those who are lackadaisical whether in sport or the greater game of life, he said.

He quoted Princeton's great basketball star, Bill Bradley who says all his ability felt he was not good enough in the smaller phases of the game. He spent hours alone in practising the minor plays. He remembered that somewhere someone was practising all the time. To beat him in the game Bradley felt he had to be practice perfect.

"Bradley's perfection through practice has set up a standard that every young athlete should try to attain. Do it the Bradley way and you will win," said Mr. Tyndall.

He told the students that they are living in an age of conflicting interests. "You have a two-fold pressure on you. On the one side academic, on the other the physical."

Life is demanding a higher academic standing on the part of youth while governments have instituted a physical fitness program.

"You have two things going for you which all rebounds back to the days of the ancient Greeks whose national motto was "A sound mind in a sound body."

This again was reflected in the statement of a famous British soldier who said, "England's victories are won on the playing fields of Eton."

Mr. Tyndall paid fine tribute to Mr. Russell Irvine and Miss Dianne Cooke, play-off directors at the college and the school's policy in having all students take part in some kind of sports competition.

Riteways Honored At Banquet

Belleville Novice Riteways, their parents and other special guests, were treated to a steak dinner, at Pepe's Steak House, Saturday night to officially wind up their successful hockey season.

A special treat for the youngsters was the appearance of Stan Smike, one of the scoring stars of the Rochester Americans. Calder Cup champions in the American Hockey League this season.

Smike spoke briefly to the boys, stressing the benefits of sports in early life. "Sport is a fine character builder and accomplishing a great deal toward developing good citizens," he said.

The American League star was introduced by his brother, Lou Szarka, father of one of the Ritway players.

Team manager Murph Warner was master of ceremonies and he, coach Murray "Moe" Hunter and Melholland, also spoke briefly.

Riteways captured four tournament "B" titles during the winter, at Gananoque, Napanee, Belleville and Trenton, and the trophies were on display, along with several others.

Orioles, Indians Win Doubleheaders

By MIKE RATHET
Associated Press Sports Writer

Batting with a broken right thumb that is expected to keep him out of the starting line-up for about 10 days, Brooks Robinson dropped a pinchhit single in the 12th inning and scored the winning run as Baltimore Orioles completed a double-header sweep by edging Detroit Tigers 5-4 Sunday.

The Orioles won the opener 7-1 with Robinson playing four innings before he finally submitted his wrists and fingers were x-rayed. The x-rays that revealed a fracture between the knuckles of the ringer.

The most valuable player in the American League last season, Robinson suffered the break when he was hit on the hand by a Hank Aguirre pitch in Saturday's game against the Tigers.

Another pert - timer, Fred Whitfield, lashed seven hits in nine at bats and drove in three runs in each game as Cleveland Indians defeated Boston Red Sox twice, 9-4 and 10-7. Elsewhere, Washington Senators edged New York Yankees 5-4, Minnesota Twins belted Chicago White Sox 6-1 and Los Angeles Angels downed Kansas City Athletics 5-3.

WIN IN 15

In Saturday's action, it took 15 innings for the Tigers to beat the Orioles 4-3 while the Yanks were massacring the Senators 7-3 and the Indians were dropping a 12-5 decision to the Red Sox. Chicago lost 4-0 to Minnesota and Los Angeles edged Kansas City 3-2.

The Orioles won the opener behind the six-hit pitching of Milt Pappas, who was making only his second start since injuring his knee in April 18. Boog Powell drove in three runs with a homer and two sacrifice flies.

The Tigers pulled out a 4-3 lead in the nightcap on two-run homers by Al Kaline and Willie Horton. The Orioles tied it in the seventh when Jim Northrup singled and Louis Aparicio's fleet feet went for a triple.

The Indians collected 22 hits in the twin bill against the Red Sox with Whitfield, who is platooned at first base, collecting a single, double, and triple in the opener and a double and two singles in the nightcap while raising his average 121 points to .429.

PITCHER HONORED

Whitfield recovered considerable support in the field department in the second game with Rocky Colavito and winning pitcher Sonny Siebert slamming homers. Tony Conigliaro hit two for Boston, his sixth and seventh, while Lee Thomas contributed one.

The Senators mapped a 2-8 tie in the seventh on Don Zimmer's sacrifice fly with the bases loaded, but scored the decisive run in the eighth as two walks issued by Hal Reniff, a hit batter by Gil Hodges and a bases-loaded triple by Bob Schmidt.

Camilo Pascual won his fourth game without a loss for the Twins, checking the White Sox on seven hits and also hitting a homer. Rollo Versalles added another homer for Minnesota.

Jose Cardenal was the boy for the Angels, slamming a homer and single and also stealing home. Fred Newman brought his record to 4-1 with Bob Lee's relief help as Los Angeles won its seventh game in the last eight.

Defeats Nelson 8-4 in Fourth Game

Sherbrooke Sweeps Cup Series

SHERBROOKE, Que. (CP) — Sherbrooke Beavers appeared to be in a class by themselves in winning the Allan Cup by sweeping the final series against Nelson Maple Leafs.

Beavers' 8-4 victory over the western stalwarts Saturday night brought the Allan Cup back to Quebec province after an absence of 18 years. The four games in the best-of-seven series were all played here.

There was a flurry of surprise when Nelson scored the first goal to go into their only lead of the series but the more powerful Sherbrooke team soon mastered the British Columbia team.

Beavers downed the Leafs by scores of 7-3, 4-1 and 9-2 in the first three games.

Following his team's Saturday defeat, Nelson manager Gil Gilbert said the Beavers were "without a doubt worthy champions of Canada."

Leafs Outplayed

Maple Leafs playing coach Bobby Kromm, kicked out of the game for trying to club referee Dutch Van Doelan with his stick in the third period, was not available for comment. Playing coach George Roy of the new Canadian amateur senior hockey champions said he was "disappointed" with the calibre of the western opposition. When the series started, he said he hoped the Maple Leafs would give his team a good run for the trophy after Beavers breezed through the eastern playoffs.

Lionel Foyer, president of the Canadian Amateur Hockey Association, said Beavers have a "good chance" to win a European tour next season. Sherbrooke officials said this week winners of the series once again came through with their third - period blitz. However, the four goals scored by Sherbrooke were not as humiliating as the seven pumped in by the Leafs in the third period of Thursday's game.

SCORES THREE

Simon Nolet scored three goals to lead the winners but Beavers were able to rub in the victory when Claude Cardin scored both his goals while his team was short - handed. George Ruthbault, Larry scored one each.

Mike Laughton scored twice for Nelson while Buck Rawlyer and Dave Stewart also scored.

The Kromm incident started early in the third period when Maple Leaf goalie Jim Letcher was given a penalty for throwing a puck into the crowd after it appeared as if he was merely trying to get it out of the way of his mitt.

Coach Kromm told referee Van Doelan what he thought of the call and found out in the penalty box he had been given a major penalty. At this, he took a swipe at Van Doelan with his stick and was sent to the dressing room on a game misconduct.

Sherbrooke once again demonstrated the balance, puck control and sharpness around the nets which, combined with the rugged checking, allowed them to virtually coast to victory in the once fiercely - contested Allan Cup competition.

Letcher, who beat Nolet on a penalty shot, stopped 34 shots to 36 by Aubry.

Aubry was hit by puck in the second period and the game was delayed for 10 minutes while the cut was closed with two stitches.

Torres' 3 Homers

Mets Split

By MURRAY CHASS
Associated Press Sports Writer

Batting with a badly injured left thumb that has turned him into a part-time player, Frank Robinson rapped a pinch single with the bases loaded in the ninth inning Sunday, driving in two runs and giving Cincinnati Reds a 5-3 victory over Pittsburgh Pirates.

The Cincinnati slugger batted for the first time since Friday night — despite a badly swollen left hand from the thumb injury he suffered a week ago against New York Mets.

Elsewhere in the National League Sunday, Chicago Cubs whipped Houston Astros 7-1 after losing 11-5, Milwaukee Braves dropped New York 8-5 before bowing 5-4, Philadelphia Phillies trimmed St. Louis Cardinals 4-3 and San Francisco Giants defeated Los Angeles Dodgers 6-3.

Saturday, Cincinnati bombed Pittsburgh 10-1 while the Mets doubled the Braves 4-2 and the Astros beat the Cubs 11-6. In San Francisco the Giants dropped a 9-8 decision to the Dodgers and in 11 innings in Philadelphia the Phillies edged the Cards 9-8.

Robinson's winning hit climaxed the three-run rally that wiped out a 3-2 Pittsburgh lead.

Ernie Banks homered twice and increased his major league leading runs batted in total to 32 in Chicago's second-game triumph. Glenn Beckert and Don Landrum also homered for the Cubs.

DROVE IN FIVE

In the opener, Houston collected 18 hits for the second straight game with Rusty Staub driving in five runs on a homer and a double. John Bateman and Jim Wynn added homers for the Astros.

Joe Torre slammed three Milwaukee homers, but the Braves could gain only a split with New York. The Mets deadlocked the second game with three runs in the seventh, the tying tally coming home on a bases-loaded walk to Ed Kranepool. Kranepool then won the game in the ninth with a bases-loaded single.

Torre, who socked two of his homers in the nightcap, got the Braves started in the opener with a two-run homer in the first inning. Mack Jones, who also homered in the second game, added a two-run homer and Denis Menke a three-run blast in support of Tony Cloninger's six-hitter.

Stuart's homer followed Richie Allen's triple in the first while Callison connected in the third.

The Giants rallied for four runs in the eighth inning and handed Sandy Koufax his second defeat against three victories. Juan Marichal brought his record to 5-2.

Japanese pitcher Masanori Murakami made his first appearance of the season, facing two Los Angeles batters in relief in the eighth. He hit John Roseboro and struck out Jim Lefebvre.

Tied World Record

Belgian Team Wins Bike Race

TORONTO (CP) — Rik Van Steenbergen of Antwerp, Belgium, tied the world record for six-day bicycle race wins Saturday night when he and countryman Emile Severyns won the international six-day race at Maple Leaf Gardens.

Van Steenbergen's win was the 38th in his 23-year-career, the same number won by Torchy Peden, formerly of Victoria and now of Northbrook, Ill.

Paced by the sensation riding of Severyns, the Belgians stole a lap on the field in the last 10 minutes of the race to wrap up the victory.

Until then, the Luxembourg team of Robert Lelangue and Lucien Gillen had seemed sure winners as they drove seven sprints, each worth 72 points. Partial points are normally given on a 6-4-2-1 basis for the first four finishers in 10-lap races within the main marathon. They are used to break ties between teams which have completed the same number of total laps at the end of the race.

In the last hour sprinting is continuous and each sprint victory is worth 72 points to the winner.

The Italian team of Leandro Faggin and Mino de Rossi finished second also lapping the field in the last hour. They covered the same number of laps as the Belgian but had only 717 sprint points, compared with 1,355 by Van Steenbergen and Severyns.

Gillen and Lelangue wound up third, a lap behind the leaders with 1,174 points.

Torchy Peden said: "I wouldn't have been so happy to see my record broken if I were still riding. I'd be trying to do something about it."

Van Steenbergen, who has become a millionaire through bicycle riding has a chance to break Peden's record in a Quebec City six-day race beginning Friday.

The final night of the race drew about 6,000 spectators.

Bowling

Steve Lee, Mary Fox Win Titles

Friday night's scores stood up to the competition on Saturday, providing five-pin bowling tournament titles to Trenton's Mary Fox and Belleville's Stephen Lee.

Lee, a 15-year-old youth who does not bowl regularly in a league, took the men's "B" tourney crown over a number of veterans, with his 2069 total. The men's tourney was for bowlers with averages of 210 or less.

Both Lee and Fox bowled their games Friday night in the two-day double tournament, but Saturday's bowlers were unable to beat their marks.

In the women's competition, Audrey Lake, also from Trenton held on to second places with 3377.

Bea Hunt was third with 3279. A former winner, Pearl Shaw, came fourth with 2240. She was the crown in 1962, then as Pearl Empey. Peg Ronsky was fifth with 2182 and Carla Cressman of Stirling, sixth with 2140.

The scores were the highest ever for the tournament, although only one 300 game was rolled. Verna Woodlock of Stirling, a winner in 1960, hit for 306.

Mary Fox received top prize money plus the Bowl-O-Drome trophy.

Mo Stoteburry placed fourth with 2064, Bob Casselman fifth with 2041 and Pete Roy sixth with 1974.

Results have also been released for winners in the Youth Bowling League finals.

In boys' individual competition, John Kiser had high average of 200, Howard Wark high double of 519 and the high single award was shared by David Rooney and Bob Stirling with 201 scores.

In girls' competition, Sally Craig had high average of 160, Heather Rutledge high double of 420 and Susan MacMullen high single of 208.

Two Senior Records Set

Ontario Relay Track Meet

HAMILTON (CP)—Two Canadian senior interscholastic relay records were established at the 11th annual Ontario relay track meet Saturday.

Westdale Secondary School of Hamilton, which won three of six races to claim the class A championship, turned in a performance of one minute, 30 seconds to win the senior 880 relay.

Their time was seven-tenths of a second better than the Canadian interscholastic mark of 1:30.7 set by North Vancouver High School in 1959.

Parkdale, record winning A class schools at the meet set a new Canadian mile relay mark with its performance in 3:23.5. North Vancouver also held that record at 3:24.7.

Doug Collins, Ron Yaschyshyn, Terry Volpini and Reino Lepo made up the Parkdale team.

St. Catharines Collegiate, which won the C class title, tied the meet record for the senior 440 relay. Their quartet, Paul Dudzick and Gary Wilson covering the distance in 45.5 seconds.

The Trots

CAMPBELLVILLE, Ont. (CP)—Putman Lass, starting for the first time in her career, upset 12 other three-year-old trotting Saturday in the $2,000 Mohawk Stakes at Mohawk Raceway.

The filly paid $45.20 to win and earned $1,000 for her owner and driver Lawrence Galpin of Acton, Ont.

Colonel Speedy Boy, sired by Fresh Yankee, was second and Bellevue Lad, fav $1,800 last year, third.

Another Year and Brilliant Mir were finishing head and head in the first heat when the latter broke stride and was disqualified. Another Year went on to win the second by six lengths and Brilliant Mir took third money.

Flyers Ready For Kill

EDMONTON (CP) — After two wins and easy victories in the Edmonton Oil Kings' Memorial Cup final, Niagara Falls Flyers go aiming for wins tonight, Wednesday and a quick trip home.

The Flyers topped Edmonton 3-2 in the opening game and 4-2 in the second, and in both cases the margin could have been much larger.

Sparked by forwards Bill Goldsworthy and Rod Debrosky and defencemen Gilles Marotte, the Flyers in each game were too strong physically, too poised defensively and too fast offensively for their western rivals.

Niagara Falls manager Hap Emms and coach Bill Long allowed their players to take it easy after the second game Thursday and most of the eastern club spent part of Sunday on Edmonton golf courses.

The Oil Kings, meanwhile, worked hard every day trying to find the combination that carried them to the western championship for the sixth consecutive year.

Leafs Lay Two Eggs For Hens

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Dick Williams doesn't believe in outdoor things off.

Although his Toronto Maple Leafs weren't scheduled to play in the international Baseball League, the Leafs' pilot-manager decided his club needed batting practice before that.

The Leafs, who got seven hits while losing 3-0 and 6-2 to Toledo Mudhens Sunday, were ordered on to the field immediately after the second game of the doubleheader.

Toronto had collected nine hits while defeating Toledo 4-1 Saturday.

Buffalo Bisons defeated Columbus Jets 6-3. Jacksonville Suns edged Rochester Red Wings 4-3, and Atlanta Crackers downed Syracuse Chiefs 4-3 in other games Saturday.

WALLOP SUNS

Sunday, Rochester walloped Jacksonville 14-7 before losing 10-8. Columbus swept a doubleheader from Buffalo 9-4 and 6-3 and Atlanta shut out Syracuse 3-0 before losing the nightcap 4-1.

Tom Dukes stopped the Leafs on a one-hitter in the opening game Sunday.

Rogey Repos and Dave Rickets sparked the Mud Hens with two-run homers in the second game.

Pigeon Racing

The Quinte Racing Pigeon Club held its second race of the season the weekend, from North Bay, an air distance of 176 miles.

Seventy-five birds were released at 8.45 a.m. Saturday with the winning bird piloted at 1:18.07 yards per minute. They arrived back in Belleville at approximately 5.20 p.m.

H. Edwards, of Trenton, was owner of the winning bird while J. Kouts of Belleville, was his nearest place second, fourth, seventh and tenth.

Ken Hogg, of Plainfield, owned third position while Belleville's Tom Woodcock owned two of the next, ninth, fifth and ninth spots.

The next race is scheduled in late May, also from North Bay.

WIN FIRST, SECOND

ZAGREB, Yugoslavia (AP)—Boris Pitsyn, grand master of Yugoslavia, and Wolfgang Uhlmann, grand master of East Germany, captured leading first and second places in the Zagreb International chess tournament tonight with 13.5 points each. Tigran Petrosyan, grand master of the Soviet Union and world champion, won third place with 12.5 points.

Trenton Driver Fifth

JARVIS, Ont. (CP)—Graham Hill of Toronto was taken to hospital at nearby Hagersville Saturday with a compound fracture of his right arm after his Lotus Super 7 rolled over several times at Harewood Acres track here.

Roy Price of Toronto took top honors at the race meet, which opened the major Canadian sports car racing season. He drove his home - made Canada Class to first place in the 30-lap feature event. His P-G Special also won him two 10-lap preliminaries before a crowd of more than 2,000.

Bill Brack of Clarkson, Ont., in a Mid-Cooper Jr. and Bob Acton of Livonia, Mich., in a Ford Mustang, collided in the eighth race. Bill Brack managed to slip inside Acton on the next curve and took the lead while Acton spun on by the pack.

The only other incident of the day occurred when: Ron Rodgers of Trenton rolled his MGB in the second race. It landed on its roof in a plowed field. Rodgers was unhurt and later placed fifth over-all in the 30-lap feature.

The Tracks

NEW YORK (CP)—Needles' Coast Rag swept Saturday with the Preakness Prep at Baltimore after Jacinto had been scratched and then declared out of the Preakness May 15.

Needles Coast, the only Preakness eligible among the three starters, coasted home five lengths in front of Dentison and 10 ahead of Cay-o-Lad.

It was the second straight victory for Needles Coast, owned by Abraham I. Savin. The prep was an exhibition race without betting and first prize was worth only $9,800. It took Needles Coast 1:47 3-5 to negotiate the 1 1-16 miles, more than five seconds slower than the Pimlico track record.

The track was muddy and that helped trainer Jim Maloney decide to scratch Jacinto. The colt also had kicked himself on the right ankle, which he bumped two weeks ago and kept him from racing.

Sue Bay's scored an upset in Pimlico's fifty consideration at the Preakness, the Black-Eyed Susan Stakes. She won by three lengths over Lady Pitt and Wendy's Crown. Cavana Rose was a nose back for third.

Sue Bay earned $15,585 for her owner, Mrs. Donelson Christmas. She paid $140.60, $10.000 and $11.20. Wendy's Crown returned $7.80 and $6 and Cavana Rose $7.10.

Daily Double Tuesday: 1. Burlington Central (M. Ryan, R. Phillips, G. Hunter, P. Bridges); 2. St. Catharines; 3. Dundas. Time 1:34.6.

At New York, Flag Raiser, eighth-place finisher in the Kentucky Derby a week ago after setting most of the pace, scored a record-breaking eight-length victory in the $60,000 Wilbert Miles-at Aqueduct.

With Bob Ussery in the saddle, Isidore Bieber's colt set a record for the event in 1:34 1-5.

Gallant Lad was a distant second, while Willie Shoemaker's other 114 lengths back in the nine-horse field.

Flag Raiser earned $39,000 and paid $6.20, $3.80 and $2.20. Gallant Lad returned $3.90 and $4, and Record Dash $6.20.

Terra Hi paid $4.20, $2.40 and $2.40 as the favorite. He was timed in 1:51 3-5 and earned $20,805.

Turn to Reason, owned by Miss Patricia Jacobs, had the way in score by two lengths.

Ridden by Taylor Powell, Turn to Reason returned $7.60, $3.20 and $2.80.

Turn to reason earned $30,735 and was clocked in 1:52.

One Stroke Up; Rain Postponed Final

Knudson May Lead Colonial All Way

By HAROLD V. RATLIFF

FORT WORTH, Tex. (AP)—George Knudson, the Canadian who may become the 20th man to land the $100,000 Colonial Invitational tournament all the way, went out today in the rain plagued tournament keeping a one-stroke lead over Bruce Crampton and Tony Lema.

The final round was postponed Sunday because of a hailstorm of rain accompanied by lightning.

Knudson was neither helped nor hurt by the postponement. Entering the final round with a one-under-par 209 for three rounds, the Toronto golfer, up with the top echelon in most tournaments, parred the first two holes of the final round before the postponement.

Crampton, who had 210, did the same and stayed a stroke back. But Lema took a bogey on the second hole.

Only 17 players had finished the final round when it was postponed after two stops.

PLAYERS HINTED

Prospects were considered good that the tournament can be played out today although there was a hint of showers this afternoon. If it is postponed again the final round will be played Tuesday.

Knudson led the first round with a 66, was tied for the lead at the halfway mark with 139 and shot back ahead Saturday with a 70.

Knudson, who flirted with disaster and a touch of stomach flu a week ago going into the play, could wind up third in the list of professional money - winners this year if he caps the $20,000 first prize.

The 29er had bothered him early in the match, but he said he seemed to shake it after seven holes, canning 18 birdie putts of 15, seven and 30 feet on the eighth, 11th and 12th holes.

He had been one over par on three of the first five holes before rallying.

Lema, who played the Saturday round with Knudson and Gene Littler, said later the 38-year - old bespectacled former Winnipegger is "the best golfer to come out of Canada."

Chuvalo Bout Is Postponed

GLACE BAY, N.S. (CP)—A match featuring Canadian heavyweight boxing champion George Chuvalo here May 22 has been postponed, it was announced Sunday.

Fight promoter Gus McLellan of Sydney has not been able to line up an opponent of Chuvalo's stature. The Toronto boxer is currently ranked fourth among the world's heavyweights.

Skeet Title To Detroit Marksman

ST. JANVIER, Que. (CP)—Howard Confer of Detroit, displaying consistent accuracy at throughout the three-day meet, won the all-round title at the 1965 Canadian and 12th provinces of Quebec skeet shooting championships which ended Sunday.

Confer, a member of the Detroit Wreckers shotgun squad, broke 490 of a possible 500 targets, but did not place first in any of the individual events.

The host Quebec championships could do no better than finish in fifth place at Friday's 414 competition with 98, and third behind Joe Sullivan of Springfield, Mass.

Dr. Al Martin of Salt Lake City, with 487 of 500 possibilities, was second to the all-round champion with this, the first Canadian meet.

WINS CLOSED TITLE

Harry Willsie of Westmount, Que., won the Canadian Closed championship with 485, following a shoot-off victory in the 12-gauge open event.

Willsie was forced to shoot-off with Larry Smith, Bob Tinkler and Chet Crites of Detroit, Nelson Starr and Bill Rudyk of Oshawa, Ont., and Steve Bloomsburg, Pa., for the title. All had recorded perfect rounds of 100 in each of the 12-gauge competition Saturday and Sunday.

Willsie picked up an impressive string of titles in the championships. He also won the Canadian Closed and Quebec 20-gauge title and the Quebec .410 crown.

FORT ERIE (CP) — Fort Erie's 36-day spring meeting, plagued by cold weather and frequent snow and rain storms, came to a sunny ending Saturday.

The warmest day of the meeting, with temperatures in the high 70s, plus one of the best fields ever assembled for the featured Vigil Stakes Handicap and the novelty of watching parachute drops over the infield, drew 12,051 fans.

Sunny, Bill Beasley's five-year-old son of Princequillo, pounded up from eight place to defeat Runadir and Royal Piper.

The big colt, trained by Warren Beasley, came from sixth place in the last quarter of a mile and his time of 1:46 was just one and one-fifth seconds off the track mark. He paid $9 to win.

Sunny's jockey, Keith Robinson of Mingedoza, Man. began a 10-day suspension Sunday for rough riding.

Racing now moves to Toronto's Greenwood for a 24-day meeting.

Hot Engine Season Draws Near

By EUGENE P. MILMOE

Doctors say everyone feels better in warm weather — but there's disagreement from some car owners. Warm weather means more traffic . . . more traffic means hot engines and hot engines often mean boilover.

There are dozens of possible reasons for engine overheating. Defective thermostat, radiator, water pump, fan belt, hoses or inadequate water grave always at fault. Here are several rarely suspected yet not uncommon conditions which often cause engine overheating:

Engine oil low (by a quart or more) . . . radiator pressure cap loose or defective — fuel mixture too lean, or fuel pump pressure weak — late ignition timing — leaky exhaust valves — a clogged exhaust system — blinding manifold heat valve — slipping transmission — wrong grade of gas (regular instead of premium).

L. A. asks: "What is the difference between a transistorized ignition and a standard ignition?"

With a transistor system, more current is furnished the coil to assure a fatter spark, while less current is directed to the ignition points, thus easing their load.

From B. M.: "My engine seems to have little power at high speed, almost as if it were flooding. Choke and carb checked out OK. Could fuel pump pressure be too much?"

Excessive pump pressure is possible — but a more common cause is a dirty air cleaner element which will enrich the fuel mixture.

S. R. writes: "If the engine doesn't run smoothly when it's idling, what is the most likely cause — the ignition or the fuel delivery?"

In most cases, rough idle is due to incorrect fuel mixture — to rich or too lean. Defective ignition or faulty valve operation share second place.

From L.T.: "On our '41 sedan, you can hear a hissing noise when the brake pedal is pressed down. Stopping the car also seems to take more foot pressure than before."

Obviously, you have power brakes. The hissing sound indicates a vacuum leak which would also weaken power assist and demand harder pedal pressure.

Not Enough Family Movies Being Made Says Pat Boone

By JAMES BACON

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Pat Boone is becoming the composing and singing voice of minority peoples.

First he wrote lyrics for This Land is Mine, in the theme from the movie Exodus.

Now he has written words and music for a civil rights spiritual called Time Marches On.

It tells the story of the Negro —from Africa to Alabama— with a catchy beat.

Boone, a southerner, said he became interested in the U.S. civil rights movement when he had a half-hour television show a few years back.

"On Thanksgiving," he recalls, "I had Lilia Fitzgerald as my guest.

"The next day I was bombarded by calls and letters from my relatives in the South, and some from the North, too. All of them chastised me for having a Negro as a guest.

HE'S ASTONISHED

"I was astonished. Here on the day we set aside each year to give our thanks to God, my own relatives were bawling me out.

"It seemed a very unChristian thing to do."

Pat later mentioned his indignation on a television interview show. One of his listeners was Harry Belafonte.

"Harry said he liked what I said and wanted to come on my TV show. I told him the biggest audience support an entertainer of his stature. But Harry said he would do it for nothing just because he liked what I had done.

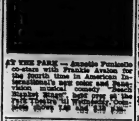
"I was thrilled and told the producer about it. Soon, the agency people representing the sponsor called me not to have Belafonte on the show. The reason was that Harry was married. I asked and I was told pre-

FORGET ABOUT ME'

"Then I said: 'If that's the case, then you might just as well forget about me for this show.' And I meant it and they knew I meant it.

"Finally, the sponsor relented and said okay. But the payoff was that Belafonte's agent was so filled up that by the time he could do it, my show was off the air."

Pat has recorded his civil rights song.



"Sammy Davis flipped over it when I sang it over the phone to him in New York. Now, he's going to record it."

Pat has strong feelings about his professional life. He has done well in movies but keeps turning down scripts.

"They aren't making enough family movies," he says. "I was talked into doing one that dealt with prostitution. That convinced me. Never again. There are two scripts around that I would like to do: Chiquita and The Shy Photographer. Both could be great family movies. And I'll wait until I get them—or something like them."

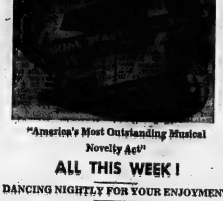
New Free Methodist Church Costing $43,000 Dedicated

PICTON (Staff) — Sunday was a big day for the Rev. T. J. Riddell and members of his congregation at the new Free Methodist Church here. The latest church building which was officially opened last November 7th was dedicated formally Sunday afternoon at 2:30 o'clock. Officiating at the ceremony was Bishop Paul N. Ellis of the Free Methodist Church, Indianapolis, Indiana.

Bishop Ellis was elected to the office of Bishop at the General Conference of the Free Methodist Church in June of 1944. Mrs. Ellis accompanied her husband. Several hundred people including many from outside the county, were in attendance for the dedication. A public address system was set

County Council Ready for May Session

PICTON (Staff) — The May meeting for May of Prince Edward County Council opens at Shire Hall, Picton, this Monday morning.



Among the topics which may be discussed is the legal action launched against the County by Picton district farmer, Reginald Moore, who claims that seepage from the septic tank at the County Home is polluting his water supply.

County councillors may also hope to hear from the Department of Energy and Resource regarding the county's request for a survey with a view to establishing a conservation authority.

Another matter which may be presented is a by-law to license gambling establishments in the county. A request for such a by-law was made by Reeve Don Ketchabaw of Sophiasburgh last month on behalf of Dr. William Turpel, medical officer of health. Reeve Ketchabaw was authorized to have a simple by-law prepared and to present it to county council. The council will also take a report on the latest meeting in Nassau concerning the proposed regional jail.

Kente Chorus Members Busy With Rehearsals

PICTON (Staff) — Members of Picton's Kente Chorus are very busy these days rehearsing for their forthcoming operetta, Gilbert and Sullivan's "Pirates of Penzance." On the program a number of the cast, dressed in the colorful costumes of the show, paraded through the main streets of the town on a wagon drawn by a small tractor. They literally took over the town with their antics as the pirates invaded business premises in an effort to publicly advertise their coming show. The operetta, directed by Peter Bridges of Glen Richmond, will run at the Picton Kelsey Collegiate Institute for two nights May 14 and 15.

They Play With Early Bird As Ike, Monty Cool Heels

By CYNTHIA LOWRY

NEW YORK (AP) — Forty-nine years separated during the first appearance of Ike and Monty on a television screen last week ago, it is not by. But at the moment U.S. network television presents such many fascinated with honoring feats off the satellite than in cohesive, well-organized programs.

CBS's Saturday night special was called Victory in Europe, 60 Years Ago.

Dwight D. Eisenhower, supreme commander of the Allied forces, was in a New York studio obviously nervous and ready to philosophize and speak on the great league. Field Marshal Viscount Montgomery was in Winston Churchill's underground war room in London, ready for a chat with his one-time opposite.

PARDON?

The world is full of wonderful sounds. And full of people who miss them rather than admit that they've got a hearing loss. They won't realize that they make their problem far more obvious by NOT wearing a hearing aid than by wearing one. Modern hearing aids can be made so tiny and so inconspicuous that no-one need ever notice them.

If you suspect that you may need professional advice — please don't wait. Your hearing is far too precious. We'll be happy to arrange an appointment for you any time and (should it be necessary) to show you a wide selection of modern hearing aids and modern, trouble-free batteries to power them.

Austria's First Chancellor After War Dies

VIENNA (Reuters)—Leopold Figl, 62, who survived Nazi floggings to become Austria's first chancellor after the Second World War, and signed the treaty that restored its independence, died here Sunday after a long illness.

Later this week Figl was to have taken part with leading foreign ministry in celebrations of the 20th anniversary of the Austrian state treaty, which cleared the way for withdrawal of occupation troops in 1955 and gave Austria independence for the first time since 1938, when it was annexed to Hitler's Third Reich.

Figl served as chancellor from 1945 to 1953 and is regarded as one of the chief architects of the new Austrian republic. He was foreign minister when he signed the 1955 treaty on Austria's behalf. He left the government in 1956.

Sick Children's Hospital

THE PARENTS ARE ALWAYS "RIGHT" — Nurse Sharleen Pardo of the emergency ward at the Hospital for Sick Children in Toronto administers a lavage, a process by which the stomach is washed out during treatment for poisoning. It is hospital policy that every child appearing in the emergency ward is given medical attention, although it may be an emergency only in the minds of the parents. (CP Photo)

"No Child Will Be Turned Away"

By CARL MOLLINS

TORONTO (CP) — Medical marvels are recorded daily in the wards and operating rooms of the Hospital for Sick Children. But miracles of tact and diplomacy take place every hour in the emergency ward.

"Sometimes you're on the verge of snapping somebody's head off," says Dr. Stephens. "Then Pardo of Rumpelstiltskin will be a long night and the doctor has been awfully hectic at the beaten and some parent comes in demanding his attention first. Or a child who doesn't need it, you feel like telling them to go home and stop bothering you.

"But it's a hospital policy that no child will be turned away without medical attention.

"And then, just when you're ready to blow up, a parent will come along after his child has been treated and say 'thank you,' and mean it, and you feel fine again."

The hospital's policy is likely to help in its current $13,500,000 fund-raising campaign.

MAINLY FOR MOM

Few parents within a radius of 20 miles or more of the mid-town children's hospital are unaware of the routine when junior falls off his bike and gashes his forehead or when baby's mild cold turns into terrifying croupe at three in the morning: Take him to Sick Kids.

Parents being what they are, a good proportion of the cases hustled into the bright, basement emergency waiting rooms are emergencies only in the eyes of mother and dad.

Take those entries from among the fractures, cuts, poisonings and breathing problems in a recent overnight log:

4:15 p.m.—A gift, 9, complained of cold feet. Examined by duty doctor, Diagnosis: Her feet had been cold from playing outdoors all afternoon.

10:30 p.m.—A boy, 2. Brought by mother because he was crying. Diagnosis: Upset child.

6:30 a.m.—Infant. Brought by mother without specific complaint but following examination by a doctor. Diagnosis: Baby healthy.

MANY NOT URGENT

A study by the hospital of a typical recent month in emergency covered 2,000 cases and classified more than a third of them—1,231 — as non - emergencies.

But Dr. J. E. Boone, chief of medicine in emergency, says the hospital has decided to accept the parents' classification: "If they think it's an emergency, it's an emergency to us."

Except that the minor cases often have a long wait in busy periods—5 p.m., till 11 p.m. almost any night, but especially during the summer.

But true emergencies don't wait.

Room 545, the major treatment room, is equipped for any kind of emergency surgery and is only a short corridor away from the street-level entrance. There is a second major treatment room nearby and three more operating rooms with specialized facilities for dealing with bilateral poisoning, lacerations or eye, ear, nose and throat emergencies.

READY FOR DISASTER

These rooms, and others nearby, all would have special roles in the event of a sudden flood of cases under a program designated Triage. This program, never invoked, is a system for dealing with minor disasters such as a school fire or an accident involving a school bus.

Meantime, Dr. Clinton A. Stephens is using one of the emergency operating rooms during slack daytime periods for a new program which handles minor surgery in children on an outpatient basis.

Dr. Stephens, chief of emergency surgery, and his staff have been performing non-emergency surgery—for hernias, minor skin grafts, tendon repairs or cosmetic treatment—as an out-patient service for young children for a year.

A youngster with an umbilical hernia, for example, can have the problem corrected, spend two or three hours in a small recovery room with his parents and then go home. As an in-patient, he might spend three or four days in hospital.

Dr. Stephens says the main advantage is relieving the child and the parents of the intense emotional distress that often results when a preschool child is separated from his parents in hospital. It also cuts down the risk of infection to infants in hospitals.

"The children bear it better, the mothers are happier to have them home and we're pleased with the results," says Dr. Stephens.

48 Fatalities Across Canada Over Weekend

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Accidents took at least 48 lives across Canada during the weekend—one on a railroad bridge, one in a fire, two by drowning and 44 on the road.

Nearly half of the accidental deaths happened in Ontario, according to a Canadian Press survey from 6 p.m. Friday to midnight Sunday local times.

Ontario reported 21 deaths—19 of them in traffic. Three were killed in one head-on crash in Cornwall and three in another near London, both on Sunday. Two killed in a three-car crash near Toronto Saturday.

A tobacco farmer was killed when his house near St. Thomas burned down, and a six-year-old Blind River boy was killed when he could not get off a railroad bridge from which he was flashing before a train hit him.

Quebec reported nine traffic deaths and two deaths by drowning.

British Columbia and Alberta each reported five deaths on the road. Saskatchewan, Manitoba and Nova Scotia each reported two deaths in traffic.

Dominican Peace Hinges On Resignation

From Reuters-AP

SANTO DOMINGO (CP)—Brig.-Gen. Antonio Imbert, head of the Dominican Republic's "reconstruction" government, said today the government did not know anything about the reported resignation of rightist leader Brig.-Gen. Elias Wessin y Wessin.

Wessin's resignation from the post of armed forces training centre director was reported late Monday by U.S. Embassy officials. Officials regarded it as possibly paving the way for negotiations between rightist and leftist elements here.

A U.S. embassy official said in a statement:

"We did understand from official sources that Gen. Wessin was going to resign. . . We now understand that he is reconsidering his decision."

Col. Francisco Caamano Deno, proclaimed provisional president by the rebels, has been demanding that Wessin leave the country. The general commands the San Isidro training base 20 miles from Santo Domingo, one of the country's key military posts, and was a leader of the military revolt that overthrew president Juan Bosch in 1963.

Caamano told a press conference Monday he was willing to hold talks with the Imbert regime if Wessin and two other generals were removed from their posts.

He named the two officers as Brig.-Gen. Juan de Los Santos Cespedes, head of the air force, and Brig.-Gen. Francisco Rivera Caminero, secretary of the armed forces.

Speaking in the presence of the papal nuncio, Msgr. Emanuel Clarizio, dean of the diplomatic corps, Caamano brushed aside an order by Imbert, as head of the civilian-military junta, for the rebels to lay down their arms or be wiped out.

Caamano's air force chief were responsible for the attack on the U.S. which he claimed cost 1,000 lives in the first week of fighting following the outbreak of the revolt April 24.

Diplomatic sources in Santo Domingo believed no talks were possible between Imbert's five-man "reconstruction" government and Caamano's own regime until Wessin is removed.

A major question is whether Caamano would be able to make any political arrangements with the rebels without causing Communist and other leftists to step in the rebel movement to try to stop him.

At his press conference Caamano again denied charges that his movement was controlled by communists, saying:

"I am completely sure that a dictatorship of the left is infinitely worse than one of the right."

3 Liberal MPs Deny Charges

By RONALD LEBEL

OTTAWA (CP)—A new political storm swirled up around Hal Banks in the Commons Monday as three Liberal MPs from Montreal denied they ever received election campaign contributions from the former waterfront overlord.

The denials came at long intervals from John Turner (St. Lawrence-St. George), parliamentary secretary to Resources Minister Laing, Georges Lachance (Lafontaine) and Edmund Asselin (Notre-Dame-de-Grace). All three were first elected to the Commons in 1962.

They referred to allegations by members of the Seafarers International Union of Canada (ind.) that Banks, deposed SIU president, threw financial aid to the three Montreal Liberals in the 1962 and 1963 general elections.

They said the allegations are contained in the transcript of an interview with Erik Nielsen (PC —Yukon) and the SIU members.

Copies of the transcript had been sent to many MPs and formed the basis of a front-page article in Monday's editions of the Toronto Telegram, they added.

Mr. Lachance said the mere fact that Mr. Nielsen had a hand in the publication of the allegations makes them "suspect and unbelievable."

TO CALL SIMON?

He said the Telegram reporter who wrote the article in question, Norman Simon, should be called before the Commons to "explain why he published this scuttlebut drawn from unsigned documents, without even having the courtesy to check with the persons concerned."

Mr. Turner said the allegation against him was "hearsay" repeated to Mr. Nielsen by John Dormer, former editor of the Canadian Sailor, the SIU newspaper. Mr. Dormer had been a member of the Banks, and had used the "big lie" as a constant weapon.

Another Test Vote Coming

OTTAWA (CP)—The minority Liberal government faces another vote test in the Commons today.

But the question period could provide more fireworks than the supply debate and a motion of non-confidence.

T. C. Douglas, the New Democratic Party leader, moved the motion pegged to the government's Canada - United States auto agreement. It said the government should have made certain there were assurances that auto workers, consumers and small parts manufacturers would be protected before signing the agreement.

Industry Minister Drury said he knows of no real case of difficulty arising from the agreement, "Virtually no one" would be adversely affected by it, he said, and the government could not prescribe remedies for whatever minor difficulties arise until it knows what they are.

Wallace Nesbitt, member for Oxford, opened supply debate for the Conservatives. Although he suggested the government should provide an opportunity for full debate on the situation in Viet Nam and recent strife in the Dominican Republic, he did not take the opportunity provided by the two-day debate to move a non-confidence motion. A vote on the NDP motion is due today to wind up the supply debate.

Two other pieces of legislation, a bill that would retire future senators at age 75 and another to revamp the set, governing chartered banks, are ready to be brought back before the Commons in the near future.

Also in the wings is a government program for streamlining Parliament's procedures. Debate on this is expected to start Wednesday.

Martin's Non-Aggression Pact Proposal Is Opposed

LONDON (CP)—NATO Secretary - General Manlio Brosio Monday curtly dismissed Canadian External Affairs Minister Martin's suggestion that alliance members now might consider a non-aggression pact with the Communist bloc in Europe.

He was asked at a press conference on the eve of the opening of NATO's spring meeting of foreign ministers whether he thought this might be an appropriate item to consider such a pact with the Warsaw powers.

"No," Brosio said without any elaboration.

Martin had said at a Paris press conference last week that East-West relations may have reached the point where consideration by NATO of a non-aggression pact with the Communist countries of Europe now might be possible.

Brosio, of Italy, said in his opening statement that there has been a moderate improvement in East-West relations but that substantial improvement could be achieved only by real progress on the question of German reunification.

Canadian informants said Martin does not intend to bring his suggestion formally before the NATO council when he addresses it today.

Besides asking for increased support for United Nations peace-keeping operations, they said, he will also discuss the future state of the North Atlantic alliance.

Wilson Jabs at de Gaulle, Calls Nationalism Delusion

LONDON (CP) — British Prime Minister Wilson opened the North Atlantic alliance's annual spring meeting today with his implication was clear when he warned that military nationalism is a dangerous delusion.

"We cannot afford to drop our guard or permit ourselves the luxury of disagreements which could imperil the cohesion of our alliance," he told the foreign ministers from 15 countries of the North Atlantic Treaty Organization.

He stressed the need for inter-dependence as a counter to France's concept of an independent European nuclear deterrent.

"Indeed our willingness to accept the implications of interdependence must grow, not diminish, as we work to make the alliance more effective and bring it into line with changing world requirements.

"There is no greater delusion than the feeling we can solve our common problems on the basis of adversaries in military nationalism."

NATO sources said the ministers would be occupied almost exclusively during their three-day meeting with political topics. Such questions as the establishment of a nuclear force for the alliance will be left to the meeting of NATO defence ministers in Paris May 31, the sources said.

The Greek and Turkish foreign ministers, Stavros Kostopoulos and Hasan Esat Isik, provided the conference with heartening news by meeting Monday for the first time in more than a year of crisis over Cyprus.

Higher Wages Coming

TORONTO (CP) — Nurses, attendants and custodial officers in Ontario government hospitals and institutions will receive pay increases retroactive to April 1, 1965, Provincial Treasurer James Allan told the Ontario legislature Monday.

Last week, about 40 attendants from the Ontario Hospital for the Criminally Insane in Penetanguishene demonstrated at Queen's Park, claiming their dual roles as attendants and custodial officers in the maximum security mental hospital merited higher wages.

Mr. Allan said the men's duties and responsibilities at Penetanguishene are regarded as primarily those of attendants and not custodial officers.

In other business Monday, Attorney-General Arthur Wishart said there are some matters which cause "some concern" about organized crime in the province, but an investigation by the Ontario Police Commission has not yet been needed.

Mr. Wishart said he is satisfied that the current system for fighting organized crime in Ontario is adequate and that a two-man intelligence unit, recommended by the commission, would keep police ahead of

Air Raid Aids In Recapture Of Area Capital

From AP-Reuters

SAIGON (CP)—In one of the heaviest onslaughts of the Vietnamese war, the Viet Cong held control of a town of 13,000 persons for seven hours today, killed five Americans and wounded 11 others.

Communist ground fire downed one U.S. fighter-bomber but the pilot was reported to have bailed out and was picked up safely.

Government forces, under cover of a heavy air attack by U.S. Air Force jets, finally reoccupied Song Be, a provincial capital 52 miles north of Saigon. But the Communists dug in along a river northeast of the town, and a major battle appeared to be developing.

South Vietnamese defenders were believed to have suffered heavy casualties in the attack, the first Viet Cong seizure of a provincial capital since last fall.

About 30 U.S. advisers were stationed in Song Be with a force of some 1,000 South Vietnamese.

Song Be captured five armored cars from defenders of the administration building and threw them into an attack on the Song Be airstrip a half mile away.

SECOND BIG ATTACK

The attack followed the mauling of a government regiment in Binh Duong province, about 30 miles northwest of Saigon, Sunday, when government forces were reported to have lost 300 killed, wounded and missing.

In North Viet Nam, where U.S. and South Vietnamese planes launched major air strikes against road communications Monday, the government was reported evacuating ministries from Hanoi for fear of American air raids on the capital.

Informed sources in Saigon said the evacuation was part of a general program to decentralize the entire machinery of President Ho Chi Minh's government.

Phanat Khomas, foreign minister of Thailand, said in Washington Monday he would support organized crime in Ontario is adequate and that a two-man intelligence unit, recommended by the commission, would keep police ahead of Hanoi.

Dief Wants Names Revealed

OTTAWA (CP)—Prime Minister Pearson was expected to face more opposition pressure today to disclose further details about the role of two Canadians in an attempted Soviet espionage plot.

The prime minister promised in the Commons Monday to make a "considered" reply later to Opposition Leader Diefenbaker's demand that their names be revealed for "selling out their own country."

Two Soviet Embassy employees were expelled from Canada last week for attempts, the external affairs department said, to set up an espionage network in Canada and other countries and to use photographic techniques to compromise female government employees in order to obtain secret defence and industrial information.

The department said Saturday that commercial attache A. E. Bytchkov and embassy clerk V. N. Pobichkin paid "thousand of dollars" to two Canadians—one a civil servant, the other a private industry

Mr. Diefenbaker accused the two Canadians of selling out their country and "escaping prosecution by treachery" that in which they themselves were wrongly involved.

Mr. Diefenbaker led off the questioning, but he was joined by NDP Leader Douglas, Social Credit Leader Thompson, Creditiste Leader Caouette and other MPs.

DID NO DAMAGE

The external affairs statement said the approaches by the two Russians came to the RCMP's attention "very shortly" and "as a result of this co-operation by conscientious Canadians, the police were able to establish the proper nature of the Soviet approaches and to put an end to them before any harm was done to Canadian interests."

The statement did not specifically state whether the "conscientious Canadians" were the two who received the money, who tipped off the RCMP.

"What is going to be done in regard to prosecuting wrongdoers who for illicit gain and greed would sell out their own country?" Mr. Diefenbaker asked.

Police Still Probing Fantastic Theft of Cobalt From Deloro

DELORO (Staff)—Investigations continue to fan out from this little North Hastings village — the scene of Canada's current prime crime mystery.

Today police were still probing the fantastic theft of an estimated 150 tons of refined cobalt from a government stockpile—without making any known progress toward a solution.

An Ottawa spokesman said the government can see no shady market for the cobalt either abroad or in Canada.

The spokesman said the government position is that it holds Deloro Mining and Reduction Company Ltd. responsible for the loss. The company was under contract to the government to store the cobalt.

At current market prices—$2.16 a pound — the cobalt would be valued at close to $650,000.

Cobalt is used in steel, hardening processes and paint production.

The stockpile, stored in a building on the property of the now-defunct Deloro Mining and Smelting Company Ltd. — who refined the ores into pellets — was reported guarded by a watchman.

The cobalt was replaced in 1,200-pound drums by sand and gravel. Some drums were left empty.

The missing cobalt was enough to supply the Canadian market for five years.

In all, about 245 barrels were emptied in the theft — which could have been staged anytime in the past six years.

The theft was first discovered a week ago during a routine inspection following a federal government decision to release the mineral on the open market.

Smelting operations at Deloro ceased in 1957, and its companion operations — Deloro Stellite — moved to Belleville.

There were no signs of forcible entry at the building.

Yesterday Inspector G. A. Dugald, of the provincial police Criminal Investigation Branch arrived from Toronto to assist the probe organized by OPP detective sergeant Lloyd Lyle of Belleville.

Federal officials left Deloro last night after surveying the scene of the baffling theft.

France Has Had Nuclear Bombers For Months

PARIS (Reuters)—French nuclear bombers have been ready to strike at any potential enemy for several months, the weekly picture magazine Paris Match reports.

After 10 years of talk, France's nuclear strike force—the "force de frappe"—has become a reality, it says.

In the force's underground nerve centre at Taverny, near Paris, six men will be able to launch the country's entire nuclear might in five minutes, Paris Match says.

The order for such an operation could come only from President de Gaulle. He would send two separate coded messages, one to the French strategic air commander and one to the commander's deputy, the magazine says.

Only when the two messages were joined could the strike force be launched.

Paris Match says the bomb's power is 60 kilotons, four times that of the atomic bomb dropped on Hiroshima in 1945. It was about 12 feet long and weighed more than a ton.

Even so it is "a hundred times less powerful than the most ordinary American or Russian H-bomb today."

Meanwhile, France's first commercial atomic fallout shelter for family use now is on view to the public in the square in front of Les Invalides, resting place of France's war heroes.

The cylindrical shelter, intended to be buried below ground with a hatch connecting with the owner's house, is designed to protect nine persons from the effects of a nuclear attack for two weeks.

Its price is 90,000 francs ($18,000).

Sale of Three Building Lots Held up by Council Until Legal Opinion Is Obtained

Completion of a recent sale by auction of three city-owned building lots on Union Street has held up yesterday by city council in order that the matter may be referred to the city solicitor for advice on the legality of the sale.

By-laws authorizing execution of deeds for the three lots were held up in council yesterday pending advice from the solicitor.

The three building lots were recently sold by auction for $300 each but Alderman Donald Whalen said the city should have realized $3,600 on the sale.

The matter came up for discussion with the presentation of a finance and executive committee recommendation calling for a reserve bid to be instituted in future for the sale of city-owned lands sold by auction.

Mayor Ellis reminded that city council last year had sanctioned the sale of city property by auction, but in this case through an oversight a reserve bid had not been placed.

LAND CHEAPLY ACQUIRED

The mayor said the only redeeming feature of the sale was that the land had been acquired by the city some years ago for non-payment of taxes.

But Alderman Whalen would not agree that the cost of the land to the city had any bearing.

The three lots of the case were that the city had lost $2,500 to $3,000 in cold cash, he said.

City Manager J. R. Reynolds said he took the responsibility for the reserve bid not being placed at the auction.

He said he himself would like an opinion as to the legality of the sale as the sale by auction had been subject to a reserve bid but no reserve bid had been placed.

Council agreed that in all future cases of sale of city land by auction a reserve bid would apply.

Mohawks Plan To Re-enact 1784 Landing

Mohawks of the Tyendinaga Reserve on Sunday, May 23, will open the annual re-enaction of one of the highlights of their history, their landing in 1784 after they had left the United States and cast their lot with the British Crown. The ceremony will commence at 9.30 a.m., with the landing being followed by a service at 10 a.m. at the cairn erected to mark the historic event and with another service at 11 a.m. at nearby Christ Church, in which the famous silver communion service given to the tribe by Queen Anne will be in use.

PLACES CORNERSTONE

MONTREAL (CP) — Education Minister Paul Gerin-Lajoie placed the cornerstone Saturday of a new $36,000,000 building for Sir George Williams University. Mr. Gerin-Lajoie said the building is further proof that Quebec is prepared to grant the English-speaking minority in the province equal opportunity. He hoped other provinces would give reciprocal treatment to French-speaking minorities.

City hall and directors of the Belleville YMCA still have a difference of opinion as to whether the "Y" owns the city and back taxes amounting to nearly $6,000.

Whether or not the "Y" owes the back taxes apparently hinges on the interpretation of an agreement between the city and the YMCA made back in 1955.

The city hall interpretation is that back taxes on the "Y" property location of the Campbell street building was ever sold.

The "Y" interpretation appears to be that the back taxes became payable only if the YMCA ceased to exist and feel the intention was not that they became payable merely as result of relocation of the "Y".

A year ago the old Campbell street building was sold to the city and has now been renovated for a police headquarters.

The back taxes in question are for the years 1953, 1954 and 1955, amounting to over $4,700.

Yesterday two letters — one from the city manager, and the other from the "Y" to Mayor Ellis, were read in council, and the matter tabled to allow time for "Y" directors to confer with city hall

Ald. Corke Favors City Joining County in Central Jail for Four Counties

The city of Belleville should join in with Hastings County and other Quinte district municipalities in construction of a central jail, if it was decided to go ahead with this venture.

This was the advice to city council yesterday from Finance Committee Chairman, Alderman Ben Corke, who represented the city on recent meetings for discussion of the central jail project.

A week ago at Napanee, committees from the counties of Hastings, Napanee, Lennox and Addington and Prontenac met at Napanee and approved in principle of the central jail idea.

The matter will now be referred to the respective county councils for decision.

Alderman Corke said if Belleville did not go in with the county the city would have to provide its own jail facilities. Cells in the new police station were merely an overnight lock-up and prisoners had to be transferred to a regular jail.

He said that inspection of the present county jail indicated that there was much to be desired.

Whether or not the central jail would be built was the county decision, but if the new jail was approved the city should join in with the county, he said.

Belleville's former 125-year-old police station on the market square is slated for the wrecker's hammer.

This was the decision at city council yesterday as members approved a property committee recommendation from Alderman Jack Deacon to have the old structure razed.

But not all councillors agreed that the historic old police building and one time city hall should be torn down.

One of these was Alderman Donald Jose who pleaded to save the building which aside from its historic value he claimed could be put to good use by the city Chamber of Commerce or some other civic body. He accused the public works committee with trying to speed the recommendation through council "before the historical 'society could do anything about it."

MAYOR DISAGREES

But Mayor Jack Ellis disagreed.

"There seems to be a certain faction of people in the city which feels that everything which is old is worthwhile and everything new is bad," he said.

He asserted, however, that the dilapidated old police building was beyond saving. The old structure is in danger of collapsing and the furnace would have to be replaced, the mayor said.

A motion from Alderman Douglas Boyle to table the recommendation to wreck the building was turned down and the motion to raze the structure was carried on an 11-4 record vote.

Judgment Reserved In Appeal

TORONTO (CP) — The Ontario Court of Appeal reserved judgment Monday in the case of Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Bergsma, a Dutch couple who were refused Canadian citizenship because they do not believe in God.

The case went to the Court of Appeal after Mr. Justice Stanley Schatz of the Ontario Supreme Court upheld the original decision by Judge W. W. Leach of Haldimand County Court.

Ian Scott, counsel for the Bergsmas, said the couple came from the Netherlands 10 years ago under the Immigration Act, and applied for citizenship 1½ years ago under the Citizenship Act.

Mr. Bergsma had told Judge Leach that he and his wife do not believe in God and their children do not go to church.

More Advanced Space Shot Now Planned

MOSCOW (AP)—A Soviet cosmonaut said Monday that Russian scientists are preparing a more advanced manned space shot with an all-new capsule and space mission.

Writing in the current issue of the magazine Aviation and Cosmonautics, the cosmonaut said:

"We are again preparing for the next flight, studying the task and learning the design of the new space ship—an original and complicated creation of human thought . . . everything is new and that means interesting and enchanting."

Otherwise, he gave no elaboration of the new program.

The cosmonaut, whose name was not given, identified himself as the backup pilot for Pavel Belyayev for the March 18 flight of the Voskhod II from which another cosmonaut, Alexei Leonov took man's first steps in space.

Report France To Back Arabs Over Jordan

BEIRUT (AP)—Two Lebanese newspapers claimed today France has decided to support the Arab plan to divert the headwaters of the Jordan River away from Israel.

The newspapers Al Jarida and Al Anwar, said President de Gaulle decided to back the Arab stand in the controversial waters issue after talks with Lebanese President Charles Helou.

Al Jarida added that France had also begun steps to sell Mirage jet fighters to Lebanon and said results of Helou's visit to Paris "may well be the beginning of a new era in political developments in the Middle East."

France, Al Jarida claimed, would be prepared to defend Lebanon in case of aggression by Israel over the Jordan diversion scheme.

Delegates Report on Convention

A regular meeting of the Belleville and District Association for the Mentally Retarded was held on Tuesday evening.

The president, Mrs. J. Stovell welcomed some visitors from Picton who will be opening their own local of the Association in the latter part of May.

Mr. and Mrs. Stovell who were delegates at the 12th annual meeting and annual conference of the Ontario Association for the Mentally Retarded in Barrie, showed and explained slides they had taken while touring the Barrie Workshop, and the Orillia Hospital School. The slides were both interesting and informative.

Mr. E. Parkhurst presented the Association's first President, Dr. Charles Dondale with an award honoring him for his services to the Retarded Children's Association. He was also presented with a gift certificate for the body of his choice.

Mrs. Rose who is in charge of Residential Care, told the Association the history of the planning for a trip to the Smiths Falls Institution on May 15th was such that a chartered bus will be provided.

Mr. Ross reported that the Flower Drive Campaign was progressing well, and the flower seeds would be sent to citizens in the Belleville district during Mother's Day Week.

GROUP HOME DISCUSSED

Mr. Peter Gomery, Co-ordinator of Programs for the Ontario Association for The Mentally Retarded, was the guest speaker. He consisted of his theories on Community Residential Care, especially as designed as temporary relief for the parents. The duration period of this type of facility would be not longer than two years."

Mr. Gomery stressed however that each parent's situation should assess its own personal needs and decide which would be the better: a group home for children, which would allow them to stay in community life, or a sheltered workshop which would enable adults to train for jobs in the community.

Difficulties and expense would be encountered in each undertaking and it would be essential to ascertain which would be more beneficial to the Association before a decision could be made.

After adjournment, refreshments were served by the social committee.

Exports Climb During March

OTTAWA (CP)—Canadian exports resumed their upward trend in March, climbing to $706,400,000 for the month, up 17.8 per cent over March exports last year, the Dominion Bureau of Statistics reported today.

The increase in commodity exports during the month, however, brought the first-quarter total for 1965 to $1,850,500,000, just 3.7 per cent higher than exports in the first three months of 1964.

The expansionary trend of exports had slumped in the mid-winter months this year. Import figures for March will be made public later.

But still the empty chair,
Reminds me of you.

Sewer Rate Collection Fee To Be Reduced by PUC But Water Rates Going Up

City Council Gives Contracts For Supplies

City council yesterday awarded contracts for the supply of crushed stone, winter sand, traffic line paint and the installation of a new motor in one of the fire department pumpers.

Levy Auto Parts will install the new motor in a department pumper at a cost of $3450.

The contract for the supply of crushed stone was given to H. J. McFarland Construction Company for two inch stone at $1.55 a ton and W. A. Reid for ¾ inch rock at $1.41 per ton.

United Fuels (Canada) will supply white traffic paint at $2.36 per gallon, compared with $3.75 per gallon paid last year.

Winter sand will be supplied by McFarland at 65 cents per ton as compared with $1.05 per ton last year.

Thurlow Motors will provide a new station wagon at $2,638.

Collection of sewer rates by the Belleville Public Utilities is going to cost the city less in the future.

At yesterday's meeting of council, Mayor Jack Ellis said that under a new agreement approved by Ontario Hydro, the charge for collection of sewer rates would be 18.6 cents per customer per month.

This fee would not reduce the cost to the city by something like $8,000 per year.

The question of the cost of collecting sewer rates by the PUC had been discussed in committee on several occasions with several aldermen claiming the collection fee charged was excessive.

INCREASE WATER RATES

It will cost the city less for collection of sewer rates, but city water rates will be increased this summer according to previous announcement by the utilities commission.

Mayor Ellis said the rate increase was as anticipated about June 1st.

Construction of the new utilities office and warehouse on Sidney Street will be expected to commence for another eight weeks, but general increased operational costs will make the water rate increase necessary, it was stated.

Financial Picture Given By Accountants

The co-operative was organized in 1960 with the aim of raising $10,000,000 through the sale of shares and debentures to finance a chain of seven meatpacking and slaughtering plants across Ontario.

It has been all but inactive since it lost $1,500,000 down payment on a Burlington meatpacking plant it purchased last summer, after its failure to meet a $1,000,000 second payment deadline.

Mr. Justice Campbell Grant of the Ontario Supreme Court was named a one-man commission by Premier Robarts earlier this year to investigate the handling of the co-operative's finances.

J. C. Newland of Peat, Marwick, Mitchell and Company, Toronto chartered accountants, testified for nearly two hours on the financial dealings which his company is investigating for the commission.

BOARD OF FINANCE'S

Mr. Newland said the investigation showed the co-operative's total revenue since inception were $2,634,736. Of this on hand at March 31, 1965, was $1,454.

Mr. Newland said Charles W. Melnnis of Iroquois, founding president, resigned after the second payment could not be met on the F. W. Fearman Packing Plant at Burlington Dec. 1, 1964, received $30,705 between May, 1961, and December, 1964.

Cost of directors' allowances and expenses was $527,537.

D. F. Ritchie, vice-president and treasurer of the Fearman Company, testified for more than three hours and was to return to the stand today.

He reviewed negotiations between Fearman's and the co-operative, leading to the actual purchase Aug. 31, 1964, and subsequent events whereby the plant returned to the hands of its original owner, Ernest R. Gunner of England.

Crown Attorney Appeals For Higher Pay for Jurymen In Talk to Rotary Clubs

The need for greater compensation for jury service was advocated by Belleville Crown Attorney John Pringle in an address to a joint meeting of Belleville and Cobourg Rotarians in the Bird's Quinte last night.

"Jury service is "a sacrifice for many, but for those of you who cannot afford it there should be some more monetary reward," said Mr. Pringle.

The Crown attorney said after the meeting that $6 a day "is totally inadequate."

Mr. Pringle said also that persons who had suffered at the hands of criminals should receive compensation.

Criminal law was being administered in a reasonably satisfactory manner by men of integrity, said Mr. Pringle. He urged citizens to "stand by the men in uniform in the performance of their duty."

"It is because the law is enforced that we are able to meet here tonight in free association, to live in a society, go to work every morning and be reasonably certain we will not be robbed, not have our homes despoiled and our families arbitrarily arrested."

These were the serious notes in what was, substantially, 30 minutes of light-hearted reminiscing on experiences of a Crown attorney that set the seal on an evening of badinage and fellowship.

When Mr. Pringle said he was contemplating a two-hour discourse on common law from King Canute's time to the present day, his audience, already hanging on every word, sat transfixed.

NO GOAT IN SIGHT

Earlier Cobourg president Stan Evans, a Warwickshire man who saw wartime service as a navigator in RAF Sunderlands and some 30 other club members arrived in Belleville by chartered bus.

Rumor had it they were bringing with them the goat given to the Cobourg club at a vocated by Belleville Crown Attorney John Pringle in an address to a joint meeting of Belleville and Cobourg Rotarians in the Bird's Quinte last night.

Earlier Cobourg president Stan Evans, a Warwickshire man who saw wartime service as a navigator in RAF Sunderlands and some 30 other club members arrived in Belleville by chartered bus.

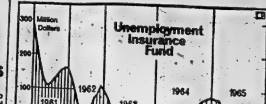
"Famous Olympian Returns Goat". read the banner headline. But there was no goat in sight, only bottles of refreshment and Rotarians in happy exchanges of conversation for the visitors, reinforced with the notion that something was afoot.

The "famous Olympian returns Goat" was a commotion at the meeting room door. It was Dr. Lawson, clad in a Roman toga (did we say he was a Greek, which is what the Cobourg paper said — well anyway) and bearing — not the goat but a scroll with greetings to Belleville.

Dr. Lawson's Latin would not have embarrassed members of the Roman Senate or citizens of Rome, or got him into unfriendly hands in either day, but the Rotarians seemed to get the message; and the Cobourg visitors and panting and puffing heavily after his arduous run from the west, was assisted in a chair.

Prizes for guessing the approximate time of arrival of Paladinus the Greek went to Art Young, Belleville, and Bob Wilson.

Belleville president Stan Reston welcomed the visitors and Cobourg president Stan Evans reciprocated with an invitation to Belleville Rotarians to visit Cobourg next year.



The remainder of the evening was spent in community singing and solo renditions were given by past - president Jack Deacon and Harold Williamson of Belleville and by Lloyd Slisson of Cobourg.

MAY STAY IN BLACK — The Unemployment Insurance Fund may stay out of the red this spring for the first time since 1962. At the end of March the fund held a balance of $34,593,000, compared to a deficit of $4,001,000 a year earlier. Graph traces the Fund's deficit and surplus situation since 1961. Lower unemployment this winter has reduced the seasonal drain. (CP Newsmap)

Board of Education Votes $1,000 for Purchase of Used Grades 11, 12 Books

TRENTON — The Trenton Board of Education, meeting last night, decided to make available immediately $1,000 to high school principal John Garrett for the purchase of used Grade 11 and 12 textbooks next year, the board supplied students in these grades with text books, and as this is now standard practice, the board is trying to find as economical a way as possible to do this. Books, which will be in use next year, will bring about one-half price if they are in good condition, and less than that if they are not, and are in need of repair. Mr. Garrett will have required book lists by the middle of this month so that he need ready cash to buy the used books. He may have more than the thousand dollars allotted, and the money will eventually be paid back to the board. New text books will be supplied after the used texts run out. The board receives government grants on the purchase of both new and old text books.

Last night, the board agreed to give the Trenton Recreation Committee the use of playgrounds at Trenton High School, College Street School and North Trenton School for summer playground use.

A new program of organized activity for those in the 15 to 18 year old group will be carried out by the committee on the east campus of the high school playing field. These students will have the use of the school's small gym which will also be used for Judo classes, as in the past. Making the request for the use of these facilities was Wm. Workman, recreation director.

A "fear" expressed by some members of the board that the board might find itself in some way responsible for water and sewer services to the proposed new Downs-Coulter area subdivision, (adjacent to Prince Charles School on Dufferin Ave.) seemed to be unfounded, when the board secretary, Miss Eva Baker read over the original agreement with the Downs-Coulter Company, with the board's deed to the Prince Charles school property will be checked.

When the school was built in 1960, the board expropriated land owned by the company. It is now proposed to build a 25-lot sub-division on land just north of the board's land. The board chairman, T. S. Ketcheson suggested legal aid be employed in order to check the board's obligation, if any, to assist with the cost of services to the proposed sub-division. Miss Baker told the board members the school property was adequately serviced, and some board members said they felt the board's responsibility in the matter ended there.

At last night's meeting, Douglas Whaley reported to the board and school association at Queen Elizabeth School wished to buy a bus service for the school. As this will become the property of the board, it was suggested that a liaison be set up with the association so that a type of recorder now used in other schools be purchased, as the board will be responsible for maintenance.

The bodied agreed again this year to supply a bus or busses for high school students who fail in one or two subjects to attend summer school in Kingston. The board receives a government grant on this.

V. P. Carswell, supervising principal of public schools, reported all vacancies on the public school staff had now been filled. Mr. Carswell said he had received VIP treatment at the teachers' college in Peterborough when he went over there last week to hire graduating students for the Trenton staff.

Mr. Carswell, principal John Garrett said all but one vacancy on the school staff had been filled.

The board is still seeking a principal for Prince Charles School to replace E. G. Amm, who has accepted a position on the high school staff at Geraldton.

FULL-TIME NURSE

E. M. Parker, Jr., said that next September, when the new P. C. Carswell Elementary School in east Trenton is opened, a school nurse who is now working in the schools part-time, should be hired on a full-time basis, said the board

Nuclear Power Could Pave Way For Weapons

QUEBEC (CP)—A three-day conference on nuclear power opened here Monday with a plea for more international control and closed with a strong indication that Quebec province soon will employ the field of nuclear power development.

Dr. Arne Sigvard Eklund, director general of the International Atomic Energy Agency told the opening session of the Canadian Nuclear Association conference here there is a serious need for nuclear controls, especially as more nations entering the nuclear power field.

He said in an interview that nations now turning to nuclear power to meet electric power demands may be tempted to turn to nuclear weapons.

"Fissile plutonium, which needs further refinement for nuclear weapons, can be extracted from spent fuel from natural uranium reactors," he explained.

This could prove a great temptation to nations now outside the nuclear weapons field, as the first step in production of atomic bombs is obtaining fissile plutonium. He said an "effective control" must be exercised in this field.

FISH TRADE RISES

Latest figures for international trade in fish show the world market in 1963 was worth at least $1,686,000,000, $89,000,000 more than 1962's record high.

Believe Fire Started From Electric Range

TRENTON — A 90-year-old Trenton man, Worden Farley of 407 Dundas Street West, was trying to put out a fire in his one-storey frame house when Trenton firemen arrived on the scene shortly before noon Monday. Mr. Farley had been outside and arrived back in his home to find the fire in progress. It is thought to have started from an electric range.

The house was gutted and the furnishings destroyed. Mr. Farley lives alone.

No official estimate of the damage has been made, but the building was insured.

ENJOY GOLF MATCH

Last Saturday, a "perfect day for golf," 38 members of the ladies' division at the Trenton Country Club were out to play nine holes in a two-ball foursome "get acquainted" tournament. It was just a day of fun for all, and everyone had one, even though the official top winners were Mrs. Kay McAuley and Nora Wells.

Following the afternoon of golf, the ladies were welcomed in the curling lounge by Mrs. Audrey Herrington, ladies' president. Each member was given a national handicap and guests' captains, Mrs. Huda Fairman explained how each member could determine her own handicap. After the informal get-together, dinner was served in the lounge.

Grade 12 will see a ladies' open tournament at the Trenton club on June 20 is Pin Day for members.

Board Will Permit Clergy To Address Student Bodies

TRENTON — Following an in-camera session of more than an hour last night, the members of the Trenton Board of Education agreed to permit members of the Trenton Ministerial Association to address the student bodies of the city's three times during the 1965-66 year.

Should Roman Catholic clergy make a similar request, they will be granted for them to address Roman Catholic students. As high school principal John Garrett told the board he could not manage six such assemblies during the year, the Roman Catholic students would be asked to gather in some other part of the school for their meeting with the clergy, while the ministerial meeting was taking place in the school auditorium.

If other groups, such as Mormon or Jehovah's Witnesses make similar requests, the board will be faced with a problem, but the members of the Trenton Ministerial Association at last night's board meeting felt these groups could be told the facilities would be denied the students had been given to the association as a "group."

Rev. Ronald Reid, the president of the Ministerial Association, told the board members that the members of the association felt young people of today were in dire need of help. He said the talks would be kept along a broad concept and there would be no "indoctrination" by any particular representative of any one church.

Addresses are to be on "morals, manners and character," and attendance at the assemblies will be on a voluntary list. Mr. Garrett said that since the students would be missing one class during the assembly, he could almost guarantee a 90 per cent turnout.

Besides Mr. Reid, Rev. Douglas Wilson and Rev. James Parker attended the board meeting, and waited while press representatives while the board met in camera.

Suggestion By Teachers Is Approved

TRENTON — Six Trenton high school teachers have come up with a suggestion that the members of the Trenton Board of Education, (for the most part), think is wonderful."

Their cost per pupil, including plane fare, would be around $5.00. At the camp, the history of religion, literature, and other related subjects would be taught.

Air Canada has agreed to supply return fares to 130 persons for $17,325, and a bus company must have a sponsoring body.

The teachers have asked the board to sponsor the venture.

The board, meeting last night, approved the plan "in principle," but will find out from a solicitor just how responsible the board would be in a financial sense and in other ways.

Naturalist Not Friendly To Wolves

PEMBROKE, (CP) — Professional hunters should be brought in to deal with the local wolf problem or else the bounty should be raised in Ontario and we are introduced by Quebec, Alma Wallis, taxidermist, wife of the photographer and naturalist said here Monday.

Mrs. Wallis, speaking to the Pembroke Sportsman's Club, said she recently counted 13 deer carcasses along the Ottawa River.

"People say it is a balance of nature, but if they had seen what I have they wouldn't be so friendly to the wolf," she said.

Plan for Peace Action Urged

WASHINGTON (AP) — Grave crises in Viet Nam and the Dominican Republic point up an urgent need for speedy and overwhelming congressional support of a "planning for peace" program, Wisconsin Democrat said today.

The proposal, sponsored by Proxmire and Senator Joseph Clark (Dem. Pa.).

"The present use of 40,000 American troops in Viet Nam and of our troops in the Dominican Republic are dramatic proof of the urgent need for peace machinery," Proxmire said in testimony for the Senate foreign relations committee.

"The world situation is grave and there is little prospect for improvement. Until we can develop the necessary machinery to settle international disputes peacefully, we are going to have to live with the threat of war hanging heavily over our heads."

Mysterious Theft

The theft of many tons of refined cobalt from Deloro reads like something out of the wildest "who-dun-its".

Besides the mystery of the theft itself, there is the sinister connotation which adheres to the word "cobalt" by reason of its having been chosen by the writers of science fiction as the ingredient of the "ultimate weapon", the cobalt bomb which would shower deadly radioactive particles with a long "half-life" over immense areas, rendering them uninhabitable. Cobalt is not itself radioactive but can easily be made so.

That, and the fact that the cobalt was government-owned, might almost suggest to some that we in Hastings are in the midst of some colossal international plot.

Cobalt, though, is not that scarce. It is true that in 1904, when rich silver and cobalt ores were discovered in Northern Ontario, the Cobalt region became the main centre of world production. But there are other large deposits. In 1940, when the Second Great War greatly increased the demand for cobalt, the United States used 10,497,719 pounds, with 7,843,228 pounds of this total coming from the Belgium Congo. The Encyclopedia Americana refers to this as "ore" while the substance stolen at Deloro was refined cobalt, so that any comparison between this 1940 U.S. consumption figure and the figure of 300,000 pounds for the cobalt stolen at Deloro may not be valid. In any case, cobalt is not so rare that it needs must be stolen to be acquired. But what would anybody want with an amount equal to five years' supply for the Canadian market?

Is James Bond listening?

Letter-Box Problem

Most of us recognize a private mail box when we see one. Even if it is homemade, instead of the conventional metal type, its purpose is obvious. It is intended as a receptacle for mail, for communications which somebody has thought important enough to pay the Post Office to deliver them. Too frequently it is used as a wastepaper receptacle for printed circulars, which the mail box owner does not want and the disposal of which causes him considerable bother.

Worse still, an important letter can become lost in the folds of this trash stuffed without the owner's leave into the receptacle he has provided for his letters.

Is there nothing that can be done to relieve homeowners of this nuisance? We would have little hope of any effective remedy were it not for the fact that the Crown is involved. The Crown has a way of finding shortcuts through the tangles of legal precedents when it really wants to do so. The letters in our homes remain the property of the Bell Telephone Co. Couldn't all private letter boxes be declared the property of the Post Office, with a stiff penalty for any other person who uses them?

If we can ever get a law like that, we can turn our attention to the next problem, devising some way of preventing people from paying the Post Office to deliver unwanted junk mail to our doors.

School's Initiative

Thousands of dollars are being spent on education—yet gaps still remain in certain spheres. For example, what to do on a rainy day during public school recess?

Rednerswille public school, in this area, has solved the problem in imaginative fashion. The youngsters there, with the assistance of the principal, Mrs. Bessie Teskey, and parents, have a gym horse built from a 40-gallon steel barrel and some old mattresses to ease the bumps as the youngsters perform slow rolls.

Some old truck tires have also been pressed into service as an aid to recess-time recreation.

The school at Rednerswille is to be commended for its initiative. On rainy days its students have no need to stand around gloomily during recess, their noses glued to the window-panes as it were. Exercise and fun are the order of the day there—rain or shine.

Religious writers are often laughed at for representing human existence as a "vale of tears," but this conception is in fact met both more commonly and in a more extreme form in the secular sages. The acknowledgement of the unpalatable truth about human nature is for religious writers merely a preliminary exercise, though an absolutely essential one. This explains the apparently cynical outlook that has often puzzled outside observers in men of deep piety, and even in the saints themselves.—Martin Cooper in a B.B.C. talk on Schopenhauer.

Tory Leadership Problem Not Lack of Potential Candidates

By RICHARD JACKSON
From The Intelligencer's Ottawa Bureau

OTTAWA — Whatever, precisely, the Conservative Federal leadership problem may be — and there are a number of different, even violently contradictory versions — it is not one of any shortage, certainly, of candidates for the succession.

There are, at this particular sighting, 11 men variously able and qualified, some of them willing, even anxious to try on John Diefenbaker's shoes.

(The fitting just might be arranged at the party's annual meeting postponed from last winter and being re-scheduled this April — when, unless an election campaign intervenes, the leadership issue again will occupy the headlines and plans perhaps made for a convention.)

Seven of the 11 are veterans of the Diefenbaker Cabinet, three of them still MPs and one a Senator with the other three waiting impatiently for a comeback from the Federal sidelines.

Another of the 11, a former provincial attorney general, is now an MP.

And the remaining three are provincial premiers.

The names?

Well, you have heard most of them over and over lately.

But there are among them what might be considered a couple of surprises.

Three have said they're not interested. Not right now, anyway. But they could change their minds. It happens in these leadership stakes — change their minds.

Two are quite frankly in the race even now and running hard.

THE RIVALS

The other six have said little or nothing, publicly, at least.

The three not interested — not, that is, at this particular time and in these peculiar circumstances — are provincial premiers Robert Stanfield of Nova Scotia, Ontario's John Roberts and Duff Roblin of Manitoba.

The two already off and running are, of course, former Conservative Cabinet Ministers George Hees and Davie Fulton, both busy for weeks making statements on national affairs and sounding off from any convenient platform.

Hees has the personality, color, flair, dash, and, as he so successfully proved in his ministry of Trade and Commerce and Agriculture, a reasonably successful management both of the Transport and Trade and Commerce jobs at times done and done well.

Fulton has the long-rooted political background and the instinct it gives him for government, more than adequate intellectual qualifications and a talent for pleasing people.

Of the remaining two, perhaps might be a little obvious — former Labor Minister Michael Starr and ex-Agriculture Minister Alvin Hamilton.

Ol' Alvin, as some of his Saskatchewan friends call him, is still something of a Prairie pin-up politician. Those wheat sales he made — and he was the Cabinet super-salesmen to work the Sino-Soviet market — have helped enormously.

Mike Starr, Sudbury-born of Ukrainian parents, is being touted by party strategists in the groups as the ideal spokesman for all the racial minorities — the Poles, Italians, Ukrainians, Germans, Italians and the rest — forming what is becoming known as the Third Force between English and French Canada.

Neither Starr nor Hamilton has been campaigning openly like Hees and Fulton, preferring instead to let their partisans speak for them.

Come next remaining four, more or less surprises.

Make even a quick trip to wealthy Alberta and, before you can't help hearing that former Health Minister Jay Waldo Monteith, Edmonton West MP for Perth, not only would make a good leader, but whether he wants them or not, has a more or less very active and extremely vocal "Monty's The Man" boosters, especially among the younger Conservatives.

Then watch the newspaper "pieces-about" and see how just how many centres, large and small, Senator Wishart McQuarrie, Queen's Federal Trade Minister, is speaking.

Making speeches in much the same vein as Hees and Fulton, carefully calculated to catch the ear and eye of the country's really potential convention delegates who might be wondering who's available for leadership nomination.

Now don't overlook Gordon Fairweather, MP for Bruce-Huron's Royal, former provincial Attorney General and regarded on both sides of the House as one of the most gifted thinkers in the Conservative caucus. Able, affable, quietly clever, he has said nothing about the talk of others touting him as a leadership candidate, except to shrug that "leaders are tough and I'm not." But you can't be a provincial AG and be exactly soft.

There was gossip that just maybe he might learn the Commons, return to New Brunswick and take over the Conservative leadership there while provincial Tory Leader Cyril B. Sherwood takes a Federal shot at Fairweather's Royal.

Not so, says Gordon Fairweather of such chatter, a statement into which could be read a disposition, perhaps, to stick around and see just how the leadership ball bounces.

Finally, there is Richard Bell, former Diefenbaker Immigration Minister and in the organizational end of the Tory party as National Director and other key "Back Room" appointed posts for more than 30 years.

Eleven men. Talent to burn.

Strictly Personal

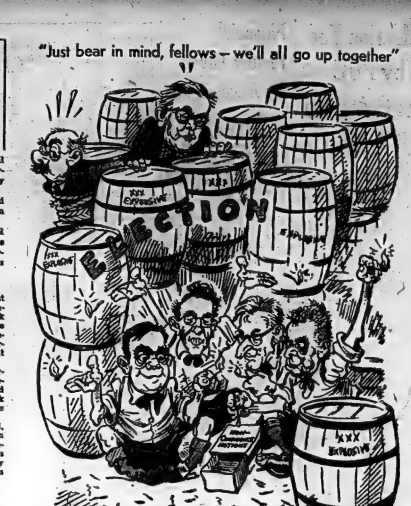
Name Calling, It's Not Such A Gentle Art

By SYDNEY J. HARRIS

Now that I've got Polonius' "to thine own self be true" out of the way — not that my recent critique of it will have the slightest permanent impact — it is time to tackle that other Shakespearean cliche, "What's in a name?"

Nearly everything, on some levels. We respond to names much more violently than we do to the things or ideas they represent. A rose by any other name might smell as sweet, but it wouldn't be the subject of hundreds of poems and songs if it were called a "cheesecake."

Governments have always been aware of the power of names. When the British introduced compulsory national service in 1939, the government coined the term "militia act," to avoid the ugly word, "conscript." And during the war, Winston Churchill rechristened the Local Defense Volunteers as the "Home Guard" with a fine sense of verbal drama.



It is no accident that in the shifting progressive spectrum we always "bloated," or that in the reactionary press, radicals are always "wild-eyed." A fair, realistic capitalist, and a clear-eyed radical are incompatible phrases in the lexicon of propaganda. And to both extremes, of course, the middle-of-the-roader is a contemptible "fence-straddler."

What's in a name? Names are what cause slides and stones to be thrown — and sometimes bombs. A child called "stupid" often enough becomes more stupid; one called "delinquent" often enough becomes more delinquent. When governments call the Iron Curtain comes over to our side, be "defects to the West"; when one of our men lies to them, he is a "turncoat," or, a "traitor."

When the U.S. government announces a "Medicare" program the American Medical Association — belatedly as usual — retorts with its own "Eldercare" program, in fisticuffs that "toe, "cares." Whether or not it does the AMA was forced to choose a name that would resonate with good will.

When the Communist Party in America was in one of its "popular front" periods, it formed a group called "League Against War and Fascism," which certainly was a more effective name than "League to Justify Everything Bad That Russia Does," which would have been a more accurate one.

Likewise, the reactionaries of that era formed a group called the "Liberty League," supported by millionaires who wanted more liberty to make unlimited profits without any social responsibility whatever. Everybody is for "liberty"; nobody is, openly at least, for "greed." Names are usually what we think by, feel by, act by, and vote by. As many have mentioned before, can anyone imagine the German people chanting in unison: "Heil, Schickelgruber!"

Average Age Is Declining

Financial Post

Here are a number of centennial facts for those who aspire to govern the country and for those who fully expect to be wisely and suitably governed as Canada's second century begins.

This, by 1967, will be Canada:

1. The average Canadian at the time of our centennial will be barely more than 24 years old. This is an age drop of almost three years in a decade, and, giving the fact that life expectancy has been rising sharply throughout all of this century, it loudly proclaims that Canada is a land of young families and families well fitted for life in an age of technological change, if for no other reason than that they were very recently educated.

2. When this country is 100 years old, probably one out of every four of its residents will be in school as against one out of every five when Canada was only 75. In addition, the young adults of 1967 will have a bumper baby crop of the late 1940's, will be breeding a whole new wave of infants which will wash over our school system in the early 1970s.

3. Close to 75 percent of all Canadians will vary probably be living in cities by 1967. This is a fact which will drastically change the complete reversal from opening years of the century when over 70 percent lived in rural areas. Even through the 1930s, 1940s and 1950s, little more than half the population were urban dwellers.

Since there is abundant evidence that urban Canadians are also considerably better off than ever before — average family incomes have doubled since 1949 — very obviously the wants and preoccupations of our people in 1967 will be drastically changed from those of only a generation ago.

This will be a nation increasingly oriented toward the quality of its schools. We will be an urban people more and more dissatisfied with having to live

Good Hygiene Seen Very Important to Comfort

By JOSEPH G. MOLNER, M.D.

Dear Dr. Molner: I am 63 and all winter long had a terrible itching of the membrane around the rectum. It even prevents sleep. I suppose others have this awful trouble. What do you suggest? — L. S.

Yes, they do, but a great many people find relief by following two rules: Keep the area clean; keep it dry. (Too many don't realize the importance of that second point.)

The itching, after all, is a form of skin irritation. Scrupulous cleanliness keeps the skin free of irritants. But a continually moist skin is more vulnerable to irritation, too. So careful drying, followed by placing a small pledget or wad of absorbent cotton at the opening often does wonders.

Dear Doctor: I'm tired from lack of sleep due to dryness of the skin. No sooner do I lie down than my whole body starts to itch. Even the skin on my hands is rough. — O. F. P.

The answer to this may sound like a contradiction after the preceding emphasis on keeping membranes dry, but remember that there is a difference between surface moisture (or dryness) and the content of the tissues themselves.

It is true that the skin may become unduly dry, especially in winter, if one stays indoors much of the time, and there are no facilities for keeping the atmosphere at adequate humidity. That can be a factor.

But more important, (and this applies more to older people than to young people) the skin seems to become "dry" because of loss of skin oils. These oils are given off by tiny glands. In youth these glands may be too active, contributing to acne. Later, they calm down. And still later they may become underactive.

Therefore, if you are of middle age or older, ask yourself whether you are washing away too much of this skin oil. Excessive baths can, in fact, harm the skin. Or, in addition, the skin may be sensitive to whatever soap you use. Switching to a blander type may make quite a difference. Avoid the overperfumed varieties, since so far as your skin is concerned, the perfuming adds various unknown factors to whatever may be irritating to the skin, as it becomes promotes itching.

Finally, consider one of the various bath oils available at the drug store. They can be of substantial help.

Dear Dr. Molner: My mother's feet are always cracks on the soles. She is now getting cracks in her heels and I am afraid she will have them all over her feet. Even bathing them daily does not help. Have you any suggestions? — L. L.

Use of bath oils nightly may help soften the skin, but the cracks you mention are obviously avenues for infection to enter. When the problem becomes as severe as your description, minutes of medical guidance are worth more than months of fiddling with home remedies.

Dear Dr. Molner: Whether it is my body, arms, legs or any other part, after I bump myself I am left with big black, blue and dark green spots. They stay for several weeks. Am I lacking something? — Mrs. A.K.

Calcium, maybe. This is one of the reasons why I keep emphasizing the value of milk (skim or regular) or cottage cheese, spinach, greens, etc. for adults.

In other cases these easily-acquired but hard-to-lose bruises mean that the capillaries, or very tiny blood vessels near the surface, are unusually fragile. And in a few cases some fault in the blood, a shortage of the constituents which encourage quick clotting, can be involved. For this, careful blood tests may be required. A bruise means bleeding beneath the skin.

It was a profitable Easter holiday for George Lacroix, Jr., of Hungerford township when he downed a large timber wolf and collected $25 bounty for his marksmanship.

Accompanied by his father, George saw the wolf on the family farm carrying a .22 calibre rifle. When near a swamp they sighted the animal. George shot and wounded the animal, and as the wolf growled fiercely and headed for them he quickly reloaded and shot it in the head.

After pictures were taken, the animal was skinned and the pelt delivered to the county treasurer who stated it was the largest wolf pelt he had ever seen.

Israel became the 58th member of the United Nations 16 years ago today—in 1949—three months after the first anniversary of the state's proclamation. In late 1947 the United General Assembly had voted to end the Palestine mandate and divide the territory into a Jewish and an Arab state. For six months after that British withdrew there was chaos, with guerrilla warfare and terrorism throughout the country. Armistices with Israel's Arab neighbors were reached early in 1949, but no formal progress beyond that stage has yet been made.

1898—Canada's first high commissioner to England, Sir Alexander Tilloch Galt, was appointed.

Serious Traffic Problem At Church Corner Discussed

Belleville may have its downtown traffic problems during the late afternoon rush hour, but it is nothing to be compared with the Sunday morning congestion at the corner of Church Street and Victoria Avenue as city residents go to church.

In fact the Church Street congestion at 10:00 and 11:00 o'clock on Sunday mornings is so great that a request is in for police to lend a hand before a serious accident occurs.

In making the request Alderman Kenneth Soden told council yesterday that on Sunday a serious accident was only narrowly averted at the corner.

Mayor Jack Ellis promised he would take the matter up with the police commission.

At the same time there was a suggestion by Alderman Enos David that one of the boulevards at the corner of Bridge and Church Streets be removed to relieve traffic congestion at that corner.

The alderman suggested that with the sidewalk and boulevard torn up, to allow for Bell Telephone installation, now would be a good time to consider complete removal of the boulevard to allow for street widening at this point.

Gen. Graham Bids Farewell To Army as Hasty Pees 'Troop the Color' First Time

For the first time in its long and honorable history the Hastings and Prince Edward Regiment will "troop the color" at the Fair Grounds here on Sunday, May 30th.

The colorful ceremony will be a "first and last" for Lieut.-General Howard D. Graham, CBE, DSO, ED, CD, former wartime commanding officer of the First "Plowboys" Battalion.

Lieut.-General Graham's "first" will be that of reviewing officer at the "Trooping the Color."

It will be his "last" official act as a member of the Canadian Army. It will mark his permanent retirement from the active force.

Lieut. General Graham, former chief of the general staff, retired from active duty some years ago. He was placed on the semi-retired list, and accepted the position of president of the Toronto Stock Exchange.

"Trooping the Color" is an old British Army ritual instituted, it is claimed, by the Duke of Marlborough "to test the sobriety of his troops."

Lieut. Colonel Angus Duffy, former commanding officer, says it is the first time in the history of the Hastings and Prince Edward Regiment that the ritual has been observed.

It will mark the regiment's farewell to General Graham as a retiring general of the Canadian Army.

During the ceremony the regiment is drawn up in four guards units in files of two rank. It is marched on the field with colors flying without officer personell symbolizing the regiment can fight without its officers.

TAKE OPPOSITION

Officers and senior non - commissioned officers then take up ceremonial positions. The general salute to the reviewing officers is given.

Number One guard falls in and escorts the color past the other three guard units.

It takes its place at the head of the guards and in slow and quick time, the regiment marches past the reviewing stand where General Graham will take the salute.

Following the "trooping" the regiment will exercise its freedom of the city and march through city streets to the armories with flags flying, drums beating and bayonets fixed.

It is expected the crack band of the Royal Canadian Corps of Signals, Kingston will be in attendance.

In case of rain, other arrangements will be made.

Lieut. Col. R. D. H. Willcocks commanding officer will lead his regiment at the trooping.

Afterwards other ranks of the regiment and their families will be entertained at the armories. Receptions for invited guests will be held in the officers' and sergeant's messes.

Supersonic Concorde Transport Only One Major New Project Still in Works in Britain

LONDON (CP)—British has emerged from a truly agonizing reappraisal of its aircraft industry with only one major new project still in the works—the Anglo-French Supersonic Concorde Transport.

And Tory critics maintain that only France's President de Gaulle prevented Prime Minister Wilson's Labor government from chopping the Concorde—which it termed a "prestige project"—along with other new aircraft.

The Concorde, of course, is anything but an open-and-shut enterprise, whether viewed by politicians or experts. Some say it is a pity that Britain, with its aviation pioneering record going back more than 30 years, has no project of its own.

Others see the Anglo-French partnership as the only possible way that the industries of both countries can survive in competition with the United States.

Some look ahead to the day when Concorde will blast across the frontier of science, cruising at Mach 2.2—more than 1,500 miles an hour, twice the speed of a rifle shot, beating the U.S. and Soviet-United for once in a vital field.

Others say Concorde will be nothing but a continuing nuisance, laying a carpet of intolerable sonic boom across the continents. Anway, they ask, who wants to cross the ocean in 3½ hours? Why should Britain and France be sharing an estimated cost of $900,000,000—perhaps much more—for such a frightening machine?

The critics also ask what would happen if President Johnson ordered a crash program for a U.S. rival to the Concorde and managed to snatch orders away from Britain and France.

Despite the storms among politicians and experts, British Aircraft Corporation and Sud Aviation of France are going ahead calmly with prodiction of two Concorde prototypes on each side of the channel in what has been described as the smoothest Anglo-French co-operation yet seen.

The Concorde was the first project to come under review after Wilson came to power in October to find Britain in crucial balance-of-payments difficulties.

Insiders say Wilson was dissuaded from axing the Concorde only because there was no escape clause in the contract drawn up by the former Tory government with France. The French might have taken Britain to the international court at the Hague.

Wilson, in this view, turned instead on the TSR-2, a tactical reconnaissance nuclear bomber described as the most advanced in the world, and two other military planes—a supersonic jump-jet and a short takeoff transport.

The prime minister knew these could be chopped only in the certainty of a mighty row at home but without losing friends in Europe, where he was anxious to foster a happier relationship.

The emotion-packed controversy over the TSR-2 cancellation and aviation in general has become so involved in the dialogue of politics, defence and prestige that the man on the street finds it difficult if not impossible to judge the issues. He only knows that vast sums of lovely money have gone down the drain.

He is told in the reputable Daily Telegraph that the taxpayers have lavished $3,000,000 a day on the British aircraft industry—$2,000 a minute—for the last 20 years. One-quarter of defence - allocated money goes to the aerospace industry.

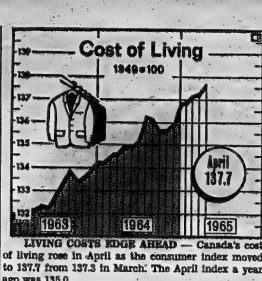
He is assured by Conservative opposition leaders in Parliament that the United States is striving to wreck the British industry, second biggest in the Western world, regardless of the Atlantic partnership.

Defence Secretary Denis Healey, in addition to streaming plans for new joint projects with France, apparently calculated he could make his point best by the toss of coat figures.

TSR-2 and the other two cancelled planes, he said, would have cost Britain more than $3,000,000,000 between 1960 and 1972. The TSR-2 alone would mean a levy of $150 on every family in Britain.

Some 30,000 persons out of a total labor force of 200,000 in the aircraft industry would lose jobs but there were more than 15,000 in a flight of vacancies throughout the country where they could be more profitably employed, said Healey. The industry was "puffed up" and needed slimming, being less productive than France or the U.S.

Independent observers calculate the TSR-2 cancellation-only one plane has been airborne—will cost $600,000,000, the biggest such write-off in history.



Canada suffered a similar setback in the death of the Arrow Interceptor under the former Conservative government, but the loss not nearly so high.

The new British loss must be added to a previous total of $850,000,000 in missile and aircraft write-offs since the Second World War, compared with an annual defence expenditure of $6,000,000,000.

Christopher Soames, Tory shadow defence minister and son-in-law of the late Sir Winston Churchill, said that by taking an option on the U.S. F-111A as a replacement for the TSR-2:

"You are buying hardware on the never-never and saddling the next government with the dollar bill."

Healey retorted that the government now is reviewing the whole defence picture—an exercise expected to be completed by summer—and then would decide whether the U.S. aircraft would be bought or whether the services could get along with existing British machines.

LIVING COSTS EDGE AHEAD — Canada's cost of living rose in April as the consumer index moved to 137.7 from 137.3 in March. The April index a year ago was 135.0.

The increase, based in most categories on prices in early April, resulted mainly from price increases for clothing and health and personal care items.

The index is based on 1949 prices equalling 100. (CP Newsmap)

Bankers Want Some Changes In New Act

TORONTO (CP) — The president of the Canadian Bankers Association said Monday Canadian bankers will try to have changes made in the proposed revision of the Bank Act before the federal government passes the bill.

S. T. Paton, who is also general manager of the Toronto-Dominion Bank, said in an interview the question of a lower reserve ratio will be raised when bankers make representations in Ottawa during discussion of the Bank Act revision.

Mr. Paton was referring to Canadian banks that would like to have one cash ratio for demand deposits and another, lower ratio for their longer-term obligations as recommended by the Porter royal commission on banking and finance.

The commission had proposed an eight-per-cent ratio for time deposits of from seven days to one year. The report favored no deposits of from seven days to one year. The report favored no specific reserve requirements for liabilities with a longer term.

Cash reserve ratio is the proportion of banks assets that must be kept in the form of cash or deposits with the Bank of Canada, a system that facilitates monetary control by the central bank.

The commission's proposal was rejected last week by Finance Minister Walter Gordon in his proposed Bank Act on the ground that there is not sufficient difference in the effective way in bringing this matter to a head and no action has been taken against them."

The Opposition leader retorted that it was "not in keeping with our country" to permit the two to go free without prosecution.

Mr. Douglas wanted to know what happened to the money.

Repeatedly, Mr. Pearson said he would give a reply later after he has made inquiries which he hopes will help Mr. Diefenbaker make "a more considered conclusion."

County Council Backs Motion For Central Jail

PICTON (STAFF) — County Council in their monthly meeting Monday passed a motion to concur with a report received from a four-county committee recommending a regional jail be constructed in the Napanee district. Municipalities in use the proposed jail would be Frontenac, Hastings, Prince Edward and Lennox, Addington. Representing Prince Edward were Warden Barney Hepburn, Reeve Robert Bogart, and County Clerk Thomas Welker, who is chairman of the four - county regional jail committee. Carl Bateman of Belleville is secretary. According to the models, costs of construction and maintenance will be based on the use of the jails by the municipalities concerned in each province year.

The need for new jails has been apparent in most of the counties for some time. They have been overcrowded and according to officials did not offer sufficient facilities for efficient administration. The jail when completed will accommodate about 150 men and women prisoners and employ about 40 people. A by-law was passed authorizing the Warden and the Clerk to sign a contract with the McFarland Construction Co. for the complete renovation of the County road No. 2 and 15 from the village of Northport around Green Point.

The legal action launched against the county by Reginald Moore, who claims that sewage from the septic tank at the Prince Edward County Home is polluting his water supply, was not passed and held over for further discussion by council.

A committee met with council with regard to the amalgamation of Hillier Township and Wellington Township school areas. The recommendation was turned back by council pending further investigation of the matter.

May Set up Tourist Booth In Town Jail

TWEED — The village council met Monday evening until midnight with a variety of subjects and numerous persons and delegations to be dealt with.

Representatives of Tweed Branch of the Royal Canadian Legion attended the meeting and renewed their lease with the village for another five years covering the period from August 1st, 1965 to August, 1970. The period will coincide at the same time as the 20 year debenture arising from the construction of the municipal building in 1950.

A course for emergency planning will be held in Bellleville. Council members feel that this project was much too large for the average community to undertake without assistance from either local or government, but did plan to have representatives at the meeting.

The old School property was read. Mr. Burns is retiring from the teaching profession and Mr. W. Buckley and Miss R. Brownlee have resigned and will be leaving Tweed to continue teaching in other schools.

The council was informed that Constable Maxwell Strong who was appointed to the police force on April 7th had quit the force. Herbert Wood of Cannifton was hired as constable with his duties beginning in May.

A delegation from Tweed Chamber of Commerce requested the use of the village jail on Victoria Street for a Tourist Information Booth. Council expressed interest and promised to let the Chamber know its decision on Friday. The garbage lean faced by council was the necessity of obtaining a suitable place to store equipment now kept in the jail building.

The water tower will be painted this summer and the concrete base repaired and reinforced.

Reeve Guy Hughes told the meeting he had obtained an estimate on the cost of having a member of the streets patrol during the coming summer. This matter will be taken up at a special meeting of council at a time when a member of the Department of Highways is present.

Wage problems with the town foreman Wm. Woods were discussed and a new wage schedule and hours of work was drawn up and approved.

Local Groups Hold Joint Dinner Meet

TWEED — The members of Tweed Kinsmen Club and Tweed Chamber of Commerce held a joint dinner meeting at Hotel Tweedmuir on Thursday evening.

The guest speaker, Denis Stefanick, is the Ontario representative of the Canadian Chamber of Commerce who works with local chambers and boards of trade in planning their annual program and in selecting community projects. He is a native of Montreal and has had wide experience as a staff member of the Canadian Junior Chamber of Commerce before joining the senior organization in September 1964.

At the monthly meeting of the Chamber of Commerce directors, held at noon Monday, plans were completed for a fishing derby to be sponsored by the Chamber of Commerce, established at Foxleigh, Hervieux, Ardon, Tweed, Cloyne, Weighing in points have been Denbigh and Plevna.

A committee was also appointed at Monday's meeting to approach the members of Tweed council regarding by-laws pertaining to trades and peddlers and the licensing of the same. This committee was also instructed to discuss the possible annexation of certain streets in Tweed that are now contained in Hungerford township.

Canadian Television Crew Braves Viet Cong Attacks On Strategic Mountain Top

TORONTO (CP)—For nearly 4,000 years the people of Indochina made pilgrimages to a pagoda at the summit of the Black Virgin, a holy mountain that rises 3,232 feet from an arid plain in South Viet Nam.

Today the mountain, 100 miles northwest of Saigon, is the most isolated outpost in the Vietnamese war.

"In so many ways this mountain, and the people who live on it and die on it, represent the whole tragedy of the war in Viet Nam," says William Cunningham, a member of a four-man CBC television crew that visited the mountain camp last month.

The story of this strange and sometimes lonely aspect of the war will be depicted in "The Mountain," a documentary to be televised Tuesday night on the CBC program Newsmagazine.

It appears peaceful enough, but death is always close on the Black Virgin, called Nui Ba Den in Vietnamese.

South Vietnamese and American sentries at the summit scan the countryside below for movements of Viet Cong guerrillas.

At the bottom hundreds, sometimes thousands, of Viet Cong surrounding the mountain wait in caves and jungle growth for the cover of darkness so they can launch raids over the countryside.

About 100 South Vietnamese and six American soldiers, two Vietnamese women cooks, a 14-year-old girl nurse, a pet turkey and baboon are at the top.

The Vietnamese are not numerically strong enough to clear the steep slopes of guerrillas and the Viet Cong can't take the mountain top without heavy casualties.

The CBC crew was flown to the rat-infested area by helicopter from Saigon and spent two weeks there.

The South Vietnamese and a unit of the U.S. Special Forces took over the mountain position last June to provide a radio communications relay system for a vast stretch of country along the Cambodian border.

They landed by helicopter on the roof of the pagoda and set up a fortress as acre in size—using giant rocks from the summit, sandbags and minefields.

Although the Viet Cong have not attacked the camp in force, they harass the defenders. While the CBC men were there guerrillas set grenade booby traps on trails leading to the summit and an air strike was made on the lower slopes by South Vietnamese planes.

"Almost every night mortar bombs are showered around the camp perimeter to discourage Viet Cong attacks," says Tom Gould, CBC Far East correspondent and a member of the film crew.

EVERYONE ARMED

Food for the force is taken in by plane. Water is carried hundreds of feet up the slopes by local bearers who must be wary of guerrillas.

"All of us were required to wear sidearms. We protested that we didn't want to kill anybody, but the soldiers advised us to put on the guns anyway and try to explain our position to the Viet Cong if they attacked."

He said that between "20 and 30 soldiers, Vietnamese and Americans, have been killed on the mountain."

Cunningham said he found a mounting spirit of confidence since he visited South Viet Nam in 1964.

"Everything was doom and gloom last year. The Vietnamese felt they were fighting a losing battle with the tide of history. Confidence began to return when the United States started its air attacks and there was a feeling the Americans would not pull out."

Deseronto

DESERONTO — Mrs. Nellie Marsela of Deseronto and her daughter, Mrs. Verna White of Napanee accompanied by Mr. and Mrs. Garnet Marsela of Syracuse left last weekend from Montreal by plane for a ten-day visit to Holland and England. The travellers intend to visit the grave of Mrs. Marsela's son John Marsela who died during the war and was buried in Holland.

Afterwards they will travel to England to visit with Mr. Art Jackson of Manor Park, London. Mr. Jackson is a former resident of Deseronto.

HOLD SHOWER

Miss Dennis Whitton was the recipient of many lovely gifts Wednesday evening when a miscellaneous bridal shower was held in her honor by the Ladies' Aid of the Presbyterian Church of the Redeemer at the home of Mrs. M. Stevenson.

The living room was beautifully decorated with pink and white streamers and an umbrella fashioned of white tulle and pink paper bed roselets filled balloons.

During the evening several contests were enjoyed by the guests, the winners being Mrs. H. Lowery, Mrs. J. Young and Mrs. D. McCullough.

A tasty lunch served by the hostess assisted by Mrs. G. Brown and Mrs. D. Smith of Napanee, brought the party to a close.

BOWLING BANQUET

The Wednesday Afternoon League of lady bowlers held a banquet Wednesday evening as a final get-together for this bowling season. Nearly 40 guests attended the smorgasbord dinner at Chapman's Restaurant.

Mrs. W. Joyce the president of the league welcomed the guests and brought in the slate of officers for the season 1965-66 as follows: president — Mrs. G. Robinson; vice-president — Mrs. H. Tranaye; secretary — Mrs. L. Wilson; treasurer — Mrs. G. Burley.

The situation cooled with the arrival of more senior and stable heads—Navy - Admiral Robert Lambert Raymond of British and American General Wingfield Scott.

Mead quotes the admiral as having rebuked those involved thusly: "Tut tut. No, no. The damned fools."

REVIEWS TIFF

Meads told the House of Representatives in a full review of the historic tiff that peacemaking arrangements resulted in armed detachments facing each other at the western end of the long international boundary for 18 years, including the years of the Civil War. Then the Treaty at Washington of 1871 referred the matter to German Emperor Wilhelm I for arbitration and he ruled for the U.S.

As envisaged after study, the Pig War park would recreate the English and American camps, preparing for a tourist traffic of more than 100'000 annually after a few years.

Meads told the House:

"In the 128 years since the death of that pig, vastly more serious problems have been raised between this nation and Canada.

"The Pig War National historical Park will stand in the westernmost end of the longest unguarded border in the world as a permanent reminder of international restraint and cooperation and of both countries' national maturity."

Congress Wants Park On Pacific Boundary

By ARCH McKENZIE

WASHINGTON (CP) — Congress has been asked to establish a national park commemorating the Canada - United States Pig War of 1859 on the Pacific boundary.

The only shot fired in anger killed a Hudson's Bay Company pig.

Twenty years, but the incident touched off 13 years of armed hostility centring on just where the border lay.

Lloyd Meeds, Democratic member of the House of Representatives from the state of Washington, moved the bill to establish the Pig War National Historical Park on San Juan Island, located northeast of the Strait of Juan de Fuca separating the U.S. from the British Columbia coast.

Meeds recalled that American farmer Lyman A. Cutler, on June 15, 1859, stepped from his house and was enraged to see a pig belonging to the Hudson's Bay Company back in his potato patch.

THREATENED TRIAL

When he shot it, the company threatened to take him to Victoria for an English trial—B.C. being a province of the company. A treaty of 1846 had designated the international boundary to lie in mid-channel of the Strait of Juan de Fuca—but there were, in fact, at least two channels.

The pig's death set off longsmouldering resentment. Meeds recalled. The Americans called for military help. Capt. George Pickette, later a leader in the Civil War, arrived July 26 and immediately stamped the island "U.S. Territory." A British warships unloaded 61 marines.

The situation cooled with the arrival of more senior and stable heads—Navy - Admiral Robert Lambert Raymond of British and American General Wingfield Scott.

Interesting Speaker Addresses U.C.W. at Dessert Luncheon

Miss Dianne Howe, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Jack Howe, 506 Dundas Street West graduated in nursing at a ceremony held in St. Michael's Hospital, May 10. Miss Howe's parents attended the ceremonies in Toronto yesterday afternoon.

The UCW of Bridge Street United Church held a dessert luncheon recently with Miss Hisako Sada as guest speaker.

The guests were welcomed by the president, Mrs. Bryson Leslie, who introduced the head table guests, including the Reverend H. M. Davis, minister, who asked the blessing.

The tea room was predominantly decorated with antique comports (on the dessert tables and head table) decorated with snapdragons, gladioli and daisies.

The individual tea tables had small nosegays of spring flowers arranged in dainty tea cups.

GUEST SPEAKER

Dr. Elizabeth Scott introduced Miss Sada to the group.

Miss Sada was born in Vancouver and educated there. She came to Toronto 15 years ago and works with the Berkley Studios, for the Board of Information of the United Church under the Rev. Adeon Moreshouse. She is the proprietress of most of the film strips of the work of the United Church abroad, which won a special ribbon in New York last week for one of her film strips.

Miss Sada prefaced her talk with a few words about her association with Mr. Munroe Scott, brother of Dr. Donald Scott of Belleville. Mr. Scott is a script writer for the CBC and has done many scripts for the United Church.

Miss Sada spoke of and showed color transparencies of the work of the church in Brazil — wishing "to share her experiences and help those present understand the peoples of Brazil and the problems at work of the missionaries to these people.

Brazil is a mountainous country lying in the tropics larger than Canada or the United States. Long a Portuguese colony, this influence is still present in the language, the faith predominantly Roman Catholic and many traditions. The countryside is dotted with many lovely churches of Colonial architecture. Pace in the towns is pack horse slow but the cities hustle with crowds and traffic. It is a land of contrasts. Miss Sada went on to say there is a middle class in Brazil. The people are wealthy or they live in poverty. They live in palatial homes or shacks. They are well educated or illiterate.

SERVES 1200 CHILDREN

The United Church works with the Methodist Church in Brazil and in Rio de Janeiro a large Methodist school serves 1,200 children who attend in shifts from 9 a.m.-12 noon, 12-4 p.m. and 5-9 p.m.

These are multi-racial children of Orient, Negro, Portuguese and white backgrounds — but all Brazilian.

Brasilia, a capital of fantastic architecture has a large hospital and modern university.

The missionaries serve these people in all areas in the capacity of teachers, nurses, doctors.

The men are taught to cultivate other crops in case of a coffee failure. Travelling by jeep they treat the ill, deliver babies and strive to fulfill the aim that all Brazilian children will have an equal opportunity for education and good health.

Miss Sada's pictures aided tremendously in bringing the true story of Brazil to the luncheon guests. Her remarkable talent as a photographer was obvious to all.

Mrs. Ray Jeffrey thanked Miss Sada and hailed that the study groups on Brazil would have much more meaning since her talk. She also expressed the gratitude of all for the work Miss Sada is doing for the United Church.

Those who convened the successful event were Mrs. Gordon Locklin, Mrs. Bruce Cronk, Mrs. S. Hagerman, Mrs. F. Deacon, Mrs. C. MacDonald, Mrs. B. Phillip, Mrs. L. Parker, Mrs. A. Rota and Mrs. D. Williamson.

The exhibition is being sponsored by the Friendship Group of the Women's Guild of St. Andrew's. Refreshments will be served and the proceeds will go to church work. There will be a door prize of a painting valued at $35.

ONE FOR EVERYONE

Dear Susanna: If you are planning to give someone a set of place mats, why not go all the way and present them with the table mat to set them too.

These can be made easily, and are certainly most appreciated. Cut out two pieces of felt and one of buckram that are a shade smaller than the mat itself. Place the buckram in the cement, glue all three together, then add where is to it—make some for yourself while you're at it. — B. Armstrong

Places everyone! — SUSANNA

HANDLE WITH GLOVES

Dear Susanna: When it comes time to clean my dining r o o m chandelier, I remove the loose crystal drops or pendants, dip them in warm-water-ammonia solution and dry them 'til they sparkle.

The stationary part is another matter — but I think I'm winning. For this end of the task I don a pair of cotton work gloves dip my gloved hands into the ammonia solution, wring out excess moisture and go to it. I have a dry pair that are just right for any polishing that may be needed.

The results are excellent and I'm sure I've cut the work involved in half — at least! — Mrs. S. B.

You forgot to mention the step before the first step. Pull the main light switch to off before you start! — SUSANNA

Experts Say Popularity Of Horses Is Increase

DEAR DORIS — In choosing a career I would like something to do with horses. I own a horse and I am quite a good rider. I got my horse when she was three years old and broke her in. I am also a good dog trainer and love all animals.

DORIS CLARE

Are there any schools or colleges where a person could get a better education in horse training, husbandry, etc.? Do you think there is a need for this work? — HORSE LOVER.

• • •

DEAR HORSE LOVER — There's no such school in Canada outside of the colleges related to the veterinary profession. Your best bet is to link up with a horse ranch, or a boat club, or a race track.

An excellent 56-page booklet about horses and their care has been turned out by the Ontario Department of Agriculture in cooperation with the Ontario Agricultural College.

The writers consider that while the horse population has declined sharply, horse power in its original form will be required on small farms for many years to come.

As feature attractions at major shows and race tracks the horse's popularity is likely to increase rather than abate. So say the experts.

DEAR DORIS — I am a maiden lady of 65. Somewhere on the way I spoiled my health; now I have had a few strokes and while I can talk, cannot think straight. I feel I am fast turning into a thing instead of a woman. I have it in my mind that I should try to make everything just so.

I have had a medical examination with X-rays but they didn't tell me anything. I am just a feeble-minded woman, unable to do much of anything. When my relatives came out of the service they lived here and now as I think back, they were really hard on me, not wanting to help me live; just a place to come to.

I am poorly clad, having no one to go shopping with me. I do not get a pension, money not being my first problem; if my health would improve I would be satisfied. What to do? — M.E.F.

DEAR M.E.F. — Your letter is surprisingly straightforward for a feeble-minded woman. I'd wager it's that feeble body that makes you feel inadequate.

There are helping hands in most spots, but they need to know you'd welcome a shopper, or even a friendly visit. Next time you write, identify yourself with name and location, and I'll give you definite information about how to find a helpful service where you are.

DEAR DORIS — Would you be kind enough to give me the correct etiquette on toasting, at a guest and hostess? What are the sayings which are used, such as "Good cheer!" (the only one I seem to know?) — HOSTESS.

DEAR HOSTESS — What is the occasion? For a friendly, small party, the proposer might say: "Cheers!" or "To your health!" or "Here's to a Happy New Year!" (or Christmas, or Easter, or Holiday time.) "Good luck in your new job!" — or "Bon voyage" — if it's a send-off.

A toast is a well-wish, sometimes elaborated by a few well-chosen remarks, as at a wedding. The one being toasted does not drink to it. If it's a sort of greeting all round, all may tip up glasses.

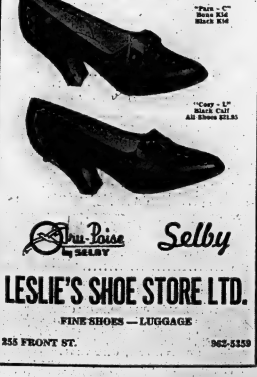
Springtime Tea Held by U.C.W.

MELROSE — On Wednesday the Melrose United Church Women held their Springtime Tea at the Melrose United Church. The church basement was gaily decorated with spring — time flowers. This theme was carried out by the lovely floral centrepiece on the main tea table as well as by the individual centrepieces on the small tables.



The president, Mrs. N. Demille, welcomed the many guests at the door.

The evening began with a short worship service under the direction of Mrs. N. Demille. Each visiting group presented a number for the program. A quartet from Roblin sang a selection after which Mrs. Scott from Ebenezer read two poems. Mrs B. Allen of Lonsdale gave a reading. Mrs. Kling from Empey Hill rendered a delightful solo followed by readings by Mrs. G. Swan of Gilead and Mrs. H. Walker of Bethany. Greens were also present from Shannonville and other nearby points.

After the program there was a bazaar with an attractive display of both home sewn and home baked goods.

Lunch was served and Mrs. J. C. Milligan and Mrs. S. Bater, the pastor's wife poured tea.

Ice Cream Days

From now on as the weather grows warmer, we find ice cream is more and more in demand. Whether it's a served solo as a nutritious family dessert or gaily decked out as the occasion demands, it's popular with everyone . . . and fun to eat!

Orange Blossom Pie

A pie so easy even little sister can make it! Mix together using a 6-ounce can of concentrated orange juice from the freezer to thaw, a 14 ounce can milk together 1¼ cups fine ginger wafer crumbs, ¼ cup sugar and ¼ cup butter, melted. Press this mixture firmly over sides of 9 inch pie plate and chill. Fill with slightly softened vanilla ice cream and gently stir in the contents of orange juice to give a marbled effect. Freeze and when set decorate with orange slices.

Chocolate Party Loaf

Party-time is any time when the freezer boasts an ice cream loaf. For a 9-by 5-inch loaf pan you'll need 3 pints of chocolate ice cream. Soften it slightly, then stir in 1 cup chopped walnut meats and ¾ cup chopped nuts. Turn into a loaf pan lined with chocolate wafers and freeze. At serving time turn the loaf onto a pretty plate and garnish with whipped cream and shaved chocolate.

Banana Split Rockets

An old favorite, the banana split, goes modern when served in a tall cooling glass. For each split, cut a banana in lengthwise quarters and stand upright around the sides of the glass. Then fill up the glass with different flavors of ice cream and sundae sauce. Top with whipped cream and chopped nuts . . . and just as good as we remember!

Maytime Log

In the glamor dessert department an Alaskan Log ranks high on the list. Line your favorite jelly roll recipe, filling it with fresh strawberry ice cream instead of jelly. Store in the freezer. Shortly before serving place it on a foil covered board and cover completely with meringue, the kind you use for making pies. Sprinkle the log with slivered almonds and bake in a 500°F oven 4 to 5 minutes or until the meringue is golden brown. Serve immediately, of course!

No Principal or Teacher Mentioned Need of Help From PTA Survey Shows

VANCOUVER (CP) — Serious doubts about the idea of parent-teacher organizations as useful partnerships are raised by a survey conducted by a Vancouver woman.

Mrs. Ethel Bentley, a former officer of the British Columbia Parent-Teacher Federation, sent a questionnaire to individual associations and interviewed teachers and principals.

"It became abundantly evident that although the PTA is ideally a partnership of parents and teachers there is actually no alliance.

"Not one person I talked with, or association that answered my questionnaire, linked parents and teachers as partners. Nor was there any mutual goal each working together. And not principal or teacher mentioned need for help from parents."

One association president said he was convinced teachers and principals resent the number of meetings they had to attend.

"The idea that teachers feel threatened by the PTA rang out time and time again," Mrs. Bentley said. "One principal said: 'When teachers are in the PTA they are second-class citizens because they can't say what they think'."

It was evident that parents and teachers were never going to reach a true working partnership, and it was time for PTA policies and objectives, drawn up many years ago, to be revised.

Mrs. Bentley said the PTA might turn over the job of raising money for purchase of basic school equipment to a parent organization. It should devote its field and aim at becoming expert in a specific area, curriculum for example.

The PTA should also abandon the practice of passing a variety of resolutions at conventions and then presenting them to the government.

"These resolutions are merely presented to the government and nothing much else is done to follow them up. Some resolutions have been presented as many as five times and still nothing has been accomplished.

"If the PTA's strength lies in being a pressure group in education, as is the consensus, then cut out the chaff, accept the challenge and work toward being an expert, well-informed group in a narrow special field."

MELROSE W. I.

The annual meeting of the Melrose W.I. was held in the township hall on Thursday evening with Mrs. Charles Bates Sr. and Mrs. Charles Bates Jr. as hostesses. Mrs. Bates was pianist for the opening and 22 ladies were present.

Mrs. Arthur Long reported the correspondence with the main items being an invitation to a tea at Quinte on May 20. Thank you notes, and a letter from the Department of Health, informing members of the monthly newsletter which reports on the many centennial projects. The week of May 17-23 was to be observed as Mental Health Week. A gift of groceries will be sent to the Dunbar family, who lost their entire belongings in a recent fire.

The president thanked the ladies for their co-operation through her past term of office and the treasurer gave the financial statement which showed a successful year.

The standing committees presented well prepared reports of yearly activities. These will be forwarded to the district conveners in preparation for the district annual to be held at Moira on May 21. Mrs. Arthur English and Mrs. Kenneth McMechan were elected as delegates to the district annual with Melrose branch to furnish a skit for the afternoon program.

NEW OFFICERS

Mrs. Malcolm Lazier presented the slate of officers and Mrs. Kenneth McMechan conducted the election of officers as follows:

Past president, Mrs. Malcolm Lazier; president, Mrs. Gerald Hamilton; 1st vice-president, Mrs. E. Ross Thompson; 2nd vice-president, Mrs. Donald McLaren; secretary-treasurer, Mrs. Arthur Long; citizenship education, Mrs Malcolm Lazier; alternate citizenship, Mrs. Percy McLaren; pianist, Mrs. Charles Bates Sr.; assistant pianists, Mrs. S. Demille, Mrs. Harold Bridge; auditors, Mrs. Jack English and Mrs. Harold McAvoy.

Agriculture and tradition in industries, Mrs. Charles Bates Jr.; citizenship and education, Mrs. Raymond Charles; home economics and health, Mrs. Clare Weese; historical research and current events, Mrs. Jack McLaren; resolutions, Mrs. Grant McLaren; public relations, Mrs. Ross Thompson; safety, Mrs. Mrs. Les Gnaedinger; curator, Mrs. Kenneth McMechan; sick and visiting, Mrs. Clarence Hagerman, Mrs. Jack Blatherwick, Mrs. Vincent Pascoe, Mrs. Jack McFarlane. Sewing committee is to be elected as the need arises.

HUMOROUS ACCOUNT

The program was turned over to Mrs. Charles Bates Sr., who gave a humorous account of the adventures of the owner of an amphibious car. In this heated vehicle was also washing, upholstery and installed pumps in case of leakage, the driver motivating the machine which keep him from landing on the bottom of the sea. He told of the astonishing chances which are exchanged as he drives on to the beach after a successful fishing trip.

Mrs. E. Pascoe gave a reading.

A Chinese auction with Mrs. Tom Belnap as auctioneer provided much merriment as the determined bidders unwrapped their mystery packages.

A display of handicrafts showed that some of the ladies had been busy this winter.

Suggestions for next year's program varied from running the organization on a budget to shopping jeire, so it looks as if Melrose is headed for another active and productive year.

Lunch was served and a social time enjoyed.

C.G.I.T. Group Attends Service

FRANKFORD — On Sunday morning the C.G.I.T. girls in Frankford were in charge of the church service at 11.15 a.m.

Miss Susan Chase, president, led the worship with Miss Ann Beach as organist and a full C.G.I.T. choir.

Miss Brenda Payne read the Scripture and led in responsive reading. Miss Leisha Judd told the children's story.

Miss Raelene Rowe gave the message on the theme "The Church". The girls sang a special number.

Mrs. Stickle gave a commentary on the C.G.I.T. anniversary project of a donation through the World Council of Churches to build a Christian camping conference centre in Indonesia.

The group presented a flag to the church. The Rev. C. Judd dedicated the gift.

Following the service the girls entertained their families at a buffet luncheon in Rose Lowery Hall.

REGULAR MEET

The C.G.I.T. held their last regular meeting before fall on Wednesday evening. Miss Kerry Blackman conducted a worship service. Games and a lively sing song were enjoyed. The girls are having a car wash on May 15 as a special project. The service closed with an evening hymn and lapa.

LEMON SNOW DESSERT

Two of my relatives were invited for a midweek meal. They knew the trouble I go to to make my meals memorable, so coaxed me to make the meal simple.

I thought of old-fashioned Lemon Snow with a Custard Sauce for my dessert, and it was a real hit.

LEMON SNOW WITH CUSTARD SAUCE (serves 6)

Snow:

½ cup granulated sugar,
1¼ cups boiling water,
grated rind 1 medium lemon,
2 tablespoons cornstarch,
2½ tablespoons cold water,
juice from 1 medium lemon,
2 egg whites.

Sauce:

2 egg yolks,
2 tablespoons sugar,
1 cup hot milk,
shake of salt,
½ teaspoon vanilla.

Make a syrup by boiling together the sugar, water and lemon rind for 2 minutes. Mix the cornstarch and cold water to a smooth paste and stir into the cooked syrup until thick. Lower heat and stir 1 or 2 minutes longer until no taste of raw starch remains. Remove from heat, add lemon juice and let cool to lukewarm. Beat egg whites until stiff. (Drop the yolks into cups of double boiler for in a few minutes you are going to make the Custard Sauce in it.) Fold the fluffy beaten whites in the cooling lemon mixture evenly. Turn into 6 stemmed glasses and chill.

To serve with it and to pass at table make Custard Sauce by mixing together in double boiler the 2 egg yolks, 2 tablespoons sugar, salt and hot milk and stir over boiling water until slightly thickened. (Custard will coat silver spoon.) Remove from heat, add vanilla, pour into little pitcher and chill. Serve as sauce over chilled Lemon Snow.

Notes: 1) Obviously Lemon Snow may be turned into a cut glass bowl to chill instead of 6 stemmed glasses. For guest occasions, this looks quite elegant, especially the custard sauce stands beside the bowl in matching glass pitcher. 2) When my mother was ill and could eat something for dessert, nothing tempted, she would slice ripe bananas in dessert dishes and serve chilled Custard Sauce (above) over them, instead of cream, which she just happened to be out of!

Mrs. William Dallas, president of the Auxiliary, announced today that a spring plant was presented to every patient in the hospital on Easter Sunday, on behalf of Auxiliary members.

WOMEN NEEDED IN HOUSE

MONTREAL (CP) — "There should be more women in politics," says Kathleen Wareham, wife of a former newspaper editor in London, and here for a lecture tour. Mrs. Wareham said she hopes to run for a seat in the British House of Commons where there are only 27 women out of 630 members.

ST. ANDREW'S H-C

MARMORA — Nine Hi-C boys from Marmora's St. Andrew's and Cordova Mines United Churches attended the Rally held on May 8th and 9th in Kiersted. The boys went into action Friday evening and the rally began on Saturday morning in Sydenham Street Church on Sunday morning. The 600 boys enrolled from the Quinte Conference enjoyed the weekend Conference—planned by the Rev. George Hanson and the Kingston district Hi-Cs.

WORK SLOW BUT SURE

MONTREAL (CP)—"We may not move people to become foreign citizens, but at least the idea will be in their minds and the time may come when they'll be ready," says Lucille Roskie, chairman of the foster home finding committee of a Jewish child welfare agency here. Mrs. Roskie says the best foster-mother is "one who is not inclined to look outside the home for her satisfaction."

Should Make Provision For Mothers

MONTREAL (CP) — When children must go to hospital, beds or cots should be available for the mother, says Dr. Robert F. Ingram, executive director of Montreal Children's Hospital.

"The need for comfort and companionship is very deep in human nature, and it is often much stronger in children."

Medical research shows that children regress to a more primitive emotional stage with the anxiety of separation, Dr. Ingram says, and if children are left too long without emotional fulfilment, they can regress so far that the reaction becomes irreversible. "The child in hospital requires special treatment to offset this emotional trauma."

Dr. Ingram suggests hospitals should develop some form of mother - substitution by staff members and should also loosen the restrictions on visiting hours.

"Our hospital rules should be flexible enough so that the child can be treated not only for his physical ailments but also for his emotional needs."

Parish Guild Sponsors Tea

Ann Landers

Mother Is Not Always Only Back Seat Driver

ANN LANDERS

DEAR ANN LANDERS — You printed a letter from a teenager named Billy who complained that his mother drove him nuts with her back seat driving.

I am a mother of three teen-agers and would like to register the identical complaint. Since my children learned to drive I haven't had a minute's peace behind the wheel.

The other day my son and two of his friends were walking home from school. I saw them and asked if they wanted a ride. The minute they got in the car my son started to criticize my driving. I ignored the first few digs, and then he said, "Ma, I think you need new glasses. You almost clipped that car when you passed it."

I answered, "I was driving when you were in diapers." He didn't say anything then but when we got home he yelled for half an hour about how I had insulted him in front of his friends. He didn't feel that he had insulted me with his critic about my needing new glasses.

I hope you will give parents a break and print this letter, Ann. Several of my friends are having the same problem with their highschoolers. Thank you. — ON THE DEFENSIVE.

DEAR ON — It's strange that most children think their parents know everything, until they get to be about 13 years old. Then suddenly, their parents don't know anything. This phase usually lasts six or seven years.

At about age 20, children begin to have a somewhat improved opinion of their parents. By the time children marry and have youngsters of their own they strongly suspect that perhaps their parents aren't so dumb after all.

DEAR READERS — Well, I've done it again. This time, I not only alienated a whole industry but I've trumped on the toes of my ever-loving' brother-in-law, a Nebraska jeweler, out of Omaha. He writes:

DEAR ANN LANDERS — What do you mean telling that 22-year-old boy whose girl friend wasn't sure she wanted to be engaged, to "take the ring back to the jeweler for a refund."

A 22-year-old boy is old enough to know what he is doing. A reliable jeweler will stand back of his ironclads and give the customer a refund or exchange if the goods are faulty, but no jeweler in his right mind would sell an engagement ring with the provision that the buyer can bring it back for a refund if the romance doesn't go well.

Would you advise a woman to return a gown to a shop if she became ill and was unable to attend the party? Could you get a real estate company to refund option money if the buyer changed his mind?

I am protesting against your advice in behalf of approximately 25,000 fellow retail jewelers in this country who are probably as unhappy with your advice as I am. I hope you will print that letter and not discriminate against me on the grounds that I am a relative, because I am a daily reader as well. — YOUR BROTHER-IN-LAW DAVE R.

DEAR DAVE — Twenty-five thousand apologies to you and all the other retail jewelers. I goofed.

I should have told the young man that: (1) He should not have "surprised" a high school girl with an engagement ring and (2) He should hang on to the ring until he meets a girl who is at least as eager to accept the ring as he is to give it to her. Twenty lashes with a gold watch chain for Granny Annie.

Parents are people — they can be right and they can be wrong. To help understand their viewpoint and to promote harmony at home, write for Ann Landers' booklet, "How To Live With Your Parents," enclosing with your request 20c in coin and a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope.

Ann Landers will be glad to help you with your problems. Send them to her in care of this newspaper enclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

Several Hundred Canadians Helping to Bring Comfort, Food to Many Peruvians

By ERIC G. WOODROW

LIMA, Peru (CP) — Many Canadians believe revolutions occur almost every other day in South America.

Nothing could be more untrue. The frequent coups that change governments and nothing else are not real revolutions.

The Indians of Peru, for example, have been treated as animals since the Spanish conquest in 1536, and the bloody wars of independence that liberated the continent in the early 1800s did nothing for the bulk of the population except change their masters.

What's more, the Indians themselves came to believe that since they were being treated like animals they might as well behave like them.

It is difficult to change a state of mind that has spanned the centuries. But an encouraging beginning has been made in Peru, and several hundred Canadians are helping bring about the first real revolution in the country's history.

RUN LEPER COLONY

Twenty years ago members of the Roman Catholic Franciscan order bought a boat in Canada and Montreal-born Bishop Emmanuel Laberge set out for Peru with two other missionaries. They were shipwrecked off the coast of British Guiana and arrived in Peru with all their belongings in a satchel.

Since then Bishop Laberge and a group that now includes 30 priests and a number of lay missionaries have travelled the trackless jungles of Amazonia opening schools, clinics and craft shops. They also run a leper colony.

Five years ago Rev. Louis Bedard arrived with a pontoon-equipped plane he bought in Winnipeg after selling everything he owned. His aircraft has revolutionized the life of the scattered mission which covers an area larger than New Brunswick, extending to the unmarked borders of Ecuador, Colombia and Brazil.

Radio receivers have been distributed to out-of-the-way villages and the mission's radio station broadcasts daily lessons. Selected villagers have been trained to drill the classes in the material taught and to prepare the group for the next day's radio lessons.

Three hundred miles away another flying Canadian missionary, Ralph Borthwick of Vancouver, supervises and maintains a fleet of planes to transport Protestant missionaries and supplies to 30 tribes.

TRANSLATE BIBLE

Borthwick and a dozen other translators work with the Institute of Linguists which translates the Bible into tribal languages.

One of the institute's members is Olive Shell, formerly a schoolteacher in Ontario, who has been working with the Cashibo Indians since 1946. She first learned their language, then translated the Bible into Cashibo. She also founded schools, trains Indians to read and write Spanish and their own language. Today a number of government - trained villagers are teaching in bilingual schools.

The need for assistance is perhaps best indicated by the plight of the Machiguengas, a tribe that lives in a permanent state of mental depression. They have never recovered from the hardships of slavery. Driven deeper and deeper into the jungle, and suffering from a score of diseases, they see no point in living and morbidly await death as the only way out of their miseries. A Canadian couple is trying to help lift them out of this state.

Before becoming linguists and missionaries, the Canadians were required to take a tough jungle survival course. They were shown how to handle dugout canoes, use a machete, build a house and themselves in the jungle. They learned, as Bishop Laberge says, that "anything a monkey can eat a human can."

SOME DIED

Their immediate enemies in the jungle include snakes, cannibals and the practitioners of witchcraft. Two of Bishop Laberge's priests drowned or were eaten by Piranas fish, and Borthwick and two missionaries had to be rescued after a forced landing in a remote region.

But another enemy is the Peruvian who wants to continue to exploit the jungle peoples. Efforts have been made, often at high government level, to drive the linguists out and force the Franciscans to give up their activities.

Some Peruvians believe any one who tries to help the Indian is a Communist, and this attitude also complicates the work of missionaries in Lima itself.

After the Second World War thousands of Indians left sugar plantations and migrated to the cities. Today miles of ugly barriadas — crude housing estates with no light, water or sewage —mar the outskirts of Lima and other cities.

Five years ago, Rev. Andres Godin, a Montreal priest came here. At the time there were 12,000 slum - dwellers in the Campo de Comas barriada. Today there are 130,000. Father Godin has built an industrial school, a clinic, a dozen primary schools, and there is an industrial school for girls run by some Quebec nuns and lay teachers from Canada, the United States and Germany.

Their efforts are appreciated by many residents of the barriadas and by enlightened Peruvians. But they find only disapproval among others, such as one Paris-educated society matron who told me:

"Here, too, you damn Canadians have put your noses in, to help the Communists take over Peru."

DESERONTO

Antique Glass Display Drew Many Admirers

DESERONTO — A showing of antique glassware was displayed during April at the Deseronto Public Library. The collection was loaned to the Library by Mr. Garnet Hazard, a well known artist and collector of antiques.

Mr. Hazard has a collection of over 60 pickle casters. These are beautiful glass jars held in a silver frame which holds a set of pickle tongs on the side. Some of these casters are plain, blue, green, amber or ruby berry glass and would grace any table.

Some of the collectors' items on display were biscuit jars, vinegar jugs made of carmel slag and peach blow, sharing mugs, dainty china slippers and milk jugs, a lovely one was done in copper lustre.

A water pitcher made of amber glass with delicate flowers painted on the side had on the bottom a rough raised spot which Mr. Hazard explained is a pontel mark which proves it is a hand blown piece of art, which is becoming most rare.

SUGAR SHAKERS

Sugar shakers made of satin glass looking like large salt shakers would now be sold for about $55 a pair.

By far the most beautiful piece of glassware in this collection was a bride's basket. Many years ago when a young maiden became a bride, she would always receive two articles as gifts, these were a pickle caster and a bride's basket. This one was designed with pale yellow flowers on the bottom and had a fluted rim of a pale shade of coral, the dish was held in a silver stand with a handle over the top. At the time this dish was made the selling price would be about $1.50 . . . now it would sell for more than $45.

After viewing these lovely pieces of glassware one would be tempted to say, "they just don't make things like they used to."

Frankford

FRANKFORD — Mr. and Mrs. Fred Miller and grandson Frank Payne are spending a holiday with Mrs. E. Payne in Winnipeg, Manitoba.

Rev. and Mrs. Reg. Solmes and daughter Ruth of Brownsburg, Quebec, spent a few days this past week with Mr. and Mrs. Charlie Wright.

Mrs. Audrey Day and her sister, Miss Nellie Sargent of Oakville are visiting Mr. and Mrs. Tom Patrick.

Mr. and Mrs. Ed Strome returned home after a holiday with Flying Officer and Mrs. Ted Stroms and children in Winnipeg.

Queen's Research Team Head Believes Cancer Can Be Caused by Many Germs

KINGSTON, Ont. (CP)—Dr. Hans Stich, head of a 16-man cancer research team at Queen's University, says he believes many germs can cause cancer.

But he is hopeful inoculations soon may be developed to prevent, or even to cure, cancer caused by germs.

Dr. Stich said cancer is one possible result of damage to chromosomes, the parts of a body cell which determine its function. Radiation, such as x-rays, or chemicals, including some found in cigarette smoke, could also damage chromosomes. So could germs.

An associate professor of biology, Dr. Stich is concentrating his research on cancer caused by germs or viruses.

"We are all walking culture mediums for viruses," he said. "There's no getting away from them."

The team's work is supported in part by Canadian Cancer Society grants and National Research fellowships totalling nearly $30,000 last year.

He said the research team believes cancer caused by germs could spread through the world as Asian flu did a few years ago. The team, in which Dr. Henry Mak is an associate, has known for more than a year that several types of viruses can cause cancer in laboratory animals. Now it has the same agent with human tissue keeping alive in laboratory conditions indicating that germs could also cause cancer in humans.

MIGHT CAUSE EPIDEMIC

Most germs do humans little or no harm, Dr. Stich said, because the body is accustomed to them and has developed defences against them. But new strains of germs were constantly developing against which the body might have little or no defence.

The Asian flu epidemic was the result of a new flu germ developing, he said. Because people had no defence against it, the disease was serious and spread to be an epidemic. The germ was probably still around but, because people had been exposed to it, it no longer was serious.

In the same way, a new strain of a germ able to cause cancer might develop and spread the disease in an epidemic through the world. Another danger was that a germ now presenting no cancer threat might develop a new strain able to cause the disease.

Dr. Stich said that of eight types of germs selected at random and injected into mice, four caused cancer in the mice. Of these four, two might be able to cause cancer in humans.

PROTECTION POSSIBLE

Discussing hopes for development of inoculations to prevent cancer, Dr. Stich described tests with mice. During these tests, he found that the germs causing the cancer were apparently destroyed as they damaged the chromosomes. But they left proteins peculiar to the germs in the cancer itself. Analysis of these proteins might show which germ had caused a cancer, Dr. Stich said.

He believed that if the germ that caused a cancer can be identified, an inoculation against all these germs would probably protect a human from cancer caused by those germs.

But Dr. Stich warned that the method would not be foolproof because other strains able to resist inoculation might develop, and strains of germs not affected by the inoculation might develop the ability to cause cancer.

Whatever germ causes a cancer, he said he believes such cancers will be positively identifiable as cancers before they become serious. Samples of a suspected tumor can be taken and tested for proteins left by germs dying as they damage chromosomes. If the proteins are present, cancer can be positively diagnosed.

Dr. Stich got into cancer research through an interest in the diseases and deformities caused by genetic defects. Born in Czechoslovakia, he began his studies at the Max Planck Institute in Germany and came to the United States on a Fulbright grant more than 10 years ago. In 1956 he moved to the University of Saskatchewan at Saskatoon and in 1960 he came to Queen's.

He has been especially interested in cancer research since he came to North America.

Economics Behind Strained Relations Between U. S. and Philippines Says Doctor

VICTORIA (CP)—A Victoria doctor who left the Philippines in 1957 says the Asian power is in grave danger of turning Communist if current political turmoil is allowed to continue unchecked.

Dr. Marcos Villanueva, now a physician at Veteran's Hospital here, said the basic cause of the unrest is strained relations with the United States.

Part of the trouble is economic.

"Although the United States gave the Philippines its independence in 1946, the two nations signed an agreement under which American goods would enter duty-free until 1970," he said.

"The result of this arrangement geared to one country is that Philippine imports exceed exports."

Another source of trouble is a military agreement under which the U.S. maintains the largest nuclear-powered air base in the Far East in the Philippines

"The Philippine government would like to end this agreement," he said. "Justice does not prevail between American servicemen and the Philippine citizens.

"Americans who have killed Philippines at the air base have been tried by their own courts instead of our own judiciary and have been acquitted.

"The air base should be discontinued before relations explode."

The doctor said that despite the unrest most Philippines are "still with the West."

But where at one point neither major political party dared criticize the U.S. such criticism has become increasingly popular.

"At present the more a speaker attacks the Americans the more the people like him."

Since 1946 the Communists and democratic socialist parties have been outlawed in the Philippines.

Asked whether foreign Communist influence is active in the country, Dr. Villanueva said arms and ammunition from Russia have been captured in raids on Communist strongholds.

He spoke during a series of talks on International Explorations sponsored by the Victoria Unitarian Church.

Has Viet Nam Vindicated K?

By JOHN BEST

MOSCOW (CP)—When Nikita Khrushchev made his celebrated reappearance in Kremlin here a few weeks ago there was the inevitable speculation that he might be in his way back to a position of power in the Kremlin.

The possibility wasn't taken seriously by most political observers. However, if the issue depended on the new Kremlin leadership's handling of the Viet Nam crisis, Khrushchev might have a lot of points in his favor.

Among qualified foreign experts here there is a strong feeling that, for and large, Mr. K's policy toward Southeast Asia has been vindicated since his removal last October.

Had they tried, the men who overthrew Khrushchev could hardly have done a better job of making him look good.

This appraisal is based on the premise that the Soviet Union does not really want to confront the United States over Viet Nam. Current policy is consistent with this view and also with Khrushchev's efforts to avoid becoming involved in Viet Nam and Southeast Asia generally.

It is reported that Peking's emergence as a competing centre of Communist power forces the Kremlin to make a show of support for the North Vietnamese in the face of American air attacks.

BEYOND CONTROL

But, in the view of many observers here, the Russians would be foolish to allow themselves to be drawn fully into a crisis situation which they have little if any chance to control.

Western diplomats also suspect that the Soviet Union's East Europe was Communist neighbors are not convinced of the need to take strong action in Viet Nam and would be reluctant to get drawn into the conflict on Moscow's coattails.

They are also inclined to suspect that the Soviet people themselves have little desire to see their nation deeply committed in a far - off country whose importance to the U.S.S.R. they can't quite see.

The idea of lessening tensions with the West has a strong hold on the minds of the Soviet people, harrassment in Berlin notwithstanding. And they're also attracted by the prospect of a more abundant life which in recent years has become more and more a reality.

Popular demonstrations to the contrary, many here doubt that the people are anxious to sacrifice these two objectives for a war they can grasp only in the foggiest way.

Premier Kosygyn did travel to Hanoi, the North Vietnamese capital, in February. But had they been able to foresee the damning consequences of this trip, would the Soviets still have let him go? Many political observers doubt it.

criminals.

The legislature also heard a debate on the use of electronic listening devices in crime detection.

Mr. Wishart said that to his knowledge no police force in Ontario has used such devices. He was promptly told by lawyer Vernon Singer (L—Downsview) that the police force he was accused of capital murder had a conversation with a friend recorded by a police microphone in his cell.

WILL INVESTIGATE

Mr. Wishart said it is the first he had heard of the incident and promised to investigate it immediately.

The first annual report of the Ontario pension commission was tabled Monday.

The report said the Pension Benefits Act —first of its kind in Canada—has stood up under practical application, although experience will lead to some improvements.

A short uniform pension act based on the Ontario legislation was forwarded to other provinces Monday and the response was encouraging, the commission said.

The commission observed one minute's silence in memory of a Liberal and a former Conservative member for the same riding of Toronto Brocondale. Both died during the weekend.

They were Joseph Gould, 52, who had held the riding for the Liberals since 1959, and Arthur Frost, his Conservative predecessor from 1951 to 1959.

Mr. Gould's death left vacant the number of the Liberal opposition to 32. The Conservatives have 77 and the NDP have eight seats in the 108-seat house.

Injections of New Chemical Keep Elm Trees Healthy By Repelling Bark Beetle

TORONTO — A new chemical for "vaccinating" healthy elm trees against the ravages of the fungus carrying beetle that spreads Dutch elm disease will be field - tested on a broad scale in Metropolitan Toronto this spring.

The chemical known as Bidrin, was developed by Shell Chemical Company in the United States. After testing the product extensively for five years, the Company last week received government approval to market it in Canada.

In this country Shell Canada Limited established in the laboratory and in the field on a limited scale. This work has been carried out during the past three years.

REPELS BEETLES

Dutch elm disease is carried from one tree to another principally by the elm bark beetle which transmits the spores of the fungus through the bark of a healthy tree while feeding on its tissues. Bidrin, an organic phosphate, does not cure the fungus but repels or kills the fungus - carrying beetle when it emerges from its winter breeding sites in dead or dying trees and come to feed on healthy trees.

Injected into the trunks of elms in toxic quantities in early spring Bidrin flows through the tree's circulatory system, reaching the outermost branches and twigs where 90 percent of the bark beetle feeding occurs.

To be effective, the chemical must be injected, precisely the correct dosage which depend on the size and condition of the tree. For this reason the main objective of the Toronto program will be to train professional applicators in its use. If successful, a more extensive training program will be organized next year. At no time will the chemical be released for sale to the general public.

L. A. Miller, agricultural chemicals manager of Shell Canada, said that due to limited supplies it will be a year or two before it is available on a broad scale throughout the country.

SAFE METHOD

Mr. Miller said that unlike insecticides currently being sprayed on trees to control Dutch elm disease, Bidrin will have no harmful effect of wildlife since it is applied internally. In spraying trees there is always the danger of drift and run-off. Also, while many trees cannot be sprayed because of their location, the new chemical can easily be injected regardless of where the tree may be.

Dutch elm disease has killed off one of Canada's most popular shade trees, the American elm. In some sections of the country, particularly Eastern Canada, the disease has reached epidemic proportions, threatening the stately elm with extinction.

According to Mr. Millar, tests have proved that Bidrin is the most effective means yet developed of controlling the dread disease. He said that the method of systematic control of insects by chemical inoculations rather than by spraying or dusting the trees may revolutionize the treatment of any tree insect problem.

Quebec Federal Liberals Carrying Out Purge of Old Guard Organizers

By WILLIAM NEVILLE

MONTREAL (CP) — While charges against some of their Ottawa representatives have dominated the headlines, Quebec's federal Liberals are working behind the scenes on a "new look" organization designed to eliminate the kind of problems now plaguing them.

The operation involves, basically, a quiet purge of old guard organizers and their replacement by a new breed of party workers in the first purely federal organization the Liberals have ever had in Quebec.

The new organization, outgrowth of a demand made last year by the provincially-oriented Quebec Liberal Federation for a separate federal body, will have its formal fruition this fall at a founding constitutional convention.

Federal party officials hope by then to have enlisted 12,000 members—one for each poll in Quebec's 75 federal ridings. They say organization and enlistment are under way in two thirds of the ridings with some of them already reporting a membership of 1,000.

Despite the QLP demand for separation—a demand that at least implied many provincial Liberals were not committed to the federal party—officials say a large number of QLP members have joined the federal ranks.

"It was really a relatively small group, led by QLP President Francois Aquin, who wanted separate organizations for purely political reasons," said a federal party spokesman.

"We were confident that, at the riding level, most of the best workers would join with us.

"We've taken the best of these and added to them a large number of new people, particularly younger ones, to give us a much better organization."

The most noticeable change, however, has taken place at the top.

The 1962 and 1963 federal election campaigns in the province were run by five men. They have been replaced by a 15-man executive council, average age of which is 38. Its provincial president is Marc Drouin, a 36 year-old New Carlisle lawyer who has been in the forefront of the new Liberal movement at the provincial level.

Ten provincial vice-presidents have been set up under the council to deal with such questions as organization, finance and policy. Both the Young Liberals and women's organizations also have been given direct access to the top body.

At the grass roots, the province has been divided into 17 regions, each covering five or six federal constituencies. These in turn have been divided into 120 provincial ridings and then polling-station groupings.

"Workers right down to this level will have a say in how the party is operated," a party official said. "This has never happened before in Quebec. In fact, we believe our organization will be more democratic even than the provincial one."

Party officials say that, while the organization has yet to hold even a constitutional convention, it is "almost ready" for a federal election. In fact, as far as their own province is concerned, Quebec Liberal strategists say they would like nothing better than a June vote.

"If we had an election now and won 70 seats or so the new setup would be secure. Our only fear is that if for some reason an election is called later and we don't do as well, the old guard just might try a comeback."

can States last week, fighting broke out again Monday in the corridor connecting the Duarte Bridge with the international safety zone set up in Santo Domingo.

One American officer was killed and three paratroopers were wounded in a two-hour fight with rebel snipers.

U.S. forces reinforced their encirclement of the rebel-held area of Santo Domingo with artillery and tanks "tuned on general duty."

The rebels showed no inclination to give up and began occasional guilty lifts in their sector of the city — a mass of crowded apartment houses and business buildings in southeast Santo Domingo.

In Washington, meanwhile, the five-nation peace committee of the OAS ignored a rebel ultimatum suspending peace negotiations.

The rebels, who seek to restore Bosch to office had demanded a meeting of the OAS.

The United States pushed through a resolution designating the five-nation peace committee as the controlling authority for an inter-American military force for the Dominican Republic. The force is yet to be established.

The resolution was adopted 14 to 3 with three abstentions.

Lawyer Will Test Validity Of Sentence

KINGSTON (CP)—An application for a writ of habeas corpus will be brought before a judge Monday, May 17, in Osgoode Hall, to test the validity of an habitual-criminal sentence imposed on a man now in Kingston Penitentiary.

Louis Henry, a shoplifter in his 50s, was declared an habitual criminal last December by Vancouver Magistrate Douglas D. Hume.

At the time of the trial, Henry was serving a sentence in Burwash industrial farm, near Sudbury. Vancouver prosecutor Stewart McKeown said that sufficient notice was given the accused at the time and date of his hearing.

Henry says he knew nothing about it and suddenly found himself in Kingston Penitentiary facing the prospect of a life sentence.

Toronto legal aid lawyer Allan Mintz is counsel for Henry.

Spanking New Liners Make Atlantic Sparkle

NEW YORK (CP)—Four sleek new luxury liners "cruise the Atlantic" this year in order the race for tourist dollars. A fifth is due early in 1966.

Shipping man say they can't recall such a big run of maiden voyages before for such a short space of time.

The first newcomer, Home Lines' new flagship Oceanic, already has made her maiden crossing this May and entered Caribbean cruise service.

Following hard in her wake are the Italian Line's twin sisters—Michelangelo, due May 20, and Rafaello, coming in Aug. 2. Last is the year, at a date not yet set, the Norwegian American Line's new flagship Sagafjord will cross.

The last of the newcomers is the Kungsholm of Swedish American Line, which had been scheduled to go into service this year but whose maiden voyage now has been put off until early in the new year.

NO U.S. FLAG

Significant, none of the new ships will fly the American flag. Hurt by lower foreign costs, the U.S. shipping industry is concentrating on fast freighters and has no superliners under construction.

In fact, the 33,000-ton United States now is the only American luxury liner still in service between New York and West European ports.

The Michelangelo and Rafaello, 45,000 - tonners costing $45,000,000 each, are the biggest of this year's crop.

The Oceanic, 34,000 tons, is called the largest liner ever built specifically for the cruise trade. Her 22 public rooms include everything from a gymnasium to a chapel and Home Lines says it spent more than $20,000 of the $35,650,000 cost for art work alone.

The first child prize is a two-pool swimming area amidships, heated by hdro - rod light and covered by a retractable transparent roof 121 feet long.

The Michelangelo and Rafaello were built in Italy, are billed as the largest, fastest and most luxurious ships on the New York-Mediterranean route. Carrying 1,775 passengers each and with a top speed of 29 knots, they will make the crossing from New York to Naples in seven days.

The two ships also claim to be the first with six swimming pools each, three for adults and three for children. All are outdoors, but the first-class pools on both are surrounded by intra-red heating.

The Sagafjord, being built in Toulon, France, is a 21,000-ton vessel designed for both cruising and transatlantic service. The company lists passenger capacity of 600 on the transatlantic run and "about 450" on cruise.

She boasts indoor and outdoor pools, and is scheduled to make several Caribbean cruises from New York before leaving Jan. 8 on a 95-day around-the-world cruise.

The 25,000 - ton Kungsholm also lists a cruise capacity of about 450 but will carry up to 700 on her Atlantic crossings. She was launched April 14 at Clydebank, Scotland, taking the name of another Swedish American liner which is to be transferred to North German Lloyd.

MINERS DROWN

REAL DEL MONTE, Mexico (AP) — An elevator cage plunged down to the waterfilled bottom of a mine shaft Saturday, trapping and drowning 27 miners. Three others managed to climb to the top of the cage and were rescued. The miners, employees of La Purisima Silver and Gold Mines, boarded the elevator and descended two levels. Then the cage plummeted to the bottom.

Students Help Staff Keep Tabs on Campus

By LESLIE HILLIN

VICTORIA (CP) — Dr. Malcolm Taylor of the University of Victoria is grateful for the students' grapevine.

It helps him out in one of his areas of principal, concern—remembering the student.

Professors at the University of Victoria were recently given a reminder of the new president's concern when copies of a magazine article were distributed to faculty.

Its theme was the disappearance of good teaching at universities and the consequent hardship on the student, the "forgotten man" in today's enormous institutions with their publish - or - perish treatment of professors.

Dr. Taylor became the University of Victoria's first president less than a year ago.

"I was surprised, considering how long this had been a two-year institution, at the high quality of teaching I found when I came here," he says.

"This teaching will not be allowed to slip. I am very concerned about the problem of making sure students get proper instruction.

"At present we have a good faculty-student ratio, and small classes, and teaching is not being delegated by professors."

LEARNS FROM STUDENTS

Dr. Taylor says he gets a good idea of a professor's lecturing ability from his 2,552 students.

"This university is still small enough to have a pretty good grapevine, and there are enough informal contacts between students and professors that we get to hear about things," he says.

This process, he says, will continue.

"We are decentralizing the university so students can identify with units of the university, rather than try to identify with something as big as the university itself.

"This university at its present size is of a comprehensible magnitude—but that won't last long."

He blamed the tremendous expansion of modern universities for the pressures that drove two deans of arts and sciences in the province to suicide within a year.

Wether or not professors at the university have digested Dr. Taylor's message about the role of the student, the students have.

Paul Williamson, president of the university's student association, the Alma Mater Society, says students have gained a considerable control over their own futures in the last year.

"We have students sitting on several of the university senate's committees and we hope at some future . . . . least one student sitting on the senate itself," he says.

"We feel we have a real ally in Dr. Taylor."

Dope Problem Too
Staggering Increase In U. K. Drunkeness

By JOSEPH MacSWEEN

LONDON (CP)—Drunkenness increased by 30 per cent within 10 years in England and Wales, says a report by the Christian Economic and Social Research Foundation.

Teen - age drinking declined following the effective end of military conscription in 1939—only to be succeeded by a more ominous habit.

"Another demon has come on the stage—drugs," says the report, written by G. Pryys Williams, statistician and lecturer at the London School of Economics.

"While both give temporary escape from reality, demon drink and demon drug do not mix happily in the pocket or the body. Each is expensive and feeds upon itself, so that if the purse is opened for the one it must be closed to the other. . . .

"I am therefore forced to conclude that, in the broad social context, the situation among the young is deteriorating once more. It would be irresponsible not to accept that the incidence of convictions for drunkenness is steady at present only because some of the drug-takers do not want, or cannot afford, to get drunk as well."

The report, entitled Decade of Drunkenness, draws on government and police figures covering the years 1954-63 and indicates the increase in go-for-broke drinking is one of the unhappy consequences of affluence in Britain.

"At present, in respect to drunkenness, it is fair to say that money is no object," Pryys Williams writes, noting a marked trend to spirits rather than the traditional beer of the working man.

Total convictions for drunkenness rose to 92,300 from 58,500 between 1954 and 1963, including a marked "deterioration" among youths for the first five years, when military conscription was in effect.

An earlier report found that the deterioration was halted by the end of conscription and Pryys Williams says: "I am inclined to accept this particular cause and effect as important during 1960 and 1961, when the change in the fate of 15-year-olds was new and dramatic.

"Unfortunately, I cannot give it equal importance in the last two years of the decade, or in the immediate future. . . .

"Drug - taking among the young is reported to have been increasing for some years, and the habit now has assumed dimensions that cannot be ignored, though official statistics are not such as to permit direct comparison with those of drunkenness."

The foundation, organized six years ago to undertake objective surveys, set out 15 provide figures that could serve as a "bench-mark" by which recent changes in alcohol laws can be judged. These are summarized as making alcohol easier to obtain for longer hours, while broadening the penalties for drunken drivers.

The Commons started a two-day supply debate, the New Democrats moving a motion of non-confidence on the Canada-U.S. auto agreement.

The motion by leader T. C. Douglas said the government failed to protect the consumer, auto workers and small manufacturers.

Mr. Douglas said "smart Yankee traders" pulled the wool over the government's eyes in the auto agreement.

Wallace Nesbitt (PC—Oxford) suggested the government act aside time for the Commons to debate the Viet Nam and Dominican Republic struggles.

Industry Minister Drury said he knows of no real difficulty arising from the auto agreement, aimed at expanding the industry.

Three Liberal MPs denied a newspaper report that they had received election contributions from deposed union boss Hal Banks.

Mailers Vote To Repudiate Contract Made

TORONTO (CP) — The Toronto Mailers Union voted Monday to repudiate a contract agreement reached last week with the three Toronto newspapers.

The parent International Typographical Union (CLC) had threatened to expel the Mailers from the ITU if they voted to accept the new contract and return to work at the Globe and Mail, the Star and the Telegram.

The mailers walked off their jobs last July 9 in sympathy with striking members of local 91 of the Typographical Union.

ITU headquarters vetoed two tentative agreements between the publishers and the printers before the strike. The agreements covered union jurisdiction over electronic computers, key issue in contract talks when the local struck. The papers have continued to publish.

Union officials said Monday's roll-call vote was unanimous. It was taken at a special closed meeting called shortly after Typographical Union headquarters had given the expulsion threat.

Any member voting against the ITU's veto would have lost his union card, strike pay of $90 a week and his rights to a union pension.

Robert Earles, president of the Mailers' Union, said he could not comment on the meeting.

REFUSED COMMENT

"I have been instructed by the membership not to comment on anything," he said. He added he would neither confirm nor deny the ITU had vetoed the proposed contract.

The ITU edict also applied to striking printers, who were to meet with Ontario Labor Minister Leslie Rowntree and representatives of the newspapers' publishers Monday.

The meeting was called off by the union and a spokesman said a membership meeting would be held tonight.

Under the agreement between the papers and the mailers reached last week, all but 24 of the 225 mailers would have returned to their jobs.

One reason given by union members for the rejection of the mailers' contract by the international headquarters was that it eliminated the closed shop rules, under which only union members could work in the mailing rooms of the papers.

The agreement with the papers also fixed weekly wages at the old rate of $146 for five years and increased retirement age to 65 from 60.

The new contract would also have eliminated a clause allowing them to honor printers' picket lines, which have been kept up on a round-the-clock basis at all three papers since the strike began.

Johnson May Be Setting Dangerous Precedent by Dominican Republic Action

By BORIS MISKEW
Canadian Press Staff Writer

President Johnson's single-handed effort to prevent any other country in the Western Hemisphere from falling into Communist hands may be setting a dangerous precedent for future international conduct.

Since the end of the Second World War and the formation of the United Nations, attempts to settle international disputes were carried out in the world organization and no country took it solely upon itself to resolve these disputes.

But Johnson's unilateral action in the Dominican Republic and his subsequent pledge to intervene, as he put it, another Communist government from gaining control in the Western Hemisphere now may encourage other powers to take similar action when it suits their purposes.

The U.S. president has demonstrated to the world that nothing will stand in the way of U.S. intervention in any central or Latin American country should Washington feel that there is likelihood that that country's government may fall under Communist control.

The U.S. landing of more than 20,000 troops in the Caribbean country at a time when revolution was in process to restore the nation's democratically - elected government shocked a number of would-be capitals and provoked outcries from others.

The sheer strength and world-wide economic and political influence of the United States has somewhat mollified these outcries as the nations of the world reassessed this most recent twist to American foreign policy.

The Organization of American States, whether it liked it or not, felt obligated to support the American intervention in the Dominican Republic and Johnson's role as sole-protector of the hemisphere.

But as the countries in the various power blocs accept the U.S. role in the Western Hemisphere, they may in future find it more difficult to oppose similar actions by, for example, the Soviet Union in Europe and China in Asia.

It may be difficult for the U.S. to move against Soviet intervention in a neighboring country—as it was the case in Hungary in 1956 — before the United Nations.

China may very well decide to define more clearly, or even extend, its "sphere of influence" in Asia and in Southeast Asia when she feels that the time is ripe and that she is ready to back up such a decision.

Formosa is a good example of U.S.-supported territory practically in the heart of China's sphere of influence and a time may come when China's neighbors may feel that Chinese action in Formosa would be justified in the eyes of the world as was the American intervention in the Caribbean.

Hees Critical Of Gordon's New Proposal

OTTAWA (CP) — A third force for a Conservative cabinet minister has relished strong criticism of Finance Minister Gordon's proposal to create a $1,000,000,000 investment fund to attract the little investor into part ownership of Canadian enterprises.

George Hees, minister of trade and commerce in the cabinet of the former government and now president of the Montreal and Canadian stock exchanges, says the proposal to establish the Canada Development Corporation as something of a catch-all for Crown companies and predicts it will ultimately lead to higher taxes for small.

In a speech to the Vancouver Board of Trade Monday, Mr. Hees followed former finance minister Donald Fleming and his party successor in the finance department, Senator Wallace McCutcheon in criticism of the Canada Development Corporation.

Finance Minister Gordon, who has defended the proposal in his budget last month, plans to reply to the criticism but a spokesman said Monday the date and time for his speech has not been set.

The Canada Development Corporation is to be set up initially by the government to buy such profitable enterprises as Polymer Corporation, the plastics and synthetic rubber producer at Sarnia.

Selling shares to the public at $5 each, the government hopes the development corporation will succeed in creating new interest among small investors in stock market holdings in Canadian companies.

Mr. Hees pictured the corporation as investing both in profitable and in some non-profitable Crown companies. This, he argued, would mean that the federal treasury would be denied the current profits from the paying concerns, and have to impose higher taxes to make up the difference.

TORONTO (CP)—Jack Jones, a member of the Toronto Harbor Commission, told the international joint commission on lake levels Monday shipping in Lake Ontario has suffered so that water levels could be maintained in Montreal Harbor.

Mr. Jones said it would appear that power interests on the St. Lawrence River and winter shipping interests in the Port of Montreal were the principal beneficiaries of the regulated low - water limitations on navigation in Lake Ontario.

He was presenting a brief to the International Association of Great Lakes Ports, which also proposed a single regulatory authority to supervise lake water use in the St. Lawrence River below Montreal.

"Our association feels strongly that the maintenance of adequate lake levels on Lake Ontario for navigation purposes is of no lesser importance than that of the power water levels in Montreal," Mr. Jones said.

CONFINED OUTFLOW

Lake Ontario is one of two lakes in the system from which outflow is controlled. The control structure is at Iroquois, between Montreal and Lake Ontario.

The Hamilton Harbor Commission, in another brief, also urged a control structure below Montreal to back up water into the harbor without affecting Lake Ontario levels.

And other departments and two commissions of the Ontario government proposed a system of water control and regulatory structures for control of water in the Great Lakes.

During its first day of hearings, the commission — which is to report to the U.S. State, Washington, and Ottawa governments by Dec. 31 — heard briefs from Mich., today before moving to Chicago and finally to Windsor, Ont., on the western end.

Ontario Premier John Robarts, asking for some type of regulation.

Members of the commission indicated a desire for more evidence about the effects of high as well as low water, more exact figures on damage done to the tourist industry and more detailed data on the beneficial effects of control on Lake Ontario and Lake Superior.

Former Soldier Traded Shots With Robber

TORONTO (CP) — A liquor store robber and a capital murder trial Monday that Jack Blanc's last words as he chased a fleeing bank robber were: "He will never bother me. I'm a better shot than he is."

Harry Caesar, testifying in the trial of Matthew Kerry Smith, 24, said he was one of about 25 customers in a suburban Downsview branch of the Canadian Imperial Bank of Commerce when Blanc, 36-year-old Blanc grab a revolver from bank accountant Stanley Lamb.

Smith is charged with the slaying of Blanc in the July 24 hold-up when a man wearing a Beatle-type wig and a mask fled with the bank's $25,315.

There was contradictory evidence about the way Blanc got his gun.

Sally Blanc, the widow, said she had pleaded with the accountant not to give her husband the gun.

She said the employee gave her husband a pistol and repeatedly urged him to chase the robber. Her husband, whom she described as a "military minded" and a former soldier, was shot to death as he traded shots with the fleeing man in adjoining shopping plaza.

Mr. Lamb, who left his job at the bank several months ago and now works for a trust company, testified that Blanc refused to grab the pistol from him. He was not sure how Blanc actually got the gun.

After running across the plaza Blanc fired at the robber, who then came back with his rifle, Mr. Caesar said. The witness said he then hid behind an apartment building and heard three more shots.

Mr. Lamb testified that he saw the robber duck and dodge behind a fence as Blanc fired two shots. Blanc knelt on the grass and tried to fire again but the pistol was empty and the holdup man shot him, he said.

Deputy Crown Attorney Herbert Langdo said evidence would show that the gunman escaped after firing three more shots into a police cruiser which arrived at the scene.

School Teaches Young People How To Gamble

LONDON (AP) —A new school just opened here teaches young people how to gamble—charging no tuition and serving them free cocktails.

The school, for those 18 years old or more, is in the Knightsbridge Sporting Club one of London's many gambling establishments.

Employers give instruction on baccarat, roulette, blackjack and chemin-de-fer.

Woolfe Bednash, the principal, says: "Our lessons will save them money, discourage needless frittering away of cash and teach them the real fundamentals of gambling."

After each session, pupils take part in a "supervised practice period" where stakes are small.

Herr, Gordon Moody, secretary of the Churchs' Council on Gambling, who describes London as second only to Las Vegas for the world's gambling capital, says:

"But Bednash's purpose is, of course, not to enlighten the ignorant, but to get more people into his gaming club so as to make more money out of them."

Viet Cong Explains Policy To Japanese

TOKYO (Reuters) — A Viet Cong leader has told a Japanese correspondent that after the "defeat" of all South Viet Nam the Viet Cong would not accept communism but adopt a neutral policy, it was reported today.

Vang Cong, deputy chief of the Phuyen province in central South Viet Nam, was quoted as telling the correspondent of Asahi Shimbun, a leading Japanese daily, that the Viet Cong would not conclude any military alliance with any country and would reject any foreign military bases.

But he was quoted as saying that economic aid from any country — if no string was attached — would be welcomed.

After opening communications and trade with North Viet Nam, the Viet Cong will hold general elections in due course to unify the north and south, he added.

The statement was made to Masaaki Setoguchi, a correspondent of the Asahi who spent 19 days in the Viet Cong area of Phuyen province.

The correspondent quoted Cong as saying the guerrillas could not accept any negotiations or international conference without the withdrawal of United States troops from South Viet Nam as a precondition.

Stock Exchange Policies In Listing Companies Under Fire in Windfall Probe

TORONTO (CP) — The wisdom of a Toronto Stock Exchange committee's policies in listing companies on the exchange was questioned today as last summer to $5.80 from 56 cents and its subsequent decline to 80 cents."

Mansell Ketchen, vice - president of the exchange, testified that Bunker Hill Extension Mines, which had been suspended from the exchange, was reinstated last January on approval of the filing statement committee of the stock exchange, despite an adverse credit report on the president of the company.

The committee had wanted a check on stock promoter Pat Gardiine, president of Bunker Hill. Mr. Giardine had acquired control of the company and wanted to bolster the company's treasury through an underwriting from an investment firm he owned.

A credit report said his net worth was about $200, he lived several debts and said he was not recommended for credit. Under the heading "is reputation good?" the answer was "no."

However, the exchange decided Mr. Giardine should be given the deal which would make him president of Bunker Hill and let his investment firm do the underwriting.

In other testimony, Alan Fidler, general manager of Mercury - Chipman Mines Ltd., said he made about $10,000 to $12,000 trading shares of Windfall but the company whose trading he directed all lost money.

Mr. Fidler was testifying under the Canada and Ontario evidence acts to prevent his evidence being used against him in any future proceedings.

It was on Aug. 5 that day the price of Windfall fell to 80 cents from the previous day's closing price of $4.15, that he bought 18,300 shares of Windfall, Mr. Fidler testified.

He said he did not specify in whose names the shares were to be registered.

That night he was told the results of the assay on Windfall's drill core. The assay showed no values. Before results of the assay were known, rumors that the core showed valuable minerals had sent the price of the stock up.

The next day Mr. Fidler told his customer's man to put 200 of the 18,300 shares he had bought into the account of his private investment and company and the other 18,000 into the accounts of four public companies for which he traded stocks. This included 10,000 to Mercury-Chipman.

Brickenden of Norfolk County after being convicted in the assault and robbery of an elderly Langton, Ont., service station operator last summer.

Band Invades Wrong Way Corridor

The U.S. 82nd Rangers invaded "Wrong Way Corridor" with a new weapon—the division band.

There were no casualties, not even from the blaring, heat av the 40-man band marched two miles to the U.S. Embassy down the "corridor" linking the embassy with an airport outside the city.

Tons of U.S. war equipment lined the heavily guarded corridor where American blood had been spilled by snipers.

Several U.S. patrols have made wrong turns along the corridor—but reason for its name—and found themselves deep in rebel territory.

But the band on brought downside entertain the troops—was received with warmth.

There were cheers for the bandsmen and lots of smiles as an army of happy kids trailed the band.

There were also vivas for Juan Bosch, the controversial ex-president in exile who has been a central figure in this civil war.

Propose New Minimum Wage For Under 17

OTTAWA (CP)—A minimum wage of $1 an hour for workers under the age of 17 is being proposed by labor department regulations supplementing the new federal Labor Code.

The Labor Code was approved by Parliament in February and comes into effect July 1, applying to the handful of industries which come under federal jurisdiction.

It provides a $1.25 hourly minimum wage for workers 18 and over but leaves the wages of younger workers to department regulations.

The first batch of regulations has been drawn up by the department and has been sent to unions and employers for comment by a May 19 deadline.

A section dealing with the younger workers sets out a $1 hourly minimum with a provision that the rate may be lower in cases where special training is provided to increase skills. Pay in these cases would be at rates established by the labor department for each case.

It also specifies that employees under 17 must not work between 11 p.m. and 6 a.m., and makes no provision for exemptions in special cases.

No youngster may be employed unless he has reached the minimum school - leaving age set by his province. This age varies among provinces.

Canadian Arctic Report Reopens Strange, Terrible Story of Sir John Franklin

By JOSEPH MacSWEEN

LONDON (CP) — A report from high the Canadian Arctic has reopened the strange and terrible story of Sir John Franklin and the mystery that surrounds the fate of a bygone, heroic age.

The fate of Franklin and his two ships, Terror and Erebus, have been enough to rock the British admiralty and set landlubbers as well as seafarers and scabrers to argue with hot-eyed fury.

Some of the rescue schemes proposed in the 1850s were born of the wildest fantasy. One clairvoyant swore she saw and talked with Franklin — until she — long after he had, in fact, been laid to rest at a site that had never been found.

Perhaps the most intriguing tale, backed by eye witnesses, told of two Eskimo children could they be Terror and Erebus?—entrapped on an iceberg floating through North Atlantic outlets.

A romantic if pathetic aspect was the undying confidence of Lady Franklin that her husband would be found alive—and her ingenuity in devising projects for his rescue.

The story of Franklin has never completely unfolded despite the efforts of scores of expeditions during more than 100 years but now a report from Dr. E. F. Roots, Canadian Arctic explorer, gives hope of an exciting discovery.

SEEK WRECKAGE

Roots said in a message from the Arctic he was cautiously optimistic that the wreckage of one of Sir John's ships may be found under seven feet of ice and silt in the O'Reilly Island area, 1,700 miles northwest of Ottawa and in the vast territory to which Franklin gave his name.

Roots, of the Canadian department of mines and technical surveys, was encouraged by the results of a magnetometer survey undertaken in the hope of detecting the presence of a vanished ship.

Terror and Erebus said goodbye to the outside world when, on July 26, 1845, they parted from an Aberdeen whaler and sailed into Lancaster Sound, in Canada's far north in search of the Northwest Passage.

The ships had left the Thames in May of the previous year with 129 officers and men, carefully chosen from the Royal Navy and the whaling fleet, for the great adventure.

These men were the toast of seafaring Britain and the dictionary of national biography, which normally uses only basic language, noted: "Over their movements a dark curtain settled down which was raised slowly and with difficulty, but was it fully lifted.

The fate of the expedition was to arouse a decree of concern, probably rarely comparable to what would happen today if a team of astronauts disappeared into the outer reaches of space.

SHARED INTO ACTION

There was little anxiety until late in 1847 when public stirrings began to reflect the growing private worry of Lady Franklin, who began a 10-year campaign to save her husband, selling her jewels and property to finance expeditions and shaming the admiralty into action at public meetings.

The government eventually offered a reward of £20,000, a huge sum for that period, and in 1850 no less than 15 expeditions were operating at one time westward of Baffin Bay.

Author Stanley Hyland, in his Curiosities from Parliament, tells how pressures grew and the Franklin affair reached near — hysterical proportions among the less stable elements of the population.

One man advised the admiralty to sprinkle gunpowder over the Arctic ice and put a match to it—that would end Franklin. Another suggested a fleet of ships should be linked together with chains to drag the Arctic Ocean for the missing vessels.

Balloons and kites were pressed on the admiralty for rescue operations and forged messages by the dozen were picked up in bottles and canisters around the coast, purporting to come from Franklin.

PLANS OFFERED

"All this time, from the end of 1847 to the spring of 1852, the admiralty was being beset with volunteers who had secret plans which were guaranteed to succeed," says Hyland's account.

"Petitions were being delivered to Whitehall almost every week. The newspapers were busy without reluctance to the Franklin question. London's (editorial) writers were querulous and correspondents sarcastic."

One newspaper blasted that seven Lady Alberts, husband of Queen Victoria, was impressed by the powers of a clairvoyant named Emma who claimed that she "found" Franklin and talked to him amid the snowy wastes.

Franklin, she said, was praying at the time and this surprised her because it was a Tuesday, not Sunday. When Emma made this claim in October, 1849, Franklin had been dead nearly 3½ years.

The harassed admiralty learned from the two letters, written a year earlier, by a lieutenant and a seaman aboard the ship Renovation, headed for Quebec, telling of sighting an iceberg carrying two vessels in May, 1851.

Joseph Lynch, the passenger, wrote to his friend Limerick describing cathedral - like icebergs in a vivid way and added:

"We met, or rather saw at a distance, one with two ships on it, which I estimated must belong to Franklin's exploring squadron, as from the latitude and longitude we met them in they were drifting from the direction of Davis' Straits."

WITNESS HAD VISION

An admiralty representative later interviewed Lynch at Pictou, N.S., and learned that he had distressing visions of Franklin's men dying while the Renovation sailed past.

Lynch was apparently the victim of an over-active imagination, but three old London newspaper accounts have even more frightening accounts of the fate of Franklin's men, including slaughter by Eskimos.

The Arctic grudgingly yielded up fragmentary clues and, by 1931, it was reported that only 45 bodies had been accounted for, the bones found where the men dropped in a hopeless march after leaving the ice-encased ships.

Explorer Lockie T. Burwash, in a book published in Canada in 1931, says it was hopeless men made their way back to the ships, refloated them and perished in subsequent wrecks which occurred near O'Reilly Island and Hatty Island, northeast of King William Island.

A memorial to Franklin was erected in London's Waterloo Place, an inscription saying his body was consigned to the sea through a hole in the ice—a theory later attacked by one authority who insisted he must have been taken to land for burial, probably on Boothia Peninsula.

FOUND MESSAGE

An expedition led by Capt. F. L. McClintock returned to England in 1859 after finding a cairn at Point Victory with a message stating that Franklin died June 11, 1847. The message, written April 25, 1848, stated the survivors had deserted the ships which had been "beset" in the ice for 20 months.

What became of Erebus and Terror?

The admiralty, as well as interviewing Lynch, managed to make contact with other eye-witnesses of the iceberg with its strange cargo.

The admirals were unable to reach a conclusion on the identity of the mystery ships but they did establish one fact: No one aboard the Renovation, an unseworthy old tub, had heard of the £20,000 reward for news of Franklin.

Stanley Hyland, summarizing the investigation, commented:

"It is reasonable to assume, however, that most people outside the admiralty and some of them inside it, were convinced that the Erebus and Terror had been seen three-quarters of an hour on that bleak and terrible morning in May, 1851.

Perhaps Roots is destined to find the real answer under the Arctic ice at O'Reilly Island.

Bridgeview Jaycees First Charter Unit of Chamber To Be Formed in a Prison

By WALTER HAYES

NEW WESTMINSTER, B.C. (CP)—The Bridgeview Jaycees meet regularly behind prison walls.

It is not a matter of choice for the 53 members of the group. They are prisoners in the British Columbia penitentiary here.

The Bridgeview Jaycees recently became the first charter unit of the Junior Chamber of Commerce to be formed in a Canadian prison.

"The only limitations on the activities of the group are those imposed by the prison walls," says Alf Dunn, president of the New Westminster Jaycees who were instrumental in forming the group.

"Their social affairs are limited of course, but there are few limitations on their activities and projects."

He said the Bridgeview Jaycees formed in January, engage in the same activities as Jaycees outside prison — public speaking, chairmanship and parliamentary procedure courses.

They are considering adopting an orphan, repairing broken toys for Christmas distribution and are currently organizing a blood drive within the prison.

Where Jaycees outside the prison engage in safety campaigns on the highway and in the home, the Bridgeview Jaycees are planning a safety campaign for the prison machine shop, said Mr. Dunn.

"If given the chance to develop skills in speaking and business practices, many of these young men can return to society with a greater chance of rehabilitation."

PAY FOR PRIVILEGE

Mr. Dunn said the official reaction at the maximum security prison has been "100-per-cent favorable." Prison officials have already seen results showing in the constructive attitude taken by many men in the group.

"I don't know whether it will work out, but I'm all for it," said Warden John Maloney.

"We are very selective in our membership. Prisoners must benefit from the public speaking and various courses and not be the types who would use them to further their criminal careers.

"We are not interested in turning out bigger and better con men."

Warden Maloney said prisoners make sacrifices to join the group.

"They must cough up five cents a week for their dues. This doesn't sound like much, but it is when you have only 75 cents a week for spending money. That five cents means a sack of tobacco."

Mr. Dunn said membership in the group will be limited to between 25 and 30.

"It's too difficult to keep a large group active. With a group of between 25 and 30 everyone has an opportunity to participate in activities."

The Bridgeview Jaycees are affiliated with the Jaycee movement in British Columbia and Canada.

While it falls within the boundaries of New Westminster, it will operate independently.

However, the New Westminster Jaycees have formed a permanent liaison committee to keep in touch with the group and provide instructors for public speaking and other courses.

Healing Substance...
Shrinks Piles, Checks Itch

Exclusive healing substance proven to shrink hemorrhoids...and repair damaged tissue.

A renowned research institute has found a unique healing substance with the ability to shrink hemorrhoids painlessly. It relieves itching and discomfort in minutes and speeds up healing of the injured, inflamed tissues.

One hemorrhoidal case history after another reported "very striking improvement." Pain was promptly and gently relieved . . . actual reduction or retraction (shrinking) took place.

Among these case histories were a variety of hemorrhoidal conditions. Relief even occurred in cases of long standing, and most important of all, results were so thorough that this improvement was maintained over a period of many months.

This was accomplished with a new healing substance (Bio-Dyne) which quickly helps heal injured tissue and stimulates growth of new tissue. Bio-Dyne is offered in ointment and suppository form called Preparation H.

In addition to actually shrinking hemorrhoids, Preparation H lubricates and makes elimination less painful. It helps prevent infection which is a principal cause of hemorrhoids.

Just ask your druggist for Preparation H Suppositories or Preparation H Ointment (with a special applicator).

Industry Blossoms On Farm Fertilizer

By JIM NEAVES

REGINA (CP)—The greatest potential source of fertilizer for the world lies below the surface of Saskatchewan, one of the world's leading food-producing areas, but ironically the province imports most of its fertilizer requirements.

Potash, expected to play a major role in increasing world food production, has sparked a major industrial boom in the province while Saskatchewan farmers still obtain most of their needed fertilizer from British Columbia.

Saskatchewan wheat fields now help to make Canada one of the world's breadbaskets. However, economic factors and doubt that potash contains ingredients needed by Saskatchewan soil have restricted its use in the province.

Potash was discovered in Saskatchewan by an oil company drilling an exploratory test hole in 1943. It was not until the mid-1950s that the extent and the possibilities of potash exploitation were realized.

Reserves of potash cover an area about 450 miles long and up to 30 miles wide in the southern part of the province. Reserves are estimated in billions of tons.

Potash production in 1964 was estimated at about 1,690,000 tons and by 1970 is expected to exceed 4,000,000 tons annually.

DEPENDS ON MONEY

The potash bonanza has had the effect of focusing greater attention on the role of fertilizer and the chemical makeup of the soil in Saskatchewan, which last year produced about 348,000,000 of Canada's 500,000,000 tons of wheat.

But its use was geared to the economic situation of individual farmers.

Agriculture Minister A. H. McDonald emphasized this recently.

"One of the limiting factors is money in the farmer's pocket," he said. "Even the use of fertilizer was much above average in 1964 following a big crop and good sales the previous year."

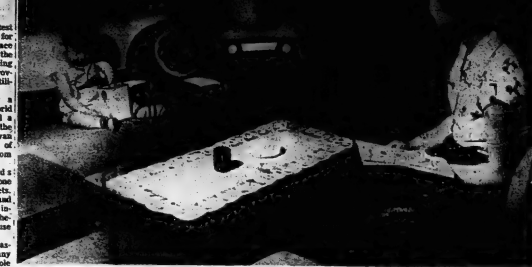
While production of potash reached about 1,600,000 tons last year, Saskatchewan used only what it exported, the province imported 119,300 tons of fertilizer, almost 70 per cent of which was ammonium nitrate. Most of this fertilizer was obtained from the Trail, B.C., area.

SOIL TESTS NEEDED

Extensive soil testing programs are needed to determine whether the province's 90,000 farmers can reduce their fertilizer costs by using more locally produced potash. Even now, it is undecided whether potash is needed.

A spokesman for Saskatchewan Power Corporation says "Under present methods of recommending fertilizer usage by types, there is no area in the province which would benefit by potash use."

The post says a broader program of soil testing is needed.



At its annual meeting last month the pool corporation recommended that the provincial agriculture department make capital grants available to the University of Saskatchewan to enable a soil and feed testing program to be established.

There now are no soil testing facilities, as such, available to Saskatchewan farmers.

They rely at present on the Advisory Fertilizer Council for recommendations concerning fertilizer use. The council is made up of representatives of the Canadian and provincial agriculture departments, the university and the fertilizer trade. For 1965, as in previous years, most of its recommendations, made on an area basis, are for the use of ammonium nitrate.

BRITISH ROAD TOLL

LONDON (AP)—Road accidents killed 7,870 people in Britain last year, 886 more than in 1963. Injuries totalled 277,670. The total of 385,480 casualties was eight per cent higher than last year, while motor traffic increased 11 per cent in volume.

DOMESTIC MARKET BOOMS — This picture which could easily have been taken in North America, is a typical Japanese living room. Exports Only a Fraction

Japanese Home Market Is Developing Production

By KEN SMITH
Canadian Press Business Editor

TOKYO (CP) — A surging domestic market has been the strength and despair of the post-war Japanese economy.

Although most foreigners tend to think of Japan as a country that exports almost all its production, the home market meets the needs of the country's 97,000,000 people, with their burgeoning demands for better living standards, has been a major factor in the country's post-war recovery.

Even in such international items as cameras, transistor radios and motor scooters, exports account for only a minor part of production runs.

For the great majority of Japanese, the lure of a North American living standard is irresistible. Feeding this demand has proved a multi-billion-dollar bonanza for domestic industrialists.

In five years the number of refrigerators per 1,000 population has risen to almost 200 from six, while the number of washing machines has quadrupled to almost 160.

The number of television sets has climbed to 200 for every 1,000 people from 15—there are more TV sets in Tokyo than there are families — and they are served by 380 TV stations, including 61 that broadcast color.

In 1963, the last year for which complete figures are available, Japan's 275 department stores sold almost $2,500,000,000 worth of goods to the Western - clothed crowds that throng them. In 1955 the total was only $643,200,000.

In non-consumer goods, too, the domestic market with its booming industry is potent.

Not only has the heavy machinery industry been kept busy filling domestic needs, but so have the newer industries.

Nippon Electric Co., for example, says demand for its new line of computers is so great it hasn't had time to think of exports yet.

An executive of Mitsubishi Chemical Co. admits his firm exports only five per cent of its output.

"We do this partly to keep the government, with its constant push for exports, happy and partly to keep our hand in foreign markets for future opportunities.

"But we could sell everything we make and then some right here in Japan—making more money for less work."

One senior banking official says the domestic market has been the real key to Japan's post-war recovery and not, as most visitors assume, export sales.

With domestic wages and tastes climbing steadily, businessmen are confident the home demand has hardly been scratched.

Explains a young, grey-flannel-suited executive of a large appliance maker who recently examined Madison Avenue's promotional techniques:

"Most of the demand that's been filled so far has been automatic. We haven't really explored the possibilities of modern advertising in sustaining purchasing."

With the sounds of Japanese jingles running through his mind he adds: "But we will."

Unfortunately for Japan, the bigger and better the domestic market becomes, the bigger and tougher grow its two major economic problems — cyclical balance-of-payments woes and rising price indexes.

Since Japan has few natural resources, most of the raw materials for its productive machinery have to be imported.

In 1955 imports — including foodstuffs — totalled $2,500,000,000. By 1958 they had jumped to $3,600,000,000 and last year, climbing at an annual average rate of about 20 per cent, more than doubled to $7,944,000,000.

Exports, despite some remarkable success stories, have not been able to keep pace when invisible items in the current account are added in.

In 1959 exports totalled $3,356,000,000 and last year $6,678,000,000, leaving a deficit of $1,266,000,000. As a result, Japan is probably more sensitive to anything that would either increase imports or hamper exports than any other major trading country in the world.

TIGHT MONEY IMPOSED

Japan's most recent balance-of-payments crisis came a year ago, but because of the peculiar nature of the financing of the country's business — about 60 per cent of the financing comes from banks under the thumb of the national bank that sets monetary policy — tight money and other restorative measures operate much more quickly in Japan than most other countries.

So far, because of this, the balance - of - payments crises have been ridden through. But since the domestic market is the first to feel the pinch of tight money when the central bank reins in credit, business and consumer opposition to restrictions is strong and getting stronger.

Some observers now are asking whether the government will be able to act firmly or quickly enough when—no one says if—the next crisis arises.

Another aspect of the economy worrying these observers is its growing complexity. Some now are suggesting that, though simple controls have worked effectively and quickly so far, they may not be good enough to meet future challenges.

For one thing, they say, the economy is too involved to be controlled by imposing or relaxing tight-money policies. For another, the domestic market may be too big to respond quickly enough to credit curbs to nip the next crisis in the bud.

As a result, government and some business officials are redoubling their efforts to abuse steadily expanding exports even at the cost of limiting domestic sales.

SEEK BETTER DEAL

A full-scale push now is on to crack through the protectionist barriers most European countries have erected against Japanese goods. Less than one per cent of Europe's imports come from Japan—a statistic that export officials take as a personal affront.

One government official in a recent interview made no bones about the frustration Japan feels over tariffs adopted by such countries as France and Italy to supply only to Japanese goods, as well as over the voluntary export quotas Japan has had to adopt in selling some products to countries such as Canada.

A related problem that both government and industry officials are studying is a serious shortage of capital for long-term financing of exports.

One large electronics firm says it continually loses sales to developing countries such as India because it is unable to match financing terms offered by competitors such as the United States, England and even Canada.

Meanwhile, spurred by the growing domestic demand and rising wages, the consumer price index has climbed sharply recently.

Using 1960 as the base year, the index stood at 93 in 1956. In 1963 it was up to 121 and last year is estimated to have risen another five points.

This hurts two ways.

First, the higher prices cut into Japan's international competitiveness and make it tougher to export. Second, they make the Japanese market more attractive to foreign manufacturers, thus increasing imports.

"Either way we lose," says a senior civil servant grimly.

Tomorrow: Big firms rarely fire anyone.

Some Prostitutes Joining Scotland Yard as Informers In Order to Catch Killer

By DOUG MARSHALL

LONDON (CP) — An attractive dark-haired Irish colleen who didn't look a day over 18 gave a coy giggle, ordered her gin and lime and left the pub arm-in-arm with the strange man she had been flirting with all evening.

Her colleague, left behind, shrugged an exposed shoulder and muttered cattily: "I just hope Kathy doesn't get Nothing Hill Gated and end up naked and dead on the old tow path tomorrow."

Katie didn't, not that time.

But she took a calculated risk. In the last 18 months six less fortunate prostitutes have met grisly and similar deaths at the hands of an unknown killer who preys on the vulnerable girls who will do almost anything for money. The naked bodies of all the victims have been found dumped on various patches of waste ground throughout the western London.

All the girls lived near or operated out of the seedy clubs and rough-and-tumble pubs in the area of Nothing Hill Gate, where Ladbroke Grove runs into Westbourne Grove.

The British police have dubbed this enclave of vice and destitution Murder Grove. And the man who kills, the psychopath for moral vengeance but simply for sexual kicks, has been nicknamed Jack the Stripper.

CONTINUE TRADE

Despite the macabre regularity of the killings—every 10 weeks or so—business goes on.

Katie and hundreds of girls like her continue to ply their profession as if oblivious to the fact that each new casual client may be the slayer.

But the London police, like the sophistication, is only skin-deep. Beneath the hard bright face they put on their nerve-jangling lives, the girls are frightened. At least six prostitutes have joined the Scotland Yard payroll as informers.

Most of the rest of the girls are co-operating with the police more readily than at any time since the 1959 Street Offences Act drove prostitutes off the streets and into clubs, pubs and private apartments.

In the all-out hunt, Scotland Yard has followed up innumerable tips from girls who gave dozens of men who patronize the girls, scant troops of police-women note the streets dressed for business and succeeded only in hauling a couple of smaller fish into the net.

HEADS SEARCH

Heading the search is Chief Superintendent John du Rose, who spends a good part of his day pacing his eight-by-10-foot office in nearby Shepherd's Bush police station. But he was once known as Four-day Johnnie because he never took more than four days to crack a case. He has been looking for the node murderer since the sixth victim, 37-year-old Bridie O'Hara, was uncovered in an Acton rubbish dump Feb. 18.

So far all du Rose has to go on is a pattern. All the murdered girls were fairly tall. All were either drowned or suffocated, perhaps by poisonous fumes.

Each body was completely naked, stripped of clothes and jewelry. All appeared to have been kept for some time after they were killed, in one case for nearly three weeks, before being dumped someime after midnight from what must have been a large car or truck.

MAY SAVE CLOTHES

Police believe the killer may have accumulated a "black museum" of clothes and jewelry taken from his victims.

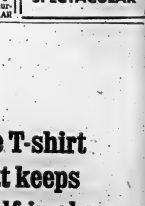
Although detectives once entertained the theory that several men were involved, perhaps a "club" specializing in perverse kicks, du Rose now is convinced the murderer is one outwardly — normal man with a small dark mind.

"I cannot stress too much that the murderer may be living next door to you," he told reporters. "He could be the man across the road who sips an late at night. He could be living a normal life most of the time."

Another problem for police trying to track down leads in the twisted world around Murder Grove is the area's incredible mixture of opulence and squalor. The social tide line is unpredictable to follow.

One bedraggled street of peeling terraced houses teems with coloured immigrants, prostitutes, homosexuals and a grab-bag of other weary down-and-outs. But the next street over has been fashionably rehabilitated by the wealthy. Lord and Lady may live in a redecorated home that was a brothel not so long ago. Harry Lee, Jamaica's British High Commissioner in Canada, owns a house just up the hill from Murder Grove.

For the ordinary citizens of Nothing Hill Gate, the node murders have had a mounting fear they have all been through before.



It was just down the street, at 10 Rillington Place, that John Christie, hanged in 1953 after one of the most celebrated murder trials of modern times, killed several prostitutes and stashed over half bodies in the kitchen cupboard.

Now living in 10 Rillington Place is 19-year-old Canadian housewife, Mrs. Mary Cadjon, who says of the deeds once done by her kindred: "I never think of it at all."

Roger Crozier, Detroit Red Wings pygmy of the pipes has proven the ghost of the National Hockey League rookies for the 1954-55 season.

He is the "midget goalie" mentioned in Punch Imlach's famous pre-season statement that the Red Wings "would not finish in the playoffs".

The twenty-three-year-old Saskatchewan native of the creole has maintained the tradition of trophy-winning Detroit Red Wings goaltenders. He is the winner of the Calder Memorial Trophy as the outstanding rookie in the National Hockey League.

The former Sf. Catharines' junior netminder won the double-voting award in a two-barrelled gallop. He finished with a total of 155 points in the voting. He gained 99 of a possible 98 points in the second half and 67 in the first.

Runner-up is Ron Ellis, Toronto Maple Leafs right-winger who received 107 points. In third place came Chicago goalkeeper Denis DeJordy with 29 points.

Crozier thus becomes the third straight regular Detroit goalkeeper to win the award. Terry Sawchuk, whom Crozier replaced this season after Sawchuk was drafted by Toronto, won the rookie award in 1950-51. Glenn Hall, who replaced Sawchuk in 1955-56 after Sawchuk was traded to Boston Bruins, won the Calder Trophy winner that season. Sawchuk was later traded back to Detroit and Hall went to Chicago.

Crozier is the fourth Red Wing to win the rookie award. The first was Jimmy McFadden in 1947-48. Crozier also follows two goaltenders as the only three players ever to win a berth on the First All-Star Team and the Calder Trophy in the same season. Sawchuk won both honors in 1950-51 and former Boston goaltender Frank Brimsek did it in 1938-39.

Crozier was named to the All-Star Team earlier this week and received a total $1,750 in All-Star award money. He adds another $1,500 in prize money for his Calder Trophy win; $1,000 as over-all winner plus $250 for leading the vote in the first half and $250 for leading in the second half.

Ellis, who scored 29 goals for the Leafs during the regular season and, with 39 points, was the leading scorer among rookies, receives $500 as runner-up in the final count.

Crozier, a native of Bracebridge, Ont., was acquired by the Wings in a trade with Chicago Black Hawks in the summer of 1953. He played junior hockey with St. Catharines in the Ontario Hockey Association before turning professional with St. Louis of the Central Professional Hockey League in 1952-53.

This season he led the NHL in shutouts with six and played the most games among goaltenders, 69%. He was beaten 163 times for a goals-against average of 2.42 and lost the Vezina Trophy to Terry Sawchuk of Toronto by two goals in the last game of the season. As runner-up in the Vezina Trophy race he received $500, thus boosting his award money from the league to $7,000. Besides the $1,750 he won in All-Star awards and the $7,000 in the Vezina and Calder Trophy races, he collects $2,250 as his share for Detroit's NHL championship and another $1,000 as his share in the Wings' loss to Chicago in the Stanley Cup semi-final.

Following is a list of players who received points in the voting for the Calder Memorial Trophy. Figures in brackets are the points in the first half, second half and combined total:

Roger Crozier, Detroit (67-88—155); Ron Ellis, Toronto (53-54—107); Denis DeJordy, Chicago (25-4—29; Red Selling, New York (8-2—11); Ted Hampfield, Chicago (3-2—5); Yvan Cournoyer, Montreal 2-1—4); Peter Stemkowski, Toronto (0-2—3); Bob Wytovich, Boston (0-2—2); Doug Jarvel, Chicago (0-2—2); Mat Ravlich, Chicago (1-1—2); Ted Harris, Montreal (1-1—2); Doug Robinson, Chicago-New York (0-1—1); Arnie Brown, New York (1-0—1).

May Cancel Series ★★★★★ Suspensions At Least

Wild Bloody Brawl Halts Cup Game

By DON MacLACHLAN

EDMONTON (CP) — Suspensions were expected for at least three players after Edmonton Oil Kings rattled Niagara Falls Flyers 5-1 Monday night in the third game of the 1955 Canadian Junior hockey championship.

Referee Jim McAuley of Montreal ended hostilities with 5½ minutes remaining in the third period after a wild brawl had been halted by 20 Edmonton city policemen.

Art Potter of Edmonton, past-president of the Canadian Amateur Hockey Association, instructed McAuley to halt the game. Potter said he would recommend in a full report to Fred Page of Port Arthur, CAHA vice-president in charge of the best-of-seven Memorial Cup final, that the series be "called off."

One Edmonton player, captain Bob Falkenberg, was carried from the ice on a stretcher after being pummelled by 46-year-old Niagara Falls forward Derek Sanderson.

"There will be a few suspensions, I have little doubt," Potter said.

SIX FIGHTS

Sanderson received a match penalty for his part in the brawl, which included six fights before police restored order.

Niagara Falls defenceman Ricky Ley and Edmonton winger Ron Anderson were assessed match penalties for attempted stick - swinging duel early in the third period.

Both were in the dressing room for the closing fracas, which Potter described as "butchery."

"The series could easily be over," Potter said. "I have been told the (Edmonton) Gardens is closed until this is settled."

In all, 21 penalties were called including three match penalties, nine majors and three 10-minute misconducts. Falkenberg suffered a five-stitch cut over his eye and a slight concussion but it was expected he would be ready to play the next game.

Fourth game is scheduled for Wednesday night with a fifth set for Friday.

Edmonton led 3-1 after the first period and 4-1 after the second, before 3,402 fans.

FANS, FLYERS START

The clubs stuck to hockey in only one period — the second. The first ended in a near-riot involving fans and Niagara Falls players after Flyer forward Bill Gold's scrappy was felled at the final whistle by Falkenberg. The brawl was quelled by police.

Falkenberg received a five-minute major for spearing and Niagara Falls owner-manager Hap Emms said Goldsworthy is a doubtful starter for the fourth game. Goldsworthy returned to play after the incident but retired for good after a crushing check by Edmonton defenceman Al Hamilton.

Hamilton figured in the fight that led directly to the end of play at 16:30 of the final period. He tangled with Rosaire Paiement at the Flyer blue-line and suffered a cut nose when they fell together.

Potter said Paiement and Andre Lajeunesse received major penalties, Flyer defenceman Dave Woodley a 10-minute misconduct and Sanderson a major and match penalty for their parts in the brawl.

Garnett (Ace) Bailey and Hamilton received majors for Edmonton.

Potter said no Edmonton penalties were assessed but he did not say the issue was closed. Niagara Falls leads the series 2-1.

GOALIE JOINED IN

The uproar started in the first period when Sanderson tangled with Brian Benedict near the Niagara Falls net. Starting Flyer goaltender Doug Favell entered the fray.

Favell, replaced by Bernie Parent after the first period, surrendered goals to Fran Huck, Jim Cardiff and Ross Parkes before he left. Favell was beaten by Dave Rogers in the second period and Red Simpson in the third.

Sanderson scored the only Flyer goal.

Western, AL May Interlock

SEATTLE (AP) — Western Hockey League owners agreed at their annual meeting here Monday to negotiate with the American League on an interlocking schedule for next season.

Such an arrangement would produce the nation's first transcontinental hockey tieup, and possible coast-to-coast televising of games.

"We would have one thing to offer television which the National Hockey League does not — a national market area," said Jack Riley, AHL president who attended the WHL meeting.

A final decision on the interlocking schedule was expected when the owners of the six WHL clubs and nine AHL teams meet in Montreal during the National Hockey League meetings June 17 to 9.

Under the proposal, each WHL team would make a six-game swing into the east, and each AHL club would come west for four games.

Murray Costello, assistant to WHL president Al Leader, said the WHL schedule would consist of 60 league and 10 interlocking games—all of them coming in the standings.

The WHL has teams in Victoria and Vancouver, Seattle, Portland, San Francisco and Los Angeles.

AHL cities are Baltimore, Pittsburgh, Cleveland, Springfield, Buffalo, Rochester, Hershey, Providence, and Quebec City.

American May Be 'Desirable'

Many Seek Campbell's Position

MONTREAL (CP)—The National Hockey League has received so many applications for a successor to president Clarence Campbell that the league may have to appoint a professional management placement service to narrow the field to three top candidates.

This suggestion was made Monday by J. David Molson, an NHL governor and president of the Stanley Cup champion Montreal Canadiens. Molson said in an interview he has already received "good support" for the idea from the majority of league governors.

The league announced last winter that it is looking for a successor to Campbell, president since 1946. There is no deadline for Campbell's retirement. But it was hoped to appoint someone now to work with Campbell with a view to taking over from him when the time is ripe.

Molson said he has received about 15 applications, six from Americans. Campbell said "all kinds of them" have come into the NHL office. He wasn't certain of the number.

Molson said the job of president is a big one, added significance since the league's recent decision to add six teams by 1967 in order to concentrate the U.S. television market.

Looking to the future, Molson said he favors a two-office setup for the NHL. One office, to look after some administrative and public relations work, would be established in a U.S. city, probably New York.

The other office would "obviously have to remain in Canada, in Toronto or Montreal, where the whole guts of the operation —that is the development of players — is centred at the present time."

Molson also said that the appointment of an American to replace Campbell would be "desirable" because of the changes that would result with expansion.

Only two Canadian teams compete in the NHL. At the moment, Vancouver appears to be the only Canadian candidate for the proposed six-team expansion. The other teams would all come from U.S. cities.

Postponed Two Days

Colonial May Resume Today

FORT WORTH, Tex. (AP)—Texas aides held a partial solution today of a $100,000 question—the outcome of the Colonial National Invitation golf tournament.

Heavy showers punctuated by lightning have made it necessary to postpone for two days the final round of the 72-hole event and installed George Knudson of Toronto as perhaps the only five-day leader of the PGA tournament.

Knudson seized the lead Thursday, shared it with Bruce Crampton Friday and regained sole possession Saturday.

With a 54-hole total of 209, Knudson held a one-shot margin over Crampton and Tony Lema as the field prepared to try again today.

A formidable sextet, three shots behind at 212, comprised Julius Boros, Gardner Dickinson, Doug Sanders, Chi Chi Rodriguez, Don January and Al Geiberger.

Tournament officials said if rain prevented the windup today the tournament would probably be extended until Wednesday. Beyond that point, with the Greater New Orleans Open scheduled to begin Thursday, plans remained indefinite.

A number of players, weary with the soggy situation, received permission Monday to withdraw.

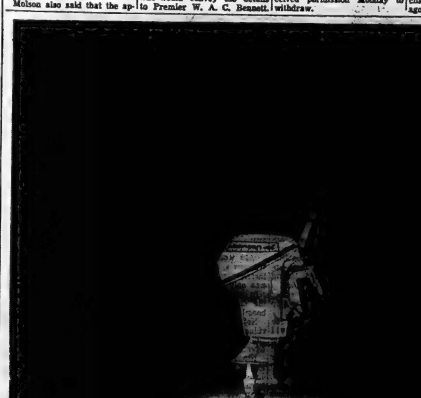
Astrodome For Vancouver?

VANCOUVER (CP)—A Texas company says it is prepared to build a multi - purpose, $15,000,000 astrodome here — cheaper but better than the world's first enclosed baseball park at Houston — worth $43,000,000.

The firm is putting together a bid to erect a building seating as many as 50,000 fans for football, baseball, hockey and perhaps harness racing.

James F. Delaney, in a telephone interview Monday from his Houston office, said he represented Appeit Industries Corp. in a recent meeting here to discuss the plan.

He said he was invited by Jack McGrath, Vancouver industrialist and engineer. At the meeting were Herb Capilano, general manager of B.C. Lions of the Western Football Conference; Reeve Alan Emmott of suburban Burnaby, where the Astrodome might be built; and Bill Clancey, a public relations man described as the person who would convey the details to Premier W. A. C. Bennett.



Will Coach National Hoop Team

VANCOUVER (CP) — Stuart W. Aberdeen, 29, basketball coach at Acadia University in Wolfville, N.S., has been named coach of Canada's national basketball team.

Luke Moyia, president of the Canadian Amateur Basketball Association, said Monday Aberdeen will head a 10-man team touring Central and South America next month.

The national team will be selected from 36 candidates who will train at the University of British Columbia for three weeks beginning May 24.

Aberdeen, a graduate of Truculum and Springfield colleges in the U.S., has coached Acadia for the last seven years. Acadia has won five consecutive Intercollegiate Conference championships, four eastern regional championships and represented the east each year since the national inter-college championships began four years ago.

Sox Homers Beat Yanks

Two For Yastrzemski

By DICK COUCH
Associated Press Sports Writer

Carl Yastrzemski who believes a few more hits to left field will make him a challenger for the American League batting championship he won two years ago, hit two home runs and a double Monday night, giving Boston Red Sox a 3-2 victory over New York Yankees.

The 25-year-old Boston star knocked in a first-inning run with a fly, homered into the left-field screen in the fourth and drove deep into the right-field stands in the eighth to snap a 2-2 deadlock.

Mickey Mantle drove in both New York runs with his fifth homer and a single but the Yankees plummeted to ninth place despite pitcher Bill Stafford's first complete game since 1962.

Minnesota Twins edged Chicago White Sox 4-3 and Detroit Tigers nipped Baltimore Orioles 5-4 in the only other American League games scheduled.

Minnesota rookie Mel Nelson relieved Jim Kaat with one run in, two on and none out in the ninth and retired three straight hitters to save the Twins' victory over the White Sox.

Rich Rollins drove in two runs for the Twins with a double and ground out and scored the deciding run in the sixth on Jerry Zimmerman's single. Dave Nicholson homered for the White Sox.

Al Kaline hit his third home run in three days, a three-run shot in the first inning that helped the Tigers gain a split of their four-game series at Baltimore. The Orioles wiped out the early deficit, however, and led 4-3 until Dick McAuliffe singled across a fifth inning run and the Tigers added an unearned run in the sixth on Don Demeter's single, Bill Freehan's double and an error by Jackie Brandt.

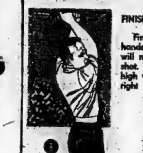
May Fight in Massachusetts

Legal Beagles Upstage Bout

BOSTON (AP) — The legal beagles continue to upstage the combatants in the saga of the postponed, maligned and now transplanted world heavyweight title fight.

As a refresher, that's the one that pits champion Cassius Clay and Sonny Liston in Lewiston, Me., May 25. It started its rocky road to reality nine months, one hernia operation and a court battle over a "banned in Boston" injunction ago.

But back to legalities.



District Attorney Garrett Byrne of Suffolk County who sought the injunction to block the fight scheduled at Boston Garden May 25 prior to last Friday, indicates his investigation isn't over. He says he may present evidence to a grand jury and is interested in alleged "pressure" applied to get the fight in Massachusetts.

Meanwhile, a source close to Inter - continental Promotions, Inc. says the group and Sportsvision, the closed-circuit television outfit, have lawyers investigating the possibility of suing Byrne for $5,000,000.

Byrne says he doesn't feel Inter-Continental pulled out of Boston to put him on the spot but rather "they knew they would have lost and didn't want an injunction issued against them."

Byrne says he has a letter from chairman Herman Greenberg of the Massachusetts Boxing Commission to Mervyn McKenzie of Toronto, president of the World Boxing Association, written last September, mentioning "several" applied in originally bringing the fight to Massachusetts.

THE ARNOLD Palmer Method
by GOLF'S 4-TIME MASTERS WINNER

FINISH HIGH FOR SOLID SHOTS

Finishing the swing with your hands high as I am doing in No. 1 will not, in itself, ensure a good shot. However, planning to finish high will help you to move your right shoulder down and under properly (No. 2) and this shoulder move does help provide a solid blow.

When the right shoulder moves down and under, the clubhead will move into the ball from inside to along the target line (No. 3). This will give you power for the shot and maximum skying or pulling, which will occur when the clubhead comes late to the ball from outside the line.

Brigg's Bat Wins Place on Team

Dodgers, Phillies Win 10-Inning Tilts

By MURRAY CHASS
Associated Press Sports Writer

Philadelphia's Johnny Briggs, a 21-year-old outfielder, had expected to turn into an Arkansas traveler tonight. But he was sent to bat as a pinch hitter in the ninth inning of Monday night's game with St. Louis.

Twenty minutes later, the Phillies had a 4-3 victory and Briggs owned a spot on the team's 25-man roster.

Briggs, in his second season with the Phillies, doubled and scored the tying run in the ninth, then slammed a two-run homer in the 10th.

His name has been tossed around as one of three players who must be pared from the roster by midnight tonight, the markers' cutdown deadline. He would have gone to the minors at Little Rock, Ark.

In the only other National League game, Los Angeles edged Houston 3-2 in 10 innings. Cincinnati and Pittsburgh battled in the third inning.

The Cardinals moved in front 2-1 in the eighth inning as Dick Shannon beat Dick Stuart's throw to the plate on Dick Groat's slow grounder.

But Briggs batted for Jack Baldschun and doubled off the scoreboard. Two outs later, he raced home on Johnny Callison's single. Bob Purkey retired the first two Phillies in the 10th before Roben Amaro singled. Briggs, who had remained in the game as the left fielder, came up next and drove the ball over the right field wall.

The Dodgers won their game with two out in the 10th, too. Lou Johnson led off with a long single with two out, then stole second and continued to third when catcher John Bateman fired the ball wildly.

After Hal Woodeshick walked Jim Lefebvre, Ron Fairly rapped a single to centre, scoring Johnson.

Jim Maloney has limited the Astros to three hits through seven innings, but they erupted for a 2-2 tie in the eighth on doubles by Joe Morgan and Bob Aspromonte and Jim Beauchamp's single.

Slip Cost Pitcher No-Hitter

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

A slip on some wet grass by third baseman John Ryan cost veteran Ryne-ous Chiefs southpaw Ron Nischwitz an international League no-hitter.

As a result of the slip, Jim Napier was given credit for a scratch single in the ninth inning Monday night and Nischwitz had to settle for a one-hitter in beating Jacksonville 5ime 6-0.

On other games, Toledo Mud Hens edged Buffalo Bisons 5-4 in 10 innings and league - leading Atlanta Crackers walloped Rochester Red Wings 15-4.

Ryan had a grand slam home run in consolation for his mishap and Fred Hopke hit a solo homer.

Buffalo squandered a 4-0 lead in its game with Toledo but still had a chance to win the game in the eighth inning. Then Choo Choo Coleman failed to step on home plate as he came home on a single by ninth hitter Larry Burright and the winning run didn't count.

Atlanta held a comfortable 8-4 lead over Rochester going into the top of the ninth but the Crackers figured that was not enough. They doubled their lead in that inning.

The Crackers wound up with 22 hits, nine for extra bases, including Gene Stephens' fourth homer of the year. Joe Altobelli hit a two-run homer for the Red Wings.

Four Take Lead In Bike Race

MONTREAL (CP) — Four teams were tied in first place early today as racers passed the half-way mark in the six-day international bicycle race here.

With 910 miles covered, Italy, Belgium, Germany and Spain were running neck and neck.

However, the Italian pair of Guiseppe Beghetto and Sergio Bianchetto had more than doubled the sprint point total of their nearest rival—Belgium.

In the event of a tie for first place, the decision goes to the team with the highest aggregate points accumulated in the hourly sprints.

The Italians had piled up 332 sprint points, while Romain Debloel and Horst Oldenburg of Belgium had 232. Germany's Klaus Bugdahl and Grassmilinghaus Klemens had 141 and Guillermo Timoner and Francesco Tortella of Spain, Monday's early leaders, had 124 points to their credit.

Following Spain was the English team, riding three laps behind the leaders. Although they dropped a lap in the evening's cycling, the English duo had the second-highest sprint-point total —343.

Young Indian Believes Integration Is Only Answer To His People's Problems

By RON MacDONALD

EDMONTON (CP)—Vernon Brown is a young Indian who believes integration is the answer to his people's problems.

And he doesn't think discrimination will be a matter of major concern during the integration process.

Vernon has already taken the first steps himself. He left his home on the little British Columbia coastal Indian village of Kitkatla three years ago and came 650 miles to Edmonton to complete his high school education.

This year, his graduation year before going on to a four - year commercial art course in Vancouver, he is working 30 to 35 hours a week as a page in the Alberta legislature.

During the summer the athletic-looking 19-year-old earns a salary on his uncle's halibut-fishing boat at Kitkatla. He dabbles in sketching and oil painting, largely landscapes, in his spare time. And looks forward to a career as a commercial artist, maybe.

"I believe integration is the only answer for us," he says. "We have to become reserves and villages to find good jobs.

"The older people in our village feel the same way and encourage young people to do this. There's one young girl from the village who's going to university now."

Vernon says he doesn't believe Indians will face discrimination when they leave their home villages and reservations.

"A lot of the time when we think there's discrimination it's our own fault. We often feel an inferiority complex."

As for himself, he said he has never run into anything he would consider discrimination.

He got his job in the legislature on the recommendation of the principal of the new modern composite high school in Edmonton where he is studying.

The Indian affairs department pays his living expenses at an Indian residence in Edmonton and takes care of his high school fees. The $30 to $35 a week at $1 an hour he earns as a page is spending money.

Vernon says he's getting something out of his job—an education in the democratic process.

His job involves carrying messages for MLAs while the house sits, keeping members' files of bills and other papers in shape, and some clerical work in the office of the clerk of the legislature.

Most of the work is in the afternoon, giving him and four other pages time to attend morning classes. Additional homework is required to keep up with classmates who don't work.

The job lasts only as long as the legislature session—six to eight weeks. When school is over Vernon will go home to Kitkatla, a village of 500 on a small island 45 miles southeast of Prince Rupert.

He came to Edmonton for high school because there are Indian residential facilities nearby and because the trip provided an opportunity to plug out into the world. Three sisters and two brothers are in grade school in Prince Rupert.

Survival Course - - A Must for Hunters

By BOB TRIMBEE

EDMONTON (CP) — Survival training is like insurance policies—you receive it until you need it, says Paul Presidente, chief of Alberta's hunter training.

But while insurance does not increase your chance of an ex-tended life, survival training will, he adds.

Survival in the wilds is one phase of an extensive educational course offered by Alberta's Wildlife Service aimed at increasing knowledge and confidence of sportsmen in the interest of hunter safety and greater enjoyment of the outdoors.

"The course is not intended to be the last word on any particular aspect of hunting, it does it include everything. It is a broad base on all facets of hunting and fishing designed to give anyone a good grounding from which they can continue more intensive study in areas of personal interest."

It includes a broad look at principles involved in game management and legislation, hunting regulations, game and fowl habits and identification, fishing, care of firearms, hunting hints, first aid for the bushwife who prepares game meat for meals, archery, first aid and survival.

Today there are more than 200 qualified instructors and more than 1,000 Alberta sportsmen and women among the 117,000 who purchase either fishing or hunting licenses have graduated from the course.

KNOWLEDGE RELAYED

Presidente, a 46-year-old Fort Saskatchewan native, who once headed the RCAF's survival training school, personally trained most of the province's 12 conduct free instructor's courses. The graduates then are responsible for passing the knowledge along to sportsmen at the local level.

Often a fee of about $1 is charged by instructors to pay the rent of halls used as classrooms.

"Within five or six years we expect about 25,000 sportsmen will have taken the course. While it now is not compulsory, when a significant number have graduated pressures could well arise for such action.

"Ontario, which has run into a rash of hunting accidents, has a compulsory course. Five other provinces, including Alberta, conduct them on a voluntary basis."

However, Alberta is the only province to offer a program which extends far beyond mere hunting safety and gun handling. In its two years of operation it has gained national attention among wildlife officials as a possible model for other governments and three — B.C., Newfoundland and Yukon Territories — have made detailed studies of the Alberta course during preliminary work aimed at introducing something similar in their areas.

Manitoba and Saskatchewan, which long have had a hunter-training program, are considering incorporation in their plans of some features of the Alberta program.

MUST ATTEND

One area of intensive interest among officials outside Alberta is Presidente's system to ensure graduate instructors remain active.

"We require all instructors to attend a week-long course and then get at least 75 per cent on a written test of 132 questions. Anyone who has not attended every lecture cannot write the exam.

"Once they have made the grade they continue to hold an instructor's certificate only as long as they produce at least 10 students a year. If they don't meet this requirement, their certificate is cancelled until they enrol in another course and again pass the examination."

Students must get 60 per cent in a short, 30-question test to pass. The test follows a 22-hour course given by local instructors.

Presidente says the survival portion of the course always gains wide interest "because most sportsmen are interested in knowing how to make do in the wilds without carrying a lot of unnecessary gear."

"But this also is the section where most people make the greatest number of mistakes in the test. Many errors result from candidates either thinking the test includes trick questions, which it doesn't.

"An example is a question which asks what species of upland birds would you find in a spruce forest. Many students will not answer spruce grouse because they think the answer is too simple to be right."

Margaret Rutherford Says Retirement as Actress at 72 Would Be Death of Her

By RAYMOND R. PALMER

LONDON (AP) — Margaret Rutherford is back on the stage, to the delight of fans near enough to see her.

After an absence of 3½ years, she opened this week at the Saville Theatre in The Solid Gold Cadillac, playing the part created on Broadway by the late Josephine Hull.

"The theatre is still to me the mother art," says Miss Rutherford, "I could never desert her. Movie making is only the handmaiden, though the money is better. But I find the theatre more spiritually rewarding."

But whether she appears on stage or in a movie, Margaret Rutherford is very possibly the most popular of all British actresses with audiences everywhere. She represents to them the epitome of resourceful tweedily eccentric British womanhood, charging through life blowsefs of British fastidiousness, looking for stuffed shirts to poke with her umbrella. And they love her.

Her chins are a quivering, jowly affair. Her duffles set in a face that has been affectionately compared with a highly moved bloodhound.

HELPS CAREER

But what makes her face lovely is the woman behind it. It is a character that makes small boys in a reform school she visits call her "mum."

"Let me be honest," she says. "I must attribute at least part of my success to this face of mine: my five chins and all my wrinkles have been a great help."

Her face and the public image she has created certainly bring her instant recognition.

"Only the other day," she said, "a dear old lady came up to me and she might shake me by the hand. You have no idea how that sort of thing cranks one up for the next day of work, and at my age (she is 72), one needs cranking up occasionally."

Last year Prime Minister Wilson presented her with the Variety Club of Britain's Silver Heart award as best actress of the year. Her performance as the Duchess of Brighton in The V.I.P.s won her an Academy Award for the best supporting actress of 1963.

Margaret Rutherford was born in London May 11, 1892, the daughter of William and Florence Rutherford. Her mother died when Margaret was three years old and she was brought up by an aunt and a grandmother. She made up her mind to go on the stage when she acted in a family Christmas play at the age of seven but she did not take it up professionally until she was 30.

ATTENDED OLD VIC

Her opportunity to take up acting came when her aunt saw her a small legacy. In 1925 she enrolled at the Old Vic School of Acting, studying under Lilian Bayliss for two years. Her first stage appearance, at the age of 33, was a fairy with a long nose in a Christmas pantomime.

Her success was not exactly instantaneous. After a long period she had to return to music teaching — her original profession — to support herself. Eventually she was offered an understudy role at the Lyric Theatre in suburban Hammersmith. She was followed by engagements with several repertory companies and she finally reached London in 1933 in Wild Justice. After that there were starring roles and a film debut in Dusty Ermine in 1936.

Since her first timorous stage appearance she has taken a wide range of roles in some 35 movies and 100 plays.

She met Stringer Davis when he was her leading man in the Oxford Repertory Company. They married in March, 1945.

Margaret Rutherford refuses to think about retirement.

"It would be the death of me, retirement," she says. "Ideally, I would like to go on working for as long as possible. I know that the idea of anyone at my age continuing full steam ahead with a career is ridiculous, but I love my work so dearly, I never want to leave."

STAMP ON SALE

FULTON, Mo. (AP)—A U.S. commemorative postage stamp in honor of the late Sir Winston Churchill will go on sale here Tuesday. This central Missouri city drew the honor of issuing the stamp for the first time because it was here that Churchill delivered his famous "iron curtain" speech on March 5, 1946, at Westminster College. The stamp bears a photograph of Britain's wartime prime minister.

Mancini Took Half Hour to Write Hit Song

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Henry Mancini composes hit songs the way some people dash off a letter to mother.

The Oscar-winning composer took all of a half-hour to write Dear Heart, which Frank Sinatra calls one of the greatest of the new songs.

It took him a little longer—but not much—to compose the music for Moon River and Days of Wine and Roses.

"I don't think I've ever spent more than an hour on any one song," says Mancini, "but that doesn't count the thinking that goes on beforehand."

At the moment he is scoring The Great Race, a picture that runs about three hours. It takes him a whole week to write all the music for a movie that long.

That's why he is so much in demand to score movies — it costs a lot of money to hire musicians by the week.

Mancini has to write songs for movies in order to work in all his other jobs.

In addition when big bands are short, Mancini plays dozens of college concerts each year. His record albums are big sellers, especially among the college crowd.

What does he think about Beatle music?

"To tell the truth, I frankly think much about it. I hear their market is a certain age group—mine another," says the tall young man from Aliquippa, Pa.

Miming Out For Britain's Pop Singers

LONDON (AP)—A top television executive warns Britain's singers that from now on they must really sing.

Milan Allen, head of the light entertainment department of Rediffusion Television, says:

"From now on miming is out. We're never been happy about it—there's an element of cheating about it and from now on simply have to sing live."

It has long been an open secret of British show business that some top-line recording stars can't sing outside the recording studio. Their records are put together by expert recording managers who amplify reed-thin voices. On television the singers just pretend to sing while a record is played.

Rediffusion is one of the companies running commercial television in the London area.

Brian Epstein, manage of the Beatles, can can sing and usually perform live on television—was all for the ban.

Harlow Story Paints Sordid Picture of Town

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Producer Larry Jackson wonders if Hollywood is wise to make movies about itself, such as the Jean Harlow Story.

Jackson believes the Harlow Story, as does Irving Stoneman's bestseller, painted a sordid picture of the town.

"Hollywood has spent millions to get rid of the sinful city image, to play down the eccentricities of some of its stars," says Jackson. "Then a book about the town becomes a best-seller and producers fight to film it.

"For years we have wanted to be as pure as Faduch, as sensible as Seattle, as demure as Des Moines. And we can't bust that sought-for respectability with just one film."

Jackson asks: "Is it worth it?"

Joe Levine, who is making the Harlow Story, says yes, if the picture makes money.

"After all, Jackson is working on the premise that actors are like other people."

"BEACH BLANKET BINGO"
TALL FILM GALS
PREFER SHORTIES

VIMtating all of the accepted rules of reason, tall blonde beach bunnies Mary Hughes and Mary Sturdivant, featured players in American International's new color and Panavision musical comedy "Beach Blanket Bingo," showing tonight and Wednesday for its last two days, prefer to date fellows on the short side.

Mary Hughes is 20 and stands 5 feet, eight inches tall. Mary Sturdivant is 19 and stands 5 feet 8¼ inches tall.

Neither finds her height a disadvantage. NO the contrary. Mary S. is convinced that tall girls have all the best of it.

"You can wear more things and look better in them even carrying 10 pounds of overweight," she says. Mary S. weighs 133 pounds.

"It's quite an advantage," says Mary H. "When I walk in some place, everyone sees me immediately, and I can also see them. What's more, a girl with long legs can wear things other girls wouldn't dare put on."

Mary H. prefers sportswear, with a strong leaning to pants and bikini bathing suits. "I get with long legs likes to show them off," she confides.

Both beauties say they have rarely dated a boy as tall or taller than they though they admit that most modern young sters are growing taller and taller than their forebearers.

But Mary S. gives some provincial insight into their reasoning when she says, "in Hollywood the boys tend to be so strikingly handsome a girl needs something to make her stand out so she doesn't get an inferiority complex."

Complete shows at 7:00 and 9:10 p.m.; doors open 6:30 p.m.

Diversified TV Menu Given Viewers Monday

By CYNTHIA LOWRY

NEW YORK (AP) — A rewarding and diversified menu of television viewing was available Monday night for viewers willing to switch networks often.

Chronologically, it started with ABC's The Pilgrim Adventure, recreating with magnificent color production the story of the hardships and rewards of the stubborn English group determined to worship as it saw fit.

The TV saga followed the pilgrims into self - exile in Holland, and finally, on the long, cruel journey to uncharted America.

The hour concluded with the triumphant account of their first Thanksgiving.

Then, in sharp contrast, came Jonathan Winters' final comedy special of the season on NBC, and a gay breezy hour it proved to be with the star at top form.

Finally there was the special tribute on CBS to the composer Jean Sibelius, whose 100th birth anniversary is being observed in his native Finland this year. The half-hour program included some of his music and was made at his forest home in southern Finland.

It is a rare and happy even-

'Expert' Says American Girls Make Best Nudes

By JAMES BACON

HOLLYWOOD (AP)—"I have undressed 10,000 women in my years," says Michel Gyarmathy, thus qualifying him for the most interesting occupation a sweep-stakes.

Gyarmathy, fir want of a better title, calls himself the director of sex appeal for the Folies Bergere, both in Paris and Las Vegas.

His main job is picking the gorgeous showgirls and then supervising their costuming, which is mostly undress. He was in town recently looking for more girls for the French revue.

"The American girl has become the loveliest of all showgirls—and, believe it or not, the most disciplined," says Michel.

In all his years with the Folies, what two stars impressed him the most with talent?

"Joseph Bakar and Mistinguett. They also were the most temperamental.

WAS A SENSATION

"When Josephine made her first performance in the '30s, no one in Europe could believe what they saw—a 19-year-old brunette vixen, half-nude, lying on a leopard skin. She was a hit immediately.

"Cole Porter, Ernest Hemingway and other Americans living in Paris at the time used to come to her dressing room time after time."

Mistinguette, famed for having the most beautiful legs in the world was jealous of the St. Louis-born Miss Baker, Gyarmathy recalls.

"She used to say: 'What is the name of that Negro woman who dances with the bananas around her hips?'"

Gyarmathy, Budapest - born, started as a dancer with the Folies in the 1920s. For the last

Bishops Ask Homosexual Acts Allowed

LONDON (Reuters) — Eight members of the House of Lords —five of them Anglican bishops — have asked the government for a reform of a law which would allow private homosexual acts between consenting adults.

In a letter to the London Times, the eight peers pointed out that in spite of the recommendations appointed Wolfenden committee, after a three-year study of the laws governing prostitution, a change in the law which now forbids such practices in public or in private.

The 15 - member Wolfenden committee, composed of lawyers, doctors, churchmen, peers and three women, was named after its chairman, 64-year-old Sir John Wolfenden, former vice-chancellor of reading university.

Explaining its views, the committee said in its report it felt it was not the function of the law to intervene in the private lives of citizens.

The signers of the letter today were the bishops of Birmingham, Bristol, Exeter, London and St. Albans, Lord Pakenham, a former Appeal Court judge, Lord Brain, a distinguished neurologist, and Lord Robbins, a prominent educationist.

New Shakeup In Security Setup Is Made

LONDON (AP) — Another shakeup was under way in Britain's security services today following the arrest of a former high-level intelligence officer that he was a double agent who sold rocket secrets to the Russians.

The man in charge of the shakeup is Sir Roger Hollis, who exposed the Profumo scandal in 1963. Wigg holds the sinecure post of paymaster general in Prime Minister Wilson's cabinet; in Whitehall they call him "spymaster general."

His first task, informed sources reported, has been to strengthen the system of screening government employees with access to secrets.

The system has been shaken up repeatedly in the wake of spy scandals during the last five years. But rocket spy Frank Bossard, an admitted security risk by usual standards, was able to operate undetected for nearly four years in the defence ministry.

Bossard, 52, was sentenced to 21 years in prison at the Old Bailey centre criminal court Monday after pleading guilty to four charges of selling secrets to the Russians and one of recording secret documents.

In a second and, unconnected trial Monday, an army sergeant, Percy Sidney Allen, 33, was jailed for 10 years on three charges of selling military information to Arab states.

Allen was small fry, but intelligence men rate Bossard as the most dangerous British-born spy since George Blake, another double agent now serving the longest British sentence for espionage of 42 years.

Critics of Britain's security system are asking how Bossard was allowed access to secret information when his whole history raised danger signals.

Whaleback On Last Trip

GODERICH, Ont. (CP)—The last of the Canada Lakes "whalebacks" began its last voyage Monday.

The grain barge Alexander Holley was towed out of its Lake Huron berth here to be taken to a Port Colborne scrap yard where her sister ship, the barge 107, arrived last week for a similar resting place.

The cigar - shaped vessels, common 50 years ago, have become obsolete with the advent of bigger, faster and more seaworthy cargo ships.

Deseronto News

Family Escapes in Night Attire From Burning Home

DESERONTO — Last night at approximately 12.30 the home of Mr. and Mrs. D. Armitage was completely gutted by fire.

The family just barely escaped down the stairway as flames burst out behind them. Mr. and Mrs. Armitage stated they were awakened from a sound sleep by what they thought were footsteps coming up the stairs to find it was the crackle of fire which soon engulfed the seven-room home on St. George St. They immediately awakened their four children and all escaped with only their night attire.

Neighbors passing shortly before saw no indication of fire, suddenly flames burst skywards at the rear of the dwelling. The fire department arrived just after the propane tanks blew and made a blow torch effect high in the air, and soon five hoses were set out which brought the fire to control to save the homes close by from any damage.

Within minutes, the neighbors managed to find clothes for the family as nothing could be saved from the fire. Mr. Armitage stated the home was covered with insurance but not nearly enough to cover the loss sustained.

No cause has yet been determined.

Sunday School Joins Members In Service

DESERONTO — The Sunday School joined with members of the Church for "Family Day Services", May 2, 1965.

Presented for baptism were Brian Howard and Thomas Robert, sons of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Thompson. Kelly John, son of Mr. and Mrs. Eric Bartlett. Spencer Mr. and Mrs. Harold Kelly, Brockville.

Reverend R. Finley gave a most inspiring message regarding the reading and understanding of the Bible and its meaning to family life.

His advice was not to read it from cover to cover then close it up on the shelf, but rather choose portions such as the Psalms, the story of Luke, Proverbs, Genesis and Revelation, to learn to read and love each portion. Read different versions but do this thoroughly and intelligently.

Flowers on the altar were in memory of the late Mrs. G. Hawley, placed there by her family.

The senior and junior choir sang two very appropriate anthems.

Want Better Inspection of Railway Track

SCHREIBER, Ont. (CP) — A coroner's jury has recommended more frequent and thorough inspections of railway tracks to prevent train derailments similar to one in which two men were killed near Terrace Bay April 17.

The jury was investigating the deaths of Charles Langeleer, 39, of Fort William, and Elzear J. Dalaire, 61, of Wells, B.C., when the CPR's east transcontinental passenger train, the Canadian, jumped the tracks about 140 miles east of the Lakehead.

About 47 persons were injured but only eight required medical treatment. Kamsetzer, a CPR baggageman, died of suffocation. Dalaire, a trackman, was found crushed to death two days later by a railway crewman.

C. R. Pike, division engineer for the CPR, said an investigation indicated the derailment of the east-bound train was caused by a depression in the tracks blamed on shifting fill.

TAXES TAKE MANPOWER

OTTAWA (CP)—Income tax may be a headache for many Canadians but it also is a big job provider, Revenue Minister Benson told the Commons Monday there were 7,257 civil servants in the income tax branch of the revenue department last March 21.

Speedy, Alert System Aim Of the EMO

DESERONTO — Emergency Measures Organization Co-ordinator for Quinte area, Colonel Duffy spoke at the monthly meeting of the Firemen's organization in Deseronto on Wednesday evening. Colonel Duffy explained the problem in Hastings is to have a speedy and proper alert system in case of attack.

It was further explained that an alert in case of enemy attack from the north would start with warning from the Dew Line being sent to St. Hubert and then on to Army Command, which would then notify Kingston to telephone Belleville and Trenton. The warning procedure takes 22 minutes, and at present there are only official warning sirens in Belleville and Trenton. These two cities are responsible to warn certain other fire departments in the Quinte area.

Colonel Duffy asked all departments to get their sirens in order to be used for alert signals. The alert signal is a continuous wail for three to five minutes, the take cover signal is an intermittent wail of three to five seconds. There are only four departments that will have to change their siren because to enable these signals being used.

COMPLETE SYSTEM SHORTLY

It is hoped there will be a complete emergency measures radio system, shortly. At present there is an emergency line load system through the telephone, whereas in an emergency just certain designated telephones will operate. This line system is blocked of official calls by the general public.

On Wednesday there was an all day session of EMO in Belleville with representatives from all of the Quinte area. Deseronto was represented by the Town Clerk, Mr. J. Reynolds, Chief Bartlett and Fireman W. Cummings. This was a meeting to familiarize the Quinte area with the complete Federal and Provincial plan in case of any major disaster by air of the Quinte area, forest and flooding. There is a fan out system in effect by which all schools are notified if any disaster strikes in the day time.

Colonel Duffy stated that this complete EMO warning system is just like an insurance policy, and most people would be foolish if they didn't believe in insurance of any type.

Fishermen Suffer From Ice and Fog

GRAND BEND, Ont. (CP)—A veteran commercial fisherman said Monday a Lake Huron ice jam is providing fishermen in this southwestern Ontario village with their worst season in memory.

"I've never seen anything like it before," said Clint Bowden, a fisherman for 40 years. "It's the worst I can remember."

He estimated that the 10 fishermen in the village have lost a total of $6,000 because of the jam which extends about 25 miles from nearby St. Joseph to Blue Point, four miles out in the lake.

"We can't do anything for the ice and the fog," he said. "There's too much ice. . . . In some spots it's eight or 10 feet high."

Several times in the last two weeks the fishermen have been encouraged when the jam began to move, he said. But currents brought it back again, blocking their path to open water.

Last year the season was well under way by mid-March and good catches were reported.

EXCHANGE GREETINGS

LONDON (AP)—Field Marshal Viscount Montgomery and Gen. Dwight Eisenhower, two old soldiers who have not always seen eye to eye, greeted each other warmly Saturday in a live transatlantic television program marking the 20th anniversary of the end of fighting in Europe. The exchange, between Eisenhower in New York and Montgomery in London, was effected via the Early Bird communications satellite.

'Brain Drain' From Canada Tapering Off

OTTAWA (CP) — The "brain drain" from Canada to the United States shows signs of tapering off.

Trade Minister Sharp gave the Commons figures Monday that showed 1,582 persons in the scientific, medical and teaching professions left Canada for the United States in the year up to June 30, 1964. The total for the preceding 12 months was 1,687.

Mr. Sharp gave the figures in reply to a written question by Davie Orlikow (NDP — Winnipeg North), who asked how many Canadian scientists, research workers, engineers, university professors and medical doctors left Canada to work in the United States in the last three years.

The figures, listing the number departed as of June 30, 1964, 1963 and 1962:

Physicians and surgeons 440; 467; 390.

Professors and instructors 125; 117; 89.

Scientists and research workers 238; 209; 189.

Source of the statistics was the United States Immigration and naturalization service.

Civil Servant May Be Charged In Spy Plot

U. S. Holds Talks With Rebel Chief

From Reuters-AP

SANTO DOMINGO (CP) — U.S. officials today headed into further exploratory talks with rebel leader Col. Francisco Caamano Deno in an effort to settle the confused political situation stalling on the existence of two regimes in the country.

Caamano Tuesday met a U.S. representative for the first time since the Dominican rebels named him provisional president, then vowed he would not "take a step backward."

Caamano conferred with former ambassador John Bartlow Martin, President Johnson's special envoy. The talk aroused speculation that the rebel leader would meet soon with Brig.-Gen. Antonio Imbert Barreras, president of the rival civilian-military junta.

Officials emphasized that the contact made by Martin, sent to Santo Domingo as the special emissary of President Johnson, did not represent any modification of the U.S. view that the rebel movement is Communist-controlled.

(State Secretary Dean Rusk said in London today: "We think there are still Communist elements downtown in Santo Domingo."

(Rusk, who arrived in London to attend the NATO ministerial council meeting, said U.S. troops would remain in the Dominican Republic until a pan-American force was set up there.)

LITTLE PROGRESS

Diplomatic sources said that despite the mediation efforts of the United States, the Organization of American States and Msgr. Emmanuel Clarizio, papal nuncio of the Dominican Republic, there appeared to be no progress toward a political settlement of the Caribbean republic's civil strife.

Caamano in an address over the rebel-held Radio Santo Domingo said:

"I will not take a step backward in spite of the enormous U.S. forces."

He derided the junta as "an inoperative force" and charged anew that President Johnson sent 20,000 soldiers and marines to the Dominican Republic on the false assumption that the country was threatened by a Communist takeover.

Caamano has refused to meet with Imbert until he purges several leading officers from the armed forces. His chief opponent is Brig.-Gen. Elias Wessin

By WILLIAM NEVILLE

OTTAWA (CP)—The RCMP is pressing forward with an investigation which could produce the first prosecution of a Canadian for attempted espionage since the famed Gouzenko case 20 years ago.

Its findings, to be submitted to Justice Minister Favreau, will help the federal cabinet decide whether to lay criminal charges against a junior civil servant for his part in a sexand-secrets plot which already has produced the expulsion of two Soviet embassy officials.

Prime Minister Pearson said in a Commons statement Tuesday that consideration is being given to prosecuting the unnamed government employee, who accepted "thousands of dollars" from the Russian spies over several months and confessed to his sins only when confronted by the Mounties early last week.

The civil servant, employed in a "non-sensitive" job and department outside Ottawa, currently is "gravely ill" and on sick leave, the prime minister said.

LIMITS QUESTIONS

His illness, which Mr. Pearson said was due to natural and not self-imposed causes, is limiting police in their interrogation of him.

With this and other factors outstanding, both Mr. Favreau and RCMP sources said they could not estimate when the investigation might be completed and a report handed the justice minister.

Among the other factors apparently is the scope of the still-active probe.

Mr. Pearson told the Commons it might be advisable "as the investigation continues" to provide other party leaders with confidential briefings on it. Some observers took this as an indication that more than the question of prosecuting the civil servant is involved.

While raising the possibility of criminal charges against the civil servant, the prime minister had warmn praise for a second Canadian directly involved in the espionage net, first unveiled Saturday in an external affairs department announcement — that Soviet Commercial Attache A. E. Bytchkov and embassy clerk V. N. Pchezkin had been expelled from the country.

HELPED ALL THE WAY

This individual, identified only as a naturalized citizen, had come to the RCMP from the start with approach by Russians and cooperated with security officers throughout the case.

This, said Mr. Pearson, was the action of a "conscientious and patriotic Canadian" and was "certainly to be praised, not censured."

In the case of the civil servant, "the circumstances unfor-

Luna V To Land On Moon

From Reuters-AP

MOSCOW (CP) — The unmanned Soviet spaceship Luna V streaked toward the moon today, and Soviet scientists forecast a direct - hit soft landing tonight.

The 3,250 - pound spacecraft, launched Sunday from an orbiting earth satellite, was expected to come down gently near the moon's south pole on a plan known as the Sea of Clouds at about 3:15 p.m. EDT, Tass news agency announced.

The Tass announcement, early today, was the first official disclosure that a soft landing on the moon's surface was being attempted.

Such a landing might preserve the capsule intact and establish it as a radio station for the relay of scientific data back to the earth from its perch on the edge of the moon.

This could be an important step toward man's conquest of the moon and might lead to a manned craft landing there within the next few years.

WILL BE 'FIRST'

If the Russians pull off their feat tonight, they will score another spectacular "first in space" race against the United States.

The United States does not plan to soft-land an instrument package on the moon until 1966.

If Luna V succeeds in letting itself down gently on the moon's surface, it will take two big steps forward in the space race.

1. It can sit on the surface and radio back to earth data of a kind that has not been possible to obtain from photographs made by craft that crashed into the moon.

2. It will show whether a man can land on the moon with present types of space systems.

Previous Soviet and U.S. moon shots have either crashed into the moon, stopping the flow of radioed information, or missed it.

Tass said that according to preliminary measurements, the systems aboard Luna V were working warmly.

Liberals Win By 15 Votes

By RONALD LEBEL

OTTAWA (CP) — A topsy-turvy atmosphere reminiscent of Alice in Wonderland prevailed in the Commons Tuesday as the Liberal government squeaked through another nonconfidence test by 15 votes.

An unusually large number of MPs—33 Liberals and 34 opposition members—did not vote although the life of the minority government was at stake.

The House defeated 110 to 85 a New Democratic motion accusing the government of failing to safeguard the interests of Canadian consumers, automobile workers and parts manufacturers in the auto trade agreement with the United States.

The motion was supported by 69 Conservatives, 15 New Democrats and 11 Creditistes. It was opposed by 108 Liberals and five Social Credit MPs.

MANY ASSENT

Conspicuous by their absence were 23 Conservatives, 21 Liberals including Prime Minister Pearson, four Social Credit members, three New Democrats and two Creditistes. Two Conservatives and two Liberals abstained because they were paired with absent MPs.

The prime minister's office told reporters later Mr. Pearson had no particular reason for being absent from the House.

The Commons Speaker, a Liberal, does not vote unless it is to break a tie. Standings in the 265-seat house are Liberals 129, Conservatives 94, New Democrats 18, Creditistes 13, Social Credit nine and independent two.

Mr. Pearson told a party meeting in Montreal last weekend that many opposition MPs

Govt. To Pay Premiums For Some Residents

TORONTO (CP) — The Ontario government introduced a medical care bill Tuesday which would provide government-paid health insurance premiums for low-income residents of the province.

It would also set standards and prices for the insurance that private companies make available to those who can afford premiums. In neither case would the insurance be compulsory.

The government would pay all premiums for persons with no taxable income. Premiums would be subsidized for persons with small incomes. If the bill passes, it would take effect June 1, 1966.

Health Minister Matthew Dymond, who introduced the bill, estimated the cost of the program to the government would be $70,000,000 in its first full year of operation. Asked about a possible tax increase, he said: "If let the provincial treasurer worry about that."

SEES $175 COST

Mr. Dymond said the premiums haven't been set but it appeared family coverage would cost about $175 a year.

He estimated there are about 1,000,000 persons in Ontario with no taxable income and about 900,000 would qualify for subsidized premiums.

Insurance would cover physicians' and surgeons' care, maternity benefits, annual checkups and psychiatric treatment.

The government's decision to offer a publicly-operated medical care plan for low-income families appeared to be a vast change in its thinking since November, 1962.

It was then that Premier Roberts first announced that a medical insurance bill would be put before the house.

The bill introduced in April, 1963, proposed only to force private insurance carriers to offer standard insurance contracts to any and all, regardless of age or health, at fixed premium levels.

Exactly the same policy was advocated by the Hagey committee on medical services insurance in a government-sponsored study that arose from the 1962 draft legislation.

GOES PART WAY

But Premier Roberts chose to disregard the Hagey committee's report and to venture partway into a publicly-operated health insurance.

Partial premium subsidies will be offered to single persons with taxable income of less than $500, couples with taxable income of less than $1,000, and families with taxable income of less than $1,300. The last figure is so far is only an estimate.

On the graduated scale of subsidies for the $47,000 persons in the province in a family with taxable income of just over $100 a year will pay only 10 per cent towards the cost of medical care insurance.

As the taxable income rises to $300, the premium cost will

More U. S. Forces Land In Viet Nam

From AP-Reuters

SAIGON (CP)—Nearly 1,000 U.S. Army paratroopers and another combat battalion of 1,400 U.S. marines landed in South Viet Nam today.

The paratroopers are members of the 173rd Airborne Brigade who flew by jet from Okinawa to join about 2,000 members of the brigade already in South Viet Nam. A U.S. spokesman said they would help defend American installations at the Bien Hoa air base, 20 miles north of Saigon.

The marines landed at Chu Lai, 32 miles southeast of the strategic U.S. air base at Da Nang. They boosted to 14,000 the force of marines thrown into the war against the Viet Cong.

Before the landing, one marine was wounded as the Viet Cong harassed the marine positions.

The Chu Lai marines, now up to regimental strength, are expected to begin ranging the countryside in search of Communists.

ASSIGN TERRITORY

The marines at Da Nang, who now total about 9,000 men, have been assigned more than 100 square miles of additional territory west of the air base to be cleared of Viet Cong.

To the south, the battle for the provincial capital of Binh Be appeared over as an estimated 1,500 guerrillas slipped away in thickly-wooded rubber plantations after a fierce daylong struggle.

The Viet Cong overran Song Be, 74 miles north of Saigon,

France Plans Contact With Rebel Leader

PARIS (AP)—France has authorized its diplomatic representative in the Dominican Republic to establish contact with rebel leader Col. Francisco Caamano Deno, pending formation of a government based on the "free will of the Dominican people," a French cabinet spokesman announced.

The spokesman stressed that this did not mean diplomatic recognition. He said that France extends recognition to a country and not to any specific government.

Drop in Unemployment Little Slower Than Usual

OTTAWA (CP) — Unemployment in Canada dropped by 18,000 to 371,000 between mid-March and mid-April but the decline was slower than usual.

A joint report issued today by the labor department and the Dominion Bureau of Statistics placed the unemployment rate at 3.3 per cent of the labor force, compared to 5.9 per cent in April of 1964 and seven per cent in April, 1963.

The March rate was 5.6 per cent.

Employment was 76,000 higher than in March at 8,567,000 but this increase was smaller than usual "following the larger than seasonal increases between February and March."

The job slowdown was particularly noticeable in non-farm industries. Construction work contributed very little to the gain, mainly due to the relatively high level of employment maintained during the winter months.

Compared to April of last year, there were 224,000 more jobs in the country, outpacing a growth in the labor force of 292,. Unemployment thus was down 32,000.

In the one-month comparison all regions except the Atlantic had lower or at least stable unemployment rates.

In Ontario 3.1 per cent of the labor force was unemployed, the same rate as in March. Quebec had 6.7 per cent, down from 7.8, the Prairie rate edged to 4.3 per cent from 4.2 and British Columbia's was 4.7 compared to 5.1.

The troubled Atlantic region, long the hardest hit by unemployment, had 12.8 per cent of its work force in the jobless ranks, up from 12.3 per cent in March. It was even above the April, 1964, figure of 62.3.

Of the 371,000 jobless at mid-April, 311,000 were men and 60,000 women. Teen-agers accounted for 62,000 of the total and their unemployment rate continued to be double that of other age groups.

Three out of five had been out of work for three months or less.

The seasonally - adjusted unemployment rate was 4.2 per cent, up from 3.9 per cent at mid-March.

Dr. Ross M. Matthews of Peterborough was elected vice-president and Dr. W. J. S. Melvin of Kingston chairman of the board.

Shastri on Visit to Moscow Will Discuss Viet Nam War

MOSCOW (CP)—Indian Prime Minister Shastri arrived today for political and economic talks with Soviet leaders.

He was met at the airport by Soviet Premier Alexei Kosygin.

Informed sources said during his one-week stay the Indian prime minister would exchange views with Soviet leaders on Viet Nam and other world trouble spots as well as discuss Soviet economic aid to India.

Russian military aid to India may also come up in the talks Shastri will spend four days in Moscow and then visit Leningrad, Kiev and Tashkent.

India receives large amounts of economic and military aid from both the Soviet Union and Western countries, primarily the United States.

Fears in India that the post-Khrushchev regime in Russia might lead to a rapprochement between Moscow and Peking have subsided. India looks confidently to Russia for defence and economic aid to help her match China.

Observers here believe Soviet support for basic Indian policies remains unchanged. However, Shastri was expected to probe the reasons for Russia's apparent shift toward a greater neutrality between India and Pakistan.

The Indian premier's visit has been preceded by economic and defence missions to discuss specific Soviet aid projects, including the construction of three plants in India for the manufacture of Mig jet airframes and engines, and missiles.

India's top economic development official, Asoka Mehta, has been in Moscow for a week seeking a Soviet commitment for aid to India's fourth five-year development plan, which begins next April.

Indian sources said Mehta is seeking nearly $1,200,000,000. If Mehta gets a commitment, it probably will be announced in a communique at the end of Shastri's visit.

The Soviet Union contributed $798,000,000 to India's second and third five-year plans.

The United States, nine other Western industrial nations and the World Bank last month pledged $1,000,000,000 in credits and grants to enable India to complete its current plan. The U.S. pledged $435,000,000 and Canada $55,000,000.

Mercury in 80's, Tourists in Shorts And Heavy Glut of Ice at Niagara

Today's Chuckle

The reason some men are slow in making up their minds is that they have wives who stutter.

THE WEATHER

Synopsis: A change to cooler conditions is on the way. The cool air will arrive over southern Ontario this evening. The outbreak will in turn be shortlived as a warming trend will be in evidence by late Thursday.

NIAGARA FALLS, N.Y. (AP) — Temperatures in the 80's, Tourists in shorts. And one of the latest ice gluts in the history of Niagara Falls.

These are the mixed elements as summer comes early on shore and winter dies hard in the river.

Flowers bloom in the parks in Niagara Falls, N.Y., and Niagara Falls, Ont., while a few yards away cakes of ice continue to plunge over the 182-foot-high American Falls and the 176 - foot - high Horseshoe Falls.

The ice is flowing downstream from Lake Erie, which feeds the Niagara River. Officials believe the current "ice bridge" below the two falls has at least another week of life.

The "ice bridge" is so named because it spans the lower river between the two countries.

Arthur B. Williams, general manager of the Niagara Frontier state park commission, termed the tenacity of the ice bridge a rarity.

The latest presence of ice in the last 15 or 20 years occurred in the mid-1950s on May 13," he said. "We will set some sort of a record."

Some of the ice, which is almost solid from the base of Horseshoe Falls to a point about a mile down the river, is 15 feet deep.

Co-operative Engineering Plan Outlined to Kiwanians

A former Belleville man, and assistant to the Director, Department of Co-Ordination and Placement, University of Waterloo, addressed the Kiwanis Club and their weekly luncheon at the Centre on Tuesday.

Don Deverall, who moved with his wife and family from Belleville to Kitchener nearly four years ago, spoke on the advantages of the co-operative engineering program at the university.

Illustrating his speech with slim strips he outlined the fantastic growth of Waterloo. In 1906, the University of Waterloo Charter was established. The first enrollment consisted of 141 students and 13 faculty members. Today's enrollment has risen to 3,200 students and another 900 are expected for the fall term. From one building, the university has grown into a sprawling expanse of seven buildings and an attractive site of 1,000 acres in the northwest section of Waterloo. Seven are also four colleges affiliated with the university proper.

The University of Waterloo is perhaps most well known for its unique co-operative education program. The program allows the student to have four months classroom work and four months work in the field industry related to his studies. The total engineering course consists of 52 academic months and 24 work period months.

The speaker pointed out that the idea of co-operative education is the main factor in the tremendous growth of the university. The system grew from two observations: one, many things can not be taught in classrooms, the case to be learned on the job: and two, most students seek part-time work for financial reasons, but usually this part-time employment is not related to their field of study and in fact often does not contribute to their studies.

OFFICIALS MEET STUDENTS

Co - ordinators from the university, all of whom are professional engineers with many years of industrial experience, contact industry in an effort to set up the co - operative program. Students are formed of the available jobs and list their preferences. Then company officials come to meet the students.

Mr. Deverall explained that, "Both the company officials and the student rates each other and the results are sent to a computer. This computer then matches pairings of company and student which are most suitable.

"Each student has roughly 12 interviews which gives him a chance to evaluate many companies.

"The co - operative program is designed to give him experience in his chosen field, while at the same time he learns the theory behind what he does in the industry and learns to apply it.

"A student is graded on the basis of an evaluation which his employer sends in at the end of each four - month work term and on a work report which the student himself submits on his particular facet of the work he was doing."

During the work terms, the students are visited by the co-ordinators who assist and guide them in gaining as much benefit as possible through work experiences.

Each student must spend at least two four - month terms with each employer in order to give the employer some continuity of employment.

The speaker outlined the many benefits of the co - operative program.

"From the student's point of view, it provides an opportunity to evaluate many companies through the interview procedures and through actually working in industry. This added insight is invaluable to him upon graduation.

GET ACTUAL WORK

"We have found that our students develop a sense of responsibility and maturity not usually found in students. Their attitudes are fed, more from their actual work experiences in industry.

"And of course, we can not overlook the financial factor. The earnings they make in their work periods make it possible for many, who couldn't otherwise afford it, to receive their engineering duties.

"From an educational point of view, the co-operative program allows us to put theory into practice. It assures the employer that the student he hires upon graduation will become an effective part of the industry immediately because of the training time in fact more necessary due to the student's work experience.

"Another advantage of our program is that our facilities are in use 12 months of the year. This is greatly appreciated by both the government and the tax payers."

The percentage of drop-outs is higher than in other universities, but for those who made it, their record is most enviable. Of the four graduating classes to date, 70 per cent of the engineering graduates are employed by a company in the co-operative group; five per cent go into teaching; 20 per cent outside this group; 25 per cent have gone to advance studies; and less than one per cent went to the United States.

Mr. Deverall pointed out that, of the graduates in engineering class, 75 per cent of them are still with their original employer. He went to show how well our graduates are fitting into industry and how well prepared they are for the reality of graduation exactly what they want to do."

Mr. Deverall at the meeting were the guidance counsellors from Belleville's three secondary schools, Moira, Quinte and BCI.

Pin bearers were Bill Lynch, Charles Hibbert, Earl Canton, Ronald Grahame, John Wettlaufer and Frank Pullwell.

IN MEMORIAM

EDMUNDS — In loving memory of our dear wife Ellen (Nellie) Edmunds, who passed away one year ago today, May 13th, 1964.

God knew that you needed better help.

That the hills were hard to climb,
So He closed your weary eyelids,
And whispered "Peace be thine."
The happy home we once enjoyed,
We never thought could end,
But death has left a loneliness,
For which there is no mend.

—Sadly missed and ever remembered by husband, Jack, and family.

EDMUNDS — In loving memory of our dear Mother, who passed away May 13th, 1964.

There are things in life you cannot forget,
A gift that is real and true,
The love of a mother, sacred and tender,
In such as I had in you.

Time may dull memory burst anew,
With a silent tear and heartache too,
Death sometimes comes to test us,
We love more dearly than we show,
But love and death shall let us go,
What love and life should always know.

In brok.. my heart when you had to go,
But you did not go alone,
For part of me went with you,
The day God called you home.

—Lovingly remembered by daughter Phyllis, and son-in-law Gordon, grandson Fred, grandson-daughter Carol.

EDMUNDS — In loving memory of my dear mother Ellen (Nellie) Edmunds, who passed away one year ago today, May 13th, 1964.

Just a prayer from us who loved you,
Precious memories kind and true,
Sadly missed and ever remembered,
Because we thought the world of you.

—Lovingly remembered by daughter Phyllis, and son-in-law Gordon, grandson Fred, grandson-daughter Carol.

EDMUNDS — In loving memory of my dear sister Ellen (Nellie) Edmunds, who passed away one year ago today, May 13th, 1964.

Just a prayer from us who loved you,
Precious memories kind and true,
Sadly missed and ever remembered by her sister Audrey, Niece Mary and nephew Augustine.

WEBBEL — In loving memory of a dear father, Frederick Ernest Webbel, whom God called home May 13th, 1964.

We cannot Lord Thy purpose see,
But all is well since it is Thine.
—Sons by Thee.

—Lovingly remembered by wife Evelyn, daughter Juanita and son Keith.

WILLIS — In loving memory of a dear husband, Ralph Willis, who passed away May 13, 1963.

I look around and everywhere,
A life linked with my own,
But what I miss most of all dear,
As I walk through life alone.

—Lovingly remembered by husband Walter.

WILLIS — In loving memory of our dear father, Ralph Willis, who passed away May 13, 1963.

Sweet memories linger around his name,
And treasured sights are pure,

Rule Against Separation Of Townships

Members of the Ontario Municipal Board yesterday turned down an application for the separation of the townships of McClure and Wicklow in North Hastings from the present three-township municipality of McClure, Wicklow and Bangor.

The OMB hearing on the application was held at Maynooth starting at 10:00 and was completed in the early afternoon when board members made known their decision.

The application, if it had been successful, would have seen McClure and Wicklow incorporate as a separate municipality with election of their own council and reeve.

The three northern townships are now served by one council with Reeve Delmont Card being the representative on county council.

Children's Aid Considers Effect of New Legislation

Much of the regular monthly meeting of the Board of Directors of the Children's Aid Society on Monday was devoted to discussion of the new Child Welfare Act which was introduced to the legislature on April 30. As of the first of January 1966 all permanent wards of the society become wards of the Crown. Before the end of each year, the society will be required to submit to the municipal council of each of the three local municipalities it serves: i.e. Belleville, Hastings and Trenton, a budget setting forth the anticipated cost of child welfare services in that community for the coming year. Upon approval by the local municipality and the provincial government, the municipality will pay to the society, in twelve equal instalments, 80 per cent of the approved cost. The remaining 40 per cent and 100 per cent of the cost of the care and maintenance of the children of unmarried mothers will be met by the Province of Ontario. Residences, as it is presently known, is abandoned and the child becomes the responsibility of the municipality in which it is apprehended. The per diem rate structure now established annually by the court is abandoned and the society will operate on a system of projected budgeting, as opposed to audited or "one year behind" financing.

Municipalities are given the opportunity to exercise greater control over child welfare spending by the mandatory appointment of not fewer than four elected representatives to the board (the local Society has had six for the last two years), and, of course by budget approval. In the event of a dispute, the decision of a Child Welfare Review Board, a committee appointed by the Minister of Welfare, shall be final.

NO TEETH IN ACT

Section 42 of the Act requires "every person having information of the neglect, abandonment, desertion or physical ill-treatment of a child" to report the information to a children's aid society or Crown Attorney. Said Bruce Beckel, Children's Aid Director, "This hasn't much significance because there is no provision for the imposition of a penalty on the person who has such information and who does not choose to report it. In other words, there's really no teeth in it. It's still permissive legislation."

Mr. Kerr also said he couldn't see much real change in the section of the Act dealing with adoption except that the Society would be required to report monthly to the Director of Child Welfare the adoption status of each Crown ward in its care. He said there was still no mention made whatsoever of religion in the section of the Act dealing with adoption. Therefore, he assumed that Protestant children would still be placed with Protestant couples and Roman Catholic children with Roman Catholic couples.

Mr. Stabley Wiggins inquired as to whether or not it would be necessary for the Society to participate in the 1965 Belleville Centennial Appeal for funds, to which the treasurer, Mr. Thomas Cadden, replied that it most certainly would be necessary. Said Mr. Cadden, "The Society operates one year behind at all times and the money collected in the fall of 1965 will have been spent long before campaign time. In addition to this I regret to say that because the Appeal has been unable to reach its objective each year, we have an accumulated deficit amounting to several thousands of dollars."

STILL NEED AID

Mr. Kerr stated that while certain of the costs of the Society at present met by voluntary municipal grants and United Appeal funds, were, in the future, to be paid for out of tax funds, he was quite certain that the full costs of prevention services were not included in the new set up.

"For example, we have one professional cas-worker working full time with about fifteen local families and doing an excellent job. Her role is purely the prevention of neglect of the children concerned and in so far as I have been able to determine, if the local community wishes this work to continue it must be prepared to meet the cost by way of either voluntary municipal grants or donations through the United Appeal. There does not seem to be a sharing of financial responsibility with the Province of Ontario for this kind of family service."

It was the general feeling of the meeting that the new Act was sound and that it should not be too difficult to implement in this area. As one member of the Board stated, "The responsibility for the maintenance and quality of services to children and families will rest squarely on the shoulders of the community, where it belongs."

Child Burned To Death in Blast, Fire

MANIWAKI, Que. (CP) — A four-year-old girl died in an explosion and fire here this morning and her father was seriously injured, leaving his two other small children.

Richard Caron, 36, was taken to hospital after he carried Diane, 2, and Marilyn, 2, from his burning apartment.

Firemen battled the blazes which flashed through an old apartment building which had been rocked by two explosions at 7 a.m. Mrs. Caron was taken to hospital suffering from shock.

Volunteer firemen said the explosions apparently came from a small oil tank. The blazing fire spread to an apartment still under construction and two adjoining buildings burned to the ground.

They said nine families were housed in the old building and six families had already moved into the still unfinished block next door.

Loss was estimated at about $100,000 by the owner of the buildings.

London Is Most Swinging City in World at Present Time Says Mag Editor

By CAROL KENNEDY

LONDON (CP)—Surprising as it may seem to Londoners, their city is at par-tates with ancient Athens and Florence, New York as the world's most exciting capital—a magnet attracting the international young in a way formerly enjoyed only by Paris, New York and Rome.

"London is the most swinging city in the world," says Diana Vreeland, editor of the U.S. MAGAZINE Vogue and high priestess of American fashion.

Her opinion is quoted and heartily endorsed by an American journalist living in Britain who says Londoners are the last people to realize the changes of mood and tempo that have transformed the staid old city in the last five years.

"London is where the action is, as New York and then Paris were during the war, as Rome was in the mid-1950s," says John Crosby, the New York Herald Tribune columnist, writing in the Daily Telegraph weekend magazine. He calls the city the new "gayest, most uninhibited and . . . most cooly elegant city in the world."

EXPERIENCING REBIRTH

Crosby believes London is in the middle of a renaissance after the "long darkness" of the depression, the Second World War and post-war austerity. He dates its beginnings to 1958-60:

"In that period, youth captured this ancient island and took command in a country where youth had always before been kept properly in its place.

Talented young people in fashion, entertainment and the arts are certainly setting a new pace in this solid, masculine citadel of finance whose staircased stiff collars and striped pants and rolled umbrella.

They have captured an international lead in offbeat and female fashion, for instance, symbolized respectively by the sharp "mini" clothes of John Stephen in Soho's Carnaby Street and Mary Quant of Chelsea.

They hold sway over London's nightlife, dominating such "with-it" spots as the Ad Lib Club in Soho, where the Beatles have a table permanently reserved and where Rings proposed; Rosny Scott's, the "classical" nightclub where the workingmen and noblemen go to enjoy modern jazz; the Crazy Elephant and Cool Elephant clubs, whose young owner claims there has lost its regency cation as a city of bad cooking.

WRITE NEW DRAMA

Young dramatists and actors have invaded Britain to play in the avant-garde league, throwing old-style musical drawing-room entertainment on the French windows and replacing it with tough, sweaty working-class drama, often of a surrealist kind.

And the world knows what Liverpool-bred pop singers have achieved for old mother England.

"Talent is getting to be British what French export commodity," says columnist Crosby.

But is that enough to justify the "puffed out of the mass-manufacturing export markets." He says this is "national nonsense, tied to Britannia."

Another American journalist, Paul Mandel of the Weekly Observer, recently wrote a Love Letter to London, claiming Londoners don't realize—until an alien tells them—what treasures they have on their doorstep.

In direct opposition to those critics of British progress, Mandel actually praises "the lucky handicap" of London's tradition and the "fortunately congenital inefficiency of its changers and fixers," for helping to preserve the city's charm.

POLICE MISS DRIVERS

EDMONTON (CP)—City police solved only 13 per cent of last year's 340 hit-and-run accidents, a police official said. These offences have increased 300 per cent since 1960, and many drivers take the risk of having their cars repaired illegally, to avoid conviction on a more serious charge.

Artificial-limb Services Now Available to Public From Department of Health

By MICHAEL GILLAN

OTTAWA (CP) The federal health department has embarked on a program that may make available to the general public artificial limb services provided in the past for war veterans.

A step toward this was taken when Veterans Affairs Minister Teillet said that as of April 1 his department's prosthetic services would be transferred to the health department.

Some thought this meant the public could obtain these services immediately. However, the April 1 date marked only the start of a lengthy process.

Health Minister LaMarsh said later in a speech that arrangements for making the artificial limbs in Canada would be the first step.

"We believe that prosthetic components and devices which now are largely imported can be manufactured at Sunnybrook Hospital (in Toronto) in the facility adjacent to the Canadian needs.

"These components will be available for purchase by all responsible agencies, whether government, voluntary or commercial."

Miss LaMarsh said the second part of the program—the limb fitting services—must await consultation with the provincial health departments "to determine how the provincial departments might wish to use these prosthetic centre services."

"In view of the shortage of prosthetic resources, the provisions will no doubt wish to make maximum use of all available prosthetic facilities including those within my department, as well as those provided by private firms and other agencies."

Some provinces may wish to obtain from the federal service both the limbs and services. Others may wish to provide their own prosthetic services and some may decide present arrangements are adequate and that no federal help is needed.

The result might be a variety of programs among the provinces.

Two main factors—the 1962 thalidomide tragedy and the declining number of war-disabled veterans needing prosthetic services—led to the new arrangements.

When the birth of armless, legless or otherwise deformed babies was reported three years ago after their mothers took the drug thalidomide during pregnancy, the federal government established a program of assistance in co-operation with the provinces.

Recommendations of a committee of experts were quickly adopted and $200,000 was added to the federal rehabilitation and aid crippled children's grant to set up prosthetic research and training units.

Engineers, prosthetists and teachers were recruited and within months three units were operating, at Montreal, Toronto and Winnipeg.

COPIED FROM U.S.

Initial staff training were copied from U.S. experience but the units now are working with Canadian needs to fit Canadian needs. Graduation from secondary school is required for admission to the two-year course.

One question to be answered is whether artificial limbs should have training in electrical engineering to work with the sophisticated electrically-controlled devices being developed or whether a technical education is sufficient.

The civilian population's needs will have to be determined before the long-term program of manufacture of limbs, research and training of prosthetists can be set up.

There is no accurate figure on the number of Canadians who could benefit annually, although an educated guess puts the number at between 2,000 and 2,500.

The new arrangements will have no benefit for many of the War Amputations of Canada, composed of veterans who are amputees. A spokesman said the organization is ready to provide for civilians the counselling services given to veterans.

Miss LaMarsh has emphasized that despite the transfer the needs of veterans will continue to receive priority consideration.

Noises Can Actually Harm Human System

By DOUG MARSHALL

LONDON (CP)—Anyone who has ever tried to concentrate knows that noise bothers you but it was nurse Florence Nightingale who first recognized that it can actually harm the human system.

The heroine of the Crimean War wrote in the 1850s: "Unnecessary noise is the most cruel absence of care which can be inflicted on a silent sick or well."

Scientific studies confirm the popular belief that long exposure to loud noise causes fatigue and bodily decay. They also show that excessive noise sometimes inflames brain and stomach tissues, slows reactions, blurs vision and leads to deafness.

SEEKS CONTROLS

Since 1959 Britain's Noise Abatement Society has been striving to build a more effective volume control into the country's legal system. The society succeeded in pushing the Noise Abatement Act through Parliament but prosecutions under the act so far are virtually non-existent.

John Connell, the society's secretary, says he receives more than 100 letters a week complaining about noise abuses but there is little he can do to help.

Industry, faced with a government report that noise costs Britain millions of pounds in lost production each year, is beginning to take action.

The first noise and vibration reduction exhibition will be mounted in London this June, displaying the latest developments in earguards and a range of machines tools, pneumatic drills and pile drivers modified to operate at acceptable noise levels.

ACCEPTED STANDARD

The now - accepted standard for measuring noise is the decibel, a unit of sound pressure level.

Matches at the threshold of hearing, a whisper or the rustle of leaves, register five to 10 decibels. The average office hum is 120 decibels—gunfire or a clap of nearby thunder. At 140 decibels, a jet engine at full overhead, pain is experienced — damage to the ear can be caused. Normal conversation is about 60 decibels.

The British Medical Association has recommended stiffer legislation prohibiting noise that is constantly above 85 decibels. The ministry of transport is toying with a law requiring British car makers to keep their products below that level.

But the commonest and loudest noise-makers of all, the most difficult to mute, are aircraft in the night. Roughly 50 big jets fly in and out of London airport each night, each one touching down and taking off in the tune of 120-130 decibels. The problem will become even more abrasive when the supersonic transports like the Anglo-French Concord come into service.

A Sensible Suggestion

Gen. E. L. M. Burns, Canada's distinguished soldier-diplomat, has a full-time job preaching the gospel of disarmament.

We can think of no task more unlikely to reward the conscientious worker through a sense of accomplishment.

This, though, does not prevent Gen. Burns from carrying out his duties not merely with efficiency but with a touch of genius which speaks highly of dedication to the cause he endeavors to serve.

The other day, for instance, he warned the nuclear powers that they cannot expect countries which do not possess atomic arms, but do possess the capability of manufacturing them, to abstain indefinitely from equipping themselves with these weapons.

Canada, of course, is a country which falls into this category. Our atomic know-how is considerable and our work on peaceful uses for nuclear energy provides us with a solid base on which to build a nuclear arms industry, should we be so inclined. We are not. Burns made that clear.

But not all nations similarly equipped will view the acquisition of nuclear arms in the same light as does Canada. Many of them are surrounded by warlike neighbors. They may feel that they have special need for protection and that the possession of nuclear weapons would provide the needed safeguard against attack.

It is unreasonable, Burns told the United Nations disarmament commission, to expect these countries to continue to refrain from manufacturing nuclear arms for themselves if those countries now possessing nuclear arsenals do nothing to divest themselves of such weapons.

He suggested that nations lacking nuclear arms agree to refrain from making or acquiring them for a set period of time, "after which their undertakings could be reviewed in the light of the progress toward disarmament made by the nuclear powers."

This is an eminently sensible suggestion.

We doubt, though, whether any of the nuclear powers were really listening.

Average Housewife

The new housing development of Bramalea, a community of 6,000 people 23 miles northwest of Toronto, recently held a contest to pick its "No. 1 average housewife".

Described by the Star Weekly's Frank Rasky as the brainwave of Lloyd Lockhart, publisher of the community's weekly newspaper, the contest unravelled some interesting facts.

"The average Bramalea," says Rasky, "is married, aged 28, and earns $5,100 a year. While the average husband drives off each morning to Toronto to work off the 30-year mortgage, the average wife stayed behind in their average $17,000 one-storey home to look after their average two children."

Interest itself was no mere beauty contest, although as it turned out a beautiful young Burmese girl of 28, Marlena Fisher, wife of an English engineer, was the winner. Mrs. Fisher, along with the other contestants, had to go through all sorts of challenging tests devised by publisher Lockhart.

Lockhart, according to writer Rasky, told the judges that he was out to gauge is every woman's intelligence, originality, self-confidence, poise, personality, sense of humor and homemaking talent."

In the intelligence tests the girls found they should have been paying more attention to current affairs, not to mention their knowledge of spelling. Though they professed to vote independently of their husband's opinion, says Rasky, most appeared ignorant of current affairs. And the word most often misspelled was "recipe", which became "receipt".

As for the beautiful Mrs. Fisher, who married at the age of 15 and has two children aged 11 and 10, she has a job in Toronto, and an interest in culture and international affairs. She enjoys painting water colors, ballet, classical music and reading news magazines.

It all goes to show that beauty and brains are not incompatible.

Money-giving is a very good criterion of a person's mental health. Generous people are rarely mentally ill people.—Dr. Karl Menninger, U.S. psychiatrist.

Was Beloved by Kings

New York Times

Caroline Otero, one of France's most celebrated courtesans of the turn of the century, died penniless in a small room near the railroad tracks in Nice, on April 30. She was 87 years old.

Kings, princes and industrialists courted the favor of the petite Spanish dancer who became famous in the cafes and music halls of Toulouse-Lautrec's Paris as "La Belle Otero." She became, in fact, the subject of a painting by the artist of the Moulin Rouge, and her name was well to the story of Emile Zola's hero.

La Belle Otero arrived in Paris penniless at 16 from the provinces of Andalusia and with a style of lavish living that continued almost until the First World War.

Legend preserves the story of the little figure who once swept onto the Folies Bergere stage in a magnificent dress that had belonged to the Empress Eugenie, to a Czarina of Russia and to a famous beauty of the Second Empire.

"Ninouche," King Peter of Serbia called her, "you once to have pleaded with her "ruin me, but don't leave me!"

Her successful career ended shortly after the year 1900, La Belle Otero is said to have appeared at the Cafe de Paris with King Edward VII of Britain, King Alfonso XIII of Spain, King Leopold II of Belgium, Czar Nicholas of Russia and Kaiser Wilhelm of Germany, as her escorts.

But she never really made the upper-crust Paris of the time. Once, she swept into the paris of a rival who was noted for her jewels, but the hostess wore no jewels but brought a maid who carried enough for three women.

According to her neighbors, the soldier's wife who lived in seclusion kept to the end a pocket of Canal bonds that were worth $1,000,000 when a Russian nobleman gave them to her. They became valueless after the Bolshevik Revolution.

Gambling casinos fascinated her, and croupiers reported that she lost hundreds of gold francs at the tables, particularly the Casino in Monte Carlo.

When La Belle Otero retired from the stage in 1930, she reportedly had an annual income of $10,000. She intended to spend her time, she said, collecting ecclesiastical antiques.

A book she wrote about her life and loves created such shock waves through Parisian society, especially among the women, that doors were open to her wave shut firmly in her face.

"Souvenirs of the Intimate Life of the Beautiful Otero," was published in the mid-1920's. In it, she described several affairs after which some men had committed suicide, and told how she began to love with Andalusian intensity" while still a schoolgirl.

A women's organization invited her to defend herself in a public hall where she said, "Why blame me for telling it? The truth is more beautiful than a beautiful woman."

The hall erupted in cheers from the men and curses from the women, many of whom beat their husbands with mesh bags and umbrellas.

The daughter of a Spanish grandee and a gypsy named Carmen, Carolina Otero claimed as one of her great assets a dark-haired beauty that she worked hard to preserve. For four or five months a year she would go to her chateau in Touraine to undergo a regimen that relied heavily on the bath.

First came a regular, warm-water bath. This was followed on successive nights, by baths in the whites of eggs, in champagne, in olive oil, in milk and in petroleum jelly.

After the Second World War, a film "La Belle Otero," was made about her life, starring Maria Felix. When asked how Miss Felix had handled the role, the aging courtesan said:

"She did very well. She is almost as beautiful as I was."

Protests Parks Fees

Port Arthur News-Chronicle

Not so long ago a Lakehead father could take his family in the car to any one of a number of natural beauty spots for a picnic, an afternoon's rest or creation or just looking at the surrounding marvels of nature. If he wished, a fire could be started and the happy group would remain overnight.

The father and his family can still do this but there is a difference now. A change which has been developing over the years, making the trip much more complicated for all but a few cases just about impossible. This factor is the soaring price to get into Ontario's provincial parks and use their facilities, despite the fact they resulted from public tax money in the first place.

This year the price went up so sharply one would think gold had been discovered on the properties. Two bonny spaces have been fenced off and ticket wickets at the gate make sure no one gets anything for nothing.

Visits to these choice outdoor playgrounds were free and uncomplicated up to 1936 when fees were introduced for the first time—$1 annually for a car to enter any provincial park and $1 a day for camping overnight. This was accepted without too much grumbling in the interest of a degree of control at the parks, free fire wood, etc.

By last year the annual fee had been increased to $3 with a sticker pasted on the windshield of the vehicle; camping to $1 a day with sticker, or $1.50 without the sticker it cost 50 cents just to drive into the park.

This year, without any explanation or apparent reason, the annual sticker shot up to $5.00 for an owner-driver, instead of 36 days in parks during the year. Camping is now $1.50 a day with sticker, or $2.50 without one. It will cost $1 now just to drive into a park for one day.

Why the sudden big boost in prices? Some say the fact that the American tourist can afford it, but this is hardly the way to have him come back again. For the local man who likes to take his family for a week's camping, it seems he thinks that these areas are part of his heritage, the increase is completely unfair and unwarranted.

Continuing increases could influence many to avoid the parks and stay in tourist establishments, a fact which may have been considered when the new rates were set. Certainly it would appear that a campaign with a strong lobby was convincing in high circles of the Department of Lands and Forests.

More and more choice locations are being taken over for parks purposes and this should be a good thing for future generations. It is difficult to see, however, what their value will be if only a few can afford to use them.

Strictly Personal
$100 a Month For Flats in Slums

By SYDNEY J. HARRIS

An Illinois legislative committee has recently issued subpoenas for Chicago slum landlords to testify about "the fantastic filth and physically unsafe conditions" in the words of the committee chairman, after making a tour of city slums.

The committee has been instructed to prepare recommendations for legislation on slum control by June 1. Some of the slumlords, it was found, charge as much as $100 a month for tiny apartments with no heat or lighting, but plenty of rats.

One recommendation that the committee might make is legal action along the lines taken by New York City to eradicate the breeding of rabid rodents in slums.

When I visited New York last month, the city's Rehabilitation Department issued its annual report, showing that rents had been reduced in 13,497 slum dwellings that were unsafe for occupants. The department has the power to reduce rents to as little as $1 a month — and the reduction applies until the defects or deficiencies that the building has been made safe.

This is the best way to hit slum landlords — directly in the wallet. It is the only language they understand. More involved legal action is usually futile; their lawyers are experts in getting continuances, and don't mind at all paying small, regular fines.

When a slum is no longer a paying proposition, it will be cleaned up, and not before. In most urban communities today the rate of return on substandard property is higher than that on decent housing; it pays to allow properties to deteriorate, to make an immoral profit for a few years, and then to sell it at an inflated price, or allow it to be condemned.

New York City has another string to its bow: the Department of Real Estate at the end of last year had for sale 1,000 dwellings in receivership. When landlords refuse to make necessary repairs, the building is placed in receivership by the city, which has proved to be a strong deterrent to degeneration of these properties.

Actually, eradication of slums is more than a health and housing problem, and more than justice to slum dwellers. The disgusting domiciles breed more than rats — they breed crime and indifference, resentment and social cancer in what could be the most useful and valuable areas of the city. Everyone suffers when slumlords are permitted to exploit their helpless, and hopeless, tenants.

Resting Inflicted Areas Eases Bursitis Problems

By JOSEPH G. MOLNER, M.D.

Dear Dr. Molner: Is there any cure for bursitis? I have had it for three months and have had several doctors but nothing seems permanent. My doctors shy away from talking about it. — E. W. S.

Is there a cure for bursitis? Let's put it this way: Bursitis gets cured. Frequently you'll see why I say this.

First, just what is bursitis? One reason our joints normally move so smoothly is the presence of soft little fluid - filled sacs. The tendons ride easily over these. Each one is called a bursa.

Then one of them becomes inflamed, that's bursitis.

It is a very common affliction, occurring most often in the shoulder, but also in other joints, when it is often called "lumbago's knee, tennis elbow, or clumsiness's elbow.

The usual causes are a blow or some injury, the very often, continued pressure on the joint in question, until the bursa rebels and becomes inflamed.

When the inflammation calms down, then the bursitis is healed. However, there is no final, specific cure that is bound to be the answer in all cases.

Generally — and this is quite logical — taking all pressure off the joint and bursa over it is the first requirement. You can't just keep on using the joint and expect the inflammation to subside.

Injections of hydrocortisone are quite effective for quick relief, but you must still allow natural healing to take place. Hot wet compresses, and diathermy machines also give a good deal of relief.

Bursitis tends to improve with time, and these other measures help the process along. There are instances in which a bursa becomes so inflamed and damaged that operation is the only cure. This is not successful, and on occasion surgery is necessary. However, that is the exception and not the rule. In most cases treatment as described brings relief, and it is up to the sufferer to let the affected joints take things easy until healing is complete.

If you don't make progress in this way, it is prudent to suspect that the problem isn't bursitis, but something else.

Not every shoulder pain is bursitis.

Dear Dr. Molner: I have diverticulosis. What can this mean and is there any cure for it? — Mrs. E. H.

Of all the people who have this trouble, and there are millions, nearly all get through it all right, if they understand what it is and know why they have been told their doctor's instructions. Most of them come through even if they don't know why, but it helps to know. This is such a frequent trouble, when people are 40 or 50 years of age or older, that I've quit explaining the basic facts in the column and have put it into a booklet. So get my booklet, "Don't Let Diverticulosis Throw You," by sending 25 cents in coin and a stamped, self-addressed envelope to Dr. Molner in care of The Chicago Sun-Times Syndicate, P. O. Box 198, Dundee, Ill.

Diverticulitis, you'll learn from the booklet, is diverticulosis that has become inflamed. Note the endings of the terms: itis or ois. Osis is not an inflammation.

Dear Dr. Molner: Would you send me information about the kidneys? I need this for a school biology project. — P. L.

I hope you accumulate some health information from me by my daily offering, but you must have missed my remarks (once or twice a year) pointing out that your teachers don't want me to do your school work for you. They want you to learn how to dig up information from the library and other such sources. No, I won't do your assignment for you, but I do hope that you buckle down and that you get a good mark.

Latest CN Passenger Equipment Is Viewed by Hundreds Here

Several hundred Bellevilleresidents viewed the Canadian National's latest passenger train equipment last night. Open for public inspection at the CN freight shed, on Emily Street between Bleecker and Station Streets, were passenger coaches, a dining car, lounge car, a sleeper and skyview car, which might perhaps be described as the CN railway version of the automobile industry's "hardtop."

The equipment, which may be familiar to those who have travelled CN in other areas but which has not been in use on the Montreal - Toronto run, is being introduced for the summer in the Rideau Area. The train visited Cobourg on Monday. It will be shown today at Kingston, and then Brockville and Cornwall.

Many of those viewing the equipment came in families, since it had been announced that children under 15 would not be admitted unless accompanied by an adult. This rule, though, was more honored in the breach than the observance and the younger visitors were particularly eager to enjoy the free movies, of Jasper and the Atlantic provinces.

During the course of the evening Mayor J. R. Ellis visited the display, in the skyview car the mayor was presented with a large framed color photograph of Jasper, by H. J. Fast, recently appointed manager of the Rideau Area.

Veterinarian Says Children Are Not Instinctively Kind In Relationship With Pets

By JEAN SHARP

TORONTO (CP) — If you're thinking of getting a pet for a child, it's important to choose the animal carefully and make sure the youngster learns how to be kind to it.

"It's wrong to expect children to be kind instinctively," says Dr. Roderick Davies, vice-president of the Toronto Academy of Veterinary Medicine. "They have to be taught that an animal is a living thing and should be respected and cared for in a gentle way.

"Children can be cruel, and if they're allowed to be, the family has no business having an animal.

"I don't think children under about four should have pets unless the parents are prepared to take complete responsibility. From four to about six, children still require a lot of help looking after an animal.

"When the animal is young and children are young both should be watched carefully. Once an animal gets adult, matures a bit, it will tolerate more from a young child.

"I think it's a good thing for children to grow up with a pet. They get to know it and to know animals are not hostile.

"I wouldn't hesitate to recommend a large dog as a pet. With the exception of a few breeds, they are often friendlier than small dogs."

PICK FRIENDLY DOG

Dr. Davies says that when choosing a dog, the puppy that enchants you by wagging his tail and wriggling over to be patted may be a good choice.

"You should consider a pet's temperament, and if dog should be friendly, even at the age of five or six weeks.

"Where health is concerned, you should look for clear eyes—the whites really white, a moist nose with no discharge, no signs of diarrhea. It should have a glossy coat, with lots of elasticity in the skin. Its ears should be clean inside, and it should have no untoward odor.

"The same things pretty well apply for cats and dogs, except, of course, a cat won't come to you or wag its tail.

"An animal should be checked by a vet before purchase, if possible. Then a vaccination program for worming and diet can be discussed.

"Among the best places to buy pets are from reliable breeders for purebreds, or at pounds of the up-to-date humane societies.

"When you first take an animal home there should be a place ready for it, dry and clean and not underfoot. There should be a kitten will probably be all over the place."

TWO DISHES

Dr. Davies says animals should have two dishes, one for food, one for water, and there should be fresh water for it all the time.

"Food should be put down at specified times, and the pet encouraged to eat. If it doesn't take the food away and offer it at the next food time.

"Start good feeding habits early. A vet will give you a schedule. Animals are easily spoiled by being fed at the table and being fed human food which is not good for them, but which they like.

"Most of the well-known commercial dog and cat foods are good. A lot of people think their dogs are too good for dog food, but the dogs do better on it.

"One difference between cats and dogs is that a dog will do well on the same type of food day after day. Cats need variety.

"No animal should be fed candies or indigestible vegetables such as baked beans, cabbage, celery or citrus fruits."

Dr. Davies says you can expect a dog to do very little in the way of tricks before it is six months old, but that it should be trained to come when you call by about four months. He suggests using feeding and play times as the earliest indicements to get a puppy to come to you.

"Get training advice if you need it. Especially for large breeds, obedience schools are good after six months. An unruly big dog is a nuisance."

Asks New Trial After 20 Years Spent in Jail

By BORIS MISKEW

NEW YORK (CP) — The reverberation of the murder trial of Canadian-born Wayne Lonergan that caused a sensation here during the Second World War echoed Tuesday in a New York courtroom as the accused sought a new trial.

Lawyer Frances Kahn represented Lonergan, who was convicted in 1944 of second-degree murder for the slaying of his heiress wife. Miss Kahn, initiated a hearing in the Bronx on grounds that Lonergan had been coerced into making his confession prior to the trial.

She said several witnesses will be called in an effort to prove that Lonergan, who has served 21 years of a 35-year-to-life sentence, had confessed involuntarily and that his confession therefore should have been ruled inadmissible at his trial.

Lonergan, 41, was a member of the RCAF at the time of his arrest in Toronto in October, 1943, a couple of days after the body of his estranged wife had been found bludgeoned and strangled in her fashionable Manhattan apartment.

CHARGES BEATING

Miss Kahn charged that Lonergan had been plied with brandy, beaten, deprived of sleep and subjected to physical and psychological abuses by police to wring a confession from him.

Lonergan, wearing a dark suit, shuffled through photostatic copies of the newspapers reporting his indictment and confession as the questioning continued.

After being picked up by Toronto police at the request of U.S. authorities, Lonergan was flown to Buffalo where he spent the night with a couple of New York police officers in a Buffalo hotel before being brought to New York.

Lonergan was disinherited by his wife, the former Patricia Burton, granddaughter of millionaire brewer Edward Hanna, two months before the slaying. The entire fortune, about $1,000,000, was left in trust to the couple's son, William, 18 months at the time.

Judge's Position Is Questioned By Law Society

OTTAWA (CP)—Justice Minister Favreau has received a report from the Law Society of Upper Canada questioning the position of Mr. Justice Leo Landreville of the Ontario Supreme Court and has asked the judge for his reply to it, the Commons was told Tuesday night.

The information was given by Donald S. Macdonald, Mr. Favreau's parliamentary secretary, after Andrew Brewin (NDP-Toronto Greenwood) raised the issue in an adjournment debate.

Mr. Macdonald said the report was received from the law society last week along with a confidential letter on the same subject. Mr. Favreau immediately notified Mr. Justice Landreville and asked him for his views.

His answer is expected either this week or next.

"I hope it will be agreed that, in such a case, both sides should be heard before any action is taken," Mr. Macdonald said.

IS UNPRECEDENTED

Mr. Brewin said the action of the law society was unprecedented. This is a responsible and ultra - respectable" association of Ontario lawyers and its action is unprecedented. Mr. Justice Landreville's status has caused "very grave disquiet."

The denomination of the judiciary is one of the most important pillars of our judicial system," Mr. Brewin said.

Mr. Brewin said the action of the judge will leave no stone unturned to ensure the absolute integrity of its members."

Mr. Landreville, 58, a former mayor of Sudbury, who was named to the Ontario Supreme Court in 1956, was cleared at a preliminary hearing last year of charges of municipal corruption involving Northern Ontario Natural Gas stock. There was testimony he made a $5,000 profit on the sales of NONG stock after resigning as mayor.

Mr. Brewin said this aspect of his trial "is not appropriate for the people of Canada."

"The Roberts government is not proposing a medicare plan," Mr. Rheo said. "It is a poor and costly substitute for the real thing."

According to the speaker the kind of a plan favored by labor would be short of the basis of the Hall Commission recommendations which estimated the per capita cost on a national scale for medicare at $24.91 for 1966.

The medical plan proposed by the Hall commission would services program financed by taxes and premiums, to achieve to include all medical - diagnosis and treatment - of all physical and psychiatric conditions in home, hospital or office.

Quebec to Have Nuclear Power Plant by 1973

QUEBEC (CP)—Premier Lesage said Tuesday night Quebec will have a nuclear power plant in operation by 1973 and an announcement about the start of construction might be made "towards the end of next year."

He told the Canadian Nuclear Association which had reached "agreement in principle" with Prime Minister Pearson on a 250 megawatt plant which would be built by Atomic Energy of Canada.

"Many Canadians were wondering about my discussions with Mr. Pearson in Ottawa a week ago yesterday," he told the nuclear association's convention delegates. "I can tell you that this matter was settled in discussions there."

He told reporters the plant would cost $100,000,000.

Railway Workers Protest Ontario Medicare Plan

The 350 members of the Canadian Brotherhood of Railway Transport and General Workers in Belleville will lodge individual protests against the Roberts medicare plan now before the Ontario Legislature.

The decision of local members to protest the medicare plan was taken Monday evening after local union members were addressed by John Rheo, Ontario Federation of Labor Research Director. The meeting was held at Engineers' Hall.

The speaker took strong exception to the provisions of the Roberts medicare plan based on recommendations from the Hagey commission, declaring that they proposed in many ways an "anachronism" designed to serve the insurance companies and the doctors more than the people of Canada."

"The Roberts government is not proposing a medicare plan," Mr. Rheo said. "It is a poor and costly substitute for the real thing."

According to the speaker the kind of a plan favored by labor would be short of the basis of the Hall Commission recommendations which estimated the per capita cost on a national scale for medicare at $24.91 for 1966.

The medical plan proposed by the Hall commission would services program financed by taxes and premiums, to achieve to include all medical - diagnosis and treatment - of all physical and psychiatric conditions in home, hospital or office.

"We must put pressure on the government to discard the Hagey report and to amend Bill 163 to be in line with the Hall report," said Mr. Rheo.

"The people of Ontario, and of Canada generally, deserve nothing less than the best that could be had in health services and it is evident that Ontario can afford the best."

The application stated the government grant would be 59.3 per cent of the overall cost and that 2 mills of the mill rate would be approximately 3 mills.

The board has the tentative approval of the inspector and the Department of Education.

The council gives approval for the expenditure of $100,000 for the proposed building.

A request was also received from Campbellford and District Association for Retarded Children for a contribution to a building fund. Council granted $10.

A new pumper under request since last year from R.M.D.O. has been granted. On an expenditure of up to $18,000, RMD will grant 40 per cent, Ontario Fire and Light Commission, Reeve Rivers states the addition of the new pumper to Campbellford 3rd Fire Department in a most satisfactory position to handle any fire in the town or community.

The hoist required for the Fire Department has been bought at a price of $280. This is a reduced cost due to the length of time the department has had to wait, the original cost of the purchaser host was $320.

It was suggested the firemen sell tickets on the boat bought at a new and any proceeds over $280 on the sale be contributed to the community centre.

The ambulance service in Campbellford will be operated under new supervision, the vehicle will be donated by the former owners, A. D. Bennett and Son.

A meeting home has been opened in Campbellford under Mr. and Mrs. Rasmus from Warkworth, alterations are being made to comply with regulations.

Soviet Dancers Dazzle Toronto

TORONTO (CP)—The Moiseyev Dance Company opened a three-night stand here Tuesday night with a performance that drew 8,000 spectators to Maple Leaf Gardens and got raves from the three Toronto daily newspapers.

Not sharing the enthusiasm of the spectators for the Russian dance troupe were 16 members of the Association for the Liberation of the Ukraine, Toronto branch.

They picketed the Gardens as dance enthusiasts filled into the building. Their slogans protested Russian occupation of the Ukraine and attacked Soviet spying in Canada.

tinately were different."

Although under RCMP surveillance for many months, he made no effort to report to or co-operate with security officers until they went to him last week. Only then did he provide them with "some useful information."

With evidence from the naturalized Canadian, the civil servant, and a "number" of other Canadians involved in the spy ring on a second-line basis, the government confronted Soviet Ambassador Ivan Dejenko last Tuesday and told him Rytchkov and Gerasimov had become "persona non grata" in Canada. They left for Moscow Friday.

TOTAL IS SEVEN

Their departure raised to seven the number of Iron Curtain diplomats ousted from this country for espionage activity since the Gouzenko affair in 1945.

Two of the previous cases, a Soviet attache in 1959 and a Czechoslovakian secretary a year later, were brought to light for the first time in the prime minister's statement Tuesday.

As far as Canadian citizens are concerned, however, there has been no further information in relation to espionage cases since 29 individuals were convicted of various charges following out of testimony by former embassy cipher clerk Igor Gouzenko in 1946.

The prime minister's statement, together with Saturday's 375-word announcement, marked the first time the federal government has gone in detailing espionage case.

In the first hours after Mr. Pearson had faced an opposition storm in the House Monday over the Rytchkov affair, it was felt it accept the Saturday Press release. Sources admitted "the prime minister may have been poorly briefed" on Monday, a situation he moved to rectify in the House the following day.

GIVES WARNING

He told the House the government had decided to release more information than usual to make it clear to Moscow that such activity by "so-called diplomatic staff" will not be countenanced in Canada and to remind Canadians that "constant vigilance" is required against possible Soviet snoopers.

Despite its length, however, Mr. Pearson's statement left many questions unanswered.

It did not, for example, shed any light on the brief mention in the Saturday's announcement that the naturalized Canadian was asked, among other things, to obtain information by "compromising" female civil servants. The external affairs statement said this would involve special photographic work, implying blackmail would have been applied to some form.

New Democrat Leader Douglas, who suggested this was not "a pretty picture," poured further giggles in the House by asking that Mr. Pearson "look into" this matter.

Nor did the prime minister's statement explain why Mr. Pearson himself was not informed of the situation until "our security people felt the time had come to expose the presumably sometime last week.

There has been criticism in some past controversies that the prime minister was not briefed adequately and promptly enough.

HOME BACK

Mr. Pearson steered clear of naming or identifying in any way the two Canadians involved. He also turned aside questions on exactly how much money changed hands between the Russians and the two Canadians.

He did say, however, that the payoffs were made in small amounts over a "considerable period of time" and used by the two men to pay expenses such as transportation and accommodation incurred in chasing down requested information.

The prime minister said the other Canadians involved indirectly in the case all had cooperated with the RCMP. But he gave no hint on how many persons were in this category or whether they were government employees.

His statement got a much better reception than on Monday, but still left opposition leaders dissatisfied in some respects.

Opposition Leader Diefenbaker said he felt the situation called for creation of a royal commission to "ascertain the degree to which espionage is being on within our country." He suggested it might be headed by Supreme Court Chief Justice Robert Taschereau and most, in camera if necessary, to gather evidence.

Social Credit Leader Thompson, who accused both Mr. Pearson and external affairs of "bungling" the present case, called on the government to produce a white paper on security. Canadians were asking what there is serious leading us" and were due a full explanation of the situation.

be $46, with the government paying the rest. At $80 taxable income the premium cost to the family from can $136, and at about $1,500 family income it becomes $178.

Mr. Dyment pointed out, however, that when the premium rate is finally set it may be more than $178 in the case the family with taxable income of about $1,200 would pay the full premium cost and would receive no subsidy.

WON'T BE ELIGIBLE

No family with taxable income of more than $1,200 will be eligible for a government subsidy, nor will be barred by the government. But these families may obtain insurances from any private carrier.

Leaders of the two opposition parties in the legislature said they will fight the bill clause by clause no matter how long it takes.

Liberal Leader Andrew Thompson said outside the house the government was "timid" and the plan "deplorable." He complained the plan does not provide for dental and eye care, drugs and special care for elderly persons.

Donald Macdonald, New Democratic Party leader, said "the field is still going to be wide open for exploitation of health services for profit by private insurance carriers."

Douglas Hamilton, secretary-treasurer of the Ontario Federation of Labor, said the bill was far from the universal, compulsory, all-inclusive, government-operated medical care scheme urged by the federation.

Officials of the Ontario Medical Association said they are generally pleased with the announced plan.

Dr. R. S. Duggan, outgoing president, told a press conference at the association's annual meeting that the bill contains many features the OMA recommended with the government asked for advice.

PRIVATE OFFERS

The private insurance companies will be obliged to offer insurance policies to all individuals or families in the province, regardless of age or state of health.

One contract will be the same as that provided under the publicly-operated plan. The second will be a "co-insurance" contract in which the insured family pays the first $50 of medical costs during the year, plus 20 per cent of the remainder. Its premium costs will be lower.

The government will establish a new division within the department of health to act as the insurance carrier for subsidized persons. The division will be located in the Ontario Hospital Services Commission building so it can use the commission's administrative machinery in its operation.

A nine-man medical services insurance council will be established to advise the medical care legislation. It will be advised by an association of private insurance companies to be known as Medical Carriers Inc.

The carrier corporation will recommend the level for premiums initially, and thereafter advise on any changes in premium costs.

WILL BE FROZEN

For the first two years of the scheme's operation, the premium costs will be frozen.

The corporation will also advise the council regarding the benefits to be offered, and the dates of open enrolment periods.

To guard against persons trying to buy medical insurance only after illness has struck, enrolment periods will be held only once a year. After enrolment there will be a waiting period for coverage to take effect.

Medical Carriers Inc. will act as a pool for the insurance companies' high risk cases — the sick and the elderly—so that they may share their losses.

However, Dr. Dymond said actuaries believe most of the high risks will be among the groups to be subsidized by the government and insurance by the public carrier.

MAY DO FAVOR

While the government is setting up the public carrier principally to assure that no public funds will be paid to the profit-making private carriers, it may also be doing them a favor by taking care of the high risks off their hands.

At present, Dr. Dymond said, about 94 per cent of Canada's population has some form of medical insurance. He said the government's aim in the new insurance legislation may cover the 16-per-cent gap.

He said the implementation of a medical insurance scheme for Ontario follows logically in the footsteps of the hospital insurance plan brought forward in 1958.

Next in importance after hospital and medical insurance, he listed dentist services, all other para-medical services, and prescribed drug services.

Premium costs, he said, will be shared by the province, municipalities and individuals.

The health minister said, the government has given no consideration yet to extending its standard contract beyond physicians' care.

Doctors Want Abortion Legal To Preserve Health of Mother

TORONTO (CP)—The Ontario Medical Association recommended Tuesday that therapeutic abortion and sterilization be made legal in certain circumstances.

The association's council made the recommendation at its annual meeting on the basis of a committee report that considered the views of medical and legal experts and the results of questionnaires sent to doctors and hospitals.

The association recommends the termination of pregnancy be made legal, subject to four rules:

—The abortion must be performed by a qualified doctor after consultation with, and approval of, an abortion committee or after consultation with at least one other qualified doctor.

—It must be performed in an active treatment hospital, or elsewhere in an emergency.

—The written consent of the patient must be obtained, and also, if possible, the written consent of spouse or guardian.

—The operation must be necessary to preserve the life or the physical or mental health of the mother.

The legislation necessary to put into effect the recommendations would also clarify interpretations of the Criminal Code that cover abortion.

Although the majority of obstetricians and gynecologists of non - Roman Catholic hospitals approved of the recommendations, the majority of Catholic hospitals disapproved.

Two of 40 gave qualified approval of sterilization while all 40 disapproved of therapeutic abortion.

Liberal Member Proposes Convicts Be Put to Work In the Canadian North

By STUART LAKE

OTTAWA (CP) — A Liberal MP wants the government to put convicts to work building air fields, harbors and other installations in the Canadian north.

John R. Matheson, who represents the Ontario riding of Leeds in the Commons, said in an interview Tuesday that converting criminal offenders into good citizens is the main idea behind the resolution he has placed on the Commons order paper.

But if adopted by the government the plan also could play an important part in the development of the north, he said.

The resolution asks the government to consider "establishing minimum security work camps at strategic locations in the Canadian Arctic where selected convicts on modest remuneration would construct airstrips, harbors and other installations considered to serve economic, scientific and other national interests."

The 47-year-old Brockville, Ont., lawyer says the idea of rehabilitating prisoners by giving them useful work has been opposed by both labor and private industry who see it as competition.

By placing the work camps in the Arctic, Mr. Matheson hopes to sidestep these objections.

SAYS SYSTEM BAD

He said he is concerned with the growing population of Canadian prisons and sees the present penitentiary system as one where young prisoners come under the influence of hardened criminals. Prisons such as the one at Kingston, Ont., should house only the unreformable criminal.

Only prisoners who want to go north would be sent there and they would have to be physically fit, he said. The work accomplished would rehabilitate young offenders, spark commercial development and attract more residents.

Mr. Matheson hopes young prisoners might catch "the Arctic fever" and live there after their terms.

The camps also would relieve the minds of prominent Canadians worried about the lack of Canadian presence in the north. Some 25,000 Canadians now live in the area which comprises roughly one-third of the country.

Prisoners sent to Australia long ago as settlers have given that country a he-man population and the north could use such a strain, said Mr. Matheson.

In a land where a man is a man, the north and young rebels could be a perfect match.

Liberals

duck non-confidence votes because they fear an election.

NDP Leader Douglas retorted Monday that the Liberals want to call an early election and blame it on the opposition. He said his party is not afraid of an election.

OPPOSE VOTE

Many Conservatives are known to oppose an election because of differences of opinion with Opposition Leader Diefenbaker in party ranks. Many Liberals apparently would not mind if the government was toppled in a confidence vote, forcing an election.

The NDP non-confidence motion on autos was the only one introduced in the two-day supply debate that ended Tuesday night. The Conservatives passed up their opportunity this time.

Today, debate resumes on a bill providing for the retirement of future senators at age 75. Present senators over 75 would have a choice between staying on at $15,000 a year or retiring on an $8,000 annual pension.

The supply debate was devoted almost entirely to the auto pact signed in January by Mr. Pearson and President Lyndon Johnson of the United States. Tariffs on new cars and original parts are removed and original parts are removed at the manufacturer level.

CHALLENGERS WORDING

Minister MacEachen said the NDP motion used "extravagant and false language." The new plan would increase production and employment in the Canadian auto industry in the long run.

He said 1,400 Ford employees will be laid off this summer in Windsor, but best chances were good that all of them would be placed in new jobs or rehired by the end of the year after retooling is completed.

Alternate job prospects were reasonably good for 600 workers scheduled to be laid off in mid-June.

He said most of the 1,000 senior workers due to be laid off temporarily in August will be enrolled in a federal - provincial technical retraining program. The federal government would pay 75 per cent of the cost of the program operating costs and 50 per cent of living allowances for participating workers.

FINGER PEAFROST

The labor minister said Mr. Douglas and other speakers were "parading a phantom" in calling on the government to match United States' efforts in aiding workers affected by the auto agreement.

"The Americans have nothing like this," he said of government plans to aid those affected in Canada.

Mr. MacEachen said the press has exaggerated the impact of forthcoming layoffs at Ford's Windsor plant, stirred up fears in the city.

He had been informed by Ford that 400 workers would be laid off in mid-June and another 1,000 in mid - August. Plans to lay off 300 more in May had been dropped.

The National Employment Service reported that no serious difficulty was expected in finding jobs for the 400 men scheduled to be laid off in June.

He said the 1,000 men to be laid off in August will be recalled by the end of this year after tooling has been completed.

Herb Gray (L—Essex West) said the agreement will result in a 50-per-cent increase in Canadian production in the 1966-68 period. This would create many jobs. Chrysler of Canada already had announced plans to add a shift at its Canadian plant, creating 1,000 jobs in Windsor.

ARTISTS DECRY CENSOR

LISBON (AP)—A group of 175 Portuguese artists and writers has petitioned the education minister for the abolition of censorship of the theatre, which they say makes it "a silence resembling more and more that of death." They specifically objected to the censorship of "The Mutiny," a play about police in 18th century Portugal.

Wessin has been charged by Caamano with having ordered the bombing of rebel-held areas following the outbreak of a revolt on April 24 against the government of Donald Reid Cabral.

Three American parachutists were being held in custody today following the fatal shooting of a 17-year-old Dominican boy late Monday night.

A U.S. military spokesman said a full investigation had been ordered of the incident, and added the soldiers would be punished if the facts warranted it.

River Valley W. I. Plans Various Projects for Future

RIVER VALLEY — Mrs. Hank Bush was hostess for the regular meeting of River Valley Women's Institute held last Thursday with 21 members and two visitors in attendance. The vice president, Mrs. Glen Bush opened the meeting.

Mrs. Bernard Carr presented her report and read the correspondence. This included thank-you notes for invitation to Hoards "Geranium Tea," messages re the senior training course and short courses. Mrs. R. Donahoe gave the financial statement and said that she had been given to the Ribbon Arms fund. A picture of the Marquess and Marchioness of Aberdeen, when Lord Aberdeen was governor-general of Canada was displayed. The I.C.W.W. scholarship in memory of Lady Aberdeen continues to meet with encouraging support from members. Mrs. Donahoe read an article of interest from The Countrywoman magazine which said that all over the world there are families and communities that are being helped. The Associated Countrywomen of the World, formerly known as the International Federation of Women's Institutes, works with the United Nations. One of the projects is a

JUST ONE MORE TIME

Dear Susanna: I never fail to read your column, and in return for the dear eggwarmer animal pattern you sent me to make for my grandchildren, I am enclosing my hint for keeping one's floor tile - top shape.

When you are putting the dust mop over that last time around, place a piece of waxed paper under the mop and just see what a difference it makes — waxed side down, of course. A simple way of adding that extra finishing touch. — Mrs. Doris Napkin

MEMO CALENDAR

Dear Susanna: This year I tacked a calendar — the kind with large numbers and lots of writing space — to the inside of my kitchen broom closet door. It hangs there for my exclusive use only.

First of all I use it as a memo of day to day events. I jot down the time and place of everyone's meetings and appointments so I know where each one of us is and when — including me.

Next, it is my reminder that I must take my pills twice a day. If I don't have two checks beside that particular date when nighttime comes, at least I can catch up on one pill. If several of us are taking medicine at once, I use each person's first initial on the calendar as the dosage is given.

Finally, and probably most important of all, is that it is a simple guide to me in writing to my husband's parents. They are so anxious for news and with these memos in front of me it is no trouble to brief them in on what is happening to every-one. In fact some months I simply tear off the whole page, add a few lines on the back to explain some of the notations, and send it as is. They say this "diary" is more fun even than receiving a letter. — "It's A Great Life"

Argyll Chapter Announces Two Appointments

The regular meeting of the Argyll Chapter of the IODE was held in the Armouries. The flag was brought forward. The regent, Mrs. K. D. H. Willcocks, declared the meeting open for business following repeating of the IODE prayer.

The secretary and treasurer gave their reports and these were followed by reports from the various convenors.

The purpose of ICY is to point out and emphasize the extensive areas of cooperation that presently exist. U. Thant has often said, "the smallest political wrangle attracts headlines in newspapers all over the world, whereas some of the most significant work of the UN in the economic and social fields is hardly ever mentioned. Professor Fisher says: "An International Cooperation Year" can serve to provide a truer image of the world."

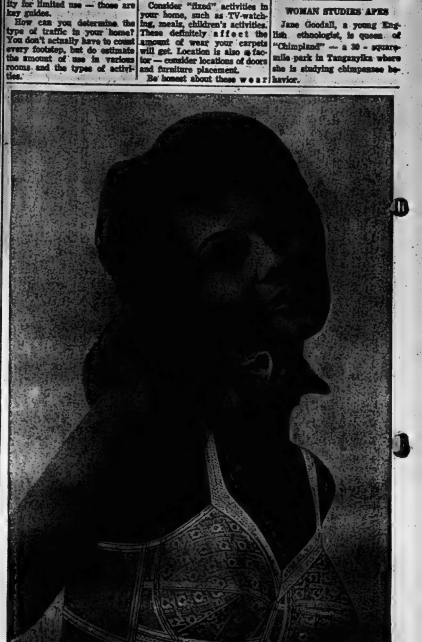
Choose Carpets for Exact Use

To get the most for your money, choose a carpet or rug that is built for the use you will give it.

Top-quality in heavy-traffic areas, medium quality in medium - traffic areas, lighter quality for limited use — these are key guides.

How can you determine the type of traffic in your home? You don't actually have to count every footstep, but do estimate the amount of use in various rooms and the types of activities.



You know, for example, that there's a great deal of difference in a family room used daily by children and adults and a living room reserved for more formal entertaining or used only on occasion.

Consider "fixed" activities in your home, such as TV-watching, meals, children's activities. These definitely affect the amount of wear your carpets will get. Location is also a factor — consider locations of doors and furniture placement.

Be honest about these wear factors in your home when explaining your carpet requirements to a salesman. He can then help you determine the carpet quality best suited to your needs.

Disgusted Customers Can Still Control the Movies

ANN LANDERS

DEAR ANN LANDERS — I am not a Bible-swing crank. I'm an average American teen-ager who wants to ask you a simple question. What has happened to decent movies?

Once upon a time movies had a plot and stars had talent. Today almost any chick with eye-popping curves (and no scruples about who sees them) can be a movie queen provided she has the proper build-up. I believe the least that can be done for the public is to let us know in advance what we are getting into.

Too many times I have taken a date to a movie which was advertised as "a rollicking comedy" or a "delightfully gay and witty musical," and instead we saw a vulgar display of half nude morons chasing each other around the bedroom. I am sick of bedroom scenes, bathtub scenes, shower scenes and men and women pursuing each other with almost nothing on.

What can be done to elevate the standards of films and clean up the movies? — DISGUSTED.

DEAR DISG — If enough people complain to the theatre managers (in writing) something will be done. The customer is still King.

DEAR ANN LANDERS — At this very moment there is a terrific argument raging in our living room. My mother and dad are really going at it. Here are the facts and I'd like your opinion — fast.

My 15-year-old sister is in a play being sponsored by our church group. The kids are selling tickets for 50c each.

My parents are having a poker party next week. Mother thinks it would be all right if my sister went around the table and asked the guests if they would like to buy a ticket or two. Mimi says the price of a ticket is no more than what a person would put in a couple of pots. Besides she says it's for a very good cause. Dad is violently opposed. What is your verdict? — BIG SISTER.

DEAR BIG SISTER — I agree with your Dad. It's an out and out clobber and the guests would have a right to resent it.

DEAR ANN LANDERS — Do you think it is possible for a person to be too kind-hearted for her own good? Well, right now I could kick myself for being Little Goody Two Shoes. Please tell me how to unwind this mess and I promise I will never do anyone a favor again as long as I live.

I had to leave town with my folks two weeks ago. This meant I couldn't go to the big De Molay dance so I asked my Numero Uno, Chris, to please take my cousin Beatrice, who never had a date to anything. (I even let her wear my dress.)

Well, Chris and Beatrice have been like glued together ever since. There must be a side to my cousin Beatrice that I didn't know about. She keeps hanging me up on the telephone and won't answer. Ma." My whole life is changed, too. I'm sitting home like an old maid. Chris hasn't said anything but I expect the "nice to have known you" routine any minute.

How can I get my boy friend back? — MISS NUT HEAD.

DEAR MISS — If anyone but Cousin Beatrice was able to do such a slick job of getting Chris interested in her he must have been plenty ripe for the picking.

You can't keep a guy locked up and blindfolded. If it hadn't been Beatrice it would have been another gal. Accept the realities and cool again.

Asparagus — forerunner of all fresh vegetables — is pampered by Mary Moore to retain its lovely bright green color and to conserve its precious minerals and moderately high vitamin A content. One of the recipes given today is Fish Fillets and Asparagus Bake with Lemon Butter.

ASPARAGUS WITH FISH

The subject of this column primarily is asparagus.

I've used this delicious springtime vegetable to demonstrate an economical fish dish. I'm telling you, as I do annually, and as you know, how to cook this sensitive shoot to conserve its bright color and flavor. Then I've given a marinade for it, from which you serve it cold as a salad as the French do.

WEDNESDAY
Dinner Menu

by Mary Moore

Garlic Spareribs; Mashed Potatoes; Creamed Cauliflower or Brussels Sprouts; Relish Tray: Dill Spears, Radishes, Celery Curls; Fresh Fruit Cup; Currant Cakes; Tea.

FISH FILLETS AND ASPARAGUS BAKE with Lemon Butter Sauce (serves 2.)

Note:—My fish fillets were fresh frozen ocean perch, but you can use haddock or sole. This is combined with asparagus and if you have six to serve, to feed fourteen you need 3 lbs. fish fillets and 2 lbs. short, thick asparagus stalks.

1 lb. fresh or frozen fish fillets (thawed), 1 lb. asparagus (select short, thick stalks), ½ teaspoon salt, shake of pepper, ¼ cup melted butter, 2 tablespoons slivered toasted almonds (optional), Lemon Butter Sauce (see below).

Precook asparagus in ¼ cup boiling water 5 minutes. Drain and reserve liquid. Divide asparagus into 6 bundles. Sprinkle fish fillets with salt and pepper and wrap the fillets around each bundle. (If your fillets are ocean perch wrap 2 of these little fillets around each bundle of asparagus.) Place rolls, seam side down, on buttered large shallow baking dish. Pour ¼ cup of the reserved asparagus liquid around. Brush fish and asparagus generously with all of the melted butter. If desired, sprinkle top with paprika and almonds (if used). Bake at 450 deg. Fahr. about 15 to 18 minutes or until fish is opaque and will flake when tested with fork and top is gold and bubbly. Serve with .... Lemon Butter Sauce

Melt ¼ cup butter and blend in 1 tablespoon cornstarch. Stir in 2/3 cup hot water until thick. Add ¼ teaspoon salt, ¼ teaspoon sugar and 1 tablespoon lemon juice and stir over low heat for 1 minute. Serve hot.

Lovely with asparagus alone as a sort of Mock Hollandaise.

Don't Murder Asparagus, Cook It Properly

Wash asparagus thoroughly, cut off tough ends, being sure no sand lurks under scales. Stand up in tall pot, pot about ¼" boiling water in pot, cover and boil 9 to 10 minutes or until barely tender—the tips cook in the steam. Drain carefully without breaking tips and serve at once. Lovely with Genuine Hollandaise or the Lemon Butter Sauce above.

ASPARAGUS VINAIGRETTE (salad).

Cook 1 lb. trimmed short, thick asparagus stalks in small amount boiling water (see above) until barely tender. Drain. Marinate 2 hours in refrigerator in Parmesan Vinaigrette: Mix together well, ¼ cup vinegar, ¼ cup water, ½ cup salad oil and 1 envelope Parmesan salad dressing mix (or 1 teaspoon salt, 1½ teaspoons dry grated Parmesan cheese, ¼ teaspoon accent, ½ teaspoon pepper, shake of cayenne). Drain and serve on lettuce leaf garnished with strip of pimiento as a hand around centre of asparagus.

Diamond Mesh Hosiery Can Disguise Chubby Legs

DEAR DORIS — My legs are terribly fat, especially around the ankles. The upper part of my feet are also terribly fat.

Are the new diamond designed mesh hose appropriate for me? Also, are there any exercises or other things I can do to make my horrible legs thinner and more attractive? — TROUBLED.

DORIS CLARK

DEAR TROUBLED — Dark mesh hose in a small diamond design are slenderizing.

Try this ankle and leg reducer: Sit on a chair and cross right knee over left. Curl toes of right foot under and slowly describe ten large circles with this foot in a clockwise direction. Reverse position and perform routine with left foot in a counter-clockwise direction.

Write in for the leaflet "Some Special Notes for Chubby Legs," enclosing ten cents and a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

DEAR DORIS — How can you tell people in a nice way that they are making a nuisance of themselves? The person I am referring to is an older woman, with too much time on her hands so she pesters me no end. She phones and invites herself over for the day so I find myself telling a little white lie; then she arranges for the next day and invites herself for supper.

She claims she has friends galore but I never hear of her going to see them. She is a nice lady but I am at my wits' end to know what to do. Even when I am going away for a week end she suggests going too. — FED UP.

* * *

FED UP — Your loss-end friend probably considers herself retired and is prepared to coast from here in. Not a satisfying existence. Has probably worn out her welcome with "friends galore."

Help her to find her second career in a hobby group or service centre. She needs to turn that energy to good account. Might be that you could give her the berve she needs to get started.

DEAR DORIS — Would you please tell me what is done when you get a wedding invitation with only Mr. and Mrs. written on. They don't mention the children at all. Do you just leave the children home and go by yourself? — CURIOUS.

DEAR CURIOUS — Yes.

AMBASSADOR'S WIFE — Mrs. Francois Leduc, wife of the new French Ambassador to Canada, has taken up residence in Ottawa with her husband and three of their seven children. Their four other children are still in Paris finishing their school term. The French couple have had previous postings in Brussels, Tunis and Bonn. Mrs. Leduc plans to see as much of Canada as possible during the family's stay here. (CP Photo)

Life Not So Public For Women of France

By BRENDA LARGE

OTTAWA (CP) — French women, especially French mothers, play a less prominent public role than their counterparts in North America, says the wife of France's new ambassador to Canada.

"Life in France is not at all in public," Mrs. Francois Leduc, a tall, silver-haired woman with seven children, said in an interview. "We have no women's social clubs, although many women do belong to professional organizations."

But as the wives of top diplomats are just as diplomatic as their husbands, she did not imply any criticism of the part played by North American women. She simply remarked that things are done differently in France.

Charitable work was carried on privately rather than in the public limelight.

"Many women in France work if they have no children. But if they do have children, they just haven't time to do either volunteer or paid work outside the home. They are busy with their children, sewing for them, organizing their school work and recreation."

Mrs. Leduc, who was interviewed in the stately French Embassy next door to the prime minister's residence on Sussex Drive, said few French mothers now have nursemaids or housekeepers to help care for their children. As most French husbands come home for lunch at noon, often staying until 2:30 p.m., and the children arrive home from school at 4:30, the mothers have only two hours alone in the afternoon for their own relaxation and recreation.

POLISHES HER ENGLISH

Another difference between France and North America, said Mrs. Leduc, seemed to be in the attention paid by the press. The life of the diplomatic corps was more public in Ottawa than in Paris.

"For example, in the last six months I have seen only two interviews in the French press with the wives of ambassadors living in Paris."

In Ottawa, interviews with the wife of each new diplomat often appeared in the local papers soon after her arrival.

Mrs. Leduc, who came here with her 52-year-old husband in mid-March, is adjusting to her new environment quickly. Although she prefers to speak French, she is busy brushing up the English she says she learned 20 years ago at school, and is doing extremely well.

A serene woman who speaks slowly, she hesitates before making a quick judgment; or voicing an opinion.

She likes classic clothes, and says she never follows fashion if it doesn't please her. "It may look be very French, but that's the way I feel about dress."

For the interview, she wore a simply-cut white-colored dress with low-heeled green suede shoes. Much of her conversation was about her children.

Three of them, Bruno, 14, Beatrice, 12, and Monique, 9, came to Ottawa with their parents.

PREFERS DINNERS

The other four children are in Paris. Jacqueline, 19, is a law student and may continue her studies in Ottawa next year. The three older boys, Etienne, 17, Bernard, 16, and Jean-Paul, 15, are also finishing the current school term in France.

Mrs. Leduc's family has had previous postings in Brussels, Tunis and Bonn, but this is the first country in which Mr. Leduc has served as ambassador.

The social duties of an ambassador's wife vary from country to country, said Mrs. Leduc says it will be several months before she really knows what is expected of her.

She prefers to give dinner parties rather than cocktail parties, "because people get a better chance to talk to one another." The ideal dinner party was for 14 to 16 people. "More than 20 is really too many for good conversation."

Mr. Leduc always decided on the guest list, because he knew which people he needed to meet and who were valuable contacts.

The Leducs have brought their own chef from Paris, so dinners at the embassy should be a treat for members of the Ottawa diplomatic corps.

The ambassador's wife, who met Mr. Leduc in Paris where they were both born and grew up, is fond of reading. She also likes to collect antique furniture.

After she and her family have become more settled in their new home, she hopes to visit a number of Canadian antique shops, one of their only ones in rural areas, where she says the more unusual objects are always found.

Mothers Should Insist On Tests Being Made

VANCOUVER (CP) — Expectant mothers should insist that their babies be tested for a condition that can cause severe mental deficiencies in infants says an expert.

The test is simple and inexpensive but not enough doctors are using it, says Dr. Thomas A. Perry, associate professor of pharmacology at the University of British Columbia.

A single drop of blood from a tiny pinprick in the heel of a newborn baby is sufficient for the test for phenylketonuria, or PKU.

PKU is an inherited condition in which the baby's body is unable to break down an essential amino acid in the normal manner. So, somehow — doctors don't know exactly why—the defect can cause serious damage to the developing brain of a child.

The test already is mandatory on newborn infants in at least two American states.

Routine use of the test began last year at four of the major hospitals in Greater Vancouver. But Dr. Perry says only one-quarter of the 40,000 babies born in British Columbia each year are given the test.

"Ideally the test could and should be done in the newborn nursery on every baby born.

"Furthermore it should be repeated on every baby regardless of the outcome of the first test. Preferably this would be done when the baby is between two and three weeks of age.

"Here's a serious disease that we can at least screen for, like myself working in laboratories all over the world have been screening blood over this disease.

"It took years to develop an effective method of preventing mental deficiency in these children. Now we have the knowledge to do this and it is not being fully used."

Mobile Beauty Parlors Used In Cuba

By MICHAEL ARRUS

HAVANA (Reuters) — Far from banishing feminine beauty aids as bourgeois, Cuba is instituting mobile beauty parlors for women living in remote areas.

The mobile parlor, however, is only the lighter side of a much more serious "health and beauty brigade" plan aimed at bringing a general medical service to isolated hamlets.

Every Sunday, a 36-member jeep-born commando of doctors, nurses, hairdressers and manicurists sets out over the dirt tracks from Manati, in eastern Cuba. Their object is to give isolated hillbillers in the outlying regions a general medical check-up and minister to women's beauty needs.

Manati has been chosen as the pilot project. But it is expected that the program will soon be extended to other regions, especially to the isolated areas in the north of Oriente Province, eastern Cuba.

The "health and beauty brigade" is just one of the projects introduced by Premier Castro's regime to fill the medical void existing in rural areas here.

The general progress made in the country's health services is one of the successes on which the regime most prides itself.

According to official statistics, the total of doctors working for the national health service has virtually trebled and that of nurses quadrupled since Castro came to power.

Bringing Up Baby

HINTS COLLECTED BY MRS. IDAH MCINNIS, MOTHER OF 9

There's a theory that second babies rarely fuss than first timers because they're less bowled over when the baby arrives. Second babies don't get the same attention and so mother what they do when, most babies catch up with each other in the end.

Refreshing story. No matter what age, babies respond quickly to Gerber Fruit Juices. That's because baby's body is perfectly delicate in Gerber's gently strained for easy sipping and real-loving. Best of all, there are 5 delicious varieties to indulge baby's delight at getting his daily ration of vitamins. Orange Juice, Apple Juice, Orange-Apple, Orange-Banana and Orange-Pineapple Juice Drinks. Perfect for wee ones, great as pick-me-up for adolescents, too. It's all one pleasing kind, of course, for baby's protection.

It's "outlook to conquer" year on

Tore-way play. If you're two under 3, toddler jealousy can usually be turned into toddler delight if you can get him to help care for baby. If baby 2 can't participate. Your toddler will revel in the warmth of your attention.

Happy-feeding dept. Mealtime finales take on special magic when you top baby's main course with a Gerber fruit dessert or Junior Dessert. These delectables are as smooth and flavour-bright as choice, too. It's all one pleasing kind, of course, for baby's protection.

Made from selected ingredients, carefully balanced, they're also strained for easy feeding. Baby Foods, Niagara Falls, Canada.

QUEEN VICTORIA

At the annual meeting of Queen Victoria School the following officers were elected for the term 1965-66: president — Mr. W. Coveney; 1st. vice-president — Mrs. J. Millett; 2nd vice-president — Mrs. Rollins; recording secretary — Mrs. R. Dollmaier; treasurer — Mr. J. Lascombe and corresponding secretary — Mrs. R. C. Murray.

The assistant to the principal Mr. B. Summers who received his teacher training in Australia presented slides taken during his five-year period in that country.

The Survey, started with views of beauty of the west coast of Canada, across the Pacific to Hawaii, the Fiji Islands, Sydney in New South Wales was a lesson in social study.

Interesting spots like Canberra, the national capital, Mildura, the irrigation district on the Murray River, and scenes of the Great Barrier Reef added to each geographical knowledge.

The main types of colorful flowers were shown at Adelaide, the scene of the Botanical Gardens and at Armidale, New South Wales where the Teachers' College was surrounded in beauty, quite a contrast to Canadian business-like set-up.

LAND OF COLOR

Australia is a land of color and the brilliant plumage of the birds added to this although it was interesting to learn they are not the songsters which are enjoyed in this country.

The kiwi bird, the emblem of Australia, little koala bears and kangaroos were seen in their natural habitat.

The main industries of Australia are wool and sugar and the process of each from the beginning to the finished product was shown.

The senior award for the parental attendance for the year was won by Mr. Frink's Grade 6 and the junior by Mrs. Foull's Grade 1.

The yearly reports of conveners was the next item of business and reports were heard from citizenship and education, home economics and health, Tweedsmuir curator, public relations officer and the treasurer reported a bank balance of $67.18 and the secretary reported four members had died during the year in 1964.

Council Helps People With Many Issues

By EDDY GILMORE

LONDON (AP)—Britain's National Marriage Guidance Council has a new director—with an appropriate name.

"The biggest part of our job," said Mr. Jour-out Gerald Sanctuary, "is being human, just listening and trying to understand."

The National Marriage Guidance Council exists to help people with marital problems. It charges no fees. The government gives the council $84,000 a year.

"It's too little," said Sanctuary.

An average of 18,000 couples come to the council for advice annually.

"That's about half the number of divorces in this country," explained the director, "so it means that for every two couples who go to the divorce courts, one couple comes to us.

"We don't lay down the law. And we keep in mind the fact that very often a person's real need is simply to have somebody to listen to him.

"Over a period, just by talking their problems over with us, we succeed in the usual way. It is decided to try for a short course, with millinery as first choice, and block printing as second choice. It was also decided to pay the required fee for the Children's Home at Plainfield.

The yearly reports of conveners was the next item of business and reports were heard from citizenship and education, home economics and health, Tweedsmuir curator, public relations officer and the treasurer reported a bank balance of $67.18 and the secretary reported four members had died during the year in 1964.

Speaking Personally

by Gladys Ward - - - Women's Editor

ALL IN FAVOR?

I wonder how many would agree with me that one of the biggest hoaxes perpetrated against male humorists is the "no-iron" man's shirt. It is the April Fool joke of the year.

Take a typical housewife. She goes into a store to buy her husband some shirts for his birthday. This is how my typical housewife thinks. They don't think about cameras, now fishing rods and reels or outboard motors.)

"They cost more," the saleslady explains. "But then you don't have to iron them." She is so grateful she could kiss his boots, because if there is one thing a typical housewife (me) hates to iron it is men's shirts, and this includes little girls' blouses, pleated skirts and frilly kitchen curtains.

So t. h. presents the shirts to her husband and on washday she reads the laundry instructions: "Wash in lukewarm water" (where all the rest of the wash demands steamy hot suds) "using a mild soap" (her detergent has a tiger inside). "Using a wooden hanger hang garment up while wet." This presents a problem because her car coat is occupying the only wooden hanger in the place, but by dispossessing the coat, and hanging it on a wire hanger she reaches the stage of hanging up the shirt.

Where do you hang a dripping wet garment? The shower curtain rod sounds a likely solution. After mopping up the puddles contingent to carrying a soggy shirt from the kitchen to the bathroom, she smooths out the collar with her fingers as the directions say. Oh well, if it saves ironing!

The day later she looks in to see the miracle and the fait accompli. There it hangs as wrinkled as a prune in a state that no husband would tolerate, and no self-respecting wife would ask him to.

So with a sigh of resignation she gets out the iron and sets it at low. At the first touch of the iron the shirt shrivels up into ripples that make it look the contrary. You almost expect it to scream.

Shocked, t. h. recoils and views the damage. No wonder it is called "no-iron." You can't iron it.

No, give me a good honest cotton shirt, preferably broadcloth, and this t.h. will make a good job of it. And as far as this t. h. is concerned you can take all the synthetics and gift wrapping them and put them out for the garbage collector.

LOCAL GIRL

Recently a note came to this desk from Sheila Burrows Chaplins concerning the latest dramatic production by Joan Marsolais Kormendi, known many will remember from her active part in dramatic groups in Belleville.

Mrs. Kormendi has written, produced and directed the Children's Repertory Group at the Metropolitan Museum of Art in New York, in two performances of "The Red Baby," a tale of ancient India.

This is a non-profit organization with membership limited to gifted children who are given free training in the drama and the dance with an opportunity to act as a performing group. Two earlier productions of the group, "The Golden Princes" and "Prometheus" had their first performances in the Grace Rainey Rogers auditorium in 1906 and 1962.

Joan attended R.C.I. and Miss Nellie Mary remembers her for football as girl who was intensely interested in drama, and not only acted in the plays but directed some, and selected the cast for "Pride and Prejudice" when it was presented. Joan also took part in the Drama Club at Queen's University, and attended a dramatic art school in New York.

"She is very good with children," Miss Merry said. "During the war she produced plays and gave the money to the Greek Relief Fund."

Mrs. Kormendi is married to a lawyer and has one daughter Kati.

Bright Colors Should Be Used When Decorating Around Teak

To think of teak furniture immediately brings to mind the beauty of the wood, its clean simple styling and most of all the wonderful bright colors which compliment it to the full. Bright, fresh colors are red, blues, red, yellows and orange, or combinations of deep blues and greens; reds and oranges or turquoise and lime. Decorating around teak calls for good color sense and an appreciation of the use of color and texture, but it is not too difficult to achieve if one remembers a few easy rules.

The simple, clean lines of teak serve not only for seating, dining or whatever, but also as decorative elements. The grain that gives traditional styling its interest is eliminated when covering wood teak, to make way for the crisp, open look. Spaciousness, is the key word. Texture is right instead, to add pattern and room interest. Natural materials such as brick, wood panelling or stone should be employed as wall surfaces. The introduction of clear, bright colors should be in the form of broad expanses to give the effect of solid blocks to sofa, flooring, a wall or window area. Color should stand out on its own, yet at the same time be in perfect harmony with the rest of the room.

A splash of color might be centred around the upholstery. Nearly all teak furniture is upholstered in the homespun look of wool in plain or subby textures. Take, for instance, a clear terra cotta sofa and blue chair and visualize the effect of an off-white Rya (shaggy) rug over a parquet or wood plank floor. White walls could be given a splash of color with a bright modern painting. Or reverse the picture and put the color emphasis in boldly patterned Rya rug in a bright scarlet with black and yellow pattern against a muted upholstery fabric. These shaggy rugs come in a wonderful selection of bold plain and patterned designs and look especially well too, as a bold contrast against dining room furniture which often utilizes black vinyl or leather upholstery which blends so wonderfully with teak. Draperies, too, can provide a splash of color. Contemporary designs, of course, echo the clear bright colors in abstract or primitive designs as well as correlating prints and plains, bold stripes or checks, often running through a gamut of deep rich colors — mauves and purples through deep reds through orange, or dark browns through to yellow ochre. Also too, are the loosely woven fabrics which add texture rather than color. Another spot of color can be provided by colorful hanging lamps hung singly or in cluster. Popular just now are a series of white globe sculptured lamps, an overlay colored glass, once again in clear blues, reds, yellows and oranges, as well as white.

Because of certain similarities in the clear vivid colors and interesting textures — it is becoming popular to mix a certain amount of Spanish furniture and accessories together with teak. For example, a Spanish inspired blue-green lacquered bedspread makes a striking contrast in a teak bedroom. Or a wrought iron candelabra enhances a teak dining room.

122-acre Clearing Marks Site of What Will Be Eastern Canada's Largest Pulp Mill

By RICHARD BLAIR

LEBEL - SUR - QUEVILLON, Que. (CP)—A neat gravel patch and a network of roads around a 122-acre clearing mark the site of what will soon be Eastern Canada's largest pulp mill.

Behind the "patch"—or mill foundation—is a six-month battle against the elements at this remote location 300 miles northwest of Montreal, where the mile-an-hour winter winds from Hudson Bay drove temperatures to 30 below zero for weeks at a time.

Constantly dogged by machines freezing up and personnel discomfort in the bitter cold, 200 men worked six days a week in round-the-clock shifts to "muscle out" 600,000 tons of frozen clay.

In its place they dumped 700,000 tons of gravel for the foundations of Donstar Ltd.'s new 850-ton-a-day kraft pulp mill—only the second mill to be built in Eastern Canada since the Second World War.

"We worked around the clock much of the time to keep the machinery going as it would freeze," says Jacques Limoges, chief engineer on the site for La Société d'Entreprises Générales d'Amos Ltee., the company which held the $1,000,000 contract to lay the foundations.

"However, it was just one of those things—the work couldn't be done in the summer because machinery would bog down in the clay."

SET UP TRAILER CAMP

Mr. Limoges, whose company started work on the site in November, 1963, lay in April the foundation for Canada Ltd. engineers moved in to carry out the $70,000,000 construction program. During this phase the mill's water and other installations will be so that ma- chinery can be installed next winter.

The work force at the site will grow to a peak of 1,700 as construction moves into high gear, the majority of them to be housed in a three trailer camp. The trailers and catering also will have cost Donstar $3,500,000 by the time work is completed in 1967.

The $87,200,000 mill will draw 2,000 cords of wood a year from 7,000 square miles of timber berths the company now controls and another 7,000 square miles which it expects to get cutting rights for.

The river, skirted by black spruce, stretch north from the mill site to "one day and two days" on the time line, just 10 miles south of the mill.

A vast network of roads will enable trucks to haul trees to the mill where they will be chipped and fed into what will be the largest continuous digester in the East. The finished pulp will be loaded into freight cars on a CNR spur line to the mill site.

TAP LAKE WATER

The two-mile spur, also constructed during the winter, will be used in supplying the construction gangs and later the hauling out 30 freight cars a day of pulp to Donstar newsprint plants and other operations and for export to United States and European ports.

A Donstar official estimated about 50 per cent of the mill capacity will be exported, but said no firm contracts have been arranged. The mill output, at the average pulp price of $140 a ton, will be worth $119,000 a day.

The mill is 1.8 miles from Lake Quevillon, from which 50,000,000 gallons of water will be drawn every day by the thirsty mill, and three miles from a planned townsite which will eventually sprawl towards 5,000 to 6,000 people. The town is being built on a peninsula at the lake.

Plans for the townsite project some 200 houses to be completed by June, 1966, and another 300 by December, 1967. They will, in addition, a school for up to 800 children is planned for dependents of the 300 to 400 men and 1,700 men expected to be employed in woodcutting operations.

PLAN BETTER AIRSTRIP

"This will be a real boon to the area which hasn't any major industries present," said a Donstar spokesman. "Our decision to build here was influenced by the federal government's tax incentive program for new industries and by the availability of primary northern spruce around Lake Quevillon."

The site, approved last October, was picked after an 18-month search of the Lake Abitibi River, Ont., was considered.

Access to the mill, apart from a regular train service, is by road and air.

"Unfortunately our present runway is passable for several months a year, but we're planning a more permanent airstrip," said the spokesman.

The present runway is on Lake Quevillon, still covered by ice.

Meanwhile, Frank Herzegh, project manager for Foundation, is striving to get the one-third of a mile long mill and other military buildings completed before winter again returns to the north.

SUBSIDIZED HOUSING — This is a Tokyo apartment complex of a type common in major Japanese cities. These units are subsidized by the government while many others are subsidized by companies that hire large numbers of workers. Rents are as low as $3 a month. Japanese Take Second Look At Industrial Paternalism

By KEN SMITH
Canadian Press Business Editor

TOKYO (CP)—The paternalism that has marked labor-management relations in Japan since the end of the Second World War may be cracking.

There are growing indications that government, management and labor are becoming disenchanted with the system that, for millions of workers has provided, if not cradle - to - grave security, at least school-to-retirement care.

Japan's corps of keen and capable workers has been a major factor in the country's astonishing economic recovery from the ruins of the war—but to a North American visitor, used to what might be called labor's more independent frame of mind, they show an acceptance of authority that borders on subservience.

Aside from a few industries such as coal mining, militant unions are little known. Company unions chanting jingles praising management are more the order than unions singing "Solidarity Forever."

At a new Nissan Motor Co. plant employing 3,000 men, for example, the company union upholds fortnightly meetings at which the company executive tells the workers what production marks have been set for them and, incidentally, to hear who has what to say about how the company is operating.

"The union is very moderate," says an official, "and always works on the principle that the workers' future depends on the prosperity of the company. So it says 'let's enlarge our share of the market.'"

"Our workers always listen to reason and that way everyone is happy."

RARELY FIRED

In return for this recognition of management rights, the worker is assured a rare degree of protection and fringe benefits for himself and his family.

Firing by a large firm operating under the system has been almost unknown. Even automation has held no fear for the Japanese worker; if his job is filled by a machine, he was assured of a new position even though the labor frequently was created artificially.

Not only had he job security. Although wages were low by almost any industrialized standard, workers received up to six months' pay in annual bonuses.

Company-owned housing was available for rents as low as $1 to $3 a month and holiday resorts were available for workers and their families. Subsidies covered everything from food, education and medical bills to transportation and sports.

One company concerned about its workers' health, provided every employee with free saké during the day.

The system offered very real advantages for labor, management and government in the difficult years after the war.

For the workers, it assured them of security in a period of great technological upheaval.

For management, it meant a malleable labor force that would accept technological advances without protest, enabling it takes 10 or 20 years to build up earning power — something that hardly jibes with the average Japanese's dream of the highest possible living standard in the shortest possible time.

An official of the Sohyo, the General Council of Japanese Trade Unions, says there is a psychological factor here, too.

"No Japanese can feel at ease when fighting with his father, especially over such things as money and holidays. Therefore the paternalism system and the concept of a factory being a parent will go."

Finally, the system leaves too many people unprotected. The Japanese worker retires at 55 and there is a minimum of security for him after that. The government pays a small pension while his employer traditionally has sent him out with a lump sum capable of seeing him through six to 12 months.

That was fine when the life expectancy was 47 years, as it was shortly after the war—but now it has risen to about 67 years.

Also, there are an estimated 20,000,000 workers with firms too small to provide the system's degree of coddling.

This labor revolution has started a debate about what the future holds.

Some business men already have expressed the fear that workers are going to price Japan out of its essential international markets with new and untraditional wage demands.

An official of the Nippon Electric Co. admits cheerfully labor costs aren't a matter of serious concern.

"Labor now is about 20 per cent of our bill. If wages go up 10 per cent, that means only two per cent over all—and if we can't make that up other ways, we shouldn't be in business."

R. C. C. Smith, commercial minister at the Canadian embassy in Tokyo, says business waiting for higher wages to eliminate Japanese competition internationally are going to wake up one day with a shock.

"Certainly wages have been going up and will continue to go up, but there's no indication that industry won't get a corresponding rise in efficiency for a long time to come.

"The Japanese worker may want more money, but he's still amazingly conscientious and he will continue to give good values for his wages."

Another factor that ensures a change in Japan's labor system, although it doesn't reflect directly on paternalism, is a growing shortage of workers, especially in the area of technical skills.

Until a few years ago, Japan's factories could count on recruiting fresh workers from the farms and small cities. That stream began to dry up in 1963, when nearly 3,000,000 were available for 1,100,000 graduates of high schools.

Because of the country's declining birth rate—almost half the 35 per 1,000 of the late 1940s—the demand for labor is expected to tighten even more.

Greater employment of married women and shifting workers from unproductive labor to areas of need will provide part of the answer.

Inevitably, most economists agree, the country's rigid labor pattern has to go.

TOMORROW: Japan is 'ready for Canada's raw materials.

Automation Removes Charm Of Maple Syrup Gathering

WESTFORD, Vt. (CP) — In the sugar woods skirting this town on the Canadian border, the maple tree sap is collected automatically.

Gerard Caron, a French-Canadian living in Westford, figures he has licked nature itself by rigging up a system of pipes and pumps to take sap from his 1,700 maples. Westford is 90 miles south of Montreal.

Automation in one of North America's oldest industries has removed the charm of maple syrup gathering. Gone, in Caron's operation, is the familiar tap-tap sound of sap falling into bucket, and the swish and tinkle of horses and men collecting the product from tree to tree.

Caron's system works on the milking machine theory — vacuums, motor pumps and nearly eight miles of plastic hose hauling the sap automatically from each tree directly into an evaporator pan in the boiling house.

It takes only one man, surrounded by a network of tubing, to conduct the operation.

Caron learned his art from his father, Gideon Caron, now 92, a retired St. Georges de Beauce, Que., farmer. He began experimenting with the milking machine theory seven years ago, after he injured his back.

The injury, a dislocated disc, left him nearly paralyzed for months and he had to give up a lucrative dairy farm business. OBTAINED MORE SAP

"When I started many farmers claimed I was just lazy," he says. "Actually, I was unable to continue making syrup, which is heavy work, the old-fashioned way. Even my father kept saying the pump-and-tubing system would never work. Others said I'd dry up my maples. But this hasn't happened."

He began by hitching up 70 maples to plastic tubes and milking machines. He measured the production against the natural flow from 70 other maples. To his surprise, the milking machines produced double the quantity of sap.

Last year, a poor season in both Vermont and Quebec, he produced 80 gallons, his best production to date.

This season, when the temperature got up to the 40-degree mark, pressure gauges controlling the pump on his trees automatically began functioning. Caron was in business—long before the bucket operators had even hung their pails.

The pump, one he developed from his own design, enables Caron to draw sap from trees in colder weather than was previously possible. His system also permits him to draw sap while it is both on the upflow and downflow in the maples.

Normally the sap flows out of spouts only after it has travelled upward, and then downward into the tree.

The system cost him $2,000 to set up. It takes him 2 weeks in early March to string the miles of tubes, which he removes after the season.

His ambition is to establish a sap-collecting co - operative where neighboring farmers would sell him sap which he would convert into 5,000 gallons of syrup.

"Maybe, if I attain this production level," he said, "I could earn sufficient revenue in the spring to go to Florida with my family in the winter."

Public Respected Private Reserves

MONTREAL (CP) — Industrialist K. B. Hinman believes in the philosophy that people will behave well if you treat them well.

That's one reason why the president of the Canadian International Paper Co. had few reservations last spring about opening the company's network of logging roads to the general public — hunters, fishermen, campers, and Sunday drivers.

Now he's glad he did.

The public responded to the gesture by minding their forest manners.

From May 1 to Sept. 13 last year, 250,000 people were checked through the roads, and thousands others entered in areas where the company has no control gates.

Yes, says Mr. Hinman, figures show that of 170 fires which burned 18,700 acres in CIPC forests last year, only 28 were attributable to the outdoors-loving visitors, a vindication of his faith.

Mr. Hinman's philosophy goes further. He says you have to take people into your confidence, and ask their help if you want them to reciprocate.

So the company established the open-road policy by providing detailed, detailed maps of each division, and keeping them informed on road and forest conditions through 25 weekly radio broadcasts.

A long-range plan for campsites and facilities for roadside picnics on these roads was also inaugurated. The company has 6,000 miles of privately - built gravel roads in five woods divisions in Quebec and New Brunswick, and it maintains 25,000 square miles of forest.

Officials describe the first year of the forest-travel program as "outstanding success."

In one seven-day period in July, the company recorded 15,351 visitors. Lowest number of the season was 4,046 for a one-week period in October.

"We have never actually kept anyone off our roads," says H. Swann and Mrs. Swann Kearns, a company executive. "But last year was the first solid effort we ever took to let them know they were welcome."

The newly locking road has always had an irresistible lure for sportsmen looking for new fishing and shift rod or gun. But they usually approached the roads with trepidation, unable to shake an uncomfortable feeling they were invading private preserves.

Mr. Hinman says modern trends also influenced the company.

More anglers, more hunters, more campers and more plain tourists in more cars are taking to the road each year," he said.

"The province of Quebec, with its large centres of concentrated population increasingly recreation - minded, is headed for a monumental traffic jam in the forest unless we can develop sensible plans and controls."

Only one of the company divisions is located in New Brunswick — the Maritime Woods Division which supplies the material the company mills at Dalhousie.

In Quebec, the divisions are located at Manouane in the Gatineau area; Grenville, close to the Ottawa River; Norands, to the north, and Saint Maurice.

Papers Request Officer to Resolve Dispute

TORONTO (CP) — The three Toronto daily newspapers asked the Ontario labor department Tuesday to appoint a conciliation officer to help resolve their contract dispute with the Toronto Mailers Union, an affiliate of the International Typographical Union (CLC).

The mailers have not worked at The Star, The Telegram and The Globe and Mail since members of the ITU went on strike against the papers last July 9 and the mailers respected the ITU picket lines. The newspapers have continued to publish.

The papers' current move follows republication by the mailers of an agreement signed last week to end the dispute. The mailers were threatened with expulsion from the ITU if they went through with the agreement.

Earle B. Richards, general manager of The Globe and Mail, described the republication as "just another instance of the interference of the international union with settlements reached at the local level."

Under the terms of the proposed agreement, about 300 of the 325 mailers would have returned to their jobs at their former salary levels for the next five years and without their former closed shop. However, they would have had a lifetime guarantee that they would not lose their jobs as a result of automation.

Mr. Richards said the newspapers received a telegram from the mailers saying the union members had unanimously repudiated the agreement because it represented an illegal action by the mailers and violated ITU bylaws.

Peacekeeping Authority Must Rest With UN - Martin

By DAVE McINTOSH

LONDON (CP) — External Affairs Minister Martin of Canada Tuesday ruled out any compromise on the United Nations' financial crisis which would completely divest the UN General Assembly of authority in peacekeeping operations.

He told the NATO council of foreign ministers that there are grounds for thinking some progress is being made in settling the UN's financial problems brought on by refusal of some nations to pay their assessed share for peacekeeping missions.

Martin said Canada is prepared to make compromises on its avowed position that peacekeeping must be a collective financial responsibility of all 114 UN members.

But it would not compromise to the point where every scintilla of authority for peacekeeping would be removed from the General Assembly.

The Soviet Union, France and several other countries argue that only the Security Council has the right to set up and finance peacekeeping forces. They have refused to pay assessments for peace forces levied by the assembly.

MUST CAUSE CONCERN

Martin told his colleagues that any weakening of the UN must be a source of grave concern to NATO. The UN could sometimes act where NATO could not.

Addressing the council before Martin, U.S. Undersecretary of State George Ball suggested that any peace force set up by the Organization of American States to handle the crisis in the Dominican Republic might be made permanent for possible use in other crises in the Western Hemisphere.

Martin told reporters that peace forces are a good development whether established by OAS, the UN or NATO.

There was no reason for all peacekeeping forces to be directly under the UN. The inter-national truce supervisory commission in Indochina, for instance, did not come under the UN.

He said he is sure that the trend in time will be to peace forces for every region of the world.

THERE'S ALWAYS DANGER

Asked whether there might be a danger of an OAS peace force imposing a certain type of regime on a country, Martin replied: "There is a danger in the wrong use of anlothood."

Martin also suggested that NATO may have to consider a common strategy for the entire free world to combat Communist subversion undertaken under the guise of so-called wars of liberation as in Viet Nam.

He said this is the type of question the members of NATO may have to address themselves to in considering the present and future state of the Alliance.

Martin told the council no objective should have greater priority at this time than a start on negotiations on the Cyprus problem.

He said he is more hopeful about the possibility of negotiations than ever before. He had private talks Tuesday with the foreign ministers of Greece and Turkey and will confer later with the Cyprus government's high commissioner here.

Martin told the council that though "we, the British and France have special responsibilities in Berlin, all NATO members share their commitment to the defence of West Berlin.

For this reason, he said, consultation on Germany and Berlin should be extended to include all NATO members.

Martin in effect was asking that the Big Three make no declaration on Germany and Berlin without first consulting the other 12 members of the Alliance.

Martin also said it is inconceivable that NATO will agree indefinitely to prolong the division of Germany. The present detente must be furthered.

Drop-out Back in School To Take Technical Course

By FRITZ ROOS

OTTAWA (CP) — When Vaughan Valgardson, an 18-year-old Ottawa high school student, didn't do well in Grade 11, he quit school "bored stiff" just sitting around all day long."

Then, as a $133-a-month junior clerk in the federal civil service last year, he heard several of his neighborhood friends, students in the technical department of Ottawa's Rideau high school, talk about "their house."

He investigated and what he saw made him decide to return to school last September. The house was a $30,000 bungalow, an ambitious building-practice project of Rideau high's technical department.

"I thought that if they offered a course like that, why couldn't I be in it," Vaughan said.

This year, Vaughan and 19 other Grade 11 and 12 students are working five days a week and many a Saturday on an even more ambitious project: A $30,000 colonial-style, four-bedroom house in a south Ottawa suburban development.

Last year's bungalow was sold to a private buyer. This year the boys' work will serve charity.

The Kiwanis club, which pays for the building materials and will auction off the finished house on television this fall, will keep the profits for its service work.

The two-storey house, called a best-seller by Campeau Construction Co. Ltd., which donated the plans, has to be finished by July 1. Students of Ottawa Technical, Champlain and Bell high schools are chipping in to do the central heating, air conditioning and landscaping.

A few jobs like excavating, bricklaying and plumbing work are done by sub-contractors.

"We could do everything ourselves if only we had the time," says Rae Gibson, the 36-year-old technical teacher at Rideau high, who supervises and guides the whole project.

Many of the house's fixtures, such as cupboards, stairs and window shutters, were prefabricated in the school's shop during the winter months.

Mr. Gibson, an experienced journeyman who had his own store-fixtures business in his native Guelph, Ont., before he joined the school's staff eight years ago, is the source of the enthusiasm his boys radiate.

"This thing carries extra responsibilities and costs a lot more time," he says, "but really, it's the only way to teach construction successfully."

On week days, Mr. Gibson and his boys start school earlier than normal to catch up for the two hours every afternoon they spend on the building site.

Mr. Gibson says the Ontario education department's regular technical program "lacks application," as it provides more of an industrial arts approach—learning the proper use of tools and the basics of construction.

Vaughan, busy wiring the first floor when interviewed, could hardly be heard over the banging of hammers and other construction noise.

Still not very excited about the theoretical side of school work, he thoroughly enjoys his work on the house. "This is for real," he says. "If you're going to do anything, you might as well do it right from the start."

They were charged with plotting to dynamite the Statue of Liberty in New York, the Washington Monument in Washington and the Liberty Bell in Philadelphia.

In New York Tuesday trial date fo Miss Dorche and the men was set for May 17.

National Hospital Week at Belleville General

A Perpetual Mission of Mercy

THE HOSPITAL NURSERY is indicative of life's beginning. Here is the scene in the Belleville General Hospital where up to 45 new born babies can be accommodated, with between 30 and 35 in care at any one time. Nurses are Miss. Frances Burns, Mrs. Carrie Fuller and head nurse Mrs. June White.

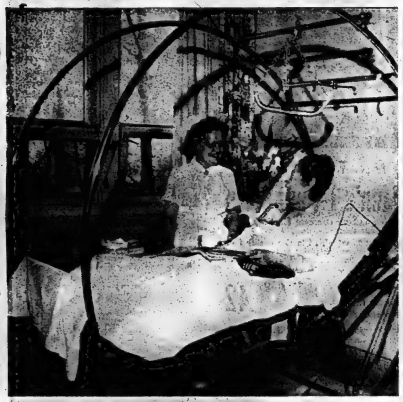
A hospital is a community's perpetual mission of mercy.

And this week Canada pays tribute to the fact with National Hospital Week.

Locally, due to crowded conditions, nothing extraordinary is being planned at Belleville General Hospital to mark the occasion.

However, the hospital's extraordinary purpose — the saving of human life — scarcely needs a special event to remind the community of such crucial dedication in its midst.

At Belleville General the week will mean business as usual — and visiting hours as before.



However, the photographic glimpse of behind-the-scenes activity at the hospital gives some idea of its vital complexity.

Just how complex modern hospital work can be is revealed by some Ontario statistics. In this province someone is admitted to hospital every 35 seconds; each hour, 18 babies are born in the province; 500,000 emergency cases are admitted annually.

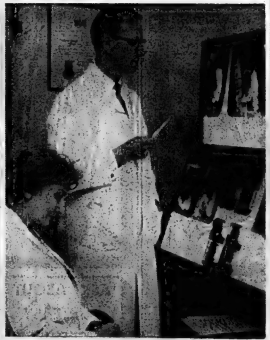
For the Disabled - - - a Warm Personal Touch

MULTI-USE CIRCULAE BED is a comparatively recent addition to nursing care equipment at Belleville Hospital. It greatly eases the work of handling a patient and also can be used to assist patient regain use of lower limbs. Here Nurse Mrs. Norah Brunet checks patient Mrs. May Shorey Bunnett.

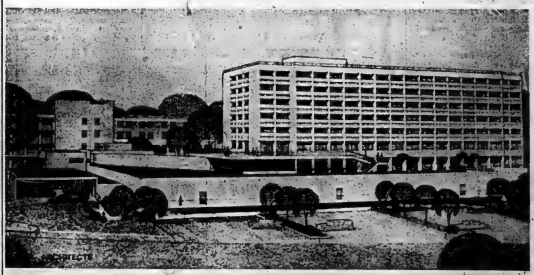
Occupational therapy in teaching patient re-use of limbs following crippling disease or accident has important role. Here therapist Mrs. C. E. Richards watches as "patient" Mrs. G. Stringer demonstrates ball-bearing shoulder feeder designed to assist using partially paralyzed upper arm.

The Best of Food, The Best of Service



Feeding the many hospital patients with their wide variety of requirements is the daily task of the dietary department. Here assembly-line food preparation sees trays being loaded as they pass along endless belt for automatic delivery to required floor. Department, in charge of qualified dietitians, employs 52 workers.

Research - - - the Vital Safeguard!



DEPARTMENT of laboratory medicine under direction of Dr. A. Rota employs wide use of chemistry for its different functions. In chemistry department Mrs. Fred Naftel and Miss Emelita Flores make test tube check.

Of equal importance in modern-day hospital treatment is the X-ray department, where limb fractures and various diseases are detected. Department head Dr. P. G. Loder is seen interpreting X-ray films and dictating report to secretary Mrs. Margaret Stansfield.

. . . And the Shape of Things to Come

Even bigger things are planned for Belleville General Hospital soon to be greatly increased in size and services offered. Above is how the architect visualizes the new hospital addition which with furnishings and including the new boiler house now under construction will cost an estimated $7,840,000. Preparations of plans are now in final stage and tenders are expected to be called during the early summer.

This is the latest phase in the progress of Belleville General which has served the city and district for nearly 80 years. It was first launched under private inspiration in 1886 by the Christian Women's Association. It became a municipal institution in 1948 and is now operated for the city under an appointed board of governors. From its small, if significant, beginning Belleville General has now grown into a complex organization geared to meet the demands of modern medical care and service.

A PRIVATE JOKE.— It may never be known just what was said, but opposition leader Diefenbaker's whispered remarks appear to amuse Mme. Georges Vanier, wife of the Governor-General, as they sit together during cornerstone ceremony for the National Library and Archives at Ottawa. Governor-General Vanier officiated at the ceremony. Young People Leaving Russian Farms in Numbers

By JOHN BEST

MOSCOW (CP)—The old song that asks "How're you going to keep 'em down on the farm . . . ?" has a special meaning in the Soviet Union these days.

The city that woos them away from the fields may be Moscow or Leningrad, rather than Paris, but the fact remains that young people are leaving the farms in sufficient numbers to cause concern.

Soviet agriculture, the sick boy of the economy, has been subjected to a stream of analyses, diagnoses, announcements, pronouncements and upheavals in an unending attempt to rejuvenate it.

Comparatively little attention has been paid to the problem of youth in the scheme of things. However, every now and then there are suggestions in the press that grandiose schemes for the investment of billions in agriculture will be seriously jeopardized unless young people stop leaving the farms.

Recently a student at Stavropol agriculture institute sent a letter to Komsomolskaya Pravda, organ of the Young Communist League, saying many fellow students don't conceal the fact they "study without desire" and that if they had a chance, they would transfer to other institutes.

"Why? Because it is more difficult to work in the fields than in a town, there is no definite working day . . . you cannot have your holidays in summer, salary is low, it's not possible in every collective farm to find even a good club."

The letter added that hundreds of graduates work in fields other than that for which they were trained, their attitude being: "Do what you want with me; you can even take away my diploma. But I will not go to work in a village."

An official of Vladimir region, east of here, told Sovietskaya Rossia (Soviet Russia) that in recent years many young people had moved into towns from the countryside and joined the army. After finishing their hitches only a few returned to the farm.

In Pravda, the Communist party newspaper, a special correspondent wrote that "indifference" toward young people was the reason many left the farm.

It was wrong to mechanize farms, build recreation clubs and then expect youth to respond. Rather, young people should be drawn into active participation in efforts to improve village life.

Soviet Schools in Transition Period

By JOHN BEST

MOSCOW (CP)—Soviet education from kindergarten to college is going through a period of change, some of it traceable to the overthrow of Nikita Khrushchev.

Uncertainty and even some confusion are evident. Authorities admit that many practices are being re-examined and discarded.

Some of the criticisms have the familiar sound of those occasionally heard in Canada and the United States where, in recent years, the Soviet educational system has often been cited as a paragon.

One example is a Wednesday editorial in the Communist party newspaper Pravda.

"In the course of the last decades, pedagogical sciences have not kept up with the development of national education. In the teaching of a number of subjects, there is no reflection of the achievements of modern science and technology, and a disproportionate amount of time is devoted to secondary, insignificant questions. Pupils are loaded as before with studies."

Problems at the lower end of the system were discussed at a press conference by Anatoly Shustov, deputy minister of education in the big Russian Federated Republic, and Alexander Zaporozhets, a leading researcher.

KINDERGARTEN CUT

Zaporozhets, answering a question, said the school entrance age in the U.S.S.R. will probably be lowered from 7 to 6, knocking a year off the two-year kindergarten program.

He added that he personally wasn't in favor of the change and declared that while time spent in kindergarten would be cut the work would be intensified.

Behind the change is the fact that only a little more than 80 per cent of eligible children in towns in the Russian federation attend kindergartens.

This causes difficulties since Grade 1 is the same for all even though, Zaporozhets said, kindergarten-trained students are better prepared, having been taught the rudiments of writing and arithmetic.

One official at the press conference said his five-year-old daughter, attending a kindergarten that specializes in the study of English, can answer it questions in that language.

An alternative to shortening the kindergarten period would be to make it compulsory for all but this would require a vast school construction program.

ABANDON K IDEAS

At a higher level, the number of grades in Soviet schools has been cut back to 10 from 11 where it was set under Khrushchev, who had firm ideas on education as he had on just about every other subject.

Also being abandoned is the Khrushchev dictated compulsory vocational training for high school students. Critics say the former premier's proposals were unrealistic and just didn't work.

Stiffer demands on university-level science students have been called for by academician G. Petrov, writing in Pravda.

Very often, he said, scientific institutes fail to "demand great endeavors from students." One result was that graduates often were assigned to technical work because they could not handle the tasks requiring a specialist.

Petrov argued against the new system of compulsory attendance at university lectures, saying this failed to develop the student's ability to work independently. He wanted the students given more responsibility for their own learning.

INDEX LITTLE CHANGED

Canada's industrial composite index of employment was 129.3 in February, virtually unchanged from the January figure of 129.4, the bureau of statistics reported Tuesday. The index is based on 1949 equalling 100. Employment usually declines moderately in this period due to seasonal reductions in forestry, construction and trade, but this year it declined much less than usual.

CENTRES POPULAR

A report of the bureau of statistics Tuesday showed that in 1965 — the latest year for which complete figures are available — sales in shopping centres accounted for 7.1 per cent of all retailing in Canada, up sharply from 2.5 per cent in 1957. Sales by shopping centres jumped 14.3 per cent to an estimated $1,340,189,000 in 1963 from $1,172,112,000 the previous year. The number of stores in such centres increased 7.7 per cent in the year to 4,643 from 4,314.

Income Tax Explained

A column designed for the working taxpayer who is not in a position to employ the services of a professional accountant or visit an Income Tax office.

WARDS OR C.A.S. BOARDED IN HOME

The above, subject has been covered in full detail each year since I have been writing this column, but each spring I receive numerous letters asking if children boarded in the home who are wards of a Children's Aid Society, may be claimed as dependants.

The answer is definitely no, as the taxpayer has not full custody and control, as the organization that placed them in the home may remove them at any time. The argument appears to be that the amount received for such children's board does not fully cover the taxpayers outlay on their behalf.

On the other hand the money received for their board is not taxable in full. If any profit had been made, then this profit would have to be reported as income. In such cases it is the wife who does most of the work in caring for the children so any profit made would be her income. If this profit does not exceed $250 per year and the wife has no other income in her own right, it would not alter the $1000 exemption the husband is allowed for his wife.

To determine if a profit has been made, you can deduct from the board received, the full cost of the children's food, and the increases in the normal outlay for heat, light, laundry, etc. The cost of extra bedding is also deductible. In the few cases I have personally checked, I found the cost of keeping the children just about equalled the board money received. In any case, the amount of profit made would be too trivial to warrant an investigation by the income tax authorities.

For a personal reply, enclose a self addressed, five cent stamped envelope, plus 25 cents for each question.

Question 1: We have a child in our home that is a ward of the Children's Aid Society. We are thinking of adopting it. Can I claim any exemption now?

Answer: No. You can when it is adopted.

Question 2: We are a childless couple and have two children in the home who are Wards of the Children's Aid. We give them the very best of food and clothes it costs us far more than we receive in board money. Can I deduct this loss from my income?

Answer: No.

Mail Delayed Due to Late Train Arrivals

PICTON (STAFF) — Delays in train arrivals in Belleville have been contributing to a delay in mail distribution in Picton. This delay has reached up to 24 hours due to the fact that Picton is off the main line and has to be serviced by truck from Belleville, and Trenton.

Adding to the difficulty of getting the mail sorted is the fact that the Post Office Department has inaugurated a 13 weeks "methods and standards" survey which calls for a great deal of sorting, counting and recording by the postal staff. Postmaster R. Greenfield stated that things were smoothing out somewhat as far as the survey work is concerned and delay in delivery from Belleville has been reduced but as yet CNR mail trains are not arriving regularly on time.

The courier from Picton must leave Belleville by 6 a.m. and often the trains have been arriving there as late as 7 a.m. This means that under his contract he cannot wait much after 6, thus on more than one occasion the mail has laid over for a 24-hour period. Some of this mail is important parcel post required by merchants for their customers.

Three Members Of Legion Given High Honors

PICTON (STAFF) — Three life time memberships for Branch 78 were presented to members of Picton Branch Royal Canadian Legion Tuesday evening. Recipients of the honor were Tom Wilkinson, William Hopkins and Chet. Wright all of Picton. The award was presented to Chet Wright at his home as he was unable to attend the meeting due to poor health. The lifetime membership was presented to Mr. Wright by Legion President, Walter Insley. The presentations to the other two men were made by Comrade Ray Young. At the meeting of the legion branch four new members were inducted. All members of the Army they were R. A. Parker, W. R. Knee, E. J. White, F. S. Gervais. All of the new members are stationed at Camp Picton.

New Flags Presented to Cubs, Scouts

PICTON (STAFF) — Parents and dignataries watched with interest Tuesday night as Scouts and Cubs of the First Bloomfield Troop were presented with two of the new Maple Leaf flags in Canada.

The flags were dedicated by the Rev. A. A. Rigby of Bloomfield Standard church. In dedicating the flags Rev. Rigby said "Let this new flag be to you as the old ensign has been to our generation. It can be what you make it". A flag only stands for what you make of it, be continued, none of you are too young to be true Canadians nor are you too young to begin a life to make Canada a better country.

Twp. Council Appoints Clerk and Treasurer

PICTON (STAFF) — Two items have been appointed to fill the vacancy left by the resignation of H. M. Hicks, clerk - treasurer of North Marysburgh township for about 25 years.

At it's regular meeting in the township hall at Wesspoe, the council reviewed applications for the job. They appointed George Boles as clerk and Harold Hodgin as treasurer.

Both men reside in the township at R.R. 5 Picton. Mr. Hodgin a retired businessman from Toronto has built a new home near Glenora church. Salaries for the clerk and treasurer are, clerk $90, and treasurer $400. While the township have selected the 2 men they have not been officially hired. This will occur when a by-law stating the terms of their employment is passed, expected at the next meeting of council. The replacement marks the end of a stormy chapter in North Marysburgh's history.

The way the legal beagles are kicking this Clay-Liston fight around, don't be surprised any day now to learn that the Bear and the Boar will settle their heavyweight differences in Vietnam.

There's no word yet that the Marines have heard in Liston's case, but that could happen if the attempt to move the fight to Massachusetts leaks like a possibility.

Lewiston, a midget city as the ex heavyweight championship fights are concerned, was selected over places like Hong Kong, Tulsa and Cleveland, because, it is rumored, of its 180-mile proximity to Boston.

The stiff beam of the beam and the cod tossed the fistic package of ten overboard because of a legal entanglement. If wished ashore at Lewiston, a city of some 63,000 souls, the fishermen and manufacturers which boasts no hotel, room models, season lodges and lobster traps.

The fight, as at the moment, will be staged in the Lewiston Youth Centre, a large cement-block building which will seat 3,100 comfortably, but promoters expect by employing wall-stretchers and roof-raisers to crowd some 6,000 fight buffs into the place.

The loyal Lewistonites are said to be a homely lot of folks who love sports, particularly hockey, with the main theme of relaxation being hunting, fishing and camping.

And that is what approximately 99 per cent of the Lewistonites will be doing the night of May 25th when, if present plans materialize and Cassibella does not put in a higher bid, Cassius Clay fears the grim Sonny Liston.

For it is stated Lewiston citizens generally financially comfortable are not by any means wealthy. It is questionable that many will attend the fight with tickets set to be priced at $25 to $150.

But the big question facing the burghers of Lewiston is where to house the extra 6,000 expected to be on hand for the big attraction. There will be some 400 members of the news media and they cannot be expected to share a hillside burrow with a bear or evict a bull moose from his spring hideout.

Promoters, however, are not worried. The "live" gate in Lewiston, or a miniature bag of peanuts compared to the huge moian that will mushroom on the closed-circuit theatre television.

This, they anticipate, will attract some four million to the coffers and under these circumstances they can stage the fight on a houseboat in the Florida Everglades.

Lewiston may be a tank town as far as world heavyweight bouts are concerned but if it not the smallest city to hold a world heavyweight fight. Colma, California, staged two — Tommy Burns, Bill Squires in 1907 and Jack Johnson, Stanley Ketchel in one. Carson City, Nevada was the site of the Bob Fitzsimmons-Jim Corbett bout in 1897 while Jack Dempsey fought Tommy Gibbons in Shelby, Montana back in 1923.

As for the fight itself, many having experts look for Liston to make "Im the Greatest" out of the ring a well-beaten fighter. Joe Louis, whose articles on the bout will appear in this newspaper, thinks so. So does venerable Archie Moore.

A grim determined Liston had trained to the peak of perfection for the second bout scheduled for last November in Boston but a last-minute hernia laid the Black Mantian low.

Post-recuperation of the first Clay-Liston fight when the current champion gave up his title sibling on his stool, and Clay's post-fight press foreign substance allegedly affected his eyes, sent boxing down to gutter level.

The Cassius-Patterson fight in Madison Square Garden reached down and brought it up to the lower plateau of public air. Legal entanglements regarding the upcoming Liston-Clay bout hasn't helped matters.

The outcome of the May 25th fight may decide once and for all the future of heavyweight boxing.

Play Tonight ★ ★ ★ ★ ★ ★ Three Players Suspended

Fifty Police Ready For Cup Trouble

By BOB TIDDEN

EDMONTON (CP) — The fourth game of the Memorial Cup hockey final between Niagara Falls Flyers and Edmonton Oil Kings will be played in Edmonton as scheduled tonight, but three players will be out of action with suspensions and increased police security has been ordered.

Gordon Juckes, secretary-manager of the Canadian Amateur Hockey Association, made the announcement after a seven-hour investigation into a brawl which left officials to halt a game Monday night with 2¼ minutes to play.

It was the first time in Memorial Cup history that a game was halted prematurely by a fight and it took 25 policemen almost 10 minutes to restore order.

The Oil Kings officially won the game 5-1, their first victory in three starts in the best-of-seven series. Fifth game is scheduled for Friday.

Juckes said winger Ron Anderson of the Oil Kings and defenceman Ricky Ley of the Flyers each were handed a game suspension for their part in a stick-swinging duel midway before the game-ending donnybrook.

Centre Derek Sanderson of the Flyers was handed an indefinite suspension for deliberate injury to a player during the final brawl. However, Matt Leyden of Oshawa, president of the Ontario Hockey Association, has been given permission to appeal the indefinite term to Lionel Fleury, CAHA president.

Flyers officials said the length of suspension should be stipulated.

FANS BEAT SANDERSON

At the end of Monday's game Sanderson was grabbed and hauled into a room by three men while en route to his dressing room. He suffered head cuts and body bruises. No arrests were made.

Bob Pulkenburg, the Oil Kings' captain, was knocked unconscious during the fracas on the ice and then penalized as he lay helpless. He was carried from the ice on a stretcher and will miss at least tonight's game.

Fans clashed with the Flyers on two occasions. At the end of the first game the Eastern champions battled spectators in a stick-swinging fray at the entrance to a tunnel leading to their dressing room. The second clash occurred after the game was over, but a wooden fence and police reinforcements prevented the melees from reaching the serenity of the first clash.

Juckes said his investigation, which included talks with club managements, a study of a game film, and conferences with referee Jim McKinley of Montreal, city police, civic officials and Edmonton Gardens officials, indicated fan control "was not a primary factor of the third-period brawl."

He said it was lack of player control on both sides which disrupted play "and "I can't see how meeting the series out of Edmonton will solve this."

"However, the action of a small element of the fans which triggered the clash cannot be condoned. I want to emphasize to the public very strongly that we would expect them to behave as the public should and if there is any further public disturbances in the game will be called and awarded to the visiting team."

WILL PROTECT PLAYERS

Juckes said police have given him "adequate assurance" they will have sufficient strength to control the public. All exits will be kept clear, the tunnel area leading to the dressing rooms will be sealed and the penalty boxes, players' benches and goal areas will be protected by 50 policemen.

He expressed satisfaction with the work of game officials and said "if there is any repeat of what happened Monday the CAHA will give strong consideration to moving the series to another city."

Owner-manager Hap Emms, who waited for a change in the venue of the series because of problems Monday with noise fans, said he is willing to accept CAHA assurances that there will be ample protection ... for my players on the ice, in the penalty box and off the ice."

He said he felt badly about the incidents Monday. However, after a meeting with players Tuesday night it was agreed "we will man to continue the series and to try and win the cup if we can."

Juckes said he will remain at least for the fourth game.

Despite an announcement the Gardens had suspended bookings for the series until the investigation was completed, both clubs worked out Tuesday.

The Oil Kings reported Craig Cameron suffered a right shoulder injury Monday and was a doubtful starter. Bill Goldsworthy of the Flyers was in sub-par physical shape after he took several hard checks Monday but likely will dress.

Leafs Whip Jets 4-2, Suns Win

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Ed Connolly, who couldn't find the plate in his first trip to Toronto Maple Leafs' pitching mound, found his range in his second International League game of the season Tuesday night.

The 25-year-old southpaw registered seven strikeouts over 6 1-3 innings as the Leafs defeated Columbus Jets 4-2.

Connolly also ignited the Leafs in the second inning when Boston Red Sox of the American League last season, was replaced in the second inning last week after he walked in the first two runs.

Elsewhere, Jacksonville Suns shut out Syracuse Chiefs 3-0, Atlanta Crackers walloped Rochester Red Wings 12-4, and a game between Toledo Mud Hens and Buffalo Bisons was postponed because of cold weather.

Connolly also ignited the Leafs' first two - run inning, beating out an infield hit with two out and scored on Jim Gosger's triple. Gosger scored on Stan Johnson's double, and the Leafs bunched three more hits for two more runs in the sixth inning to wrap it up.

The Suns got the winning run in the first inning on George Kernek's triple and Ed Spinda's single, and added an insurance run in the ninth inning on two walks, an infield hit and a wild pitch.

Adrian Garrett, Tim Harkness, Jim McKnight and Woody Woodward collected two hits each for the Crackers, who scored three unearned runs on 10 Red Wing errors.

Astros Nip Dodgers, Cards Win

Gibson, Giusti Unbeaten In Six

By MURRAY CHASS
Associated Press Sports Writer

Dave Giusti, an off-season school teacher, has moved to the head of the class as a pitcher.

Giusti recorded his sixth victory without a defeat as Houston Astros edged Los Angeles Dodgers 2-1 Tuesday night and joined Bob Gibson as the winningest pitchers in the major leagues. A couple of hours earlier Gibson notched his same level, 6-0, in St. Louis Cardinals' 4-2 triumph over New York Mets.

The rise of the 25-year-old right-hander fits been as meteoric as that of the Astros, who were in third place, two games behind first-place Los Angeles.

Prior to this season Giusti had managed a poor 3-3 record in 100 innings of hurling for Houston in 1962 and 1964.

While continuing his unbeaten streak, the former Syracuse University baseball and basketball star has compiled a 1.62 earned run average, completed three of four starts and has given up less than one walk a game.

In other National League games, San Francisco Giants blanked Chicago Cubs 5-3, Cincinnati Reds bombed Philadelphia Phillies 9-1 and Pittsburgh Pirates nipped Milwaukee Braves 4-3.

Giusti allowed the Dodgers only four hits while walking one and striking out six. Houston got its second inning when Los Angeles scored its lone run, the Dodgers had just two baserunners.

The Astros, who received all of the support he needed from Joe Gaines' two - run homer off Claude Osteen in the second inning.

The Mets got to Gibson for 10 hits, but the Cardinals beat them on an eight-inning rally when Dick Groat tripled and scored on Tim McCarver's grounder out.

Ron Herbel blanked the Cubs on four hits until the ninth when Billy Williams and Ken Hubbs singled with two out. Willie Mays rapped three San Francisco hits and drove in the first run in the third.

Pete Rose collected four hits, three of them for two singles, for Cincinnati. Rose scored the first Reds' run in the fourth inning, singled across the lead run in the fifth and triggered a seven-run uprising in the eighth.

Del Crandall's two-run single in the sixth inning plus Manny Mota's bases-loaded single-fly in the eighth lifted the Pirates past the Braves.

The Tracks

Crampton's 66 Noses Out Knudson

—Canadian Pockets $11,500—

FORT WORTH, Tex. (CP) — George Knudson, a man who led a four-day golf tournament for six days and still managed to lose, emerges as one of the world's better - paid philosophers.

The slender Toronto shotmaker, who held or shared the lead in the $100,000 Colonial National invitation tournament, finally lost by three strokes to Bruce Crampton of Australia Tuesday, after rain delayed the last round of the 72-hole contest 48 hours. Pocketing his $11,500 second - place cheque, Knudson commented:

"It wasn't that I lost the tournament. Crampton won it."

The 28 - year - old Australian did it in style, finishing with a four - under - par 66 for a total of 276 while Knudson settled for a par 70. And he wound up with a fourth when he reached Crampton Lake, the water hazard at the 15th hole.

Three years ago, Crampton lost the same tournament by sending his approach shot into the water. That was when Knudson earned it for him. This time he was three strokes ahead of Knudson with the one hole to play.

PROVED HIMSELF

"I thought of going an iron off the tee and just laying up to it so I wouldn't be taking any chances," Crampton said afterwards. "But then I thought this was not the way a champion should play — I'd say this was being chicken. I wanted to prove to myself that I could whip this hazard."

So Crampton loosened his tee shot over the pond and the ghost of Crampton Lake was laid to rest. It paid him $20,000 and brought his total winnings to $36,870.17, $37,754.96 when unofficial cash is added, for third places among the year's money winners.

Gardner Dickinson, Chi Chi Rodriguez, Tony Lema and Don January all tied for third place at 280, Dickinson catching the others with a final-round 68.

Ben Hogan and Sam Snead, two of the elder statesmen of golf, finished fairly high. Hogan tied for nin'h place at 284 and Snead checked in at 7'4, a stroke ahead of Arnold Palmer and two in front of defending champion Billy Casper.

Toronto Club Welcomes Soccer Knight

TORONTO (CP)—Sir Stanley Matthews, 39 - year - old retired British soccer star, will be rounded with two former English League teammates when he plays his first game with Toronto City of the Eastern Canada Professional Soccer League Saturday at Toronto's Varsity Stadium.

Matthews, an outside right who arrived in Toronto Tuesday, will play again with centre half Roy Gratrix and inside right John Brooks, both English League stars now with Toronto City. Brooks and Matthews played together for England's international representatives in 1957. Sir Stanley was a teammate of Gratrix's with Blackpool the first division in 1961.

Another Toronto City player, goaltender Nigel Sims, was an opponent of Matthews last season in the English League. Sims played with Aston Villa.

ENDED LONG CAREER

Matthews, in soccer for 35 years and a master of the dribble, ended a 33-year professional career two weeks ago in his native Stoke-on-Trent in an exhibition game against an international all - star side. The all - stars defeated Matthews' team 6-4, but the 48,000 fans came to honor the game's veteran star who earlier this year became the first soccer player to be knighted.

Matthews, weighing just over 150 pounds, was accompanied to Toronto by his wife, Lady Elizabeth. He will remain with Toronto City until June 19 when he leaves for playing appearances in Copenhagen.

Team officials, on hand to greet Matthews at Toronto International Airport, said they expect he will play about six of the club's 24 scheduled games. Saturday's game is against Montreal Italia.

He'll take in Wednesday night's game here between Toronto Inter-Roma and Montreal.

Leon Sykes of Toronto was re-elected secretary-treasurer.

PLAN AHEAD AND BREAK A STRING OF BOGEYS

Good golfers plan their play on a hole before they hit their tee shot. The best way to break a string of bogeys is to stand on the tee and think stock of just where each shot must finish to give you a par.

As shown in the illustration, one golfer has played his second shot on this par-5 hole right down the middle. Unfortunately, a bunker guards the front of the green, so he must risk a bogey or worse by playing his third shot over the sand.

The smart golfer would look at the green, the location and the position of the pin, and then play his second shot to the left side of the fairway. Then, he has an open shot to the flag and a better-than-even chance for a par, maybe a birdie.

Motto: It is better to plan your play on a hole before you tee the ball for your drive. This is accomplished in best.

Snaps Angel's Win Streak

Killebrew Third Sniper To Take Chance

By DICK COUCH
Associated Press Sports Writer

Dean Chance had been taken for a sitting duck twice before this spring but it took a direct hit from Harmon Killebrew to clip the Angel's wings.

Killebrew rocketed a drive off Chance's chin Tuesday in the ninth inning and Tony Oliva slid home with the run that gave Minnesota Twins a 3-2 victory over Los Angeles and snapped the Angel ace's winning streak at three games.

Killebrew's shot, painful as it was, did less damage than the line drives by Willie Mays and Vic Roznovsky that temporarily knocked Chance out.

The Cy Young award-winning pitcher was sidelined several days after being hit on the right arm by a drive off the bat of Chicago Cubs catcher Roznovsky in March and was shaken up again two weeks later when a Mays liner caught him in the right leg during an Angels-San Francisco Giants exhibition.

The loss left Dean at 3-1 and his earned run average inched from 2.81 to 2.98.

Detroit Tigers came from six runs down to nip Washington Senators 7-6 on Willie Horton's two-run single in the ninth; Baltimore Orioles edged Cleveland Indians 3-2 on a run-scoring hit by relief pitcher Dick Hall in the 11th and New York Yankees, led by Mickey Mantle and newcomers Doc Edwards and Ray Barker, topped Boston Red Sox 5-3 in other American League action.

Kansas City Athletics and Chicago White Sox were idle.

Chance gave up only two hits until the ninth but both were homers—by Jerry Kindall in the first and Oliva in the sixth. The Angels meanwhile, had knocked out Minnesota starter Dick Stigman in the first inning on a leadoff homer by Leon Clendenon, a singled by Willie Smith and two walks. Smith's two-out triple and an error by reliever Dave Boswell had produced another LA run in the fifth.

Horton's two-out single in the ninth scored Don Wert and Don Demeter, capping the Tigers' comeback after Willie Kirkland's three-run homer and run-scoring triple had helped the Senators build a 6-0 bulge.

The victory went to relief specialist Larry Sherry, 3-0, who blanked Washington on one hit over the last two innings. Sherry has allowed only one run in 13 1-3 innings this season.

Baltimore, shut out in one hit by Ralph Terry for seven innings, knocked out the Cleveland right hander in the eighth, tied the score in the ninth and won in the 11th on a single by Doug Powell, a hit batsman and Hall's ground single to right.

New York's Edwards, acquired recently from Kansas City, and Mantle homered while Baker, picked up Monday in a trade with Cleveland, broke into the lineup with two hits as the Yankees struck for four runs in the fourth inning and held off the Red Sox behind right-hander Mel Stottlemyre.

THE OLDER THEY ARE

VANCOUVER (CP) — Frank Newby picked up his four-wood, nodded to the other three in his foursome, and sank his tee shot on the par three, 185-yard sixth hole at Marine Drive Golf Course. Newby will be 81 next month. His witnesses—Harold Sheppard, Dr. Morton Hanna and Major Jim Motherwell—are 77, 79 and 85 respectively.

Another Boxer In Court

PATERSON, N.J. (AP)—Patterson municipal court disposed Tuesday of five charges of assault and battery, disorderly conduct and gambling against middleweight boxing contender Rubin (Hurricane) Carter.

The 27-year-old fighter was fined $25 for being an inmate of a gambling house. A disorderly conduct charge arising from that incident was dismissed by Magistrate Charles J. Amato.

Carter was found not guilty of assault and battery and disorderly conduct charges stemming from two separate night club incidents. A third disorderly conduct charge against Carter and his sparring partner, Clty Thomas, 26, of Brooklyn, N.Y., was withdrawn.

Olympics Secretary Gets Gate

CHICAGO (AP)—Eric Jones, Swiss secretary general of the International Olympic Committee, has been fired, apparently as a result of a personality clash with IOC president Avery Brundage.

Brundage, the 77-year-old Chicago hotel magnate who was re-elected IOC president last year, confirmed Tuesday that Jones had been dropped May 1. But he refused to comment on reports in Swiss newspapers that the two men had been feuding for several months.

"By order of the executive board of the IOC in Lausanne last month Mr. Jones' connection with the Olympic committee was severed," Brundage said.

"The committee gave Mr. Jones the opportunity to resign but he failed to do so."

In Lausanne, Jones issued a statement saying: "I have not resigned and I have no intention of doing so." He would not make any other comment.

De-activate Yogi-Buy Hiller

Mixed-up Mets Do It Again

By TED BIRKE
Associated Press Sports Writer

Everything seems to happen to New York Mets.

First, they had to de-activate Yogi Berra, their old wr horse; to coach the 25-player limit. Then they dropped below it when they lost Ron Hunt, their all-star second baseman, probably for the season, and had to buy Cuck Hiller from San Francisco Giants to fill the gap.

The Mets put Hunt on the disabled list, cutting the roster below the 25-player limit which is mandatory for all clubs in the National and American leagues until Sept. 1.

Earlier, they had sold pitcher Carl Willey to Buffalo Bisons of the International League and made Berra a coach only by taking him off the active list.

The Mets then supplied the only excitement of the night before the cutdown midnight deadline.

Most of the other clubs optioned rookies, although Pittsburgh Pirates got down by putting veteran relief pitcher Roy Face on the disabled list. Face suffered a torn cartilage in his right knee while running in the outfield several days ago.

Boston Red Sox cleared house by opting catcher Russ Nixon to Toronto Maple Leafs of the International League.

Other cutdowns:

NATIONAL LEAGUE

Cincinnati Reds optioned infielder Tommy Helms to San Diego Padres of the Pacific Coast League on 24-hour recall and released infielder Steve Boros outright to San Diego.

Philadelphia Phillies optioned pitcher Morris Stevens and catcher Pat Corrales to Arkansas Travelers of the PCL on 24-hour recall and released outfielder Bobby Del Greco outright to Arkansas.

Chicago Cubs sent pitcher Frank Baumann to Salt Lake City Bees of the PCL.

St. Louis Cardinals sent pitcher Dave Dowling to the Cubs for $8,000 waiver price.

Milwaukee Twins optioned infielder Cesar Tovar to Denver Bears of the PCL and infielder Dick Reese to Charlotte of the Southern League.

Cleveland Indians optioned infielder Tony Martinez and pitcher Stan Williams to Portland Beavers of the PCL and sent outfielder Richie Scheinblum to Salinas of the California League.

Baltimore Orioles optioned pitchers Ken Rowe and Herm Starrette to Rochester Red Wings of the International League.

Detroit Tigers optioned pitcher Julio Navarro, catcher John Sullivan and first baseman Bill Roman to Syracuse Chiefs of the International League.

Washington Senators sold pitcher Mike Willetts to Spokane Indians of the PCL, returned pitcher Dallas Green to the Phillies and asked waivers on first baseman Rey Sievers.

PITCHER NO-HITTER

TACOMA, Wash. (AP)—Tacoma southpaw Dick Estelle, winless in four previous Pacific Coast League starts and beaten in two of them, pitched a no-hit, no-run game Tuesday night as Tacoma Giants defeated Hawaii Islanders 6-0.

NEW YORK (AP) — Casey Stengel isn't letting a little thing like a broken right wrist bother him. Hospitals are for old guys and Casey won't even be 75 until July.

"They're gonna be bullsin' me a special uniform," said Stengel. "It's gonna have zippers for my arms and shoulders so I can slip it on or off any time."

The cast on his arm extends from mid-palm to just above the elbow. He'll probably have to wear it for some time. But he'll keep right on working.

"If they had a red carpet up there for me like I thought the accident wouldn't have happened," he said.

He referred to Monday's accident at West Point, N.Y., where he slipped and fell, breaking his wrist, while coming out of the army gymnasium before an exhibition game.

Asked whether the accident would interfere with his managing, Stengel replied: "I didn't fall on my head."

BOOKS ATTACKED

REYKJAVIK (AP) — The three Communists among the 15 members of City Council in the Icelandic capital are campaigning to have books from the U.S. Information Service banned in Reykjavik high schools. 'Cloak of Mystery' Old Package in New Wrapping

By CYNTHIA LOWRY

NEW YORK (AP)—Television viewers with long memories find NBC's Cloak of Mystery program Tuesday night was an old package in a new wrapping.

It was a half-hour program starring Simone Signoret and Lee Marvin which this viewer remembers vaguely from five seasons back.

The little suspense story was frail when new. However, it is always interesting to watch Miss Signoret.

Within a couple of weeks, most evening television will consist of re-runs from past seasons. These oft-told tales pop up like dandelions in warm weather because it is less expensive to make 30-odd episodes a year than 52 and because people are reported to watch less TV in the summer.

Audience sampling services each year report a marked growth in audience size in warm weather. Some researchers believe the decline is becoming less each year.

NBC's Telephone Hour Tuesday night reworked a serviceable device—a salute to Tin Pan Alley.

But it was, as always, a fine excuse to play a lot of familiar songs and to wind up with the inevitable Irving Berlin number. This was Business Like Show Business at the end of a tribute to Irving Berlin on his 77th birthday.

On hand were Hoagy Carmichael who of course played his Stardust plus Carol Lawrence, Gordon Macrae and Lisa Ile Uggams. This handsome program has its own attractive bel with so much talent and such unbeatable songs, it was a fast-moving 60 minutes.

Russ Wants To Expel S. Africans

LONDON (AP)—Russia filed a proposal with the International Lawn Tennis Federation Tuesday asking the expulsion of South Africa from the federation because of its racial policy of racial discrimination.

The proposal was submitted for the federation's annual meeting at Munich, July 7.

Basil Reay, ILTF secretary, said the executive committee is opposed to Russia's move, even though ILTF regulations forbid racial discrimination in international competitions. Reay said the regulations were not intended to apply to national domestic policies.

South Africa does not permit white and non-white athletes to be members of the same team nor to compete against each other.

Actors' Wives Back Home After Work in Share Party

By JAMES BACON

HOLLYWOOD (AP)—Some of movieland's most important husbands now are seeing their wives around the house for the first time in months.

Which means that the 12th annual Share Boomtown party is history. And the wives of the men who run the industry no longer are rehearsing for their annual roles as chorus girls.

The share party is the year's swinger—and each year it tops itself.

The entertainers this year included such names as Frank Sinatra, Andy Williams, Jack Benny, Lucille Ball, Wayne Newton, Phil Silvers, Joe E. Lewis, John Wayne, Dean Martin, Polly Bergen, Jo Stafford, Paul Weston, Henry Mancini.

But it's always the share girls themselves who steal the show. For three months, they rehearse long hours and come up with routines that would make a Ziegfeld proud.

ARE MOSTLY WIVES

Some of the girls in the group are pros like Loraine Day, Janet Leigh, Barbara Rush, Miss Bergen and Miss Stafford, but mostly they are the wives of show business executives or stars like Mrs. John Layne, Mrs. Dean Martin, Mrs. Martin Machin, Mrs. John Meredith Lucas, Mrs. William Wilder, Mrs. Andy Williams, Mrs. Howard Keel and Mrs. Henry Mancini.

Share was founded 12 years ago to help mentally retarded children. In the 12 years, the girls have raised more than $1,000,000 and built a diagnostic guidance centre at the Exceptional Children's Foundation.

"The Pumpkin Eater" Co Best Actress Award at the Cannes Film Festival

It's become a habit with Anne Bancroft, who currently stars at the Belle Theatre in "The Pumpkin Eater", to collect awards for her performances on stage and screen.

With her brilliant performance in the stage production of "Two For The Seesaw", Miss Bancroft won the Broadway valued Tony award to start her collection following it with two others for her characterization in "The Miracle Worker".

She received both the variety and Antoinette Perry (Tony) Awards for her stage appearance in the play, and then topped it with an Academy Award as best actress with her performance in the film version.

Recently at the Canne Film Festival she received the Best actress award for her performance in "The Pumpkin Eater", a Royal Films International release with Peter Finch and James Mason also starred. This is her first film since "The Miracle Worker."

Sweeping Reforms Proposed By Prime Minister Pearson To Speed House Business

By JAMES NELSON

OTTAWA (CP) — The government proposed sweeping reforms in House of Commons rules, Tuesday to shorten the daily question period, cut off lengthy debates, and speed passage of government spending estimates.

The initial reaction of opposition spokesmen was one of reserve and some suspicion.

The rules changes were proposed in two motions sponsored by Prime Minister Pearson, George McIlraith, government House leader, said the government would look upon the main one as a test of confidence.

It proposes to establish machinery by which time limits could be applied — by government - sponsored motion, if not by common consent — on debates which appear to the government to be bogging down in talk.

It also proposes to limit to 26 days a session all Commons discussions of detailed spending appropriations. Included in this would be the six two-day debates each session on grievances now guaranteed to the opposition by house rules.

PROPOSES AMENDMENTS

Coupled with these basic changes, the prime minister proposed a series of other amendments to the rule book. They would:

—Extend sitting hours to 33 a week from 25½ by foregoing the usual luncheon and supper recesses.

—Allow the House to sit beyond its adjournment hour in the evening to complete work it has embarked on, so long as at least 10 members do not object.

—Have all spending estimates discussed in parliamentary committees before being passed in the Commons in the 36 allotted days, and let the opposition choose the estimates it wants to debate in formal session.

—Redistribute the work of the present 14 committees of the House among 21, ensuring that all phases of federal government administration are covered, including broadcasting, research, and the arts.

WANTS REDUCTION

The daily question period would be shortened to 30 minutes. Before the 1956 pipeline debate it rarely ran more than 15 or 20 minutes, but during that acrimonious fight and since it has usually run an hour or longer.

If the new rules are adopted, the speaker would be given new powers. He would be able to rule out of order before they were raised publicly to take up the time of the House any so-called question of privilege — extraneous political in-fighting and salutes to home-town enterprise.

The speaker's rulings on questions of procedure could not be challenged except by a formal motion of censure. At present, any ruling by the speaker can be challenged by an individual MP, requiring a time - consuming vote of the House to uphold or override it.

Opposition Leader Diefenbaker last year suggested having the House sit through its normal luncheon and supper recesses. During this time there would be an understanding that no critical votes would be held, and part of the time that most MPs would be eating would be devoted to the Commons chamber to resolutions and bills presented by back - bench members.

DIEF IS THINKING

Mr. Diefenbaker's office said Tuesday the Conservative leader would have no comment on the rules changes for a couple of days, while he studied their full implications.

Stanley Knowles (NDP — Winnipeg North Centre), an acknowledged rules expert and whip of his party, said he agreed with the principles behind the government's proposals.

But he said the Commons should be able to vote free of party allegiances on the details. He would allow more than [illegible] spending estimates and rewrite the terms on which a cabinet minister could propose a time - limit on debates if unanimous agreement on one can't be found among party leaders' representatives.

H. A. Olson (SC — Medicine Hat) said many of the government's proposals came from the work of a subcommittee he headed last session. It examined House procedures and recommended strengthening the committee system.

But Mr. Olson said the government's proposal for 21 Commons committees would make the system unwieldy.

Many Great Lakes Ships Work Under Peak Capacity Due to Low Water Levels

SAULT STE. MARIE, Mich. (AP) — Continuing low water levels have forced most recently - built Great Lakes vessels to operate at less than peak capacity, the International Joint Commission was told Tuesday.

The comment was made by Oliver T. Burnham, vice - president of the Lake Carriers' Association. Burnham testified at a hearing here on factors affecting water level fluctuation in the lakes.

Burnham said nearly all recently built ships have navigating drafts that equal or exceed the 25 feet six inches available now in the St. Lawrence Seaway.

The deepened connecting channels in the Great Lakes — most of which were completed three years ago — would have permitted use of ships with similar dimensions on the lakes Burnham added.

But lowered water levels had largely offset the benefits of the deepened channels, and vessels with these immersions were unable to use the St. Marys, St. Clair and Detroit Rivers.

Insufficient water depths in the Davis and Sabin locks in the St. Marys Falls Canal forces many ships to use the deeper MacArthur Lock, and the added traffic handling delays ranging from two to nine hours, Burnham added. He said average operating costs for Great Lakes ships are $130 per hour.

Burnham urged commission members to study the feasibility of flow retarding programs —such as installation of underwater weirs at the head of the St. Clair River—and the availability of additional inflow volume, such as is provided by the Long Lac and Ogoki River diversions into Lake Superior.

Michigan Attorney - General Frank Kelly, in a statement, asked the commission to extend its study of extreme lake levels to their impact on the total economy of the Great Lakes basin area.

"Low water levels may injure navigation directly because boats will lose a certain amount of tonnage," the statement said. "There is also a large indirect injury passed on to land - based industry which depends on navigation."

South Korean Students Fight Tie With Japan

By C. S. CHIN

SEOUL (AP)—South Korean students, after a year of peace, are back on the warpath against the government over moves to bring about diplomatic and political rapprochement with Japan.

The United States is caught in the middle of the dispute.

The student campaign seems to put a crimp in the successful negotiations for re-establishment of relations which have lapsed for 14 years. The reasoning behind the campaign is sometimes obscure but the fear seems to be that Japan will dominate South Korea economically and regain the commanding position it held during 35 years of colonial occupation that ended in 1945.

Demonstrations a year ago forced President Chung Hee Park to suspend his talks with Japan. But the president, a former general, doesn't seem inclined to back down this time.

He says normal ties with Japan will give the South Korean economy a needed shot in the arm. The United States feels ties between the two are basic to security between these old enemies who now are U.S. allies.

The student slogans have centered chiefly around abolition of the Rhee Line which bars Japanese and all other—fishermen from fishing in waters within six miles of Korea.

WOULD PROVIDE AID

The fishermen are believed less concerned than the students alone in the new agreements would limit the number of Japanese boats in the area and Japan would extend important financial help to modernize the South Korean fishing industry.

The deeper worry was spelled out by a 22-year-old student at Seoul National University, who said:

"Japan will try to make Korea a market for her own products as she did during her colonial rule. Billions of dollars of American aid money poured into our country before and after the Korean War but the economy is still very weak.

"I don't see how $400,000,000 or $300,000,000 of Japanese money would help over a period of 10 years could make any significant contribution, especially when the money would be spent in such a way that Japan would benefit from it."

Part of the final settlement is that Japan make a $600,000,000 grant against Korean property claims and $200,000,000 in government - to - government loans.

This package is sweetened by a Japanese guarantee of $400,000,000 more in commercial loans.

Grave-digger Charged With Two Murders

SHAWINIGAN, Que. (CP)—Capital murder charges were laid Tuesday against former grave-digger Marcel Bernier, a sometimes cocky little man who testified that he buried the bludgeoned bodies of a girl and a woman in unmarked graves near here more than three years ago.

The long-buried remains of Denise Therrien, 16, and Laurette Beaudoin, 39, were found last month after police stepped up their investigations on orders of Quebec Attorney-General Claude Wagner.

Miss Therrien disappeared in August, 1961, after leaving home to take a baby-sitting job, and Miss Beaudoin in April, 1962, after telling friends that she knew what had happened to the Therrien girl.

Dwarfed by his escort of six provincial policemen, the wiry-haired and bespectacled Bernier, 43, showed no emotion as the two charges were read. He was arraigned in a deserted courtroom late in the day, little more than an hour after the two five-man coroner's juries had found him criminally responsible for the deaths.

WILL PROVIDE SYMBOL

REGINA (CP) — Canada's centennial symbol will be made available May 15 to Canadians for general use in promoting the 100th birthday of Confederation, says Centennial Commissioner John Fisher. The symbol is a stylized red maple leaf on a white background. It has 11 triangular areas symbolizing the 10 provinces and the north.

Johnson Advisor Says Viet Nam Policy Out of Date and Naive

DURHAM, N.C. (AP) — Dr. Arthur Larson, a special consultant to President Johnson, describes U.S. policy in Viet Nam as "out of date, transparent, and naive."

Larson, director of the rule of law research center at the Duke University law school, and his brother, Don R. Larson a professor of political science, make the attack in a booklet, Viet Nam and Beyond.

The Larsons recommend a policy of "selective containment" of communism, rather than what they term the existing "massive containment" approach.

Among other things, the booklet says:

"The deepest error of this policy is that it discards the primitest of a sound foreign policy—the weighing of all factors in a given situation favoring or hurting national interests . . . The most serious defect of the policy is that it is not working.

"How will Russia or China, themselves unable to feed their own people, satisfy tens of millions of hungry people in the poorer regions of Africa and Asia? . . . If communism cannot feed its own people . . . how will its theories work in the land of uncleared rain forests, exhausted ancient soils, and badly-drained river bottoms these marginal areas often present?"

The booklet says "the true fact is that the U.S. has no obligation to South Viet Nam or anyone else under the SEATO (South-East Asia Treaty Organization) to use its own armed forces in the defence of South Viet Nam."

Both SEATO and the United Nations offer ways of legally settling the Viet Nam problem, the booklet says. Thus, it adds, the U.S. could get out "with honor."

WEATHER IS ROUGH

OTTAWA (CP) — Abnormal winter weather conditions have killed or damaged hundreds of thousands of plants, trees and trees in the Ottawa area. One nursery was reported to have lost 80,000 perennials and a federal experimental farm official said it was the worst winter for plants in his memory.

Mr. Smith is a native of Newcastle, N.B.

He will be succeeded by Ulric Belzager, 38, a native of St. Boniface, Man., and at present deputy warden of the Collin's Bay, Ont., penitentiary.

D. Laurin, 53, a native of St. Hermas, Que., and a former superintendent of the St. Vincent de Paul penitentiary industrial annex, has been named deputy warden at the new medium security institution at Cowansville, Que.

Suppose Dale Carnegie Was Once a Newspaperboy?

Practical lessons in how to win friends and influence people are a prime benefit a boy receives from a newspaper route.

As he accepts and fulfills his route responsibilities, he soon learns those things that are fundamental to success as an adult, such as how to approach, meet, understand and deal with people.

He finds that courtesy pays—that a ready smile, a friendly greeting, a polite "thank you" earns friends quickly.

Finally, a newspaperboy's experience helps sharpen good personality traits, gives emphasis to promptness, initiative, honesty and dependability.

"Why should you switch to Food City?"

"PRICE HAS A LOT TO DO WITH IT. Our policy is to have the lowest food prices in town every day — Monday thru Saturday — week after week. Take a close look at the grocery prices below. Those discount prices are the same every day of the week. They are our regular shelf prices — and they're only a small sample of the total number ! The range of savings shown are far from poetry because we constantly "comparison shop" the major chain stores. We don't stint on quality. You'll find all the top brands at Food City. But there's nothing like a visit to really convince you."

None of Windfall Shares Purchased Went Into Own Account Witness Testifies

TORONTO (CP) — Louis Pancer, a self-employed mining engineer who directs securities trading for several companies, told the Windfall royal commission Tuesday he bought shares of Windfall Oils and Mines July 30 last year, but did not tell his salesman in whose name the shares were to be registered.

The next day — July 31, when shares of Windfall Oils and Mines Ltd. fell to 89 cents from $4.15—he placed the shares in the accounts of the companies for which he traded, he said. None went into his personal account.

Asked why he did not place the shares in his own name, Mr. Pancer said he knew in his own mind which accounts the shares were going into when he had placed the order.

Mr. Pancer was testifying before the royal commission appointed to look into the rise of Windfall shares to $5.80 from 38 cents and their collapse to 80 cents on the Toronto Stock Exchange last year.

He said he made about $1,500 to $2,000 from trading Windfall in his own name.

Mr. Pancer's evidence was closely linked with that of Allen Fidler, a mining executive who also trades stocks for various companies.

Mr. Fidler told the commission in testimony Monday and Tuesday he made $10,000 to $12,000, trading Windfall, but the companies he traded for all lost money. One, Mercury-Chimaman Mines Ltd., dropped $31,000.

Mr. Pancer said he was waiting for Mr. Fidler at a golf course last July when a telephone call came for Mr. Fidler. He said he took the liberty of answering the call, from N.B. O'Sullivan, a stock salesman who acted for both Mr. Fidler and Mr. Pancer.

Mr. Pancer said Mr. O'Sullivan told him Windfall would issue excellent assay reports. As a result, Mr. Pancer said he put in an order for 10,000 shares.

Later, he testified, Mr. Fidler placed an order for 30,000 shares.

Of the 40,000 total only 12,300 were purchased. Mr. Pancer said he placed 2,000 to the accounts of companies he traded for and Mr. Fidler 12,300 in his companies.

Commissioner Mr. Justice Arthur Kelly of the Ontario Court of Appeal asked Mr. Pancer why he didn't tell Mr. O'Sullivan which accounts the shares were to go into.

Mr. Pancer replied: "The market was nearly closing and there wasn't time or I wasn't in my office and it wasn't convenient."

The hearing resumes today at 2 p.m.

Pension Plan Abandoned by Legislature

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

The fourth session of Manitoba's 27th legislature was prorogued Tuesday night, after Premier Duff Roblin's Progressive Conservative government abandoned an attempt to enact a controversial pension plan for legislature members.

Mr. Roblin announced at the opening of Tuesday's afternoon sitting that the legislature would not proceed with the pension plan for members of the legislature.

The 13-member opposition under Liberal Leader Gil Molgat had battled the pension bill since its introduction last week, delaying prorogation and forcing a night sitting Saturday.

In Quebec, the Liberal government introduced legislation Tuesday to establish a government - owned prospecting firm —La Societe Quebecoise d'Exploration Miniere (Quebec Mining Exploration Company).

WILL PROSPECT

Resources Minister Rene Leveseque said the company will prospect throughout the province, leading to establishment of mines.

Information provided to reporters said the company's activities could lead to establishment of either government-owned mines, private enterprise mines or combined public and private enterprises.

Premier Lesage also announced Tuesday that he will send a special address to Queen Elizabeth requesting passage of a bill to curb the powers of the Union Nationale - dominated Quebec upper house. The upper house had amended a government - sponsored bill after it had passed the lower house last week.

The Manitoba legislature passed an amendment Tuesday calling for "study" of a bill to make French a second language of instruction in Manitoba schools in communities predominantly French speaking.

The Manitoba legislature also approved a plan to allow private schools — mostly Roman Catholic parochial institutions— to share certain public school services.

Popular Mediterranean Design Here to Stay

The romantic appeal of Mediterranean or Spanish styling elegance has found expression in furniture and furnishings for every room of the modern house. Intricate grille and lattice-work provide ideal charm for occasional tables in the living room of a tasteful home. The heavier silhouette and the imaginative crafting of geometric designs lends itself precisely to Spanish influenced dining room suites.

Dellcraft, the furniture division of Dominion Electrohome, has applied these action lines to the modern home settings. Their designers comment that the natural mellow warmness of Spanish-Mediterranean style, plus an elegance that rivals French or Italian Provincial, is responsible for the tremendous popularity that products of this design enjoy.

Since the history of Mediterranean decor reflected strong contrasts in design it was the modern interpretations of the style trend find many products used as accent pieces. Since the design era or original Mediterranean styling touched Spanish, Italian and French influences, the ability to mix or match with modern decorator motifs is evident. Also, the current popularity of Mediterranean design is not likely to wane, but live well into the future of 20th century furniture and furnishings.

This lowboy console cabinet, by Knechtel Kabinet Kreations, is part of the Ontario "roomful" to be won by a resident of that province during Home Fashions '65. In antique white with tan fruitwood top and gold trim, this cabinet is a beautiful addition to living room, bedroom or hall.

FAMILY TRADITION

CATTERICK, England (CP) — The great-grandson of Kaiser Wilhelm II is following in the family tradition and has joined the army—the British Army. Prince Nicholas of Prussia, 18, whose father, Prince Frederick, became a British citizen in 1947, has enlisted as trooper von Preussen, stationed at this Yorkshire camp.

A Place for Collections

Increase in travel, not only to other parts of the North American continent, but all over the world, has helped to turn us into a country of collectors. And everyone with a collection wants to display it to best advantage in the home.

For this reason, manufacturers are putting special emphasis on designing furniture specially intended to make collections an integral part of decoration.

Read in hand with the collecting fever too, is the general need for more storage space for such items as table ware, linens and cutlery.

The new elegance in living — particularly the room of the formal dining room — with traditional or provincial styled furnishings, has brought the china cabinet, the Welsh dresser or a buffet for breakfast and the sideboard or bedroom chest back into prominence in the home. Even cabinetry in the kitchen has veered away from the clinical look to one of fine furniture, often featuring glazed glass. When the return of the family kitchen hutch, comes the Welsh dresser or corner curio cabinet in which can be displayed one of a kind plates; pewter, brass or even a collection of delft from all over the world.

Special emphasis has been put on such features as dust proofing; adjustable shelves, many in glass or a combination of glass and wood; special lighting to show collections off to best advantage—especially such items as colored Sandwich glass or porcelain.

The Colonial influence is seen in the recent introduction of a Welsh dresser which expands to breakfront proportions, with drawer space to house linen, silver and everything needed to set a table for ten. Or in a china cabinet, with dust proofing, in the Bycroft country styling.

The largest hutch ever included is one manufacturer's range comes in Italian-Mediterranean Provincial styling. It measures 90" x 12" x 44" and features stand diamond in the front panels. A combination of wood and glass shelves in the hutch are lit by indirect lighting. Again in the Mediterranean styling, is a triangular topped curio cabinet which houses a bar unit below or, from another manufacturer — a hexagonal curio cabinet which forms parts of its classical traditional Mediterranean collection.

Massive breakfronts and armoires are very much a part of the new 'Country Look' in furniture. This look takes its appearance from the Southern European design influences of the French, Spanish, Italian and Swiss and, because of its massive proportions, there is ample storage space.

Another new collection which reflects the latest Oriental influence includes a china cabinet in teak and walnut with knocker type pulls featuring butterfly shaped backed plates. The cabinet has a tortoise shell and gold foil backing.

SONGS SPOIL TRADE

LONDON (CP)—The Rolling Stones singing group is slowly driving the tea business to financial disaster, says the magazine Tailor and Cutter. If pop groups' influence goes on, it says, the next generation may wear open-necked shirts all the time.

Carpet Color

What's your favorite color? How many children do you have . . . and what are their ages? Where is your TV?

"The answers to these questions," says Betty Barrymore, carpet consultant with Tuftex to Carpet Mfg. Co. Ltd., "will influence the choice of your new carpet."

"If you are shopping for a new carpet," she continued, "color should be your first consideration. Because the carpet will cover the largest area in a room, its color will dominate and, because a carpet is one of the most important purchases you make, price-wise, it is important that you choose the right color. Also, if you choose your new carpet wisely, it will last many years so it should be a color you will like through the years."

For these reasons, this carpet consultant advises a favorite color for the carpet. "Then you can be sure you won't tire of it over the years and if it easy to change a color scheme around a favorite shade."

This advice poses no problem if the carpet is your first purchase in a new decorating scheme. However, if you are replacing the carpet only and drapes and upholstery must do, then select a color that will blend with these. Nevertheless, it is possible to work in a favorite color, she states.

"If the carpet to be replaced is beige and this is a color that you have grown tired of," says Betty Barrymore, "don't choose another beige just because it blends best with your present furnishings. Look ahead. Perhaps your drapes or slipcovers will be due for changing next year. Remember, too, that very often a new color on the walls is all that is needed to allow your favorite color on the floor—and paint and wall paper are inexpensive and easy to apply."

Once the color has been decided, Betty says, you must then choose the right carpet quality-wise. This is when you should consider the size and ages of your family and even the placement of your TV. Today's carpets are made of a great many fibres in a wide price range. Each carpet has been manufactured to do a specific job—some more demanding than others. Therefore, it is important that you select a carpet that can do the job in your home.

"For instance," she points out, "it is quite obvious that a bedroom carpet will not have to withstand the same wear and tear as a living room carpet and also that the living room carpet in a business couple's apartment will not take the same beating as that in a home where four children all under 12 watch TV."

To evaluate the type of wear and tear a fabric will give a new carpet, we can divide household traffic into three main areas—light, medium and heavy. Basically, light traffic areas are bedrooms and guest rooms. An explanation of where wearability is not the prime requsite in a carpet. On the other hand, stairs and hallways which bear the load of traffic in any home, are considered heavy traffic areas. In the rest of the home—living rooms, dining rooms and recreation or family rooms—the level of traffic depends on the family and its way of life.

"For instance," she elaborated, "consider a family of four —two adults and two children, a dog and TV in the living room. This room can be rated a heavy traffic area because the entire family and their pet will spend a good part of their leisure time there. If, on the other hand, this same family has a family room or recreation room where the TV is located so that the living room is reserved for more formal entertainment or used only on occasions, it could be regarded as a medium traffic area."

Your retailer can help you rate the traffic in your home and recommend a carpet that can handle it. You will have to rely to a great extent on his advice she says, "because only one Canadian manufacturer rates his carpet for light, medium or heavy traffic and labels them accordingly."

"Some indication of the quality can be gained through a rough rule of thumb based on price per sq. yd," she reports. "All carpet priced under $8.00 per sq. yd. is suitable for light traffic areas. From $8.00 to $12.00 per sq. yd. could be said to be the medium range and over $12.00 should be suitable for heavy household use."

"While buying carpet is confusing and determining quality is very difficult," concluded Betty Barrymore, "the purchaser who considers color and traffic potential is on the right road to choosing her new carpet wisely."

A pleasant breakfast nook, carpeted with multi-level looped texture carpeting, is part of a modern decorative scheme. Wrought iron furniture influenced by Spanish design provides a solid contrast to the texture of floor covering. Canadian homes have a wide choice of fine carpets loomed in Canada and available in hundreds of shades of the basic decoratin g colors.

SEARCH FOR WATER	SIC TRANSIT GLORIA	CALLS MEAN QUEUES
LONDON (AP) — Britain is starting a large research project in desalting sea water. Increasing population is imposing new strains on water supplies everywhere, noted Technology Minister Frank Cousins.	Daring young men in Chichicastenango, Guatemala, climb the 60-foot Flying Pole in the market-place and whirl to the ground again on a rope. Once a religious ritual, it now is a two-cent "ride."	BEIRUT (AP)—The Lebanese capital was not exactly proud of having only two telephone booths for a city of nearly 1,000,000, but now the situation is worse. One booth is still in use but someone stole the other.

Colonial and Maple Furniture

As Colonial corners and Maple Village displays spring up within retail and departmental stores all over the country, the romantic furnishings of our pioneer heritage are becoming very much a part of home decor today.

It is quite the fashion to "browse" around these shops, whether with a view to buying shown in complete settings down to the very last detail, including wallpaper — or just adding accessories which are as fascinating as they are numerous.

Colonial furniture embraces the best in the old traditional designs, enlarged or adapted to add strength, comfort and extra storage for today's more relaxed way of living. Its distinct charm and personality remains, however. And with the wide selection of stylings available today, it is possible to create an atmosphere both folksy or formal.

Consider the old world charm of a Colonial bedroom with its high poster or canopied bed, or maybe the more simple spindle back. A patchwork quilt or matching bedcover and draperies in one of the Colonial style documentary, color or tiny floral print fabrics. Recreating the feeling of the past too, are wall groupings with pictorials depicting colonial scenes. On these can be hung wall samplers, plaques or Colonial prints. The whole warmth and atmosphere comes alive in the glow of authentically styled Colonial lamps, from hurricane or oil in brass or opal glass to tole, or wood lamps with Colonial print shades.

Consider how, for sunroom or rec room. Colonial furniture takes on a sturdy look with the hardiness of solid maple, with its protective finish. Wall and stacking units bring Colonial into modern usage with attractive variety of sturdily upholstered sofas and chairs. There is even a variety of Colonial inspired patterns in Vinyl upholstery, for rec room sofas or chairs, as well as sturdy multi - colored tweeds or plain homespuns.

Many old world pieces find themselves much in modern usage, such as a wagon seat, coffee table, dough box end table; Deacon's bench, crib coffee table or loveseat.

Woodpaneling in a family room is a natural background for Colonial furnishings, but if the budget limits, then wallpaper in Colonial designs or just plain white walls give it both charm and personality. Braided or hooked rugs in contemporary accent pieces.

FURNITURE HOUSE LIMITED 261 Front St. (Downstairs)

DIAL 968-8218

As Canada's Centennial year draws closer, pride of inheritance will reflect itself in home decoration. The dishes that have the aura of history will combine with the furniture styles dear to early pioneers. This colonial-style buffet by Imperial Furniture has plenty of drawer and cupboard space while permitting the proud owner to show off antiques to advantage.

Antique Mirror Reflects Trend To Elegance

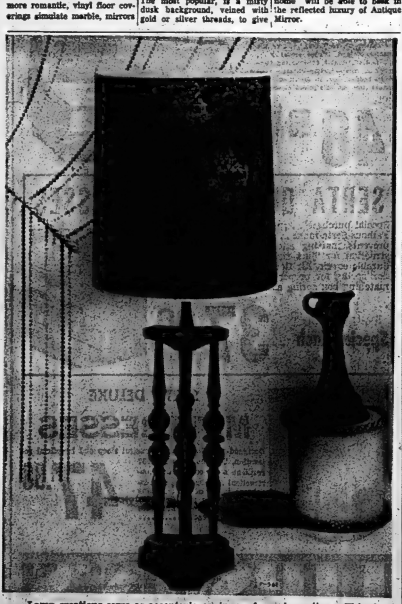
The return of elegance in the home is reflected in many directions. Furniture design shows the influence of lavish French and Italian Schools; lamps are more romantic, vinyl floor coverings simulate marble, mirrors are ornately framed, or are of the look and richness of rare antique decorator variety.

Antique mirror, as it is commonly called, is a chemical process used along with the traditional silvering, to turn glass into a glamorous first cousin to the plain mirror. These chemicals actually spoil the plain mirror, but the damage is so controlled to produce the beautiful antique effect. No seven years bad luck with this apologies! There is almost no limit to colors which can be combined, even a simulated marble is possible. The most popular, is a misty dusk background, veined with gold or silver threads, to give museum glass.

Antique mirror adds grace and beauty to any decor, and can be used effectively to highlight an area in commercial installations as well as the home. The mirror is readily and easily applied to any smooth surface with a gummed adhesive, and is being used as table tops, room dividers, or on entire walls. Used as a point of interest, it will bring elegance into any area. On the Canadian market at low cost, even the most modest home will be able to bask in the reflected luxury of Antique Mirror.

More Mix-and-Match

With the mix-and-match idea for sofa and chairs taking over from the matched three-piece living room suite, there are also signs of a similar rebellion developing in bedroom furniture.



"Within a few years it may be considered 'old hat' to furnish a bedroom with pieces that all match perfectly," decorators say. "You may see a pair of lamps and night tables alike, but other pieces in the room may be varied in color, in kind of wood and even style, for decorating interest".

The "electric" approach in selecting whatever is considered best from various sources — offers more opportunity to express individuality and creates excitement in decorating.

A new bed may be the easiest starting point, particularly if you're also considering a change in size or type of bedding. For example, if you've been crowded in a double bed, perhaps you're ready for the luxury of a king-size mattress, swing-away twin beds, or at least a queen-size unit.

There's a wide range of headboards to complement your other furnishings and to start you on your mix-and-match program.

Choice of beds is also varied. In addition to spindle beds and bunk beds, there are trundle beds; day beds with padded back and sides, canopy-topped taster beds and beds with distinctive high-poster headboards, as well as the quaint "bonnet" beds.

Lamp creations serve as accent pieces in modern decorating. This lamp captures the Mediterranean motif by employing sculptured wood columns in a rich brown distressed finish and a shade of abstract design. Stretching to 45" in height, this Delcraft lamp can be employed as a single highlight piece, or in matching pair.

Newlyweds on a Budget Should Buy Furniture To Fit Future Home

As June approaches — the nuptial month — many brides-couples are in the throes of furnishing their first home. Many are watching for a budget-making a valiant effort to buy wisely with an eye to the future. They have perused catalogues and magazines, visited home shows, browsed through local furniture stores in an effort to come to a compatible decision on styles and colors.

The majority of this year's June brides will start housekeeping in an apartment, many considering bachelor and bachelorette-ing. In selecting the furnishings for their first home, ease of care will be considered, as well as future use of their purchases when they move into a house and the family arrives. Naturally, every dewy-eyed bride hopes to make a cozy, attractive home for her groom. As these couples list the items they would like to have, those they must have, and check the budget, many look desperately for advice on the best way to spend their nest egg. Betty Barrymore, decorating consultant with Toronto Carpet Mfg. Co. Ltd., is often approached by these eager but confused home furnishings shoppers and has several do's and don'ts that will help spend the budget wisely and get the couple off to a good start in furnishing their first home.

"Newlyweds who will start housekeeping in an apartment should leave the purchase of a bedroom or dining room suite until they are in a more permanent home," she says. "Bedroom suites purchased for an apartment are often unsuitable in both size and style when the couple moves into their house. For one thing, bedrooms in both apartments and modern homes today are often small-sized and cannot comfortably accommodate all the pieces in a bedroom suite."

She advises instead the purchase of a good spring and mattress to be used as a continental for the time being, pointing out that these are a separate purchase in any event and are standard sizes so they will fit the bed purchased later. Then, depending on their taste in furnishings, they should buy good unpainted chests or antique or second-hand period pieces.

CAN BE USED AGAIN

"These will fit in beautifully right now and give your apartment a personality. Later, they will find ready use in your house . . . the painted chests in the nursery, the antiques as a wonderful addition in a hall or guest room."

Similarly, a dining room suite that suits your apartment may seem out of place in your house, she says, adding, your taste may change too. Most modern apartments have L-shaped living-dining areas so that at most, a table and chairs is sufficient. Later, these will serve in the kitchen, family room or recreation room, depending on the style you choose. If you require storage in the dining area, again look at unpainted or antique pieces. "Many couples include a stereo among their first purchases and these are generally in a large piece of furniture. This can be placed along the dining area wall most effectively and its surface can become a serving area when entertaining."

"Carpets, too, are an area of indecision," Betty reports. "Most couples want to include carpet at least for the living room, but when they check on the cost of their dream carpet, they hesitate, wondering if this would be a wise investment. Some suggest they should purchase one of those cheap carpets that will do them while they are in the apartment and then they'll get a better one when they get their house," they say.

GET GOOD CARPET

"Buying a cheap carpet that will 'do' for the time being," says Betty, "is a poor investment. In the first place, it is seldom replaced when the couple moves into their home because this move is generally motivated by the arrival of the family and for the next few years, other items have prior claim on the budget."

"Also, a cheap carpet which may last but two or three years and then is good for nothing is money down the drain. If this carpet cost $5.00 a sq. yd. and lasts for two years, it has actually cost $2.50 per sq. yd. per year," she points out.

Betty advises a couple to choose a good medium weight carpet for their first living room. "Select the color carefully so that it is one you both like and one that will enhance your first apartment. Then when you move, plan on using it in your bedroom or recreation room if it will suit the new living room. In this way, you can stretch the life of your purchase to as much as 10 years . . . 3-5 in your apartment living room, another 3-5 in your new bedroom. This means that if you pay around $9.00 a sq. yd. it will cost you, over a period of 10 years, a mere 90 cents per sq. yd. per year."

"Poor quality is never a bargain," says Betty. "It won't wear and it may be difficult to clean so that it does not keep its new look very long. It is better value to buy the best you can because it will repay you in years of wear and beauty."

Rich Colors Add Elegance To Furniture

Rich and vibrantly alive colors add a new dimension of elegance to the wide world of fabrics for 1965 upholstered furniture. The mood is definitely romantic, glowing with color excitement for the plentiful assortment of textures and patterns.

Color and fabrics are scene-stealers this year . . . shimmering silk-sheen damasks, brocades, fabrics with a raw silk look, lush velvets, gay cotton florals, brightly-toned linens, plush wool-look blends, luminous nylon boucles, textured homespuns and colorful vinyls. Large-scaled floral bloom-in prints, whose colorings are so sharply drawn that they give a three-dimensional texture. "Flat" quilting which outlines patterns adds to the rich look of luxury.

Scotchgard satin and soil repeller finishes, now widely accepted, help to make even the most color-conscious upholstery fabrics a practical investment. All the new fabrics set a high fashion note in 1965 upholstered furniture, showing off the accent on the rounded, cushioned plumpness and higher backs.

The color-and-fabric story gives a fresh, free-hand scope for decorating ideas. The three-piece suite, for example, gives way to the idea of a sofa with color-and-fabric correlated chairs. This could be a high-backed "Mr." chair and a low-backed "Mrs." chair in complimentary fabrics with a comfortable ottoman to reflect the room's dominate color.

As fashion's geography moves into the more decorative design area of the Mediterranean influence, upholstery shows more "embellishments," such as brass or wooden knobs on wood-en frames, bobby cushions with tassels, double skirt valances with cut-away detailing and orately carved wooden frames. Much attention is now given to the elegant extras of fine tailoring — double-seam welting, quilted fabrics, valances with kick-pleats or cut-away scalloping, deep tufting on chaise backs — plus the added note of opulence and elegance of bright brass feet casters.

Along with color's stellar role is "luxury" comfort spelled out in higher back treatments, deeper and resilient seating, plump fiber-filled loose back cushions and new methods of better seating suspension. In traditional-styled furniture, colors take to clear blues, sunny yellows, avocado greens and golds. Earthier tones of burnt orange, tangerine, moss green and rum gold are popular for contemporary-modern.

The Spanish influence breaks through in the variety of lively prints from subtle, undefined florals to bold, bright patterns — Mediterranean blue-greens and red-yellows mixtures — plus striking effects with black and white — are frequently used color combinations. Spanish-and-Mediterranean reflect a color mood rather than a definite design influence, by translating vivid and sun-drenched colors into fabrics for today's color-conscious living. Contrasts are sharp, for example, with dark-on-light backgrounds, metallic effects in stained glass hues are rich and vivid and the same liveliness appears in solid colors that run the deep greens, reds and golds.

The green family widens its spectrum to take in moss green, avocado, olive and bronze tones, right for yellow-greens. Greens combine popularity with blues and the blue palette ranges from near-navy to misty blues and into softer, lighter shades.

Tips to Keep Lamps Bright

Your lamps will keep their good looks and continue giving proper light if you follow these easy-care tips:

1. During your routine once-a-week housecleaning, use a soft cloth to wipe off the bulb, reflector bowl (if there is one), and lamp base. Use the soft brush attachment of your vacuum cleaner on the shade.

"Keeping the bulb and reflector clean is most important," a manufacturer says. "It's estimated that a film of dust or dirt can cut light output by 50 per cent."

2. Once a month, or oftener if needed, remove the reflector from the lamp, wash in warm, soapy water, rinse and dry thoroughly, and then replace it. Never wash light bulbs; the water may loosen the cement holding the base to the glass.

3. To clean lamp bases, use a mild warm water soap solution on glass, pottery, marble and onyx surfaces, then wipe dry. Wood and metal should be dusted and protected with a thin coat of wax.

Never use polishes or abrasives on metal surfaces. These surfaces are usually protected with transparent lacquer which polishes will remove. Once this happens, the metal is exposed to the tarnishing effects of the air.

4. Soiled lamp shades, with the exception of paper and parchment, can often be cleaned if you use the right procedure for each type, as follows:

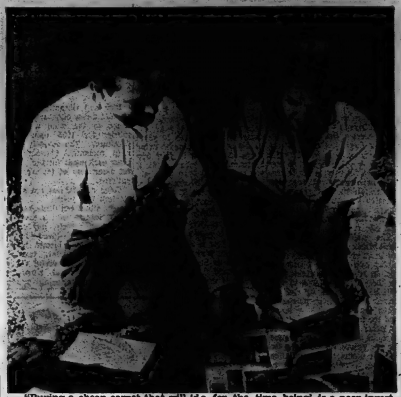
Fabric—linen, cotton, chintz, painted silk, or appliqued shades should be dry cleaned only. So should any fabric shades whose trimmings are glued instead of stitched.

Rayon and silk shades can be washed if the trimmings are stitched. First, dust the shade, then slosh it up and down in a tub of lukewarm suds.

Rinse in several clear lukewarm water rinses. Blot as dry as possible with terry towel. Then put in stiff breeze, preferably from an electric fan. Never place the damp shade in sunlight or on a radiator.

Leather—Dust with dry cloth. Apply a small amount of vaseline with a soft cloth once a month.

Plastic—Dust first, then wipe with a damp, soapy cloth, followed by a cloth dampened in clear water. Then wipe entirely dry.



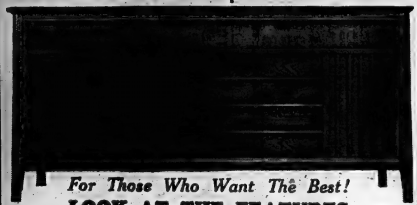
Metallic paper—Apply a mixture of one part turpentine to ten parts mineral oil with a soft cloth. Wipe dry.

Fiberglas—Dip in lukewarm suds, then in clear water. Use a soft cloth to apply the suds, then a fresh one to rinse and wipe dry.

Metal—Wipe with a damp cloth, then quickly wipe dry. Use a furniture polish.

FILM INDIAN VILLAGE

The Anglican Church of Canada is making a half-hour color film about village life in northern India, near Amritzar.



"Buying a cheap carpet that will 'do for the time being' is a poor investment," says Betty Barrymore speaking of do's and dont's to stretch the budget for couples furnishing their first home. She suggests the purchase of good medium-weight carpet in a color compatible with both tastes for that first apartment living room. "Then," she says, "plan to use it in your bedroom or recreation room when you move into your own house . . . in this way you can add years to the life of your purchase."

Exceptional wearability — The nylon used in these Carpets is not ordinary nylon. Definitely not. It was develope dby DuPont specifically for carpets. DuPont Carpet Nylon is the toughest, strongest, longest wearing carpet fibre known. It's made to take rough wear — even the jumping jack wear of children.

Vibrant beauty — Carpets of DuPont Carpet Nylon have true depth and clarity of color. They're available in this year's vibrant new colors and soft muted tones ranging from Golden Beige through Electric Blue to Mandarin Red.

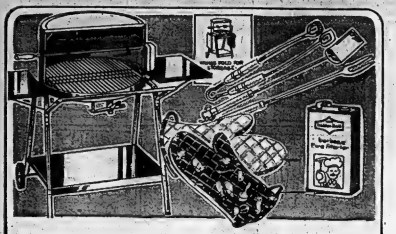
Capricorn (Dec. 22 to Jan. 19): Be sure to check details. Highlight sincerity. Adhere to Golden Rule. Don't be talked into questionable scheme. If you are forthright . . . success is indicated.

Aquarius (Jan. 20 to Feb. 18): Obstacles could be boomerang in your favor now. Stick to project. Handle added responsibility. Don't be a clock-watcher. Volunteer extra effort and it will pay off!

Pisces (Feb. 19 to Mar. 20): Good lunar position indicates progress. Effort in past now gains recognition. Keep communication lines clear. Associate may offer constructive suggestion.

If today is your birthday . . . you are a frank individual. You will fight for the underdog. You are loyal. Would make an excellent personnel manager.



General Tendencies: Cycle high for Scorpio, Sagittarius. Special word to Gemini: If you are understanding . . . the one you love will make you proud.

Irate Windsor Mothers Blockade "Death Strip"

WINDSOR, Ont. (CP)—Combatants in curlers and kerchiefs jammed traffic in the battle of Grand Marais Road Wednesday night—but the forces of law and order won the day.

This was no lighthearted encounter, however.

Some 15 mothers—a number of them with their children—and carrying signs, were protesting the traffic deaths of two children on a stretch of the road in adjacent Sandwich East Township.

Spokesman for the mothers was Mrs. Henry Soulliere, who organized the demonstration.

When police, who mothers massed, Mrs. Soulliere had had erected a large sign at the roadside. It read: "Danger. Sandwich East says reach U.S. no much. But what are children worth? Dead —one seven-year-old boy, 1962; one five-year-old girl, May 18, 1965."

The sign was adorned with a large skull and crossbones.

The dead boy referred to Mrs. Soulliere's own son, Gerald, killed on the busy highway 17 years ago. The girl was killed last Monday.

"Both my son and the girl were killed within 30 feet of that sign," she said, indicating the sign she had had erected. "I've seen three children killed and one crippled for life along this section of the highway."

As the evening rush-hour approached, the women blocked the road.

Angry drivers hurled taunts at the women as they were forced to stop. But the honking of horns didn't move the pickets.

As soon as the children from a nearby school had passed along the roadway, the women allowed traffic through in a single lane on the 11-foot-wide road.

Police threatened the women with arrest for obstruction of traffic, and they left the road to gather at the nearby Soulliere home.

Talks End Early, Avoiding Split On U.S. Policies

LONDON (AP)—Foreign ministers of the North Atlantic Treaty Organization headed home a day early today after averting an open split over United States action in Viet Nam and the Dominican Republic.

In a communique issued Wednesday night at the end of their annual spring meeting, the 15 NATO allies agreed that "grave threats have arisen to international security and peace" in Viet Nam, the Dominican Republic, Malaysia and most African nations.

In the same paragraph they expressed the right of all peoples to live in peace under governments of their own free choice."

The statement represented a compromise between U.S. insistence on endorsement of its policies in Viet Nam and the Dominican Republic and French disapproval of those policies. U.S. State Secretary Dean Rusk flew in London Tuesday to get the American case before the allied ministers at a closed-door session.

Rusk insisted on the passage defining the Viet Nam war as in essence the world peace. French Foreign Minister Maurice Couve de Murville demanded inclusion of the second passage to reflect President de Gaulle's view that all peoples, including the Vietnamese, should be allowed to settle their own future.

Rusk told the ministers that the United States was ready to enter peace talks on Viet Nam with the Communist nations, but noted that neither North Viet Nam nor Red China showed any inclination for such talks.

Couve de Murville made clear that France's policy of Communist victory in Viet Nam. But he repeated France's contention that unconditional peace negotiations should start at once and that U.S. forces must eventually get out of Viet Nam. He also implied that U.S. air strikes against North Viet Nam should cease.

Informants said France's stand won no support from

Rough Day For Senate

By PAUL DUNN

OTTAWA (CP)—For the Senate, it was another rough day in the Commons.

There were suggestions that the upper chamber, where members have been appointed for life, be abolished.

And a New Democratic Party MP said that if some kind of reward must be kept for loyal servants who no longer have political usefulness, then copy the French Legion of honor or the French Academy.

The proposal for adoption France's method of honoring public servants put forward Wednesday by Colin Cameron (NDP-Nanaimo-Cowichan-The Islands) while the Commons debated a government bill to set a retirement age of 75 for future Senate appointees — they now are appointed for life — and establish an $8,000 annual pension for any retired senator.

Current senators could continue to serve or retire with the pension.

SUGGESTS NEW BODY

If the prime minister needs a way to reward political supporters, Mr. Cameron suggested, he should set up some other body, "a sort of Legion of Honor with a handsome pension attached to it, to which persons considered suitable could be retired."

Gerald A. Regan (L — Halifax) said the remedy for the New Democratic Party that recent governments have appointed senators who had served in political life.

He said one NDP speaker had the "audacity" to suggest that a man like Eugene Forsey (research director of the Canadian Labor Congress) should be appointed to the Senate." Dr. Forsey had been "spurned again and again" by the party.

When Social Credit Leader Robert Thompson tried to enter the debate, Mr. Regan wondered "if he would accept a Senate seat if he were offered

THE WEATHER

Synopsis: It will be considerably milder in the Lake Superior tonight as cloud and showers move in with a weak storm currently emerging from the Prairies but the influence of the cold high pressure cell on eastern Ontario could lead to ground frost Friday morning.

In lower lakes tonight it will be a mostly cloudy night with slightly below normal temperatures in the lower 60s which will be about 10 degrees cooler than Wednesday. Some cloudiness is anticipated Friday as high pressure influences weaken but with a warming trend under way by that time it should be a fine spring day.

SAYS REBELS WILL NOT NEGOTIATE — Dr. Antonio Rosario, an appointee of the Dominican Republic rebel government headed by Col. Francisco Caamano, holds a news conference in Washington. Rosario, holding a statement which he says entitles him to be the rebels' designated ambassador to the Organization of American States, said he sees no possibility that the rebel forces will negotiate with the civilian-military junta regime in the Dominican Republic. The OAS has refused to seal Rosaria — Dr. Jose Antonio Bonilla is now the recognized ambassador from that country. (AP Wirephoto)

Dominican Rebels' Spokesman Voices Hope Settlement Near

From AP-Reuters

SANTO DOMINGO (CP)—A spokesman for the Dominican rebels indicated Wednesday that a settlement with the rival military junta may be near. But he held out for dismissal of some leading military men backing the junta.

"There's every reason to hope we are near a settlement," said Col. Caamano Deno, 34, Junta Coup Leader Joltin Cury. He spoke after a conference between Col. Francisco Caamano Deno, the rebel leader, and two members of the peace commission of the Organization of American States, Ricardo C. Colombo of Argentina and Carlos Garcia Bauer of Guatemala.

Cury added that a peaceful solution depends on the dismissal of some key officers backing the junta. The rebels' chief target is Brig-Gen. Elias Wessin y Wessin, who led the resistance to the revolt.

Latin American diplomatic circles in Washington reported a broadly based interim government embracing both government and rebel leaders may be in sight. But Cury, speaking to reporters, ruled out a coalition government.

Cury said the junta has no legality or popular support "except that extended by the U.S. military."

Caamano, meanwhile, told a press conference he would ask OAS permission to establish a corridor through the U.S. lines surrounding the rebel stronghold in downtown Santo Domingo.

U.S. marines and paratroopers encircled the downtown area last week, and many armed rebels were cut off in northern sections of the city.

Caamano said he would go to the OAS with charges that U.S. paratroopers were sniping at from vantage points across the Ozama River. He said one sniper-shot victim was Judge

Dismantle City Hall Clock To Make Necessary Repairs

Commencing Saturday or possibly on Monday, Belleville is going to be temporarily without an official timepiece.

This is the fate that the old city hall clock which frequently of late has taken a bit fourhanded about halting the time, is going to be dismantled for repairs.

City workmen have already taken out much of the wooden casing behind the clock facing and when this is completed clock custodian Gerry O'Connor will commence dismantling the clock's "works" to determine which parts need replacing.

Council this week authorized an expenditure of up to $1,000 for repairs to the old clock but this figure is merely a guess.

"It is pretty difficult to say what the cost of repairs will be until worn parts are determined," stated city purchasing agent W. L. Joiner.

Mr. Harrison is known just how long the city hall clock will be out of operation since replacement parts for the old mill have to be more or less custom made.

However when the job is completed Mr. O'Connor feels that the clock should keep good city hall time for many hundred, last for many more years.

The old city hall clock will have new parts but the method of operation will remain the same.

Someone will still have to climb the clock tower twice weekly to wind up the box or more weight which keeps the works in motion.

It seems the hand cranking operation is the most reliable.

Some years ago an attempt was made to modernize the old clock by installing an electric motor to raise the big weight but the idea wasn't too successful.

Something went wrong with the mechanism and the big weight crashed down almost wrecking the city hall tower.

Faraday Will Diamond-drill More Property

TORONTO (CP) — Canadian Faraday Corp. Ltd. will diamond-drill some of the unexplored parts of its uranium property at Bancroft, Ont., this year to build up reserves for future markets, President A. W. Johnston said Wednesday.

He told the annual meeting it would probably be 1970 before uranium prices recover sufficiently to allow economic operation of mine production.

Mr. Johnston said Canadian Faraday is studying methods to increase the daily mill capacity of its nickel - copper operation at Gordon Lake, Ont., to between 750 and 800 tons daily from 500 now.

Gordon Lake has produced a profit of $90,000 a month during March and April, but it is expected to decline to $75,000 a month, he said.

Underground drilling has indicated ore in a new section of the mine but it is too early to determine tonnage and grade, Mr. Johnston said.

'Music Night' At Quinte School Enjoyed

Last evening a large amount were on hand at the first annual presentation of "Music Night" at Quinte Secondary School, as sponsored by the Senior Concert Band of that school. The Junior Band opened the program with a few selections, which were enjoyed by the audience. Quite well played, when it is considered that the band has only been organized a few months. This group is made up of about 30 students from Grades 9 and 10. The Glee Club of approximately 35 voices was formed last fall and has been doing consistently good work under the tutelage of its leader, Miss Jo Wallace. Their choice offerings were given last evening, attesting to the continued progress of this youthful band of voices.

The second half of the program was made up of eight selections of various types as presented by the fifty members Senior Concert Band under the direction of its regular leader, Doug Ashcroft. This group organization is composed of mostly grade 11 and 12 students, with a few others from the lower and higher classes. Their choice of pieces were varied and were played with a fine balance, even in the more lively works as exemplified in a few numbers in the slower sections.

For contrast in the program the well accompanied solo, "Lonelier College Street Sue", a short excursion into the field of Dixieland was played by Messrs. Bernal, Riddell, Chambers, Lake, Cherry and Beach. Doug Ascheroft's drumming lent the unscheduled appearance in his famous pantomimes of Sodre G. Stanton, G. Freeman and L. Lewis.

The bearers were Ted Pesta, O. O. Pilgrim, D. Pollard, George Greatrix, Ross Rummel and Clinton Vader.

Deluxe Camping Costs No More In Newest Park

Over the past few years camping has reached a peak in popularity, and many families are now seeking something extra in facilities, camp sites, entertainment, etc. For these campers, a brand new campground "a little better," Lavallee Tent and Trailer Park is the answer.

Situated on the lower Ferrady Road, Lavallee now offers more refinements and conveniences in one location than one is apt to find anywhere — yet one can still enjoy relaxed, informal camp life at its best. As in most good parks, one will find picnic tables, free fire wood, a safe sand beach, good fishing with bait and boats available, clean flush toilets and water and electrical connections for trailers, but — it is the EXTRA features which set this camp apart. For example:

A complete automatic laundry & coin operated shower; an excellent 9 hole par 3 golf course for recreation —and a modern steam bath. In fact, there's something for everyone, young and old, with regular dances and Saturday night dancing in the Community Hall, and picturesque nature trails through the abundant woods. The convenient store is well-stocked with groceries and sundries — eliminating troublesome trips to town.

With all these extras in comfort and convenience, camping rates are still comparable with parks offering much less—just $1.50 per day for tents and $2.00 per day for trailers with NO annual $5.00 fee to pay.

Lavallee Park is 68 miles from Belleville, just north of Consecon on the lower Ferrady Road, and only 11 miles from Bancroft. It opens for the summer on the 24th of May weekend, so drive in and see for yourself just how luxurious camping can be. For a free brochure, write to Lavallee Tent Park, R. R. 2, Coe Hill, Ontario.

one? Methinks that dost protest too much." But he added Mr. Thompson would be a "worthwhile" member of the new chamber.

Mr. Cameron took issue with Mr. Regan's suggestion that NDP members be motivated by "envy and jealousy" because some of them "had not or is likely to be appointed to the Senate."

WOULDN'T WANT JOB

His reason for opposing the Senate was "not because I have not been offered a job there, because I would not want it."

He did not see why "what purports to be a legislative body should be supposed to carry out totally different functions." The public should not be deluded nor should members pretend that the Senate bill is "really a reform or that it will really make much difference.

"Even if every senator who is over 75 years of age were to retire on his $8,000 pension there will no doubt shortly be 75 appointed to fill it and then the Senate would remain just as it is today."

The only answer for the Senate, said Mr. Cameron, is the NDP proposal to abolish it. As it stands it is "an affront to democracy."

Conservatives Expect Big Election Gains

LONDON (Reuters) — The Conservative party is expecting big gains when voting in British's week - long round of municipal elections reaches its climax today.

The party today claimed net gains of 75 seats on most of the seats when councils are already contested. The Conservatives' figures covered 237 of 160 urban councils that voted Monday and Tuesday.

The party expects the swing towards the Conservatives, opposition party in Britain's Parliament, to continue when 258 bigger councils poll today.

The outcome of this voting—for 81 county boroughs and 275 smaller municipal boroughs will give the first real guide to political shifts in Britain since the Labor party narrowly won last October's general election.

Institutions, introduced a bill to enable two or more adjacent counties to build joint jails.

The provincial government will pay 50 per cent of the cost of a regional jail where two or more counties take part in its construction.

EXPECTS START

Mr. Grossman said that during the next year he expects to see work start on three such jails, involving co-operation between 10 counties.

Agriculture Minister William Stewart introduced a bill granting officials of farm products marketing boards protection from any legal proceedings against their arising out of actions taken in good faith by the boards.

The bill would exempt board members, officers, clerks or employees from personal liability in connection with actions of the boards.

James Renwick (NDP — Toronto Riverdale) introduced a bill which would in effect prevent judges from issuing ex-parte injunctions in labor disputes but observers expect that the bill will die on the order paper without being called for debate.

WANTS NOTICE

Mr. Renwick's proposal is that in injunction proceedings the respondent be given at least six hours' notice of an application to a court for an injunction.

An ex-parte injunction is one granted after hearing only one side in a dispute. Labor unions have protested the granting of ex-parte injunctions in labor disputes on the ground it helps picketing or limiting the number of pickets.

Mr. Renwick also suggested that Attorney - General Arthur Wishart consider legislation giving magistrates and judges the power to order the destruction of fingerprint records in cases where persons have been arrested and fingerprinted but later has been found innocent.

Mr. Wishart said he believes that fingerprint records are sometimes destroyed when an acquitted person upon request.

Students Hear Of South Africa From Native

TRENTON — Peter Held, a native of South Africa, and a resident of Canada for the past four years, was the audience of high school students in the assembly hall of Trenton school literally enthralled for more than an hour Wednesday morning, when he spoke of present day conditions in his native land. Mr. Held came to Trenton as a chartered accountant with the firm of James Durwoody, and has since entered into the community life of Trenton, being a member of the Trenton Country Club and the Trenton Kiwanis Club.

Mr. Held told the students life for the negroes in South Africa was not as hard as it is said to be in some newspapers in Canada. In fact, he said the negroes were "looked after" very well indeed, and better than in most of the new nationalistic states. Some of the natives from the new states were getting across the border into South Africa, evidently preferring the life there to that in their own countries.

"Much of the criticism levelled at South Africa is more destructive than constructive," said Mr. Held.

Mr. Held told the students of the hardships of his country, particularly in and around Johannesburg, where he was brought up and attended university.

Following his address, the students kept Mr. Held busy for almost an hour asking questions about South Africa.

Ron Fralick Fractures Ankle In Car Crash

Ron Fralick, 7 Linton Park, Belleville, was admitted to Belleville General Hospital last evening following an accident on No. 2 highway near the golf course.

The Belleville man was on his way home from work at Trenton when his car was apparently crowded by another vehicle as it passed him.

The car was badly damaged as it went into the ditch and Mr. Fralick's ankle was broken in two places. He was taken to hospital by City Ambulance.

Wishart Denies Police Acted Improperly

TORONTO (CP) — Attorney-General Arthur Wishart denied Wednesday that provincial police acted improperly when they secretly recorded a conversation between a youth accused of capital murder and a friend who visited him in a Sturgeon Falls jail cell.

Vernon Singer, Liberal member for Toronto Downsview, raised the matter in the legislature Monday.

Mr. Wishart said in an interview there was no secret wiretapping but merely a tape-recording of the conversation between Maurice Devost, 16, of Cache Bay, and a 15-year-old friend.

"It would be intolerable for any kind of eavesdropping of a conversation between a lawyer and a client to take place," Mr. Wishart said. (Mr. Singer contended the recording was made of a conversation between Devost and his counsel.)

TRIED TO LISTEN

"This was an attempt, in a very serious murder charge, to listen in between a suspect and a visitor who was believed implicated," Mr. Wishart said. "The policeman operating the recorder was concealed by a partition, he said.

Devost pleaded guilty to manslaughter in the death last Nov. 29 of Mrs. Alderic Lavergne, 69, in Cache Bay. He was sentenced April 14 to 13 years in penitentiary.

Mr. Wishart said the tape recording of the conversation between Devost and his friend was submitted as evidence, but the quality of the recording was so poor that the youth's words could not be made out.

Although their husbands finished down in the list during the season, Mrs. June Dymock and Mrs. Isobel Catton were top scorers in the bridge tournament that followed the banquet. Company Is Responsible For Cobalt Stockpile-Drury DELORO (Staff) — Police continue to seek new leads today in the $650,000 pilfering of a government cobalt stockpile — as the theft became a prime political issue.

Responsibility for the stockpile's security was directly pinned on Deloro Smelting and Refining Company yesterday by Industry Minister Drury.

Mr. Drury said the company on whose former mining property the cobalt had been stored since 1958 sends the government quarterly inventory reports on the material held in storage. The last statement said Mr. Drury was sent April 1 — and showed nothing missing.

The theft was discovered early last week after the government decided to release the cobalt — enough to supply the Canadian market for five years.

Police have been probing the theft since Tuesday.

Inspector Albert Duguid, of the provincial police Criminal Investigation Branch, discounted reports that investigators were baffled.

"After we've had a chance to look into the matter to see where we stand, we'll be able to say whether we're baffled or not," he retorted to questions today.

The cobalt in pelletized form, was stored in 268 barrels. Only 29 barrels were found completely intact when the theft was revealed.

NAMED TO COMMISSION

OTTAWA (CP) — Morris C. Hay, 56, of Oakville has been appointed to a five-year term on the three - member Unemployment Insurance Commission. Labor Minister MacEachen announced Wednesday. Consumer Price Indexes Rose During March

OTTAWA (CP) — Consumer price indexes rose during March in eight of the 103 regional cities for which the bureau of statistics computes separate indexes, the bureau reported Wednesday.

The index remained unchanged in St. John's, Nfld., and fell in Vancouver. It rose in Halifax, Saint John, N.B., Montreal, Ottawa, Toronto, Winnipeg, Saskatoon - Regina, and Edmonton - Calgary.

Indexes for April, with March indexes in brackets, were: St. John's, based on June, 1951, equalling 100, 122.7 (122.7); Halifax 123.5 (123.0); Saint John 136.1 (135.9); Montreal 136.8 (136.4); Ottawa 137.3 (137.2); Toronto 138.9 (138.6); Winnipeg 134.6 (134.7); Saskatoon-Regina 131.1 (130.8); Edmonton - Calgary 128.9 (128.8); Vancouver 134.5 (134.8).

Driver Given Seven Days

A 49-year-old Belleville man with a record of driving offences today was hailed before Magistrate T. Y. Wills on three more counts.

Albert John Moore was given seven days for driving while disqualified after an impaired driving count was dropped and a second illegal driving charge withdrawn.

The magistrate sentenced him after Kingston lawyer T. R. Wilcox pleaded that, despite Moore's record, the punishment "should have some bearing on reforming the individual" as well as protection the public.

"However, the magistrate warned, "If I get him again I will certainly remember this."

A Long Walk

In Kingston 200 high school students staged a boycott of the city bus system. They walked six miles to school.

Six miles is a long way.

There are still some parents of school-age children who are able to scoff at complaints about long walks by relating how they trudged a mile or more to school, snow, rain or shine.

But that walk, held up as an example of youthful endurance in the good old days, was just one-sixth of that the Kingston students had to make—and they usually travel this distance not in special school buses but by the regular city bus service, paying students' fares, recently raised to four tickets, or a two-day supply, for fifty cents.

Most of the members of the older generation, when they were younger, used to roam all over the city, and out into the country, on bicycles. If the bicycle-owning youngsters today do not follow the same routine, it could be because the city is so much larger. We recall that even in those good old days, a six-mile ride to the nearest beach was considered a little arduous.

One reason why today's youngsters sometimes complain about distances they have to cover is because these distances are really long —as their parents would find out if they got out of their cars.

The habitual car-rider will find that going afoot provides surprises of two types. The first surprise is pleasant and interesting—he or she sees so much more than when driving. The second surprise is, also, interesting, but not so pleasant. Those blocks are much longer than they appear when covered by car.

Paradoxically enough, it is farther between the places we habitually go, between home and school, church, place of work and friends' homes, than was the case fifty years or so ago, when our population was much smaller. We have increased our range, but have not noticed it because most of us have acquired a faster means of transportation than shank's mare.

Joke Proves Costly

An April Fool's joke has proven costly for two Peterborough youths.

They have each been fined $50 and costs for causing a disturbance in a public place.

The "disturbance" consisted of taking a stabbing as realistically that the "victim" was taken to hospital and was being treated by three doctors before one of them, ripping open the patient's undershirt, saw "April Fool" smeared on the youth's chest — in cranberry sauce or tomato juice.

There will be many who will say the two jokers got no more than they deserved. They inconvenienced many people, some of whom may have had urgent duties elsewhere. A false alarm which ties up the services of police, ambulances and hospital facilities could easily be as damaging as a false fire alarm.

Yet, when all this is said, one cannot help but have sympathy for the viewpoint of the youths' defence counsel, Frank Power, who felt that the case showed that Canadians have a poor sense of humor. In Europe, he said, April 1 is a day of hoaxes — and one must admit that it was a magnificent hoax which was perpetrated. The look on the face of that doctor when he read "April Fool" on the patient's chest would probably rank with any of the best shots on "Candid Camera."

In a sense the trouble is that the youths were not charged with the proper offence. Almost anybody could have forgiven them for the disturbance which they caused in public. While public order must be maintained, there is no reason why this should mean that our streets should be kept deadly dull, with nothing happening. The difficulty was that the joke was carried too far. Not the disturbance in the public street, but the inconvenience at the hospital was the jokesters' real offence.

A Matter of Price

Tuesday morning, when the Toronto Globe and Mail reported the theft of some 150 tons of refined cobalt from Deloro, the market price was quoted at $2.16 a pound.

Tuesday evening the Toronto Star gave the price as $1.75 a pound.

The result of the trade learning that somewhere there were 300,000 pounds of refined cobalt looking for a market?

Ottawa Offbeat

Financial Joy or Pain May Be Produced by Future Taxes

By RICHARD JACKSON
From The Intelligencer's Ottawa Bureau

OTTAWA — So this Budget gave us a 10 percent cut in personal income tax.

It sounds like a big wheeling deal.

And as tax percentages go, that is what it is.

But in hard cash terms, when shaved, monthly or weekly from a salary for deduction, that 10 percent is not nearly as impressive as it sounds.

Next year, though, or the years after, it could be 15 or 20 or 25 percent or even more—up or down—and then we will notice it, in financial joy or pain.

For clearly, Finance Minister Gordon has forecast that when the economy requires it, there will be even bigger cuts — or increases — than the current 10 percent.

Speaking of the tax cut, he put it this way:

"I would not expect the provincial governments to raise their income taxes to take advantage of the cut we have made.

"If we in Parliament are to manage the nation's economy properly, we must take this kind of action from time to time putting taxes both up and down.

"And the larger the share the provinces and municipalities take of the country's total public tax revenues, the larger must be the proportionate changes in Federal rates necessary to achieve the objectives of national fiscal management."

This, simply put, means that the more the Federal share of taxes shrinks, the wider must be the shifting — up and down — in the rates to have the impact the Federal Finance Minister says is essential to control or at least influence the national economy.

And, just what has been happening for the last 10 years.

The hard money fact of the tax matter is that the Federal cities of the national revenue pie has been getting smaller and smaller, with both the provinces and their partially dependent municipalities cutting themselves bigger slices.

Federal taxes last year ran to 14.9 percent of the national income, compared with 15.3 percent in 1960 and 16 percent in '58.

And here, where the national income or Gross National Product, as the experts like to call it, is hitting an annual $37 billion — yes, spell that billion — one percent, even a half percent makes a difference and a big one.

In that same nine-year span, the provincial and municipal tax share of the national income expanded even more rapidly than the Federal contract-ed.

Up, up, up it went from 4.6 percent in 1952, to 5.7 percent in '60 and 11 percent last year.

Of total provincial revenues, all tax sources last year — a huge $14,900,000,000 collection — the Federal government held the short end of the stick with $8,900,000,000 or 47 percent while the provinces and municipalities hung onto $7,700,000,000 or 53 percent.

The cities and provinces are not only collecting more but spending more than the Federal Government.

Last year Parliament Hill got its $6,900,000,000 and spent a bit more than $6,500,000,000, ending up with an almost-miraculous national accounts surplus of $238,000,000.

At the same time the Legislatures and City Halls were raising their $7,700,000,000, spent more than $8,000,000,000 and went $950,000,000 in the red.

So it is clear from both the collecting and spending figures that the Legislatures and City Halls are wheeling and dealing at a much faster rate than Parliament Hill.

The totals reflect the change in national thinking on the priorities and responsibilities of the three levels of Government.

City Halls and the Legislatures are the biggest spenders and getting proportionately bigger all the time because the emphasis of public demand is on education, highways and local services, none of them Parliament Hill responsibilities.

Only a dramatic switch in public demands on Government, or a major depression — remember back in the thirty Thirties when cities and provinces, desperate, were pleading with the Federal Government to take full charge? — some unthinkable national disaster, or war could reverse priority of the revenue dollar to Parliament Hill.

This being so, warns the Finance Minister, be prepared for bigger-than-10-percent swings in Federal rates if you want to see the National Government still able to control or even influence the nation's economy.

Imagine the joy of a 25 percent cut in income tax — or the horror of a 30 percent increase!

LOOKING BACKWARDS

GLEANINGS FROM OUR FYLES OF BYGONE YEARS

20 YEARS AGO

May 12th, 1945

Local organizations, lodges, churches, etc., repeatedly have run up against the problem of conflicting dates when making arrangements for holding public events, concerts, or other forms of entertainment with the result that the attendance was small, and instead of making their ventures profitable from a monetary standpoint they have had to face a deficit.

This sort of thing might quite easily be avoided. It has been suggested that the Board of Trade or city hall officials might keep a register of dates on which various forms of entertainment are to be held, where they would be available to all well in advance and thus there would be an avoidance of conflicting dates with more satisfactory results to all concerned.

Christ Church is now celebrating its 70th anniversary and for three Sundays the last three rectors of the parish will in turn be the special preachers. Last Sunday, Archdeacon Ven. R. C. Macgwire, D.D., rector of St. John's Church, Peterborough, who came to this parish in 1905 and remained for 12 and a half years, was the first of the former rectors to visit the parish. Next Sunday the Rev. C. E. Cragg, B.A., rector of St. Michael and All Angels' Church in Toronto, will be the special preacher; and the next Sunday the Rev. Rural Dean G. Swayze of Marmion will visit the parish; and it is expected that the Bishop, The Rt. Rev. John Lyons will close the anniversary at the evening service. The first Christ Church, which was a rough - cast building, was opened for service in 1861. It was situated on Metcalfe Street West, not far from the Upper Bridge. This Church was burned down fire in 1881 and as a result the present church was built on Colman Street in the north end of the city.

Why Woman Makes Friend Of a Man

By SYDNEY J. HARRIS

Purely Personal Prejudices: Most men complain the wrong verb throughout their lives — they should be busy working on the verb "to be," when they are totally absorbed in the verb "to have."

Beatificacies are habituated with the past, and radicals with the future; both are too ready to sacrifice the present, the immediate, the personal, for the abstractions of yesterday and tomorrow; and, thus, they are closer to one another than they recognize.

A woman makes a friend out of a man only after she has carefully ascertained that he is of no possible interest as a lover.

Before beginning any debate, it is worth recalling Alain's reminder that: "We prove what we want to prove; the real difficulty lies in knowing what we want to prove."

The most common verbal redundancy, after "consensus of opinion," is the phrase "taps of the neck" — for the word "nape" means "back of the neck."

The great tie that binds us to the dead is not their fidelity or their charm or anything else but the fact that they are not critical of us.

There is probably no greater organizational farce in America today than the typical medical examination for life insurance, which is at least 30 years behind the facts.

Knowledge as an end in itself has contributed immeasurably to man's advance; but action as an end in itself — and all action tends to become its own end — has generated most of the miseries of mankind.

The principal difference between the righteous and the self-righteous person is that the former doesn't consider himself righteous; while the latter doesn't consider anyone else so. Both the healthy and the neurotic get great enjoy part of the truth and mistake it for the whole truth; as Chesterton so admirably put it: "The man who cannot believe his senses, and the man who cannot believe anything else, are both insane."

The difference between "sentimentality" and sentiment is that sentiment is the jam on the bread, while sentimentality is jam without any bread at all.

As long as great criminals go free, small criminals will not want to grow better, but only to grow bigger.

Tens of millions diet, while tens of millions starve; there must be a better way to arrange the relationship between stomachs and food.

Symptoms of Appendicitis Often Caused by Ileitis

By JOSEPH G. MOLNER, M.D.

Dear Sir: Two of my three children had what was diagnosed as ileitis between the ages of one and two years. One is now busy, and the other is being treated.

I only vaguely understand the disease and would like to hear it described in layman's words. What causes it? Is it hereditary? Are X-rays needed? — Mrs. D. H.

The ileum is a portion of the small bowel which attaches to the colon in the lower right quarter of the abdomen.

If the ileum becomes inflamed — Hello! Since as a rule only a small segment of the ileum is involved, the term regional ileitis is often used.

Ileitis is rarely due to a specific germ: I doubt that we can ever find the germ in such cases. It's a question of what may have inflamed that part of the intestine. It is not an hereditary condition.

Ileitis is most common among very young children. Your doctor may have noted something which may have led to the irritating factor in your youngsters. Ask him. And again, it may be completely not detectable.

The usual treatment embraces the use of suitable antibiotics to control bacteria, along with a bland low residue diet to avoid physical irritation of the inflamed area.

Since the trouble is in the lower right quarter of the abdomen, appendicitis is often suspected. In young children, there rather often can be enlargement of glands located around the bowel. This can produce pain or fever, and simulate appendicitis or ileitis. Such glandular involvement can be part of a generalized infection.

X-ray is generally necessary, along with other tests, to confirm a diagnosis of ileitis. Some of the tests are designed to eliminate other possibilities. That's true of a few other medical problems: When you are sure of what some problem isn't, it narrows the problem of diagnosing exactly what it is.

Dear Dr. Molner: What is a nasal polyp? If surgery is necessary, is there any danger if it is delayed? — Mrs. S.

A polyp is a somewhat mushroom - shaped growth from a mucuous surface. The nose is one such surface where polyps are fairly common.

The principal harm is that such a growth interferes with breathing and/or drainage. In the latter case, depending on the location, a polyp may interfere with drainage of the sinuses and thus contribute to sinus trouble.

Since a polyp in the nose rarely if ever proves to be malignant, the danger from delaying removal consists of a continuation of whatever trouble it may be causing. Removal is a relatively simple process, usually done in the doctor's office instead of requiring hospitalization.

Dear Dr. Molner: Is there any way of restoring the color from a brown mole? Something like a freckle cream, maybe? — R. B.

No, there's no way to do it, short of removing the mole itself. That, however, is not very difficult for your doctor to do. If it is in a place that shows, have a plastic surgeon do a dermabrasion to leave little if any scar. As to freckle creams, I don't know of any that really remove freckles.

Lawrence of Arabia fell from his motorcycle at high speed 30 years ago today— in 1935—and died a short time later. He first went to the Middle East in 1910, aged 22, to study archeology. After Turkey joined the Central Powers in the First World War, Lawrence helped set up the Arab Bureau and, in 1916, helped organize the successful Arab revolt in Arabia and Palestine, which ended with the capture of Damascus a few hours before British troops arrived. Says Rural Roads Have Adequate Signs

Editor,
Ontario Intelligencer.

Would you please take off your pretty-your spec and do some travelling about our county.

You will see at the end of each concession road the name of the township and number of concession.

There are numerous signs along highways and township roads giving direction and mileage to adjoining centres, fishing and golf villages, towns, lakes and even farm names.

We are proud of our county, our rural areas, so please, "Mrs. Newcomer," mine stoothe look around you, we are beautiful spaces ahead of some.

Bad Homes Breed Great

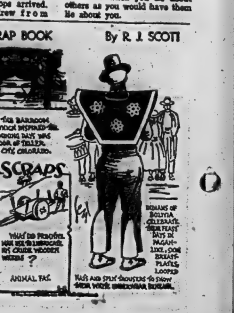
Vancouver Sun

It's no big note for the California Academy of Sciences psychologist team of Victor and Mildred Goertzel to tell us that unhappy homes produce almost all of our famous people.

A quotation or two ago the Sun had the fact that 400 men of the century were miserable as children might have prevented paranoia in the unsteady fools of themselves and beholders of their children.

We might have saved us, try, anyway, at being abusive, weak, drunken or surly if such behavior around the family would produce as the Goertzels show us in their study of childhoods of men of distinction. At least a William Lyon Mackenzie King or a Stephen Leacock.

Instead we blended in other psychologists, put on a happy face, been decent mothers and Little League coaches and, as the Goertzels demonstrate, produced a bunch of nice kids instead of a Caruso, a Chaplin, a Joyce, a Stalin or an Adolf Hitler.



Some days, as they're probably saying now around the child placement services, you just can't win.

R. W. Carleton To Head New Bell Region

R. W. Carleton has been appointed Bell Telephone manager for the newly designated Trenton-Picton region - which will take in Wellington, Bloomfield and Brighton - with headquarters in Trenton.

In making the announcement, S. G. Dale, St. Lawrence District Manager, cited the growing importance of this section and the need for closer identification as the reasons for this appointment. An office for payment of accounts and transaction of other business matters will also be opened sometime in June.

"Decision to locate the headquarters in Trenton is due primarily to the fact that the Company has vacant premises there, ready for immediate occupancy," said Mr. Dale.

Mr. Carleton has been with the Bell since 1941, except for the period he served with the Canadian Armed Forces during the Second World War. On his return to civilian life, he rejoined the Company in the plant department in Picton. He has also worked in Madoc, and for the past two years has been located in Belleville.

An active community worker, Mr. Carleton is the president of Cobi.

He will assume his new duties Belleville-Quinte Rtwnds1 ter as manager in Trenton when the office opens in June.

it hard for them to stop now."

Using colored slides — one showing a vivid photograph of a section of inflamed and cancerous lung — and a wide assortment of medical statistics, Dr. Dalarue lectured the tear-jerker for nearly two hours. Here are some of his facts he urged them to consider:

More people die in North America every year from smoking than in traffic accidents. Doctors believe as many as 250,000 people injury by 1970 every year from lung cancer.

Out of every 100 persons who go long cancer from smoking cigarettes, only five will be cured. The rest will die.

The death rate for smokers is 30 to 35 times higher than that of non-smokers.

If they continue their present smoking habits, 1,000,000 North American men - ages will die before age 70.

SAYS PROPAGANDA USED

Although Dr. Delarue said he did not believe restrictive legislation governing the sale and advertisement of cigarettes is necessary, he said the tobacco industry has resorted to "mass hoaxing propaganda" to sell cigarettes.

He also showed slides of magazine ads for leading cigarette brands which he said tended to glorify cancer and of a socially acceptable habit.

The slides showed handsome men and beautiful women in bathing suits smoking, or party and beach scenes at which everyone was smoking.

Dr. Delarue also charged that the tobacco smoking habit decreased in North America "the tobacco industry is making every attempt to hide its losses."

Today the students were to get their chance to discuss the smoking problem and what should be done about it. The conference session was to be entirely taken up by the young people, except for one speech from Mr. Emerson Morgan, chief psychologist of the Montreal Association for Retarded Children who is now research centre, on "The psychology of the smoker."

OPENS CONFERENCE

Health Minister Judy LaMarsh officially opened the three-day conference Wednesday night. It has been organized by the federal health department, the 95 Sexagon participating have been chosen by provincial health and education departments.

Miss LaMarsh said she would not cave if present adult cigarette smokers go on smoking, as long as the country's young people will either not take up the habit or drop it immediately.

Miss LaMarsh said health authorities in many Western countries are anxiously awaiting the results of the conference.

"Several health ministers from foreign countries will be coming here later this year and they won't know all about your discussions. Some of them have delayed their visits so they can hear about the conference."

An unusually large attendance of dead fish in Bay Bay is being investigated by Lands and Forests officers.

The fish, some weighing up to ten pounds, include pickerel. They had not spawned.

Officials are puzzled by the glut of dead fish, and as yet can offer no explanation. Some dead pickerel have been reported in the Belleville area, too.

"We are investigating the situation," the Lands and Forests biologist in Tweed, Mr. R. E. Whitehall, said today. "There are fish there all right — and not just one species."

Mr. Whitehall emphasized he did not know what was contributing to the demise of the fish. "We have some men there and are looking into it."

He said the water was "still quite cold" and there was a considerable number of large pickerel. Some years ago a number of pickerel died from gill erosion, but that was in mid-summer. The Bay Bay silt-laden filters also in the fact that more than one species is involved.

Artificial Insemination May Be Grounds for Divorce Says Noted Criminologist

TORONTO (CP)—A criminologist said Wednesday artificial insemination by a donor other than a woman's husband may be grounds for divorce.

Prof. J. L. Edwards of the University of Toronto said at least one Ontario Supreme Court Justice considers such artificial breeding as adultery and therefore legal grounds for divorce in Ontario.

But Prof. Edwards told the Ontario Medical Association's annual meeting there is substantial legal opinion which says that such insemination is not grounds for divorce.

Dr. H. B. Cottam, supervising coroner for Ontario, said Criminal Code provisions for abortion should be extended to permit termination of pregnancy resulting from rape or incest.

He said perhaps a broader view should be taken of what constitutes "the physical and mental health" of a woman. Some doctors were afraid of breaching the law when they perform "therapeutic abortions."

URGES UNITY

Prof. Edwards said doctors and lawyers should unite in their stand on the medical, legal and ethical problems of abortion.

He said he believes the present Canadian law would make it possible for a doctor charged with performing an illegal abortion to defend himself successfully if he considered abortion necessary to save a mother's life.

Dr. M. M. Grumbach of Columbia University said the medical profession must be increasingly prepared to face the various issues over abortion as medical knowledge advances. It would become more frequently possible to tell before a child is born whether it had serious abnormalities.

Dr. Grumbach also warned Ontario doctors not to tell new parents what sex their child is until tests have been made.

One infant in 5,000 will have an abnormality in its internal or external sexual organs, Dr. Grumbach said, and this is a sufficient ratio to make visible identification of sex unreliable.

dilment of Vietnamese nationalism. It is to erode and discredit America's ability to prevent Chinese domination over all of Asia.

"In this they shall never succeed."

MANY FACES

Johnson began by saying "the war in Viet Nam has many faces"—the first being the face of armed conflict, terror and gunfire. In this connection, he said:

"The Communists in Viet Nam are slowly beginning to realize what they once scorned to believe: That we combine unlimited patience with unlimited resources in pursuit of an unwavering purpose."

"The president summed up his determination by saying, "We will not abandon our commitment to South Viet Nam."

The second face of the war, he said, is the quest for a political solution.

"We know, as our adversaries should also know, there is no purely military solution in sight for either side. We are ready for unconditional discussions.

"The third face of war in Viet Nam, is, at once, the most tragic and the most hopeful." It represents human need and the effort to develop the South Vietnamese economy.

"People must fight for something," he said. "The people of South Viet Nam must know that after the long,brutal journey through the dark tunnel of conflict there breaks the light of a happier life. Only if this is so can they be expected to sustain the enduring will for continued strife."

Emphasizing that phase of his thinking, Johnson devoted the bulk of his address to present projects and future proposals for helping South Viet Nam develop its economy and care for its people.

Once again the president suggested that the United States will extend its aid programs into Communist North Viet Nam once peace is achieved.

LONDON (AP) — The Queen will unveil Britain's memorial to John F. Kennedy Friday at historic Runnymede where 750 years ago the barons forced King John to sign the Magna Carta.

The memorial stands on hallowed ground. Britain's present-day personal and political freedoms are based on the Magna Carta.

MacMillan-controlled Mine Companies Sold Windfall Shares Short Inquiry Told

TORONTO (CP)—Companies controlled by George MacMillan, president of Windfall Oils and Mines Ltd., and his wife Viola, sold shares of Windfall short last July while the stock was soaring on the stock exchange, a royal commission was told Wednesday.

John Ricketts, a chartered accountant working for the commission, told the Windfall royal commission the MacMillan - controlled companies went short more than 425,000 shares of Windfall during July.

A short seller hopes that a stock will go down in price. He sells stock he doesn't own, hoping to buy it back at a lower price and make a profit.

The breakdown of the short sales by company and the percentage ownership by the MacMillans was:

1. Alamenda Ltd., 100-per-cent-owned, 134,200 shares at an average of $2.14 a share.

2. MacMillan Prospecting and Developing Ltd., 100-per-cent-owned, 186,800 shares at an average $1.87.

3. Vinor Malartic Mines, 59-per-cent-owned, 98,200 shares at an average $1.60.

4. Consolidated Golden Arrow Mines Ltd., 46-per-cent-owned, no figures given.

SOLD SHARES SHORT

However, in a statement to the Toronto Stock Exchange last September, the company said it sold 27,000 shares short for a profit of almost $300,000.

All the MacMillan - controlled companies bought stock at prices lower than those at which they sold, Mr. Ricketts said.

Mr. Ricketts repeated an earlier statement that the MacMillans made an estimated net profit of $1,455,828 from trading Windfall.

HAD 21 ACCOUNTS

He said Mrs. MacMillan, who did all the trading, operated 21 accounts through five stock brokers. She sold 953,100 shares at an average of $2.06 a share in July, 94 per cent of which was done in the week ending July 11.

Proceeds from the sales totalled $1,928,742.

Mr. Ricketts said the MacMillans held more than 1,000,000 shares of Windfall July 1 and still had more than 1,000,000 shares after the market collapsed.

WASHINGTON (AP) — Communications Satellite Corp. won exclusive but temporary authority Wednesday to own and operate three U.S. earth stations linking North America with communications satellites in space.

Others may get into the business soon with other stations.

The U.S. Federal Communications Commission, by a 5-2 vote, adopted what it calls an interim policy under which Comsat will assume sole responsibility for the design, construction and operation of a ground station in Andover, Me., and proposed stations in Washington state and Hawaii.

(Canada will operate a ground station at Mill Village, N.S., 20 miles southwest of Halifax. The station is expected to be operational on an experimental basis in the fall.

(Canadian Overseas Telecommunication Corp., a Crown corporation, represents Canada in the 43 - nation Comsat consortium. Canada is contributing $7,500,000 as its share of the $200,000,000 Comsat system cost.)

Feeling 'Low and Sick,' Needs Professional Help

DEAR DORIS — I am sure I am suspected of being a shop-lifter, something I know nothing about. I have a fault of being slow to make up my mind when buying. I probably give the impression I am going to walk away with something.

I tried to make an approach to someone who I thought was an official, but got nothing but rudeness. I know I need more push. I imagine the stores have a personal section where matters could be discussed; but I just seem to be so low and sick, I can't think. — FEEL FOOLISH.

DORIS CLARK

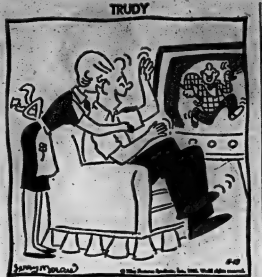
DEAR FEEL — If a clerk shows impudence over your slowness, that's one thing; if he seems to stare, are you sure he is not concerned over your "low and sick" appearance?

A talk with a counsellor could help straighten you out, and if you do feel ill — why not consult with your doctor? It IS your time of life, write in for the leaflet, "Facing Forty!" (Available to any reader for ten cents and a stamped, self-addressed envelope.)

* * *

(When writing in, allow Doris four weeks for private reply, which will be sent if a five-cent-stamped, self-addressed envelope is enclosed.)

Four Killed In Soo Mishap



SAULT STE. MARIE, Ont. (CP)—Three Sault Ste. Marie area residents and a man from Windsor were killed early today when two cars collided head-on on Highway 17 just north of the Sault.

Two Sault Ste. Marie residents, Delmer Bovington, 32, and his wife Joyce were in one car with Mrs. Bovington's brother, Cecil M. Archibald, 26, of Windsor. Their vehicle collided with one driven by Henry Montagne, 37, of nearby Batchawana Bay.

PREFERS UN AUSPICES

OTTAWA (CP)—Prime Minister Pearson said Wednesday Canada prefers to have international peace-keeping forces set up under United Nations auspices rather than under regional alliances. He was commenting in the Commons on the suggestion of George Ball, United States undersecretary of state, that a permanent inter-American peace-keeping force be established to deal with any crisis in the Western Hemisphere.

other NATO members, but Norway's Halvard Lange and others did express fear that escalation of the Viet Nam conflict might lead to war with China or Russia.

The meeting had been scheduled to last through today. It apparently ended early because the ministers realized they could come to no agreement. Another factor was the absence of discussions on ball-itary questions. They will come up at a meeting of the alliance's defence ministers in Paris May 21.

The communique endorsed a declaration calling for a new approach to the Soviet Union on the question of reuniting divided Germany.

It also welcomed the start of talks here between the Greek and Turkish foreign ministers. Stavros Kostopoulos and Hasan Ishik, in a search of a solution of the Cyprus crisis.

What Women Are Doing

St. Andrew's Women's Guild

Mrs. Robert Strachan, President

The Women's Guild of St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church was formed in 1937 when the Girls' Club and the Ladies' Aid amalgamated with Mrs. J. W. Kinmear the first president.

The guild is divided into seven groups, each group has its own officers and meets once a month, either at the church or in the home of one of the members. Each group has its own money - making project. One group specializes in quilt making and another in felt work and during the year suppers, luncheons and weddings are catered to. In the fall the annual bazaar is held.

Since the inception of the guild it has provided many necessities for the church, the choir and the Sunday School, such as carpeting the church, public address system, renovating the kitchen, banquet tables and chairs for the auditorium.

During the Second World War the guild was active in Red Cross work and many parcels were sent to the boys overseas.

Over the years at Christmas the shut-ins and elderly people of the church are remembered and other donations are given. Prizes and treats are given for the Sunday School picnic and Christmas party.

Assistance is given at the local cancer clinic and a member of the Guild is represented on the V.O.N.

Two members of the guild are appointed to the Board of Managers.

The guild meets the last Tuesday of each month in the S. S. auditorium and any ladies of the church would be welcome to come to the meetings.

Horticultural Society Forms Junior Section

Formation of a junior section and of a trillium award committee was announced at the May meeting of the Belleville Horticultural Society, held on Monday evening at Moira Secondary School.

Object of the junior section is to encourage the children of members and those sponsored by members to plant and tend small garden spots of their own. Youngsters between the ages of six and 13 are eligible to join the junior section on the payment of a fee of 25c. The society will give the children packets of flower seeds and later in the season will sponsor competitions in flower growing and posy making. Conveners of the junior section are Mr. and Mrs. H. R. Grainger, 30 Wright Avenue, from whom membership and information can be obtained.

PRIZE OFFERED

Mr. Enos David is chairman of the newly formed trillium award committee. The committee will award trillium lawn markers to owners of outstanding well landscaped and maintained properties, whose horticultural efforts have done the most to promote the "beautify Belleville" campaign. Anyone in the city can be nominated by his neighbors for a trillium award; entry in the competition is not limited to members of the society.

Guest speaker, Mr. G. R. Sale, eastern Ontario sales manager for a fertilizer company spoke on lawn culture. He advised local gardeners to delay re - seeding and top - dressing of lawns until August. Late summer insisted Mr. Sale is when one does spring seeding, and persists three cuttings of the grass before fall. For crab grass, Mr. Sale advocated pre - emergent killers and for sidewalk salt spilled on lawns during the winter he advised leaching with water or reseeding. Mr. Sales also stressed the fact on his firm's automatic sprinkler systems.

Mr. Wessman and Mrs. Bell were the two winners of the door gifts. Each received an 20 pound bag of lawn fertilizer donated by Mr. Sale's company.

The Camerons, Allan, Donnah and Donnah Junior, admire one of the 78 paintings they had on display at St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church last night. The display of Cameron paintings was sponsored by the church's Friendship Group. The paintings, in oils, linos and water colors, were all painted by the Camerons during the past year.

St. Andrew's Church Group Presents Exhibition of Paintings

On Wednesday evening, the Friendship Group of St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church sponsored a most interesting exhibition of paintings by Allan and Donnah Cameron and their daughters, Mairi Cameron Redmayr and 13-year-old Donnah Cameron Junior. The exhibition was held in the Sunday School room of the church.

Mr. Allan Cameron, a former art teacher of the night school classes at Belleville Collegiate as well as teaching private classes, became interested in painting at the age of six years, when he did "Copy of an Arab" in which his mother recognized great talent. He spoke with great pride of the accomplishments of some of his former pupils.

Mr. and Mrs. Cameron met while they were both attending High School in Owen Sound. They have four children, and they live in Prince Edward County, on the south shore of the Bay of Quinte. Many of their works are pictures of their home locality. All the work on display has been produced in the past year since their last show. Despite such profiferacy, they paint only when something of color or lighting strikes the proper mood, and the result is pleasing.

There were 78 works on display, done in several mediums, oils with brush, oils with a palette knife, water color and pen and ink with wash: Subjects included florals, still life, landscapes and seascapes, and abstract.

ARTISTS HONORED

During the evening the Camerons were honored by a visit from Mr. Ralph Allen, Head of the Art Department of the Etherington Art Centre, Queen's University, Mrs. Allen and a friend from London, England. Mr. Allen remarked that he enjoyed the show and was pleased that such great numbers of people displayed such great interest. He especially praised the picture, "Manitou Lake" done by Donnah Cameron Junior, the landscapes in oils by Mr. Cameron and the florals in Lino by Mrs. Cameron. Mrs. Cameron's water - colors of geraniums, daisies, thistle, iris and marigolds, as well as many other flowers, showed great mastery.

Of special interest to everyone was "Winter" by Donnah Cameron, which in its mellow treatment, evoked nostalgia for the fluffy white blanket of winter and early spring, even though everyone has been longing for the summer. "Beech Woods", an oil by Allan Cameron, elicited much admiration.

SERVE REFRESHMENTS

The Friendship Club, besides serving tea, coffee and dainty cakes to the guests, also offered an attractive table of homebaking for sale.

Mrs. N. Williamson and Mrs. C. Strachan were in charge of the tearoom and Mrs. H. McKeown and Mrs. I. Waldorf in charge of the home-baking table.

Mrs. George Durno, Mrs. McMillan, Mrs. Laurie Sutherland, Mrs. Norman Hutchinson, Mrs. Robert Strachan and Mrs. E. M. Shier presided at the tea table during the evening.

The door prize, an oil tilted "Crane in Bulrushes," was won by Miss McCreary of Bridge Street, East, Belleville.

SOCIAL and PERSONAL

Mrs. Philippe Faulkner is now exhibiting in the London, Ontario Art Gallery, in the Western Ontario exhibition. She also has three paintings with the Color and Form Society at Hart House in Toronto, and is teaching outdoor art classes in the city. She will hold an exhibition of her students' work at Corby Library in June.

Susanna's Family Fare

Hello! Here, Susanna girl, is a real stickler for you. Do you have any ideas for putting men's ties to use? There is so much pretty material left in them that it does seem a shame just to throw them away. — Isabel C. Bayham.

Not so much of a stickler my friend, if you had a grandmother like mine. I can remember her covering the seat of a Boston rocker and then making a beautiful lap throw with men's silk and brocade ties.

She alternated 2½ inch squares of tie material with the same size squares of colored velvet, sewed them together with a herringbone stitch and covered the whole back with a piece of flannel — other material will do. The edge was finished off with either velvet or with pieces from the ties.

Perhaps you have an ottoman you wish to cover, or the backs and seats of chairs — you can do it in a most unusual and sensational manner by using men's ties.

I have carefully written out the step by step instructions and have sent them to you today — in return I would adore your letting us in on one of your special hints or suggestions. Anyone else care to participate in this little game of give and take? I have plenty of copies of these fascinating handicraft instructions that I'll be delighted to give you in return for one of your special ideas — or even anything. Plenty of scope here: are you gal enough to meet the challenge?

FOREVER

Dear Susanna: At long last I have a lovely new gas range in my kitchen. I am determined to keep it gorgeous forever, so I went out of my way to learn how to take care of it. Would you readers like to hear some of the expert advice I received?

Keep removable parts clean by immersing them often in hot water and detergent, and use a sudsy cloth or sponge for cleaning the range porcelain itself when it is cool. Spills on the hot surface should be wiped up at once with a dry cloth or paper toweling.

Never use abrasives such as scouring powder or steel wool on white porcelain range top. It's grease spatters have burned on, rub dry baking soda on them with a damp cloth . . . and to keep the chrome shining, wipe it with a solution of one quarter cup vinegar to one cup of water. — "Determined".

MAY MAKE STATEMENT

ROME (Reuters)—Pope Paul is expected to issue soon a preliminary ruling on the Roman Catholic attitude to contraceptive pills, usually well informed sources said Wednesday. The pontiff, who has already stressed that he considers the question urgent because of "the anguish of many souls," is expected to make a public statement before his special commission on birth control holds its next plenary meeting here.

P. C. Women Sponsor Dessert Bridge

At St. Thomas' Parish Hall, on Wednesday afternoon, the ladies of Belleville attested to the popularity of last year's dessert bridge party sponsored by the Progressive Conservative Women's Association of this district. This was the second of the anticipated annual parties and more than 50 tables were in play.

Receiving at the door were Mrs. S. W. Howell, president of the Belleville Women's Conservative Association, Mrs. Lee Getlis and Mrs. Elsner Sandercock.

The dessert table, running almost the full length of the hall, centred by yellow 'mums and yellow tapers in crystal candlesticks, was a panorama of appetite stimulating and caloric beauty.

Convenor of the party was Mrs. G. Gibbons, assisted by Mrs. Eleanor Haggerty, Mrs. H. Yorke was the hostess at the table convener, Mrs. G. R. Dimeral convener of tickets, Mrs. J. McKenna, convener of the kitchen. Setting up desserts was done by Mrs. G. Locke, and Mrs. S. Mulholland looked after the prizes.

PRIZE WINNERS

Bridge winners were, first, Mrs. E. Sandercock; second, Mrs. R. Rabbitt; low, Mrs. W. Garrison, and hidden score, Mrs. Lois Fisher.

Winners of euchre prizes were: 1, Mrs. Eva Murphy; 2, Mrs. Nellie Rose; 3, Mrs. V. Brown and consolation, Mrs. Jessie Dodd.

Miss Kaye McFarland, provincial chairman of the Progressive Conservative Women's advisory committee, who could not arrive in time for lunch or bridge, assisted in the drawing of the door prizes. These were won by Mrs. E. Lenny, Mrs. H. McKay, Mrs. Vera Brown, Mrs. C. Musgrove, Mrs. M. Linton, Mrs. E. Jackman and Mrs. L. Hall.

Mrs. Haggerty graciously expressed thanks to the donors of the prizes, to the chairladies and their helpers, to all who in any way contributed to the success of the venture, to St. Thomas' Church for the use of the hall, and especially to all the ladies who came to enjoy the beautiful desserts and an afternoon of congenial fun.

RICE AND EGG CASSEROLE

Remember it tickled my fancy (and did not dip into my wallet — maybe that's why) to make this satisfying casserole that won praise from all. I had everything on hand and I think most of you will too, for the main ingredients are staple supplies.

Because it was assembled and ready to bake in advance, it was a great satisfaction when we returned from out-of-town at 3.30 p.m. and were sitting down to dinner at 6.30.

Dinner Menus

by Mary Moore

THURSDAY
(Canada)

Southern Fried Chicken; Cream Gravy; Popovers; Frenched Green Beans with Slivered Almonds; Sliced Tomatoes and Cucumbers with French Dressing; Lemon-Layered Angel Cake; Coffee.

SUNDAY

Tomato Bouillon with Croutons; Individual Turkey Pies (see Monday); Cranberry Jelly; Marinated Button Mushrooms and Sliced Green Peppers; Hard Rolls; Lemon Snow with Custard Sauce (see Tuesday); Tea.

HARD-COOKED EGG AND RICE CASSEROLE (Serves 5 or 6):

6 hard-cooked eggs, ¼ cup long-grain rice, ½ teaspoon salt, 1¼ cups boiling water, 2/3 cup Cheddar or process cheese, chopped (packed), 1/3 cups hot milk, 4 tablespoons butter, 3 tablespoons flour, ½ teaspoon mustard, ½ teaspoon salt, 6 slices problune side bacon.

Into a heavy saucepan put the rice, the ½ teaspoon salt and boiling water, bring to boil, cover and simmer 15 minutes then turn heat on as low as possible and cook for 25 minutes longer until rice has absorbed all water and is tender. To hard-cooks the eggs, put them in a saucepan, add cold water to cover, put on lid, bring to boiling point, remove from heat, let stand 4 or 5 minutes. Chill in cold water and peel. Cut each hard-cooked egg in half lengthwise. Spread cooked rice on bottom of large greased shallow casserole, arrange hard-cooked egg halves uniformly over top. Make sauce by adding the cheese to the milk and heating them together, but do not bring to boiling. Melt the butter, blend in flour, mustard and salt, then stir in the hot milk and cheese mixture until thick. Pour evenly over hard-cooked egg halves, coaxing some of it down between eggs and rice with a fork. Cut slice of bacon into 8 pieces and overlap these 48 pieces of bacon uniformly all over top. Bake at 450 deg. Fahr. with top burner turned on, for 30 minutes. Then top heat cooks and browns the bacon while the low burner heats the whole dish through until it bubbles.

We served this with a generous toasted salad mollicund with garlic French dressing.

NOTE:

After the bacon is arranged on top of casserole, you may refrigerate the whole business ready to put in the oven later.

WEDDINGS

WADDELL — FOOTE

Brenda Marlene Foote, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Donald F. Foote, and Robert Brierley Waddell, son of Mrs. Edith Waddell, all of Sudbury, were united in marriage on May 8 at Knox Presbyterian Church, Sudbury.

The Rev. W. McBride officiated before the altar decorated with baskets of mauve and carnations. Mrs. E. McBride played the wedding music and Mr. J. Davidson sang two solos during the ceremony.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore a floor length gown of nylon organza with chantilly lace jacket cascading into a chapel train. Her shoulder length veil was held with a tiara of rhinestones and pearls, and she carried a cascade bouquet of red roses.

The bride's sister, Mrs. Donald Wright, was matron of honor and the bridesmaids were Mrs. Stuart Sinclair, Miss Judy Thompson and Miss Brierley Bradshaw. All wore floor length Empire style gowns of blue nylon organza over taffeta with matching wedding band veils, and carried nosegays of pink carnations.

The flower girls, who were nieces of the bride, wore matching floor length dresses of white Swiss eyelet embroidery.

The bridegroom's mother wore a blue sheathed and lace dress with matching accessories and a corsage of red roses.

Cutting Hubby's Mustard Proves Costly Mistake

DEAR ANN LANDERS — I am not trying to pass myself off as a perfect wife, I have my faults the same as anyone else. But I am not simple-minded and I do have my pride.

ANN LANDERS

My husband is very fussy about what I pack for his lunch. I try to send him off every day with a bucket that is nourishing and tasty.

Several weeks ago I forgot to put mustard on his pastrami sandwiches and the way that man carried on you would have thought I had tried to poison him. Now he pulls the lunches apart and checks. Then I have to put everything back together and repack it.

He hasn't found anything to complain about since the mustard incident, but he keeps tearing up his lunches just to make me feel inferior. Of course I get mad and yell at him and he yells back and we start off everyday with a fight. How can this be stopped? — SUB-NORMAL.

DEAR SUB-N — Tell your husband you will write a list of everything you plan to put in his lunch and that you will check it off as it goes in. Then he can look at the list and leave the lunch alone.

Some wives don't want to put a lunch together once, let alone twice. It is inconsiderate of him to double your work.

DEAR ANN LANDERS — I am writing in regard to "Rattled Robert" — the boy whose father insists that he make business calls on the telephone. The boy is supposed to find the number and get the party on the line. Then his father comes to phone. They boy said he hated to do it and asked you if it was fair. You said: "Yes. It is fair, and it is also good training."

I am 14, too, and I know how this kid must feel. Foolish is the only word I can think of. I agree it might be good training but I don't think the man should train his son at the expense of business people. Also, if the boy can't think of anything to say the father should tell him. — ANOTHER RATTLED TEENAGER.

DEAR RATTLED ONE — Many adults, as well as teens, wrote to gripe about my advice. I even heard from a telephone company supervisor who said it was not "good manners to impose children on business associates."

Sorry, friends, but a 14-year-old is no child. A 14-year-old should be able to say, "Good evening, Mr. Swanson. This is Robert Ellenpell. I'm calling for my father. Will you hold on for just a moment, please?"

The father should take over instantly and not expect the boy to make small talk with Mr. Swanson. I should have made this point clear in my advice.

DEAR ANN LANDERS — I never thought I'd have to write to you but my husband has a habit that is driving me to distraction.

Jake works the late shift. He leaves for work at 11:30 p.m. Every night as he walks out the door he says, "Bye, Honey. Go to bed."

Where else does he think I could go at that hour? Every time he says that dumb farewell I feel like knocking his head off. How can I get him to break the habit. — SCREAMING MIMI.

DEAR MIMI — You'll never get him to break the habit, but you can reduce your own irritability by having a different reply for him every night — and the nuttier, the better.

* * *

When necking becomes petting, watch out! To learn how the smart girl keeps both her dignity and her boy friend, send for Ann Landers' booklet, "Necking and Petting — And How Far To Go," enclosing with your request 30c in coin and a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope.

Ann Landers will be glad to help you with your problems. Send them to her in care of this newspaper enclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

They Need Our Resources

Japan's Boom - - - Canada's Boon

By KEN SMITH
Canadian Press Business Editor

TOKYO (CP) — Japan's expected economic growth during the next decade offers Canada a virtually assured market for increasing quantities of its raw materials.

A country with big plans but few natural resources, Japan will have to match imports of raw materials to its higher industrial output.

Last year it imported an estimated $350,000,000 worth of goods from Canada, more than 20 per cent of them raw materials and basic food-stuffs, making Japan Canada's third largest customer.

This could increase to more than $500,000,000 in a few years, if Japan's economy remains strong, trade officials say.

EXPECTS GROWTH

Japan's industrial production is expected to rise 80 per cent by 1968 and, Hisanaga Shimadzu, recently appointed ambassador to Canada, has said, "if Canada can retain her competitive position exports of raw materials should show proportionate or even higher increases."

Canada has been devoting increasing attention to the Japanese market lately, as shown by the large-scale participation in the Tokyo International Trade Fair in April and a steady stream of official and unofficial trade missions.

Despite these pushes, however, chances of increasing Canada's sales of manufactured goods to Japan are rated dim at best.

"We're not worried about selling Japan asbestos, wheat or copper—they need those materials and we know the market is there unless our prices get way out of line," says one provincial trade official.

"But we can't seem to make them realize that we're a highly industrialized country capable of selling them goods at competitive prices."

Last year Canada's exports of manufactured goods to Japan accounted for less than three per cent of total sales—although Canada's wholly - manufactured exports over all rose 34 per cent.

Japan in recent years has been liberalizing its import regulations, but the booming domestic market remains a tough one for Canadian manufacturers, says John Blackwood, commercial secretary of the Canadian embassy in Tokyo.

QUICK TO JUMP

About the only goods that stand any chance are those not made locally—and if a substantial market shapes up, there usually is a Japanese manufacturer ready to leap into production.

The sharp rise during the last decade in the Japanese living standards has created a demand for imported goods, but they usually are bought as much for snob appeal as for utilitarian purposes.

"The Japanese are the greatest brand-name buyers in the world," says one Canadian sales representative a bit ruefully. "So they buy American lighters or Swiss watches or German cameras just to show off, even though we might have as good or better products at competitive prices."

Aside from the old standbys—wheat, logs and lumber products and various minerals—there are, however, a few areas where Canada is expected to have an opening.

One of the more immediate prospects is potash from the fantastically rich resources now being developed on the Prairies.

MORE IS NEEDED

Last year Japan imported 1,000,000 tons of potash for its fertilizer industry, much of it from Russia and Europe. With Japan's growing mechanization and modernization of its agriculture, fertilizers will play a bigger role in its economy.

Another interesting possibility is in fuels, especially liquefied gases. Japan imports almost twice as much petroleum as it does any other product, mostly from the Middle East.

It has been in the forefront recently in developing super cargo carriers that could transport liquid natural gas. Liquid methane gas and liquid propane gas. Some Canadian gas and oil companies are reported to be looking closely at this potential market.

Still another market could be for uranium for nuclear-powered generating stations. Japan now is experimenting with nuclear reactors for commercial use, but is split over the question of which is better—Canada's natural-fuel process or the enriched uranium pushed by the United States.

A government report is expected shortly that could clarify the situation.

Processed and even frozen foods may also be a future market.

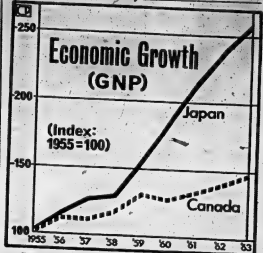
MORE WOMEN WORK

With the Japanese dream of achieving a North American style of living has come overwhelming acceptance of American mass. Also, more and more married women are expected to take jobs during the next few years in response to a growing labor shortage, so they won't have as much time in the kitchen to prepare meals.

The answer, especially with refrigeration now almost universal throughout Japan, could be TV dinners.

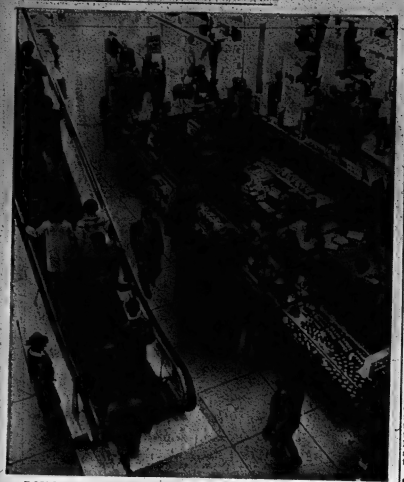
A serious problem, however, involving Japanese - Canadian trade is the heavy imbalance in Canada's favor.

Last year Japan's exports to Canada totalled an estimated $184,000,000, leaving a surplus in Canada's favor of $170,000,000.



A Japanese government official who bridled a Canadian reporter during a recent visit commented sarcastically on what he called the "waste volunteer computer" quotas Japan imposes on a number of goods it ships to Canada.

He even argued that Japan is the only major bulwark against communism in the Far East, and so as a matter of politics alone Canada should do all it can—that is, buy more Japanese goods—to ensure an economically strong and viable Japan.



Tomorrow: Japan goes after part of Canadian auto market.

THEY STILL SUFFER

More than 4,300 Canadians caught diseases in 1963 which were preventable through immunization.

PRODUCTION SOARS — Graph shows the dramatic rise of Japan's gross national product — the value of all goods and services produced — since 1955. The country's industrial production is expected to rise another 60 per cent by 1968. (CP Newsmap)

DOMESTIC MARKET GROWS — This modern department store in Tokyo offers goods from around the world to an increasingly affluent Japanese population. Last year Japan imported $350,000,000 worth of goods from Canada, but more than 90 per cent of it was raw materials and basic foodstuffs. Japan is Canada's third largest customer. (CP Photo)

BELLEVILLE, ONTARIO, THURSDAY, MAY 13, 1965

C. W. Fraser, (left), president of the Hastings County Tuberculosis Association, presents a cheque for $5,000 to E. J. O'Brien, (right), executive director of the Ontario Tuberculosis Association, while Arthur Dunican, guest speaker, looks on. The cheque was presented last night at the Hastings association annual meeting to be used for tuberculosis research.

Hastings County TB Assoc. Gives $5,000 for Research, Elects Slate of Officers

The Hastings County Tuberculosis Association donated $5,000 to the Ontario Tuberculosis Association last night at the Hastings' group annual meeting at the Hotel Quinte. The money is to be used for research.

C. W. Fraser, president of the Hastings association, in presenting the cheque to E. J. O'Brien, executive director of the OTA, said, "To defeat tuberculosis there is much work going on in other parts of the country. This work costs money, and we would like to give our share towards it."

Mr. O'Brien remarked that "it is a tremendously important thing for Hastings County to maintain and improve the place the TBA has in the county. We often think of T.B. as being eradicated, but this is not so. We have to fight against becoming complacent about the dangers of this disease."

Others bringing greeting to the annual meeting from various points were Fred Beckett, Warden of Hastings County, Mr. Stewart from Kingston, past-president of the OTA and a long-time member of the association, Dr. Hopkins.

Main speaker of the evening was Arthur Duncan, Public Relations Officer, Bata Shoe Company of Canada Limited, Batawa. He stressed that humor is the greatest tonic in the world and can be found in any situation.

"When we are out in the field for the association, we work, and I think the association has already shown how hard it is willing to work, and when we come together once a year for a social evening we should enjoy ourselves."

GREAT ASSETS

"Good health comes before wealth. Health and friendship are the greatest assets in the world, and they are gained through a sense of humor and a love of life.

"We Canadians have many things to be grateful for. We have good health, good schools, a right to worship as we please, and to follow the politics of our choice. We are spared of the hurricanes and floods that we often hear of in other parts of the world, and we have never known the horror of war on our soil as is happening in Viet Nam, the Congo and countless other areas in the world.

"I think most Canadians are really grateful because of their good fortune and are looking for some way to repay this debt of gratitude. This association and others like it are ways that we can express our gratitude.

"There is no question that in order to get the most out of life, we must serve others. We can not live unto ourselves."

Mr. Duncan continued, "Too many people, like Jack Horner, insert their thumb into the pie of opportunity and take out the plumb of success. Now there is nothing wrong with that as such, but then they spoil it by saying as Jack did, 'What a good boy am I,' and their only interest is in themselves and their material gains.

"As a committee we are doing what we can to limit a dreaded malady in our society. Through research we are making strides and must continue to do so. All people must work together to overcome this disease. The efforts put into this work will be more than repaid, not by our names on golden scrolls or by fame and fortune, but by the inner satisfaction gained in the knowledge that we have done our share in helping others who are less fortunate than ourselves."

OFFICERS ELECTED

Mr. Duncan was introduced eloquently by Harry Rollins and thanked by Arthur Bridge.

In other business at the meeting, the management committee of the association for the fiscal year 1965-1966 was named. They are as follows: C. W. Fraser, president; Allen E. Lasley, immediate past-president; Mrs. Helen Wilbor and Arthur Bridge, vice-presidents; W. H. Nickle, vice-president and representative on the OTA executive council; and Arthur Bridge, honorary treasurer.

Chairmen of the various committees are: Ronald Lee, Case Finding; A. Hallan, Health Education; Mrs. Maureen Bridge, Rehabilitation and Social Service; Minnie Atkinson, Christmas Seal Campaign; Dr. J. B. McSherry, Medical Advisory; and Mrs. Winifred Donaldson, Committee for Establishment of a Health Unit (where none exists).

Members of the committee are: R. Lloyd Goodman, Dr. A. C. McKenna (advisory), Mrs. Elaine White and Mrs. Allison Eagle, Case Finding; W. H. Nickle, Mrs. Grace Bailey, Mrs. Rae Brain, Mrs. Winnifred Donaldson and Murray Atkinson, Health Education; Harry Rollins, Roy Foren, Mrs. Sophie Norwood, Mrs. Mary Lang and Mrs. Pat Sayer, Christmas Seal Campaign; and Dr. S. D. Horne and Dr. McColl Metcalfe, Medical Advisors.

Other executive council members are: John L. Good, Mrs. N. E. Lush, Miss Hazel Farley, W. R. Hamilton, George Duffin, James Brown, Newton C. Wilbor, Mrs. Mary Atkinson, Arthur Duncan, Mervin Dafoe, Keith Shorey, Lawrence Maior, M. D. Sayer, F. S. Beckley, W. D. Bailey and Paul Russell.

Lone Lawyer Facing Bevy Of Bell Men

By BEN WARD

OTTAWA (CP) — There's a sort of David and Goliath atmosphere at the Bell Telephone Co. of Canada hearings now going on before the board of transport commissioners.

"David" is Lovell G. Carroll of Montreal, the lone lawyer speaking for 105 Ontario and Quebec municipalities and four municipal associations.

These groups are opposing Bell's proposed formula for a higher level of permissive profit, claiming it will encourage Bell to seek a telephone rate boost.

"Goliath" is Bell, represented by six lawyers working in relay, a half - dozen vice - presidents, assorted other senior executives, a bevy of hired experts and a three - member public relations team, all backed by a clerical staff in a well-equippedoffice installed in a Chateau Laurier suite across the street from the board courtroom.

Mr. Carroll, a slim, balding man with a disarmingly mild manner, operates out of a battered brief case. He has no assistant, no office staff and no office other than his fire-trimmed hotel room.

BUDGET LIMITED

His municipal clients have a limited budget for the battle, the fourth Mr. Carroll has fought against Bell in 15 years.

But Bell, a $2,300,000,000 corporation with an image to protect, can't afford such poverty. It's paying about $1,500 a week for hotel rooms alone, and that's one of the minor expenses.

The first stage of the board-ordered hearings is being taken up by the telephone company's presentation of evidence on its financial operations in a mammoth, well - prepared mass of testimony in which the lawyers and witnesses for all their questions and answers neatly before them like a Hollywood script.

Mr. Carroll's cross - examination is based on a few sheets of hastily - scribbled notes in a loose-leaf binder, and the plumbing promptly went out of kilter.

The Bell team has been mooning carefully on a quiet upper floor that it has practically taken over.

Miss Hilda M. Collier Honored

Members of the hospital Board of Governors, hospital administration officials and other workers last evening bade official farewell to a kindly nurse, who has had long association with Belleville General Hospital.

Miss Hilda M. Collier operating room supervisor for many years, ended her hospital association last week.

Members of the nursing staff honored her with a party on Friday, while last evening at Education Hall, the hospital board presented her with a matched luggage set and an award of merit in recognition of her many years of service. The presentations were made by Board chairman A. McLean Haig at the annual award of service pins for long term hospital employees. Thirteen employees with 10, 15 and 20 years service were scheduled to receive pins.

A graduate of the Belleville General Hospital school of nursing, Miss Collier did post graduate studies in surgery and returned to Belleville in 1928 as operating room supervisor, a position which she held with one brief interruption until 1941.

During the war years she took time out for war service, returning to Belleville as operating supervisor in 1950.

The new operating room supervisor taking over from Miss Collier is Miss Serena Simpson of Jamaica.

PCs to Hold Special Caucus On Changes

OTTAWA (CP) — The Conservative party will hold a special caucus today to decide what stand to take on the government's proposed reform of Commons rules. There has been speculation that a strong opposition stand against the measures could bring on an election.

The reform legislation, introduced in the Commons Tuesday and at first expected to come up for debate later this week, now is not likely to be dealt with until next week, possibly Tuesday, Prime Minister Pearson will be the lead-off speaker, government sources say.

Under the proposed changes, the Commons or the government could impose a time limit on any debate after the third day, the daily question period which often runs more than an hour now would be shortened to 30 minutes, discussion on spending estimates would be limited to 36 days of each session, and the hours of sitting would be extended to 23 hours a week from 20½ by eliminating the luncheon and supper breaks.

The House would also be allowed to sit beyond its usual adjournment hour providing 10 or more members do not object. Such extensions now require unanimous consent.

SPORTS SLICES

By Geo. H. Carver
Sports Editor

The spring is sprung; the grass is rih . . . so let's get on with this softball biz.

A tip to the other six aspirants to the championship of the Belleville and District Softball League: "The Yankees Are Coming".

Over the bay in the quiet village of Bloomfield —which some wag once dubbed the "Sweet Auburn of the Prince Edward Picks"—there's more going on than planning for the area's coming crop.

Things are humming, as usual, in "Ducky" Thompson's Taj Mahal of Baking Magic, Barker's proud new canning plant is roaring by the seasonal output and most of the burghers are going about their unsupervised way of life.

There are others, some of whom must count the proud logos of sports champions, who are laying plans to spread the name of the village in championship headlines for the second season in a row.

Last year the club called the "Bloomfield Waltz" —named after an old sea-going buddy Walter Fraser who would have been an admiral had the war lasted ten years longer,—won the OASA intermediate "B" softball championship.

A healthy "skeleton" of that gaggle of champs is still around with enough reinforcement most, they believe, to pad the bones into a squad that will give them "seconds" on the trophy.

On paper and in view of performances in exhibition tilts thus far, the village squad could very well hargeon into being the "Yankees" of the B. and D. League.

And as an ace in the hole for this deck of potential champions is one Robert Marvin Hull, Big Island rancher, who in his spare time in winter does a spot of hockey playing for the Chicago Black Hawks.

Young Mr. Hull, I understand, will not be a permanent fixture with Manager "Moose" Jim Gueraey's crew but he will be "Available Jones" if and when he is in the vicinity and can take time out from mowing the 'fa's on the ribs of his herd of sleek Polled Angus gentlemen cows.

I understand the veteran Keith Stacey is sharing the mentoring duties with "Casey" Guernsey in a playing-coach capacity. Jim, too, will take his place in the lineup whenever needed.

Among the veterans returning for the 1963 softball wars are Keith Stacey, another member of the well-known Bloomfield athletic family, Ken Demille, Warren Ostrander, Ron Wrose, Lou St. Denis and the ole hardrock Keith MacDonald.

And information has it that the way has been cleared OASA-wise for Carl Stacey, the third of the Stacey sports triumvirate, to display his baseball wares for the club although employed in Oshawa.

That, mes softball amis, is a foundation that any club in the league would like to possess.

Some solid reinforcements are seen in Gene Yorke, first baseman now employed at the cement plant and who played for the city's Elks Juniors last year. Then there's Doug McKeele, Bob Heffernan, Dave Lockwood, Frank Forester and Eldon Carson, town league graduates who are shooting for permanent positions.

The team showed flashes of its 1962 championship form the other day when it defeated the Trenton Commercial Printers, rated a strong B. and D. entry by a 10-4 count.

Despite a wrenched ankle suffered in the second inning Ken Demille went the mound route giving up seven clouts and sending back 21 Printers via the strikeout trail.

The Bloomfield "Yankees" look like a formidable squad and every "Spankee" in the peninsula will be rooting for them to bring home the championship bacon.

Titles are not new to the famous Prince Edward "canning factory" village. The archives recall the days long ago when it won a baseball title with Roy Stewart, Dub Steenburg, "Ivey" Bowerman, Toby Arkett, Harry Hamilton, the banker whose bulldog carried the mail, and many others long gone.

So, aside to the B. and D., gird your loins for invaders from the north some well-equipped. Go then and do likewise.

Flyers Whip Kings In Truce Battle

By JOHN SHORT

EDMONTON (CP) — Niagara Falls Flyers, who had been promising to throw Edmonton Flyers out of their habit-filled by before the end of the 1963 Memorial Cup series, kept their promise Wednesday night.

They battered Edmonton Oil Kings 8-2 before 5,388 fans to open a 2-1 lead in the game in the best-of-seven Canadian Junior hockey final. The fifth game will be played here Friday.

Five Flyers goals were produced by left - winger Brian Bradley, a 20-year-old native of Sudbury. He had help from Bill Goldsworthy, who scored twice and Jean Pronovost, who added the other.

Goldsworthy is the son of Leroy Goldsworthy, a former National Hockey League player, and Pronovost is a brother of Marcel Pronovost of Detroit Red Wings.

Bradley scored two goals in the first period when Flyers opened a 2-1 lead. The second period was scoreless.

GAME CAUTIOUS

The contest was played in quiet contrast to the rugged brawling that caused the calling of the third game Monday night with 5½ minutes to go. Monday's brawl resulted in suspensions to Derek Sanderson and Ricky Levy of Niagara Falls and Ron Anderson of Edmonton.

Flyers scored three goals before Red Simpson retaliated for Oil Kings with a goal off a deflection late in the first period.

Kings had several scoring chances in the second period, most of them engineered by Fran Ruck. But Bernie Parent played brilliantly in goal to preserve the two - goal edge until Bradley took over in the third period. Graham Longmuir connected in the third period for Kings' second goal.

Bradley broke Kings' backs with a tally while Flyers were shorthanded at 45 seconds of the third taking a perfect pass from Gilles Marotte and steering it behind Edmonton goaltender Wayne Stephenson.

DEFENCE FAILS HIM

Stephenson had 21 saves to 25 for Parent but that statistic was misleading. Ruck was virtually the only Edmonton offensive threat and the King defence was weakened severely by the absence of captain Bob Falkenberg, who suffered a concussion Monday.

DEFENCE FAILS HIM

Defensive lapse led to all of Bradley's goals, none of which could be blamed on Stephenson. Goldsworthy opened and closed the scoring on unassisted breakaways — and missed several other chances.

Stephenson was beaten on a penalty shot at 5:11 of the second period.

Pronovost scored his second goal of the series after an Edmonton player left the puck in the crease with Stephenson prone at the other side.

Police presentions were increased for the fourth game, but only an incident developed. Police rushed three policemen away from the penalty box during a stashing sentence to Goldsworthy.

Flyers won the first two games 5-3 and 5-1 before taking a 5-1 defeat in the third game.

"We want to go home," said coach Bill Long, "and we can if we play as well in the next game."

Goldsworthy, spurred in the stomach in the third game, left the ice briefly in the first period Wednesday after a solid check by Al Hamilton. He showed no ill effects after the game.

One Edmonton player, veteran forward Greg Tomalty, hobbled to the bench late in the third period after a solid check. He said his leg injury would be healed by Friday.

Must Pass Up Canada Cup

Tourney Players Face Suspension

By BO EMERY

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The Professional Golfers Association of America has served notice to its tournament players they will face suspension if they compete in the Canada Cup matches next October because the international event conflicts with the Sahara invitational at Las Vegas, The Associated Press learned Wednesday.

PGA president Walter Cantrell gave the notice in letters addressed to all PGA committee members and the players' tournament committee.

A similar communication was sent to Sidney James, chairman of the executive committee of the International Golf Association, which sponsors the Canada golf event.

The Sahara tournament, which has been scheduled for two years, is set for Oct. 30-Nov. 3.

Spain, Oct. 31-Nov. Sources said the Canada Cup dates were set last March.

JAMES ADVISED

In New York, Fred Corcoran, tournament director of the IGA, said Sidney James has been advised of the conflict in dates and it will be straightened out.

The dates were set by the Spanish Golf Association which thought it was most suitable for most of the countries involved.

"I'm confident the conflict will be avoided," he said.

The PGA was notified of the dates last March, and acknowledgement was made in a letter. There was no protest made at the time."

The PGA edict also includes affiliated foreign players such as Canadians George Knudson and Al Balding, both of Toronto.

Arnold Palmer and Jack Nicklaus are the defending Canada Cup champions, winning last year in Maui, Hawaii.

Bowl-O-Drome To Help Minor Softball

The Belleville Minor Softball Association, which expects to open its schedules sometime next week, will get a boost from another sport this weekend.

Keith MacDonald, public relations officer for the B.M.S.A., announced yesterday that Bill Bateman, manager of the Bowl-O-Drome here, will donate the net proceeds from Saturday night's bowling to the minor softball.

"Mr. Bateman is turning his net profits, from 7.00 p.m.-on, over to us", he said, " and we really appreciate his generosity."

It was pointed out that this would be a good opportunity for persons interested in minor softball to "help the cause" and spend an evening's bowling as well.

Killebrew's Two Homers Clip Angels

Sox Blank Yanks

By DICK COUCH
Associated Press Sports Writer

Harmon Killebrew beat Los Angeles 4-3 Wednesday night with his second home run of the game, a 450-foot, two-run shot in the eighth inning. The night before he had given Minnesota Twins a 3-2 victory over the Angels by carrying a drive off pitcher Dean Chance's leg in the ninth to send home the winning run.

The victory, fifth straight for the Twins and 16th in 23 starts this year, kept them in first place in the young American League race, half a game ahead of Chicago White Sox, who swept a twi-night double-header from Kansas City Athletics 7-6 and 4-4. Boston Red Sox blanked New York Yankees 2-0, Detroit Tigers topped Washington Senators 5-2 and Baltimore Orioles beat Cleveland Indians 4-3 in other night action.

Killebrew's decisive homer scored Frank Kostro, who had walked, and pulled the Twins from behind. He had also ripped a left field circuit clout in the sixth.

The homers were the fourth and fifth for him in 11 games after he failed to connect in his first 12 games this season.

Pete Ward's two-run homer in the seventh inning of the Chicago-Kansas City opener put the White Sox ahead to stay 5-4. Dick Green had got the Athletics on top with a grand-slam homer in the fifth.

Don Buford, who also honored the Sox in the first game, singled in the run and Floyd Robinson's pop-fly single delivered another in a sixth inning rally that decided the nightcap. The Kansas City runs came on a three-run homer by Jim Gentile and Bill Bryan's solo shot.

Bill Monbouquette stopped New York on six hits and shortstop Eddie Bressoud hit a fifth-inning home run as the Red Sox beat Yankee ace Jim Bouton.

Willie Horton, who had wrecked Washington the previous night with a home run and game - winning single, collected another homer and two singles to lead the Tigers past the Senators.

Paul Blair's leadoff homer ignited a four-run first inning rally for Baltimore after Cleveland had scored twice in the top of the first. Dave McNally checked the Indians on two singles the rest of the way for his first victory of the season.

Blasts Braves to Win Over Bucs

Joe Torre Proves Tab Of Half-Million

By MIKE RATHET
Associated Press Sports Writer

A couple of years ago, the only thing slim about Joe Torre was his chances of making the majors. Now, the only thing fat about the Milwaukee catcher is his batting average.

Torre lifted the average to .367 Wednesday night with a homer and a single, helping the Braves to a 5-4 victory over Pittsburgh Pirates while continuing to show why they refused New York Mets' offer to buy him for $500,000.

As a teen-ager with his eyes on the majors, Torre was in jeopardy of being overlooked by scouts since he weighed 240 pounds.

Torre trimmed his weight to 205 and last season lifted his average to .321 with 20 homers and 109 runs batted in.

While Torre was continuing his heavy hitting, Ron Santo belted a homer and two singles in Chicago Cubs' 7-3 walloping of San Francisco Giants, Cincinnati Reds edged Philadelphia Phillies 4-3, Los Angeles Dodgers defeated Houston Astros 4-2 and New York Mets downed St. Louis Cardinals 3-1.

HOMER TIED IT

Torre hit his homer in the fourth inning against the Pirates, pulling the Braves into a 3-3 tie they cracked with a three-run seventh inning uprising.

Santo was the big gun for the Cubs, rapping three of the five Chicago hits off Giant ace Juan Marichal in the seven innings he worked. Marichal lost his third game against five victories as San Francisco committed four errors behind him.

The Reds broke through against the Phillies, who had tied the score 3-3 on Richie Allen's homer, with a two-run seventh inning uprising triggered by Tommy Harper's triple. Sammy Ellis got the victory for a 5-4 record with Jim O'Toole's relief help.

Don Drysdale limited the Astros to six hits, including Walt Bond's homer in the ninth, while Ron Fairly provided the decisive blow for the Dodgers with a two-run single in the third inning.

Jack Fisher checked the Cardinals on five hits and outdueled Curt Simmons for the Mets' triumph when Ron Swoboda walked in the seventh inning and scored on a double by Bobby Klaus.

Baseball Shows Fan Increase

NEW YORK (AP) — Major league baseball attendance for the first month of the 1965 season was up 5.4 per cent over last year, an Associated Press survey disclosed today.

The survey through Tuesday's games reflected continued fan apathy in Milwaukee and Kansas City plus a resurgence in Houston where the Astros are playing in their new, enclosed stadium.

The over-all big league attendance is 3,018,321 compared to 2,862,527 in the same number of 1964 dates. The National League shows an increase of 105,715 and the American is up 50,254.

May Re-word Grid Rule

CALGARY (CP)—A proposed Canadian Football League rule limiting teams to three naturalized Canadians and an existing rule setting a limit of 14 American imports may be reworded to avoid conflict with fair employment and human rights legislation.

Presidents and general managers of the nine CFL teams are expected to consider the possibility of reworking the rules during a special meeting here Friday morning.

The meeting will be closed to the press but results will be made available later.

The meeting was called by CFL president Pat Mahoney of Calgary after Professor Bora Laskin, constitutional law expert at the University of Toronto, advised the CFL that the proposed player roster rules probably are a violation of such legislation as the Ontario Human Rights Code.

You are looking at one of the most amazing success stories in modern automotive history.

It's called the Fina Executive tire. And in less than 28 days after Canada learned about its unique features, demand has already outstripped production. So if your Fina dealer is temporarily out of stock, please be patient. It won't be for long. And the Fina Executive is worth waiting for.

The Fina Executive tire is something of a phenomenon.

Some tires (in fact, most of them) take months or even years to become established.

The Fina Executive has done it in less than 28 days. Some areas have even run short after two weeks. This is because, despite the fact that the Fina Executive is one of the most unusual tires you can buy, no one could ever have anticipated a reception like this.

It's easy, though, to see why so many people want the Fina Executive. And why it's worth waiting for.

Reversible Whitewalls

First, the Fina Executive is the only tire with separate whitewall styles on each side. This means you can change from a single whitewall band to a double ring — just by reversing the tire.

Carefully built by hand

The Fina Executive is carefully built by hand. This is one reason we can't speed up production too much. Tires like the Fina Executive have to be built carefully. And that takes time.

More Rubber and Deeper Tread

The Fina Executive has more rubber and a deeper tread than any other tire in its price class. This means more mileage, while the new low profile also increases tire life by cutting down on heat build-up.

Please be patient

If your dealer happens to be out of the size you need, please be patient. Production lines are rolling 24 hours a day, and you won't have to wait very long. Besides, a hand-built premium tire like the Fina Executive is worth waiting for.

Ron Hodges, another OHA player with St. Catharines Black Hawks, will play with Etobicoke Terriers of the Junior A series.

Cheevers will perform as a forward with St. Catharines of the OLA senior series.

Role Is Big Step Back For Maureen O'Sullivan

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP)—"It was a good thing for me to learn that I could carry my own weight," said Maureen O'Sullivan, here for the film version of the role she created but never expected to play.

At Warner Brothers, Miss O'Sullivan and Paul Ford are doing a replay of their Broadway smash, Never Too Late. For her it is a big step in the long road back from the shattering of her life with the death two years ago of her husband, director John Farrow.

The actress was left with six children to support. Her eldest, Michael, had been killed in a plane crash in 1958. Farrow had earned good money during his career, and so had she. But not enough remained to bring up her children the way she wanted.

"Oh, I suppose we could have moved south of Olympic Boulevard (the less affluent section of Beverly Hills) and continued living without any going back to work," she said. "But I didn't want to do it that way. I wanted the children to have all the advantages I could provide for them. That meant I would have to provide some income."

PLAYED WITH TARZAN

She married Farrow in 1936, when she was starring for MGM as Jane to Johnny Weissmuller's Tarzan. When her contract was up during the war, Farrow persuaded her to end her career.

"He really didn't want me to work," she said, "and it made sense because the children were small and needed me at home. The only time I took a job was when John wasn't looking."

But through the years she studied many styles of acting on the screen and stored up ideas for future use. One such idea, which she calls "the house wife's trot," drew laughs in Never Too Late.

SUCCESS FOLLOWED WAR

Jackie Gleason's break into the big time came with the 1942 musical hit Follow the Girls.

Broadcaster Given Award For Work in Alaska Quake

By CYNTHIA LOWRY

NEW YORK (AP) — Genie Chance, wife of an Anchorage, Alaska, automobile dealer and mother of three children, had the kind of free-wheeling job every broadcast journalist dreams about.

As a reporter for an Anchorage radio station 14 months ago, her beat covered an area of about 18,000 square miles. Sometimes she found herself aboard a crab boat en route to a remote Eskimo village. Sometimes she flew in a helicopter to cover troops training for arctic warfare. And she has flown in a plane with smoke pumped in fighting a 10,000 - acre tundra fire.

It was ironic that Genie Chance's biggest story broke when she was riding down an Anchorage street in her automobile March 27, 1964. Suddenly her car began to bounce.

"I thought at first it was a flat tire," she says. "Then I saw people running out of buildings and looking up — and buildings literally began to wave. . ."

WORKED 36 HOURS

It was the great Alaskan earthquake, Mrs. Chance drove immediately to the city's public safety building and, using broadcasting equipment in her

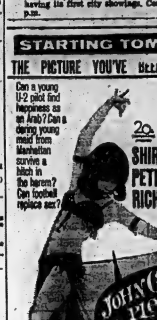
Peter Finch and Anne Heywood in "The Pumpkin Eater"

Versatile actor Peter Finch, who plays Anne Bancroft's scarring husband in the Royal Films International release, "The Pumpkin Eater", at the Belle Theatre Tonight, for the last times, is a man of many places and trades.

Born in London, Peter was educated at various schools in Australia, where he grew up. A youthful enthusiasm for adventure led him to the more remote sections of Australia, The continent and India, where he accepted himself as a hotel, sheepherder, Waiterm journalist and Vaudeville comic.



His career as actor began back in Australia in 1939, but was interrupted by World War II in which he served as a pilot with the Australian forces and also helped found the First Army Theatre. After the war, he organized his own repertory company. Sir Laurence Olivier and Vivian Leigh, visiting the country with a London play, saw Finch act and advised him to try the London Theatre.

He took their advice and promptly established himself as a West End star. "The Nun's Story", with Audrey Hepburn brought him to the attention of American audiences.

ACTOR FULLS TEETH

Edgar Buchanan, Uncle Joe in TV's Petticoat Junction, is licensed to practise dentistry in Oregon and California.

AT THE PARK — "It's My Party," first hit record for Lesley Gore, still high on the teen scene, Lesley sings "It's My Party" together with other top favorites on "The T.A.M.I. Show" in which she is starred with 11 other top acts, to be teased by American International Pictures and opens tonight at the Park Theatre for a three day engagement. On the same program "Voyage to the End of the Universe" and having its first city showings. Complete shows 7.00 and 9.30 p.m.

Teen-age Canada

Ward for Teen-agers Set up in New Building

Young people think of hospitals too often as the above — cold, dull, empty, antiseptic corridors. Winnipeg is pioneering a ward just for them to change this.

By JACK HUTTON

A new deal is underway for young Canadian adults in a hospital already under construction in St. James, a suburb of Winnipeg.

The $8.5 million hospital will be the first in Canada to set up a ward exclusively for patients in the teen age category. No one else is allowed in.

The idea isn't new in the U.S. (you'll find hot dogs and hamburgers on some of their hospital menus), but I believe this is the first time in Canada anyone has tried this long overdue concept.

Brig. Muriel Everett, administrator for Salvation Army Grace Hospital in Winnipeg, will be in charge of the new hospital when it opens in the spring of 1966. I find her views both exciting and intriguing.

Teen-agers, she says, are the forgotten people of hospitals. A 16-year-old patient is too old to adjust well in a pediatric ward but also uncomfortable in the company of older patients — particularly those who enjoy talking about operations.

"Psychologically, it's bad for the teen-ager," she declares. "They have no companionship with babies, and the conversation of older patients, who often talk about their operations in gory detail, can have a harmful effect."

The plans are the result of a unique partnership between hospital administrators familiar with the needs of young adults and the architectural firm, Green, Blankstein Russell Associates of Winnipeg.

According to D. R. Marshall, chief architect in his firm's hospital department, the special ward will have 20 standard rooms with facilities similar to those you'd find in adult sections of any hospital.

The comparison stops there.

Because the young adult patients will have their own dining room and day room combined, a place where they can enjoy meals, play games, listen to records (are the Rolling Stones "good therapy?") or watch television together.

Brig. Everett hopes the staff for this ward will be specially attuned to working with young people — perhaps able to stand plenty of noise — and more familiar with their problems than the average nurse or doctor.

The experimental ward, says Brig. Everett, hopes to produce its main benefits now lacking in most larger hospitals.

MAY HASTEN RECOVERY

"Being together," she says, "teen-agers will have pleasant and helpful companionship and this will hasten their recovery.

"Secondly, some teen-agers now leave hospital and look back on their stay as something unpleasant. They will be reluctant to return but this attitude should change if the memory of their stay is a happy one."

Rules and regulations are still being written. But boys and girls in the special ward will have special freedom to mix freely and visit back and forth. Each room will have one to four patients.

Brig. Everett is hopeful of providing a visiting teacher for students who have to remain in hospital a long time. With luck, no student would have to fall far behind his or her classmates.

I'm indebted for the information in this column to an old newspaper friend, Will Chislett, who (hospital readers of the column would be particularly interested. This marks the first time the project has been revealed publicly anywhere.

After talking to Will, I sought the opinions of several doctor friends. Is it a good idea, I wondered, to isolate any one age group — particularly patients in their early or late teens? Should people be in one ward because of an accident of age?

"This is possibly the best news I've heard in years," said one doctor, a Toronto-based specialist whose services are sought across the country. "I feel terribly sorry for some patients of mine who've spent years or months in a children's hospital and then suddenly switch into adult society."

A small handful of hospitals across Canada cater specifically to the needs of younger patients. But the maximum age they will admit is 15. A 16-year-old or 17-year - old goes into a regular adult hospital.

The new Salvation Army Grace Hospital in St. James is pioneering a new approach for the "forgotten people" of the teen years. How long, I wonder, before it spreads elsewhere in Canada.

CASEMENT HONORED

BELLS PROTEST BAN

STAFFELSTEIN, Ger m a n y (AP)—Bells rang out in this little village as Catholic and Protestant pastors protested the lifting of a ban on public dancing during Lent. Village councillors say no nearby communities have such a ban, local innkeepers would suffer, and the young people would only go elsewhere to dance.

VIET CONG DISTRICT CHIEF DEFECTS

Peking Reports Second Atom Bomb Exploded

PEKING (Reuters)—China today exploded its second atom bomb, seven months after the first one in October, the New China news agency reported.

The agency gave no details on how the bomb was detonated.

An official communique quoted by the agency said: "China exploded another atom bomb over its western area at 10:00 hours (Peking time) (10 p.m. EDT Thursday) on May 14, 1965 and thus successfully concluded its second nuclear test."

The communique said the bomb was for the purpose of "coping with the nuclear blackmail and threats of the United States."

The communique said: "Following the explosion of China's first atom bomb on Oct. 16, 1964, this nuclear test is another important achievement scored by the Chinese people in strengthening their national defence and safeguarding the security of their motherland and world peace."

The communique said China was conducting nuclear tests within defined limits "and is developing all nuclear weapons for the purpose of coping with the nuclear blackmail and threats of the United States and for the purpose of abolishing all nuclear weapons."

The communique recalled a Chinese statement at the time China exploded its first atomic bomb and its proposal for a world summit conference to discuss the complete prohibition and destruction of nuclear arms.

"Since then, the United States has been continuing its development and mass production of various kinds of nuclear weapons, and has dodged its further nuclear blackmail and threats against China and the world.

"China is developing nuclear weapons solely for defensive purposes. China will never be the first to use nuclear weapons. It is the sincere hope of the Chinese people that there will never be a nuclear war. Together with all the peace-loving countries and people of the world, the Chinese government resolutely will, as always, continue to strive for the noble aim of the complete prohibition and thorough destruction of nuclear weapons."

THE WEATHER

Synopsis: A high pressure cell has slipped southeastward over the lower lakes from its position in Northern Ontario 24 hours ago and assures another sunny day today.

On Saturday, cloudiness and likely showers and thunderstorms will gradually move across the Great Lakes as a disturbance now in Colorado moves into Iowa and the high pressure area recedes to the southeast.

No Hike in Price of Cigarettes

TORONTO (CP)—Provincial Treasurer James Allan introduced a bill in the legislature Thursday that will give Ontario its first tobacco tax.

Mr. Allan said the new tax will mean no increase in the price of cigarettes. It will replace the existing three - per - cent sales tax on cigarettes and provide a more efficient method of collection.

The primary change involved by the new legislation will be a one-quarter-of-a-cent increase on the tax of a price of a package of 25 cigarettes.

At present the sales tax is the same—one cent—on a package of 20 or a package of 25. After the tobacco tax bill becomes law the tax on a package of 25 will become 1¼ cents.

However, Mr. Allan told reporters he expects this increase will be accepted either by the manufacturer or the wholesaler and will not be passed on to the consumer.

WILL BE DISCARDED

The percentage basis of collecting taxes on tobacco products will be discarded in favor of a new formula.

Mr. Allan told reporters it will produce virtually the same results.

The tax on cigarettes will be one - twentieth of a cent for every cigarette—thus one cent for a package of 20, or 1¼ cents for a package of 25.

For cigars, the tax will be one-fifth of a cent for every five cents of a package—thus a penny for a 25-cent package as it is now.

For bulk tobacco, the tax will be one cent an ounce. However, the minimum tax will be one cent and any part of an ounce of tobacco will also be taxed at one cent.

Mr. Allan said he does not expect the new formula of taxation to provide the government with any additional tax revenue during the 1965-66 fiscal year.

He declined to comment on suggestions that the three-per-cent sales tax was being replaced by a tobacco tax in order that the latter may be raised independently when the government becomes faced with the need for additional revenues.

Bank Act Before House

By WILLIAM NEVILLE

OTTAWA (CP) — With the memory of the Coyne affair hanging over it, the Commons is being asked to give the government formal and written power to call the final shots over Canadian monetary policy.

Amendments to the Bank of Canada Act, to be debated today in the House, will ensure—in Finance Minister Gordon's words — that "the government can never shirk its ultimate responsibility for monetary policy."

In practical terms, they should also mean that no future government will face the same kind of public battle as confronted the Diefenbaker administration in the case of former bank governor James Coyne in the hot-weather summer of 1961.

The current legislation, as explained in the House by Mr. Gordon Thursday night, will cover—both the specifics and the generalities of the Coyne affair.

Specifically, it will prohibit the governor, through the bank's board of directors, from increasing his own pension and will provide that any increases, which then applied only to succeeding governors, must be approved by the cabinet.

SET OFF FEUD

It was an increase in his own pension to $25,000 a year which set off the running feud between Mr. Coyne and then-finance minister Donald Fleming.

Generally, the amendments, as Mr. Gordon put it, will give the "clear legislative recognition" to the premise that, if the government and central bank can't agree on monetary policy, the final word rests with the government.

The bill, which will go to the Commons banking committee for detailed study once it gets approval - in - principle from the House, provides that in these last conflict, the government of the day will send the bank governor a written order outlining the policy it wants followed. The order will be made public and tabled in Parliament.

If the governor still disagrees, says Mr. Gordon, "it can be presumed he would resign."

As a word, the minister said the amendments "remove any doubt which may ever have existed about the responsibilities of the government and the bank for monetary policy."

While Mr. Gordon stressed that such doubts don't exist at the moment in regard to Governor Louis Rasminsky, it went almost without saying that such was not always the case.

The Coyne affair in issue was the specific point on which the former Conservative government tried to fire Mr. Coyne it became clear in the battle of words that followed that the over-all direction of the country's monetary policy was at issue.

Mr. Coyne never was fired.

STAR WITNESS AT WINDFALL PROBE — Viola MacMillan (right), promoter of Windfall Oils and Mines Ltd., told the Windfall Royal Commission Thursday that market excitement drove up the price of the stock and that "nothing" would have halted the rise. Couldn't Stop Rise Is Claim

TORONTO (CP)—Mrs. Viola MacMillan, pert promoter of Windfall Oils and Mines Ltd., testified Thursday that once the price of Windfall shares started to rise on rumors early last July, nothing would have stopped them.

The star witness before the Windfall royal commission said the market was in the greatest state of excitement at that time that she had seen in her 38 years of mining experience and nothing was going to halt the spectacular rise.

"Nothing," she repeated.

Earlier, she testified that the excitement—which drove Windfall shares to $5.80 from 56 cents, before the stock collapsed overnight to 80 cents—made her semi-hysterical.

Swearing she knew nothing about the potential stock market interest in Windfall until July 6, when it nearly doubled in price to more than a dollar, the 42 - year - old woman who once was called the Queen Bee of Mining testified she was furious over the sudden activity.

WANTED PRODUCER

She said the only interest she or her husband, mining engineer Fall president, had was to try to find a producing property—not to run the market on a stock.

Wearing a rose-colored wool suit, big white beads and a man's gold wrist watch, Mrs. MacMillan fenced briefly with Mr. Justice Arthur Kelly of the

Tory Gains in City Voting Kill British Election Talk

LONDON (Reuters) — British ruling Labor party today was expected to discard any plans for an early general election after Thursday's major defeat in countrywide municipal elections.

The returns from voting in 356 cities and towns in England and Wales are taken as an indicator of the parties' national popularity. They showed a massive net gain of more than 550 seats for the opposition Conservatives, and losses of more than 375 for Labor.

Conservative leaders have persistently speculated that Prime Minister Wilson might call an election either in June or in the autumn, in a bid to increase his slim three - vote majority in the House of Commons.

The setback for the government confirmed the trend of nine parliamentary by-elections held to fill vacant seats since Labor came to power last October. Those have shown an average swing to the right of 2½ per cent.

It coincided with latest public opinion poll findings, published today, which showed the Conservatives 9 per cent ahead of Labor in popularity.

With results from two of the municipalities to come, the net changes after Thursday's elections were: Conservatives 552 seats gained; Labor 377 seats lost; and the Liberal party 174 seats lost. Independents also suffered a net loss of one seat.

Experts estimated before voting that the Conservatives would have to gain more than 250 seats to improve their standing at last October's general election.

They had been expected to make sizable gains since they suffered heavy losses when this same group of seats—one-third of those on each council—were last contested in 1962.

Welfare Council Urged To Oppose Proposed Act

TORONTO (CP) — Delegates at the Ontario Welfare Council conference Thursday were urged to register their opposition to the province's proposed new Child Welfare Act.

Stephen Lewis, New Democratic part member for Scarborough West, told 150 welfare workers they should object to the act which makes municipalities financial control over children's aid when many municipalities have pressed themselves to be not "overly generous" in their welfare programs.

A children's aid society would have to negotiate a new budget each year with its municipality, he said.

Mr. Lewis said the new act would make the province pay 60 per cent and a municipality 40 per cent of the child care and protection costs. This financial formula was contrary to cost-sharing plans in other fields of legislation, and was not the method suggested by either the Ontario Welfare Council or the welfare minister's own advisory committee on child welfare, he said.

Mr. Lewis, who was not invited to the conference, also attacked the section of the proposed act that says two children's aid societies can join to establish a group home or other facility and set 30 per cent off, 139 Viet Cong bodies were counted.

Military Chief Of Hue Region Gives Self Up

From Reuters-AP

DA NANG (CP) — The defection of one of the highest ranking Viet Cong officers controlling guerrilla operations in South Viet Nam was disclosed here today.

Provincial Commissar Nguyen Thuy, a North Vietnamese who controlled the area surrounding Hue, third largest city in the country, gave himself up to authorities there eight days ago.

It is the first time that one of the Viet Cong's 34 provincial military chiefs has defected since the guerrillas began their war against the South Vietnamese government eight years ago.

Thuy was immediately placed under top security and submitted to intensive interrogation by senior South Vietnamese military intelligence officers.

Brig.-Gen. Nguyen Chanh Thi, commander of South Viet Nam's northern sector, said the commissar had been in charge of political and military operations in the Hue area—one of the 34 into which the Viet Cong have divided South Viet Nam.

Under the South Vietnamese administration the country is divided in 43 provinces.

KILLED 178 CONGS

Thursday, government forces killed 178 Viet Cong guerrillas and captured 53 in a major victory over two Communist battalions in the Mekong Delta.

A U.S. military spokesman confirmed the Communist losses. He said 10 South Vietnamese were killed and 77 wounded in the two-stage battle which began at dawn 135 miles southwest of Saigon and continued until late Thursday night. Four Americans were among the wounded.

The operation netted a big haul of Viet Cong supplies and weapons including 28 Russian-made rifles and five machine-guns, some from China.

The fighting began at 6 a.m. when a government battalion sweeping the swampy area near Bac Lieu ran into a guerrilla force. A reconnaissance company was flown in by helicopter and by 11:30 a.m. the Viet Cong were routed, leaving 39 dead.

Half an hour later a scout plane spotted a concentration of Viet Cong about 30 miles north of the Bac Lieu area. Two South Vietnamese companies were quickly flown to the spot.

The Communists put up a hard fight despite heavy strikes by armed helicopters and fighter-bombers. By late afternoon the government flew in a battalion of reinforcements.

COUNT 129 BODIES

After fighting finally broke off, 139 Viet Cong bodies were counted.

First OAS Peace Units Reach Isle

From Reuters-AP

SANTO DOMINGO (CP)—The first contingents of the Inter-American force whose task will be to keep the peace in the Dominican Republic were to arrive here today.

A spokesman for the Organization of American States said in Washington Thursday night Honduras would send 250 soldiers and Costa Rica, which has no army, 20 policemen.

The 22,000 U.S. troops here will be progressively withdrawn as the OAS force takes over.

Other countries expected to send men here for the force are Paraguay, Venezuela, Guatemala, Brazil, Colombia, Argentina and Nicaragua. As it builds up, the force will be placed under a unified command.

PLANES ATTACK

The shaky ceasefire in the rebel, in effect since May 5, was badly jolted Thursday when Dominican air force planes, provided by the junta fighting before the present civil strife, bombed the rebel radio off the air and strafed near the U.S. Embassy, forcing the American ambassador to dive under his desk for cover.

The rebels and the U.S. both charged that the so-called loyalists had violated the ceasefire.

U.S. officials were investigating whether the planes used American - supplied machine - gun ammunition and rockets.

Neither Brig.-Gen. Antonio Imbert Barreras, head of the civilian-military junta opposing the rebels, nor Brig.-Gen. Elias Wessin y Wessin, commander of the junta's San Isidro air base, were available for comment.

Judge Rules 'Medicine Chest' of 1876 Treaty Means Indians Now Entitled to Free Medicare

BATTLEFORD, Sask. (CP)—A Saskatchewan judge has ruled that an 1876 treaty means all Indians in the province, whether on or off reserves, should receive free hospital and medical care from the federal government.

There was no definite word Thursday on whether the decision would be appealed, but provincial Health Minister D. G. Steuart said it likely will be "looked at in higher courts."

Mr. Steuart said clarification appears necessary on how far the decision is meant to extend.

The treaty, signed between the Crown and the Plain, Wood and Cree Indians, provided that the Indians would be cared for by the Queen's government during a "medicine chest" at his house.

Judge J. M. Policha ruled on the basis of the treaty that Walter Johnson of Battleford, a treaty Indian who lives off his home reserve, is not guilty of charges of failing to pay compulsory premiums under the Saskatchewan hospital and medical care insurance plans.

Johnson was the first of three non-reserve Indians to be tried on charges lodged by the province's attorney-general.

Dave Newsham of Saskatoon, counsel for Johnson, contended federal government is obliged by the 1876 treaty to pay all medical costs for Indians.

Regulations of the hospital insurance plan, set up in 1947, and the medical care plan, set up in 1962, state that Indians who live on a reserve or who have lived off a reserve for less than 12 months are exempt from paying the compulsory premiums, or head taxes, for the two plans.

The federal government in these cases pays the premiums for the Indians.

But the regulations say Indians must pay their own premiums, once they have been off the reserve for more than a year. Johnson was prosecuted for not doing so.

Judge Policha said in his decision that clauses in the 1876 treaty, which reflected imperfect service concern by Indian chiefs of that day for their people, "should properly be interpreted to mean that Indians are entitled to receive all medical services including medicines, drugs, medical supplies and hospital care free of charge."

There are about 31,000 persons of Indian descent in Saskatchewan.

Truant Officers, Not Indians, Plague B. C.-Bound Wagon Train

DODGE CITY, Kan. (AP)—A tattered group of modern-day pioneers—five adults and eight children—are making their way north across the United States determined to find a better life in British Columbia.

Their trip is fraught with peril, such as juvenile officers who wonder why the children aren't in school, townspeople who consider them panhandlers, and youngsters who find them fit game for mischief.

Wagon master and originator of the trek is Don Cunningham, Cunningham, his wife and their two children started from Olney, Tex., on Feb. 17. At Cordell, Okla., they were joined by Mr. and Mrs. C. L. Freeman of Iowa Park, Tex. and their six children. And at Lone Wolf, Okla., a bachelor named Norman Dougherty hitched on.

They are travelling in two covered wagons, makeshift affairs with automobile tires. With them is a small menagerie two teams of horses, a mule, two goats, chickens and dogs. They hope the animals will qualify them to homestead near Merritt, B.C. They travel about 20 miles a day.

A reporter caught up with them between Dwight and Jet more, Kan.

"I'm mad at the whole state of Kansas," said Cunningham. "I've been mistreated all the time I've been in Kansas. I'm not going to talk to anyone here any more."

And he wouldn't.

At Dodge City Wednesday, the travellers were interviewed by Norman J. Abbey, a juvenile officer.

"I jumped them about the kids not being in school," Abbey said. "They were kind of rude and said the children didn't have to go to school Cunningham said he educated his kids to school because he didn't believe in it.

"He said they were going to Canada where they could do as they damned pleased; that they were getting tired of being pushed around."

"The men are in their 30s, wearing full, bushy beards, western hats and blue jeans," Abbey said. He added that Cunningham said he was getting touchy about his treatment in Kansas.

"I told him I'm touchy too about parents who won't send their kids to school," said Abbey.

Former Lattimer Drug Store Site Sold to Local Interests, New Building to Be Erected

Due to the high cost of the ov... - all project, plans have been abandoned for the construction of a single building multiple - store and office arcade covering the burned out West Robertson block on Front Street.

Instead the properties will be developed separately and two separate stores are expected to be commenced in the near future.

This was announced today by Harry Morrison of Gerald Joyce Realty Ltd. and Don J. Whalen of Whalen Real Estate, who stated they had sold the former Lattimer Drug Store site to Mr. Michael Guerrero of Belleville.

The purchaser intends to have plans drawn immediately for a two-storey store and office building with construction hoped to commence within 60 days. The building will have a 22 - foot frontage.

It is reported that Reward Shoe Store will begin construction of a new one organized almost immediately.

THERE TO BE SOLD

The remainder of the five burned out store properties still to be sold, due to increasing interest shown in the final estates the remaining frontage may soon be sold, according to the above realtors.

Sites still to be sold are those formerly occupied by T. E. Schwab; Shea's Men's Wear, and the Georgia Saloo.

Following the disastrous fire last winter which wiped out five ground floor businesses and a number of overhead offices, there was talk of developing a single building type of store structure, more than doubling the former number of stores.

Due to high cost of this type of development has now been abandoned and the way is open for the new sites to be re-built separately.

New Electric and Water Rates in Effect June 1st Says Chairman of P.U.C.

Starting next month, Belleville hydro and water users will pay more for the privilege of watering their lawns and for the electricity to cook the family dinner.

Utilities Commission chairman Gerald B. Ryde said today the new rates will become effective with bills issued as of June 1st.

For local water users, the revised rates will mean a straight increase of approximately 33 per cent.

But in the case of hydro it will be "the more you use, the cheaper the rate" with the new schedule resulting in the small user paying a fatter share of distribution costs.

Under the present rate system, the utilities are actually losing money in providing service for the small user, according to Mr. Ryde.

INITIAL RATE UPPED

In all categories of electric distribution, power, commercial and domestic — the initial rates will be increased, while in the high consumption brackets, the rates generally remain unchanged.

In the case of some electric water heaters, however, the rate is actually slightly reduced.

Under the new schedule of rates, power users for the first 100 kilowatt hours per month will pay 1.6 per cent KWH instead of 1.2 cents. The first commercial rate is at 2.2 cents, instead of 1.8 cents, while the first domestic rate will be up slightly to 2.3 cents for the first 50 KWH per month instead of the present 2 cents.

The next 200 KWH per month will cost the domestic user 1.3 cents instead of the present 1 cent, while a new third rate for the heavy hydro user has been set at 1.2 cents — the same as for users with all-electric heating.

MINIMUM BILL RAISED

Special consideration is being given to the domestic user with qualifying water heaters who are having rates cut to help cut electric water heating costs.

The minimum bill for domestic hydro users has been increased from the present $1.11 per month (gross) to $1.95 per month.

There is no change in the present 1.1 cents per KWH for the "all electric" home owner.

A comparison of the new domestic rates against the present rates, show that a 250 KWH per month user would pay a net of about $3.78 for hydro instead of $3.27.

For the 1,000 KWH user the new rates become a bit lovely as substantially it will happens to have a "through the meter" water heater. But depending on whether such heater is "controlled" the total bill under the new rates could actually be lower.

WATER RATES UP

But back to the new water rates. For metered users the rate will be 30 cents per 1,000 gallons for the first 300, 260 gallons and increase to eight cents over the present rate.

The minimum bill for the domestic user with a ¾ inch water meter will be $2.95 instead of the present $1.70 for a two month period.

Owners of large apartment houses will benefit under the new system with rates for multiple service ranging downward as the number of apartment units increases.

The minimum bill for flat rate water users has been increased by approximately one third to a new rate of $6.80 per year to $12.10.

Persons heating water by truck directly from the filtration plant will pay $1.90 per 1,000 gallons instead of the present $1.00.

For many years all new water heaters have been installed free of the meter tyre, but there are still approximately 5,000 of these heaters in the older part of the city.

INCREASED COSTS REASON

The Utilities is continuing its program of converting all flat rate services to meters and expects to have the change-over completed in another five years.

Increasing costs of distribution, rather than cost of power, are the reason for the new rate increases, according to the commissioners.

Power costs to the Utilities have gone up more in the past 11 years, while extension of the water distribution system and the new filtration plant at the junction plant are upping water costs.

Further water main extensions are being done this year to provide water services in the outlying areas and a new chemical building is to be erected to aid in the clarification of city water supplies.

Extension of the filtration plant itself will be necessary by 1967 will cost about $1,000,000 it is stated.

Bell's Ownership of Northern Electric Co. Under Scrutiny

OTTAWA (CP) — The Bell Telephone Co. of Canada's ownership of Northern Electric Co., a manufacturing sideline with sales topping $300,000,000 a year, came under close scrutiny Thursday before the board of transport commissioners.

One lawyer appearing at the hearing said a Bell witness off guard by suggesting that Northern won an overseas contract by cutting its price lower than the one it charges Bell.

R. A. Smith of Toronto, representing Industrial Wire and Cable Co., said in a recent sale of electrical cable to the Federal Machinery Co. at Bangkok, Thailand, was substantially under the cost to Bell.

Alex G. Lester, Bell's engineering vice - president, said he didn't know of the case but suggested any price differences may have been due to exchange rates or the 11-per-cent federal sales tax which doesn't apply to foreign purchases.

Mr. Smith said his information was that these factors had already been discounted.

Under the Bell-Northern contract, all sales of equipment to Bell must be at or under the prices Northern charges non-Bell customers. The telephone company bought $167,000,000 worth of gear from Northern in Northern's last year, 83 per cent of total Northern sales.

The hearing, which opened May 4, was ordered by the board as a review of Bell's application for rate increases, unchanged since 1950 although the big Ontario - Quebec telephone utility has been exceeding the permissive level for six years.

Lovell Carroll of Montreal, lawyer for 105 Ontario and Quebec municipalities, criticized Northern's retained earnings of $53,700,000. It was possible that Bell could "gain off" Northern shares to Bell stockholders and give them this money without any benefit to telephone subscribers.

He also wondered why Northern was not able to produce figures to show the rate of profit it makes on sales to Bell.

White Cane Club Entertained by U.C.W. Committee

Members of the White Cane Club were their second town guests on Tuesday evening of the Citizenship and Social Action committee of the UCW of Bridge Street Church.

The meeting opened with the singing of the hymn "Fairest Lord Jesus" with Mrs. Alex Gordon presided at the piano.

In the absence of the Rev. H. M. Davis, Mr. Gordon extended a warm welcome to the visitors. Mrs. Hannaford Reid, accompanied by Mr. Gordon at the piano delighted the audience with three lovely solos.

Miss Helen Salmon in her inimitable manner gave a humorous reading.

Mr. George Zimmerle voiced appreciation of the club for the entertainment afforded them. He is said to possess all kinds, and of the keyboard and stops. He demonstrated the different stops which produced sounds of this instrument, and answered many questions. The group was then treated to a delightful selections at the organ.

In the Sunday School auditorium Mrs. Neil O'Neil and her committee served delicious refreshments which Ted Rowe thanked those responsible.

President of the White Cane Club, Helen Wardhaugh, thanked the members of the Kingsmill Circle for their hospitality and all who had contributed so generously to making the evening so enjoyable.

Toronto to See Folklore Show

Before they embark on their international tour and the Confederation Festivals in Great Britain, the Canadian National Folk Ensemble, Les Feux Follets, have planned a Canadian coast to coast tour which includes Toronto. It promises to be one of the most imaginative Canadian cultural demonstrations ever presented in Ontario's capital city.

This Canadian Mosaic will be presented at O'Keefe Centre from May 24 to May 29 and will be a most entertaining show as well as a lesson in Canada's history.

Everyone knows what the word "folklore" means: customs and traditions, the songs and dances of a land show the cultural riches of a nation. With this in mind Jacques Cartier, founder and artistic director of Les Feux Follets, will present his production to Canadians as well as other nations of the world. A most vital message from a young and dynamic country which can also boast a rich history in social and human activities.

The dancers come from everywhere in Canada. Musicians present their respective musical traditions. The chorus learned songs and ballads from many different ethnic groups living in Canada. Costumes and choreography needed long research throughout Canada and the colorful settings were designed and often made by people of the different ethnic groups as well as by members of Les Feux Follets.

The company is using the services of well known dance and music instructors. It will be the first time in the history of Canada that a show of this kind is entirely Canadian.

Kiwanians Asked To Preserve Their Heritage

At the Monday evening meeting of the Quinte Kiwanis Club Roger Gregg of Moira Secondary School addressed the group on the subject of Preservation and advised the Kiwanis to use their influence to retain Belleville's link with the past and thus preserve at least some part of our Loyalist heritage. Mr. Gregg's talk centred around the preservation of old buildings in the city and he suggested that a type of Upper Canada Village could be established at the lower end of Front Street as a tourist attraction. The speaker pointed out that Belleville was well endowed with natural resources and historic sites but these were being sacrificed at what is construed as progress. The excellent harbor and the natural beauty of the Moira River are taken for granted but with a little imagination and initiative the resources could be used to attract many visitors to this city.

The speaker was introduced by John King and appreciation expressed by Al Martin.

Guests were Harold Marana, Lieut.-Governor, Cap Davis, Bob Abel of the Kingston Club, Dick Lumbers and Ross Wright of the Bells Corners Club.

George Rowan, past-president, Quinte Kiwanis, attended an Emergency Measures Organization meeting at Ottawa as a representative of the city of Belleville, George also attended a Natural Resources, Parks Conservation and Tourism meeting in Ottawa representing the city.

Traffic Club Hears Talk On Customs

The story of customs collections ancient times down to the present, together with a detailed account of the modern day customs procedures was outlined this week to the Quinte Traffic Club.

Mr. L. G. Leonard, collector of customs and excise for Belleville, as guest speaker told the traffic club members that customs is one of the oldest forms of public revenue with a history dating back thousands of years before Christ.

The system as it stands today has been built on the experience of centuries, he said.

The speaker said there was reference to customs in the scriptures even before St. Matthew while in the days of the Roman Empire "portoria" as customs was then known, were payable on imports and exports at the different ports.

It is said that customs derived their name from having been customarily imposed on certain articles sold publicly at markets or highways within the kingdom and on domestic or foreign goods exported from or imported into the kingdom.

IMPORTANT FUNCTION

Today customs is a highly specialized and important function in the overall national economy.

Mr. Leonard said that customs duties, like all imposts on particular commodities, though paid originally by the importer or merchant, are passed on to the consumer.

But export duties have a tendency to stifle foreign trade and mainly because of this they are not collected in Canada today.

Mr. Leonard explained the different types of importations such as marine ports, border ports and inland ports and the procedures and controls followed to get shipments cleared.

The speaker was introduced by Bill Krhin, CNE, and thanked by Eric Hillyer, Quaker Oats, Co., Bill Old, club president, presided over the meeting.

L. G. McBrien of Mead Johnson Heads Purchasing Agents' Body

The annual general meeting of the Purchasing Agents' Association of Eastern Ontario was held in the Sun Valley Motor Inn here on Wednesday. Thirty members of the Association and their guests attended, representing industries and institutions from Trenton to Brockville.

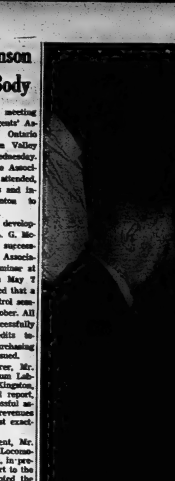
The professional development chairman, Mr. L. G. McBrien, reported on the successful completion of the Association's cost analysis seminar at Queen's University on May 7 and 8 last and intimated that a four-day inventory control seminar is planned for October. All these seminars, if successfully completed, carry credits towards the National Purchasing Diploma now being issued.

The secretary-treasurer, Mr. K. H. Moran, Aluminium Laboratories Limited, Kingston, presented the financial report, indicating a very successful association year with revenues and expenditures almost exactly balanced.

The outgoing president, Mr. R. H. Davis, Canadian Locomotive Company, Kingston, in presenting his annual report to the membership, complimented the committees on membership, education, public relations, program and professional development on their activities during the year. He remarked that the association generally was in an extremely healthy state and would continue to prosper as its efforts were concentrated on the continuing professional education of its members.

OFFICERS ELECTED

The slate of incoming officers was presented by the chairman of the nominating committee, Mr. M. R. Warren, Canadian Company of Canada, Kingston, and was duly accepted. Officers are:



President, L. G. McBrien, Mead Johnson Company of Canada Limited, Belleville; vice-president, B. J. Oswald, Aluminum Laboratories Limited, Kingston; secretary-treasurer, K. H. Moran, Aluminium Laboratories Limited, Kingston; directors, W. Foan, Brookfield Generals, Malvland; T. W. Kelly, Queen's University, Kingston; E. W. Thomson, Royalite Metal Furniture Company Limited, Smith's Falls; E. E. Palmer, Northern Electric Company Limited, Belleville; director of the Canadian Association of Purchasing Agents, R. H. Davis, Canadian Locomotive Company, Kingston.

The new Executive was formally installed by past president Herb Burley, International Hardware of Canada, Belleville. President L. G. McBrien, in accepting office, paid tribute to the work of the outgoing President R. H. Davis and presented him with his Past President's pin. He pledged himself and his Executive to the continuation of the Association's endeavors in the field of professional development.

The meeting concluded with an interesting new film on "The British Isles."

The next meeting of the Association will be held in September.

Attending from the Belleville area were: E. E. Palmer, Northern Electric Company Limited; H. M. Burley, International Hardware of Canada; D. A. Laundry, Wilson Concrete Products; F. W. Newman, Stewart-Warner Corp. of Canada Limited; B. Nickson, Corbyville.

Seated at Telex, Acting Chief R. J. Rutherford, and standing, Sgt. Gordon Steenburg and Plainclothesman Sidney Vickers watch messages being typed out by the machine.

'Telex' Installed, Working At Police Dept. Office

TRENTON — The Trenton police department now has its new telecommunications hook up with other departments in the province, the "Telex," installed and working.

Messages are being received every hour on the hour from Ontario Provincial Police headquarters and periodically, messages from, or earmarked for the attention of Metro Toronto Police are relayed.

A sample at 3 p.m. yesterday, told police across the province of stolen cars having been recovered in Saskatchewan, Stayner, Ont., and Metro.

Telex types at the rate of 66 words a minute, and has become a nine days' wonder with members of the local force and visitors who chance to drop in to the office. But the chief reason the amazing machine is welcomed by the officers is the saving in time when checking details of car ownership or in dealing with serious types of crime. Telex can put the local police in touch with any department in Ontario, but messages for outside the province must go through the Toronto headquarters.

Underwriters Hear Director

The sponsoring of a professional attitude among members of the Life Underwriters Association of Canada was stressed here by J. Kuehn, C. L. U. of Ottawa, National Director of the Life Underwriters Association.

Speaking to local members at a luncheon meeting at Johnny's Restaurant, Mr Kuehn, reiterated the importance of the association's comprehensive five-year training and educational program and business ethics. Mr. Kuehn was making an "official visit" to Belleville, one of the six communities in Eastern Ontario in which life underwriters associations are organized. He represents the more than 600 members in Eastern Ontario, of which 76 are members here.

"Any professional association" he said, "naturally wishes to advance the interests of its members, but it is very important that life underwriters recognized a long time ago that the public interest was all-important. The tradition that the life underwriter's first business responsibility is to his clients is the cornerstone of professional integrity which the association has striven to develop over the past 60 years."

Mr. Kuehn was introduced by James Barnett C. L. U. and thanked by Roger Nese. Chairman of the meeting was James Barnett, C. L. U., local association president.

Crown Vetch Will Be Used To Seed Slopes

TRENTON—The members of the Trenton Board of Parks' Management had a "fiery tour" meeting at the Stanley Heights Park (the former gravel pit partially filled in by the sanitary landfill method by town council last autumn), on Wednesday, and afterwards decided to invest $4,000 by hiring Aero-Con Ltd. of Toronto to seed the slopes and bottoms of the pit with Crown Vetch. This plant, which grows the first year of planting to a height of a foot, and decreases in height as time goes on, is an erosion control plant. By seeding Crown Vetch, the board hopes to do away with sand blowing out of the pit and into the surrounding homes. Grass seed will be sown with Crown Vetch on the bottom of the pit.

The Crown Vetch sports a little pink flower, which stays in bloom fairly well all summer, and thus will prove decorative as well as useful. The plant is not overly "scratchy" and children will be able to play in the park without suffering welts to their legs.

A special machine, geared to sow seed at a 50 degree angle, will be in the area within a week or so, and the plants should be up by early July. It will be more economical to plant the vetch than grass seed as in the case of the latter, loam would have to be spread first.

Only part of the pit (the largest part) will be sown this year, as there is still need of sloping and bulldozing work at one end of the pit. This work will be done this year and the unsown patch will be completed next year.

Firecrackers Blamed for Blaze Quickly Quelled by Firemen

Children tossed firecrackers on the rear roof and along the base of a downtown appliance store last night — and the result was a general fire alarm.

Firemen, however, quickly joined battle with the blaze, at the rear of Booth Radio and TV store on Front Street, confining actual store damage to smoke, water, and a glass front door fractured by firemen.

Fire chief Ted Poste blamed the outbreak on firecrackers. Youngsters were seen tossing the crackers in the area shortly before an office worker spotted the fire from the west side of the Moira River.

Miss Nakamura Will Speak On Koreans

TRENTON — Miss Tamiko Nakamura, a young woman of Canadian - Japanese parentage, who has worked among the Koreans in Japan, will be the guest speaker at the morning service in St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church on Sunday. Miss Nakamura was born of Japanese parents in the city of Vancouver, British Columbia. After graduating from high school in Vancouver, she attended Teachers' College and then taught in the primary grades for five years.

Miss Nakamura was converted to Christianity during her term of teaching and hearing the call of the Lord, she entered Ewart College, Toronto to prepare for her life's work. After graduating in 1950, Miss Nakamura served for two years in the Ministry of Westminster, in British Columbia. In 1961 she went to Japan to serve as Secretary for Christian Education in the Korean Christian Church. These Koreans were brought to Japan as laborers during the Japanese domination of their homeland. Some came as students, or business people and settled in Japan. Koreans in Japan are regarded as aliens, even though some are born in Japan or are residents for many years in their adopted country.

For the evening service of worship at 7.00 p.m. the minister, the Rev. Douglas A. Wilson, B.A., will speak on the subject "A Wishing Well and a Magic Lamp." Friends of the congregation and ministers are welcomed to both of these services.

2,000 Brochures Handed Out At Boat Show

TRENTON — Secretary-manager of the Trenton Chamber of Commerce, Nostrand Sprague, says that more than 2,000 brochures on Trenton at a recent boat show in Buffalo, N.Y. He says that 1,500 brochures have been mailed out to U.S. residents, yacht clubs and chambers, but that there still more brochures have been handed out at sportsmen's shows in Hamilton and Cleveland. Many American tourists have already signified that they intend to spend a week visiting Trenton this season and the chamber manager is looking forward to a busy summer for the tourist information booth, at the foot of Farley's Hill, is due to open July 1.

Mr. Sprague, commenting on the current membership campaign, says in a report that this week that many members have not paid their membership. He points out that the money realized from the membership drive is necessary to carry on the work of the chamber, which is done for the benefit of all Trenton citizens but which is of particular benefit to businessmen.

In the report, Mr. Sprague has a warning for Trenton housewives not to sign contracts with out-of-town firms without first consulting with the chamber about the firm's status.

"They sign first, get hooked . . . then expect the chamber to get them out of the situation," says Mr. Sprague, "my advice is to call the chamber first, not afterwards."

Sick Children's Hospital Finds Fund-raising Slow

TORONTO — The Jack-and-the-Beanstalk indicator in front of The Hospital for Sick Children registered another million dollars today—and Jack is now more in-debt the way to $13,900,000 building fund goal.

"The gain is encouraging, but it's not nearly enough," said C. L. Gundy, general chairman of the Hospital's appeal. "At this stage of the campaign we should be at $8,000,000 or more. Instead, we have only reached 84½ million".

When the public phase of the drive opened on April 26, the 30-foot high beanstalk indicator registered $3,000,000; the result of early canvassing of leading corporations. The total went up to $3,500,000 a week later, on May 4, and now an additional million dollars brings it to $4,500,000.

"This means we still have more than $9,000,000 to go," said Gundy. "That is more than $2,000,000 each week in the four weeks left in the public campaign".

CANVASSING

Canvassing is now under way in all divisions of the campaign organization, which numbers over 1,000 volunteer canvassers, and canvassers are being urged to go all out to clean up their each week in the four weeks left in the public campaign".

DISAPPOINTING RESPONSE

The response of the general public, according to the campaign chairman, has been rather disappointing. "Despite widespread help from the newspapers, broadcasting, and television media in publicizing the Hospital's needs, we have not yet started to get anything like the required flow of donations," he said.

As to the reason for the lack of public response, Mr. Gundy felt it was in no way due to apathy. "On the contrary," he stated, "We have every reason to believe that the public is very sympathetic to the Sick Children's Hospital, and it may be that this is working against us in the campaign. It would be tragic if the Hospital failed to get the funds it needs, because people thought, 'They'll get along all right without my help.' That is just not so. Everyone's help is needed in a multi-million dollar campaign like this one."

FIVE YEAR PLEDGES

Mr. Gundy stressed the need for pledges of future support, as well as for present donations. "It is no longer possible", he said, "to raise large sums like this on the basis of our right - gifts. Even the largest corporations are now adopting the five - year pledge in order to give adequate support to major capital fund needs for health and education. What applies to them is equally true, I believe for the average citizen.

"Even three or four dollars", he added, "becomes a sizeable gift when it's multiplied by five".

The campaign chairman again emphasized the fact that the door-to-door canvass is planned, and that the public is therefore urged to send their donations direct to the Hospital for Sick Children by mail, or to leave them at any chartered bank branch in Ontario.

MEMBER COMPLIMS

OTTAWA (CP) — Delegates to the current youth conference on unemployment were chosen by their respective provincial governments, Health Minister Judy LaMarsh said Thursday. She made the statement in the Commons after J. G. McIntt (PC — Bonavista - Twillingate) complained that all Ontario delegates are from the Ottawa-Cornwall area and there are no farm representatives from tobacco - growing regions in either Ontario or Quebec.

Killex kills more lawn weeds than any other lawn treatment

We guarantee it.

Used as directed, Green Cross Killex guarantees results—or we will refund the full purchase price.

We can make this guarantee because Killex contains a triple combination of components which kill more than 30 lawn weeds than any other lawn treatment. Even when famous 2,4-D has failed, Killex has provided outstanding control over such problem lawn weeds as Chickweed, Clover, Bedstraw, Black Medick, Heal-all, Ground Ivy, Knotweed, Shepherd's Purse, and of course Dandelions and Plantains.

Killex is economical, too. One ounce of Killex in one gallon of water will cover from 250 sq. ft. of lawn. Yet for all its effectiveness, Killex is safe for all lawn grasses.

Even the best weed killers can fail sometimes, Killex is an exception.

Vermont Boosts Canada

When Prime Minister Pearson was in Vermont recently he was awarded an honorary degree by the state university for his work in foreign affairs.

His visit set the seal on a new study course on Canada being offered by the university. The course, called the Canadian Area Studies Program, leads to a Bachelor of Arts degree for the 30 students enrolled this year.

According to The Montreal Gazette, the study program is the latest of three on area studies at the university; the others are Latin America, and Russia and Eastern Europe. It is under the direction of a transplanted Canadian, Prof. E. J. Miles.

"It seemed the most sensible of courses since we are only two hours away from Montreal, the cultural centre of Canada, and only five hours from the country's capital city," Prof. Miles was quoted as saying.

Many of the students are of Canadian and particularly French-Canadian extraction, and the university's faculty includes 23 members who are either Canadians or were educated in Canada.

Prof. Miles said that "in these days of multiplying programs in foreign areas at American universities the neglect of Canada is obvious and distressing." Vermont, he added, was in an advantageous position to remedy this neglect.

Another significant contribution being made by the university to an improved knowledge is the fact it was recently declared a depository for Canadian historical documents by the Pearson government.

The university is in Burlington. Second in the United States to be established by state legislative action, in 1791, it overlooks the Green Mountains to the east and the Adirondacks of New York State to the west.

Still Victimized

Never in history have a people had the right to be so ravaged as against another people as have the Jews against the Nazi butchers.

The slaughter of six million Jews is the most atrocious event ever attributed to mankind.

Yet there is still something depressing about the stories we read about the relentless search for the ex-Nazis, most of whom seem to have taken refuge in Egypt, South America and a few other areas scattered here and there around the globe.

When one reads that, "most of the thousand ex-Nazis . . . are still the targets of a continuing, world-wide manhunt by grim, determined professionals and volunteers who devote their lives to catching Nazis," one must excuse the spine for tingling ever so gently. '

The question arises: Are not the people who are devoting their whole lives to vengeance, themselves still being victimized, even today, by Nazi atrocities? Heaven knows they have justification to spare for what they are doing, but by so doing they are destroying their own chances of living a normal life.

The whole problem brings to mind the old maxim that two wrongs do not make a right. And even though the wrongs committed by the Nazis were so dastardly as to be completely unforgivable, to hunt them down with a vengeance, with a live, recognizable hate, seems to put our ideas of justice a bit askew.

The world knows of the atrocities of the Nazis and should justly be kept aware of them. But it seems these grim, determined hunters would be better off leading normal lives, while at the same time holding dear the memories of those persons who were so brutally murdered under the Hitler regime. For a man to spend every minute of his existence in a relentless search for revenge in the name of justice seems to come perilously close to dragging him down to the level of the Nazis' own appetite for hate.

Knowledge and skill, of course, have always been human attributes of the highest importance, but today they have become the most valuable economic asset of any people—more valuable than raw materials, natural resources or animal energy. Today the most spectacular advances are based not on massive material wealth, but on the application of superior knowledge, technical competence, and organizational ability. This means, of course, that even from the narrowest financial standpoint, the highest returns are to be obtained from investment in education, training and research.—Dr. John J. Deutsch, Chairman, Economic Council of Canada.

Classic Red Tape Example

A few years ago the journal of the British Airborne Forces printed the following classic on army red tape. It tells of an officer who wished to drive on leave in a posh car in Cyprus and is relevant to this day because of the presence in that troubled island of Canadian U.N. troops.

Written in clipped, no-nonsense fashion, the memorandum comes rather garbled as it passed through Ishmaeli.

Here it is, from "Pegasus," the airborne journal:

From Major Lacy, RHQ The Parachute Regt., Aldershot, to Major Swallow, HQ Parachute Brigade, Cyprus.

Dear Graham,

We have a new officer, Barton, for the 6th battalion. He wants to come out to you overland and bring his car with him. It is a Morris, RF 1852. Is this all right? Yours ever, John.

• • •

From Headquarters, Parachute Brigade, to GHQ Middle East.

Please say whether private car and driver RF 1852 can be brought to Cyprus by Capt. Barton, 4 Para R.

From GHQ Middle East to the War Office.

Understood Capt. B. Barton 4 Para R. proceed to bring No. 1852 Pte. Carr Maurice. Please ensure that Carr is Para trained.

• • •

From the War Office to Officer i/c Records, Exeter.

Subject: Parachute volunteer No. 1852 Pte. M. Carr, Royal Fusiliers. Priority is given for the above named soldier to proceed on parachute course No. 13/65 at the Airborne Forces depot for drafting to MELF (Middle East Land Forces) at the request of HQ Para Brigade. (Signed) J. Harvey, Capt.

• • •

From Officer i/c Records, Exeter, to HHQ The Parachute Regt., Aldershot.

Understand you want to send Carr abroad with Barton. Have no record here. Send particulars of Carr, stating age and whether fit for overseas.

From HHQ The Parachute Regt. to Records, Exeter.

Did not know you dealt with this sort of thing. Carr was registered in Clapham in 1939. He is in bad state and liable to breakdown. Unlikely to survive journey but Barton is prepared to take risk. Car only goes ten miles to the gallon.

From Records, Exeter, to the Ministry of Labor, Clapham.

Subject Parachutist enlistment. Parachute Regt. have a Pte. Maurice Carr, Royal Fusiliers. Born in Clapham, 1920. Have no record of this soldier. Parachute Regt. admit he has record of breakdowns, is heavy drinker and unfit for overseas service. This man should not be in the army. Can you trace his call-up # any?

From the Hon. Member for Clapham East to Rt. Hon. the Secretary of State for War.

Dear Jack,

This is to give notice that I intend to table a Question in the House about another outrageous case that has come to my notice.

It concerns a very worthy member of my constituency, a Private Maurice Carr whom I have known since boyhood. This young man, although he requires treatment for alcoholism and is prone to suffer from nervous breakdowns, is being forced to go abroad, although his regimental medical he unlikely to survive the climate.

I warn you etc, etc.

From the Rt. Hon. Member (branch unknown) to RHQ The Parachute Regt.

Immediate. Subject is ministerial enquiry in case of Pte. M. Carr. Send full report. His will not accept not be sent overseas. Meanwhile full explanation . . . disciplinary action . . . punishment . . . etc, etc.

• • •

From Major Lacy, RHQ The Parachute Regiment, Aldershot, HQ Parachute Brigade, Cyprus.

Dear Graham,

Sorry not to have written lately, but we have been busy over a most extraordinary misunderstanding with the War Office.

This is just to remind you that you haven't let me know the answer about Barton's motor car. I hope you will do so soon.

Your paper is becoming more interesting all the time.

You have had a series of articles that I have enjoyed reading. They are not just the news items of the day, which are read and soon forgotten. These articles are educational.

Some of them have been: Joan Begg—"Historic Ivory"; John Best's Russian "Dollar Story"; The Women's organizations series and the editorials, too, have taken on a sparkle.

I found myself laughing out loud while reading the editorial on the lemonade girls.

In one editorial under the title "An unsmiling People" Peter Opie was quoted as saying, "I did not find women of our civilization would smile at each other and be able to do so without necessarily obligating themselves in any way."

This is a good idea. Also, let us give a compliment when one is due. We are so quick to speak our minds and forget just praise.

So Mr. Editor and staff congratulations for the "Ontell" is more interesting than ever.

British police forcibly removed Gerhart Eisler, a 52-year - old German charged with perjury in the United States, from the Polish liner Batory 18 miles at sea today —In 1949—when the vessel reached London. Eisler, a senior Communist since the 1920s, had jumped $23,500 bail in New York, where he had been questioned in a subversion inquiry. When U.S. lawyers applied for his extradition, Eisler was freed because guilt of the charge could not be proved in Britain, and he flew to Czechoslovakia May 31.

Humanity's Ingratitude Knows Deep

By SYDNEY J. HARRIS

During last month's floods and tornadoes, I happened to be in Indiana, travelling through some of the hardest-hit counties. And a terrible thought occurred to me.

I thought how good and useful such acts of nature could be, combined with the acts of man against man. The acts of nature arouse our compassion, our cooperation, our finest instincts of succor and solidarity.

What if a merciful God decided that the only way man could be saved from exterminating himself was by uniting worldwide floods and tornadoes? This would harm some, of course — but only a fraction compared with the damage that would be done by one thermonuclear bomb released anywhere in the world.

What if the mighty nations of the world were busy fighting not each other but the ravages of nature? What if each country were forced to expend its energy and manpower and resources on building dikes and restoring homes and putting up new power lines?

If floods were over-running Russia and China, they would be sympathetic and as helpful as possible to the victims — for we would consider them simply as men, women and children facing a catastrophe common to all of us. They would not be Russians or Chinese, but people.

In a war, however, facing a catastrophe a thousandfold worse, created not by nature but by man, they would be considered simply as the Enemy — and we would rejoice at their devastation and destruction. For it is war, and war alone, that depersonalizes the other, that dehumanizes tragedy and makes it an occasion for rejoicing rather than for helping.

Is it not the supreme irony of mankind that we seem capable of living together and working together in brotherly fashion only when an enemy greater than all of us appears; when the forces of nature strike their paralyzing blows, we unite until the crisis is over, and declare a truce in the hot, cold, or tepid wars that are continually erupting across the globe.

Yet, these paralyzing blows, these crises of flood or fire or earthquake are nothing near as cataclysmic as the damage we do to one another, periodically, systematically, relentlessly, promiscuously. It is as though we rushed to save a man with a bloody nose, and then buried him into a pit of venomous snakes.

"How awfull How awfull" President Johnson murmured, as he toured the flood areas. Awful — but only a flea - bite compared with the potentiality of the great nations to wreak havoc upon one another. What is really awful is mankind's unwillingness to stretch out the hand until nature's fury has, for a short time, made neighbors of us all.

Improvements in Surgery Outlined to Man of Ninety

By JOSEPH G. MOLNER, M.D.

Dear Dr. Molner: I am 90 and have a serious case of prostate gland trouble. Can anything be done without an operation? Do you think surgery is safe for a man my age? — W. A. C.

This question is raised rather often, because severe prostate trouble usually, although not always, tends to develop around middle age or later.

Operations for removal of the prostate are performed successfully on men your age.

In milder cases of prostate enlargement, ordinarily occurring earlier in life, massage and other treatments often help to get the organ back into adequate behavior.

But when the enlargement is severe and threatens to obstruct urine flow, there is no way of relieving it other than by surgery.

I have always pointed out that no operation is wholly without possible risk. Even the anesthesia may be dangerous for some patients. However, this may be true in only a fraction of one percent. The care and skill of modern anesthesiologists keep this risk at a very small figure.

In addition, techniques of surgery have constantly improved — little by little the safest methods have been developed.

Use of blood transfusions, if needed, prevent shock; antibiotics and sterile operating-room techniques keep the risk of infection low; a whole new art of post-operative nursing and medical care has developed.

Surgery today is vastly safer than it was only a generation ago. And still another factor is that we have learned more about preparing a patient for surgery beforehand. All of these improvements added together show why men and women in their 90s safely undergo operations which would have been less safe 25 years ago for patients who were far younger.

So much for the operation. Now, what might happen if you don't have the operation? The dangers, with an enlarged prostate, can be great. First is complete obstruction of urinary flow — which means that surgery is then absolutely necessary, and it must be done at once, and the danger is much greater because even an interruption for a short time of urine flow weakens you by allowing impurities to accumulate through kidney damage. Second, there is a continued danger of infection developing in the prostate as well as in the kidneys. And third, even if neither of these dangers develops, much of the interruption in your rest at night because the enlarged prostate does not let you empty the bladder adequately, so you have to keep getting up.

Dear Dr. Molner: Could you tell me (yes or no) if a belt type reducing machine is harmful for legs with varicose veins? — Mrs. W. N.

Yes. Harmful.

Dear Dr. Molner: X-rays show a cluster of stones in my pancreas. Is there any diet or treatment to remedy this? The trouble began in 1957. Sometimes I have intense pain, which subsides and then recurs. — R.A.C.

There isn't any diet for this, but remember that stones can occur in virtually any of the secreting glands: the pancreas, salivary glands, prostate, and others and not just in the gall bladder or kidneys.

For stones in the pancreas, alcohol should be avoided completely. Meals should be small in volume. Gall bladder trouble often is associated with stones in the pancreas. Therefore, the gall bladder should be examined, too.

Speedometers Read Too High

Financial Post

Consider the automakers of Canada and the U.S. and mourn their plight. They are in the speedometer business. Right on the police of both countries are in the business of controlling speed.

Now pleasing both the speed hungry public and the speed-conscious police is obviously a difficult and considerable size.

But the automakers found a solution and everyone who drives a car will have a deep personal interest in knowing how.

Speedometers, the U.S. Bureau of Standards recently discovered, register at least 3% too much mileage. Highway officials, they were told, encouraged U.S. automakers to provide slightly high speed readings on the grounds that these would provide a built-in safety factor. This has the added advantage of making gas consumption appear somewhat better as well.

It is true that it is extremely difficult technically to provide 100% accuracy in speedometers. But apparently it is possible to cut the margin of error very substantially.

That would seem to be the case in Canada which imports most of its speedometers from U.S. It appears that, during the testing of speedometers in Canada-built cars, those in the cars destined for the police are adjusted to close accuracy. Very possibly most other drivers who exceed the speed limit modestly are really right on it.

Clearly, if the automakers now want to continue to do some more illusion - making, there is only one alternative left. Install kilometers and when the speed is 60 mph, the speedometers will read a devilish 96.

Speeding drivers, however, won't for much longer be innocent sinners. U.S. auto manufacturers are now installing speedometers calibrated for more accurate readings. Probably their Canadian subsidiaries are following their example.

Those who can laugh at themselves for being taken in probably won't object to the relatively innocent hoky-pokey between the manufacturers and the police.

But accurate speedometers are a dainty improvement — especially for those who use rented cars.

Farmers and urban gardeners may boast about records established in early planting and growth of spring crops, but "Scotty" Wilson has one for the little red hoe.

For "Scotty" is digging potatoes from his garden which average the size of a large Northern Spy. The only catch to the fact is that the spuds were planted in the Spring of 1944, but that doesn't deter from their edibility.

Apparently "Scotty" missed two rows while digging his potatoes last fall, and the heavy fall of snow and lack of frost in the ground left only Cobblers in good condition.

Furthermore, 12 heads of cabbage appeared after the spring weather had melted away their heavy snow covering, and the interiors of the cabbages were found to be hard, devoid of frost and were used on the Wiener table.

The old building on the southwest corner of Campbell and Front Streets is being wrecked and on the site a handsome business block will be erected for the Canadian Bank of Commerce.

The Rev. Father Corrigan of Stirling, who recently will leave here shortly to reside in Brockville, was presented with an address and a purse containing a substantial sum of money in gold, at a recent meeting of the members of the St. Alphonsus Society in connection with the parish. The address was read by Mr. Jas. Butler and the presentation was made by Mr. J.V. Tynaldo.

At the meeting of the Belleville Cheese Board, cheese sold at 13-16 cents; that is the highest price ever paid here. There were 1575 boxes of cheese boarded. The buyers were Mark Sprague, Thomas H. Thompson, A. J. Alexander, W. H. Morton and Cook and Son.

Parking Authority Forgot

There's good news tonight — but for the city's parking authority!

Recently, a swarm of summonses was issued ignorant persons who refused to honor registered and pay the regulation 50-cent overtime parking time.

Only they hadn't! (Refused to pay the fine, that is).

What happened was this, say police:

Recently the authority installed a new street deposit box for the fine envelopes on its riverside parking lot. The only trouble was, someone forgot to inform the city treasury — responsible for emptying the box.

So people kept getting fined, kept depositing their 50 cents worth — and the uncollected money kept piling up and up.

Police investigated after an irate driver showed up with a $4.50 summons — and the receipt tab from the fine envelope.

The box, said an officer, was so crammed full of envelopes there just wasn't room for one more fine.

Meantime, a total of 18 summonses had been issued for parking infractions.

This morning, Inspector Ralph Blatchford revealed the story as he explained to Magistrate F. Y. Wills why a lengthy series of charges on the day's docket should be withdrawn!

Pleads Own Case on Charge

A Belleville man, jailed two months for drunkenness, today protested he was the victim of prejudice by prosecutors.

The complaint of Orville McDonald was linked to escalation of penalties under Ontario's Liquor Control Act, which ranges from a minimum of one week for first offenders. Second and third offences bring increasingly stiffer fines.

Mr. McDonald pleaded not guilty to the charge and conducted his own defence.

His main objection was that he had been unfairly charged with a succession of third offences.

"This is about the six third (offence) right now in a row," he told Magistrate T. Y. Wills. "There must be a prejudice here some place."

The magistrate suggested Mr. McDonald write a regulation letter seeking clemency from the Attorney-General's department.

Expansion Plan at Cement Plant Ahead of Schedule

PICTON. (Staff) — The $7,000,000 expansion program at Lake Ontario Cement Company is proceeding ahead of schedule, Operations Manager W. T. Barron said.

More than one hundred men are presently employed by the general contractors, A. E. Role of Toronto.

A welcome bit of news for many, in connection with the development, is the fact that the new kiln now being built will be equipped with an electrostatic dust collector, and this will render the new kiln almost dust free.

The two old kilns will also be similarly equipped and the materials for this are already at the site and are expected to be in operation late in August or September.

It is expected the new kiln will go into operation during the first week in June. The kiln is 12 feet in diameter and will almost double the production of the present kiln.

The second phase of the expansion program (costing $1.3 millions) three is to be another new mill and work on this will start as soon as the first phase is completed. It is expected to be completed in May of next year.

The expansion program includes new clinker-producing and grinding equipment that will double the present plant capacity.

The present expansion plan includes a new mill and related equipment and this is already under test conditions and may be producing this weekend. There is also new storage and mixing plants.

The Rural Scene

PICTON (Staff) — The first combined meeting of the Prince Edward 4-H Corn and Barley Clubs was held on May 5 at 8 p.m. in the board room of the Department of Agriculture, Picton.

The meeting was opened with the 4-H pledge. The election of officers for the Corn Club was conducted by Ken Wright and for the Barley Club by Robert Williams. The officers are as follows:

Corn Club: President, George Black; vice-president, Ron Rushton; secretary, Anne Spriggs.

Barley Club: President, Donald Welbanks; vice-president, Helen Whitehead; secretary, Donald Smith; press reporter, Howard Pulver, would act as reporter for the two clubs.

Ken Wright, leader of the Corn Club gave a talk and film on how to grow good corn. Some suggestions were: 1, plant as early as possible; 2, treat seed following instructions; 3, follow the recommendations in your corn planter's manual; 4, soil test and fertilize according.

Robert Williams, leader of the Barley Club, discussed cultural practices for barley. Garth Cubitt told us why more barley should be grown. It outyields oats in pounds per acre; is higher in TDN and feed value and is cheaper feed than oats considering feed value.

Club supplies were distributed and meeting adjourned.

Forty Comrades On Hand for 7th Reunion

PICTON (STAFF) — The seventh annual reunion of ex-members of No. 31 Bombing and Gunnery School was held recently in the Royal Canadian Legion Hall, Picton. This unit of the Royal Air Force was located at Picton Camp in the 1940's as part of the Commonwealth Air Training Plan.

Forty comrades were on hand for the occasion, some came from Toronto, Kingston, Port Hope, Milton and Stirling. A chrome plated bomb, mounted and inscribed, was presented to the Branch and accepted by Branch 78 President W. Insley. It is a replica of one sent by ex-Picton personnel from England and presented a few years ago, to the Commanding Officer of Camp Picton.

Greetings were read from the Picton Club of Gaudon, Eng. This is a very active club. The members had their tenth reunion dinner at Victoria, London on March 19th. Among those present was a former C.O. of Picton, Group Captain Cox, now Air Vice Marshall. He sent his personal good wishes to his many friends in the county. It was suggested that a stained glass window might be placed in the Chapel at Camp Picton, as project of the Association in Canada and England.

Farmers Need Rain to Boost Pasture Lands

Rain is needed in the Bay of Quinte area to give spring crops and pastures a boost, but in the northern part of Hastings conditions are reported becoming serious.

Many stock raisers barely managed to scrape through the winter with feed supplies and now as result of the late spring and lack of rain pastures are not developing as expected.

"Conditions are really serious in the north. Farmers don't know what to do," stated county dairy official E. W. Henderson.

In the south part of the county many farmers have now turned out their cattle although as in the case in the north, grass growth has not been up to normal.

All cheese factories in the county are now operating with milk volume slightly ahead of last year.

The increased cheese milk production is felt, however, to be the result of more cows, rather than more milk per cow.

MAY TINT STREETS

VANCOUVER (CP) — Traffic engineers in Vancouver are considering coloring the pavement of city streets. They suggest red paving near intersections and yellow in left-turn lanes, with green safety islands.

Not Matter Of Salaries With Teachers

PICTON (Staff) — Although a wide advertising campaign has been conducted, Prince Edward Collegiate still has several staff vacancies. Response to advertisements in Toronto, Montreal, Hamilton and Ottawa papers has been poor though it is not a matter of salaries.

The Board was told Monday night by Principal J. H. Syrett that he had sent a query to British Columbia and suggested that the Maritimes might prove a fertile field.

The board authorized expenses for Mr. Syrett to go to the Maritimes in an effort to recruit teachers.

One board member suggested a trip to Britain as a last resort.

Sunday School Lesson

"For All the People"

By CLARENCE W. CRANFORD

Recently, almost the entire world paused to pay tribute to the memory of a great man. As death sealed the lips of Winston Churchill, men remembered what stirring words those lips had spoken in a time of trial. They remembered Churchill's bull-dog courage, his implacable hatred of tyranny, his ability to inspire his nation in its fight against enslavement, his ability to coin a phrase. If, as Churchill himself suggested, in those days of resistance against Hitler, England experienced her finest hour, Churchill, more than any other man, made that finest hour possible.

The Uniform Sunday School lesson for May 16: "A Dedicated King." I Samuel 16:1-13; II Samuel 5:1-12.

In some ways, Israel experienced its finest hour under David, the greatest of her kings. Coming to the throne at the early age of 30, he ruled for 40 years as the most popular king Israel ever had. The Bible says of him that "everything that the king did pleased the people." (II Samuel 3:36). At the age of 30, he had already established himself as a courageous warrior. He went on to prove himself a wise and considerate king. Though his heart was broken by the disloyalty of his own son, he inspired unusual loyalty on the part of his men. His slightest wish was their command even if it meant risking their lives to grant it. (II Samuel 23:14-18). Though a political leader, he was deeply religious, and, like Churchill, was able to express himself in undying language. Men may not remember his battles, but they still read the Psalms that are said to have come from his hand.

PHILOSOPHY OF REIGN

Many things might be said about David, his courage, his abilities as a leader, his ability to put his faith into words, but one of the most important things about him is his concept of his reign. That concept is stated in II Samuel 5:12: "David perceived that the lord had established him king of Israel, and that he had exalted his kingdom for the sake of his people Israel." (RSV)

This says two things about David. First, though he was the ruler over Israel, he recognized that God ruled over him. And second, he recognized that government should exist for the sake of the people.

First, there is David's concept of his work. He was not king merely because of his own efforts, but because the Lord had made it possible. He must not think of his work as a means of satisfying his own ambitions, but as a way of serving the Lord.

In this David reflected the faith of Joseph. Joseph refused to believe that what had happened to him was mere chance. He said to his brothers, "So it was not you who sent me here, but God; and He has made me . . . lord over all the land of Egypt." (Genesis 45:8 RSV)

What a contrast this is to the arrogant attitude of the king of Assyria as described by the prophet Isaiah: "By the strength of my hand I have done it, and by my wisdom, for I have understanding." (Isaiah 10: 13 RSV) Like the king of Assyria many today refuse to give God the credit. They forget that God gave them their skills, and they should use them in a way that is pleasing to Him.

A college student got a job digging ditches to earn money for college. At first he hated his work. But he was a religious person. He decided to think of his work as digging ditches to the glory of God. He still got as tired, but he no longer hated his work. He once did. He tried to dig ditches that a way that would be pleasing to God.

GOVERNMENT FOR THE PEOPLE

Second, David recognized his religion must be for the good of his people. Men had not yet achieved government of the people, but David had enough sight to know that government should be for the people. He knew it should be for all the people, not just those who were successful in battle. (I Samuel 30: 22, 24) David recognized the importance of every person if the nation was to succeed; therefore all the people should share in its benefits. God did not call him to the throne for his own sake, but for the people's sake. God wanted the kingdom to be established for His people Israel. (II Samuel 7:12)

Government is not for the sake of a few, or for the advantage of one group or class, but for all the people. All the people need its protection, and all share the responsibility for its support. This is best achieved when government is of the people, by the people, and for the people, and when people recognize that they and their nation are under God.

CHIEF GIVES WARNING

TORONTO (CP)—A more vigorant policy toward bingo games would mean a quick take-over of the games by big-time gamblers, Toronto Police Chief James Mackay warned Thursday. The chief, commenting on a request by Arthur Maloney, counsel for the Knights of Columbus and Marcryt Memorial Institute, said "there is the constant threat that gamblers in Canada and the United States would move back if police eased up on bingo operations."

the week of May 3-9 government forces lost 196 killed, 383 wounded and 130 missing or captured. Four Americans were killed and 23 wounded. Viet Cong losses were put at 965 killed and 90 captured with no estimate of the wounded.

In London, British Foreign Secretary Michael Stewart told the House of Commons Britain still is pressing Russia to agree on a conference to discuss the neutrality of Cambodia. Britain and Russia were co-chairmen of the 1954 Geneva conference that ended the Indochina war.

British officials believe that if China and North Viet Nam attend such a conference, it might lead to talks on the conflict in Viet Nam. But the Chinese have refused and have given no indication they might relent.

China denounced as "preposterous" an Indian plan to end the war in Viet Nam. It calls for a halt in hostilities by both North and South Viet Nam and policing of the boundaries between them by Afro-Asian nations.

The United States said it is giving the plan "very careful consideration." But the official New China news agency called the formula a sham.

Queen Mrs. JFK At Side Dedicates Memorial

By EDDY GILMORE

RUNNYMEDE, England (AP) The Queen with Mrs. John F. Kennedy at her side today dedicated Britain's memorial to the late American president.

It was a sunny, sunny day, the hottest May day since 1953. But Mrs. Kennedy in white looked elegant and cool.

The solemn ceremonies unfolded only a short distance from the spot where the Magna Carta, with its precious liberties, was signed 750 years ago.

With the Queen's dedication, the rectangular, seven - ton memorial of Portland stone, and some of the historic ground immediately around it, became American property.

They were the gift of the British people, to millions of whom Kennedy was a revered figure, symbolizing a young and vigorous America.

ATTENDED CEREMONY

The president's widow and his two children, Caroline, 7, and John, 4, came to Britain to attend the ceremony (at 9 a.m. EDT). So did his brothers, Senator Robert and Edward Kennedy, and two of his sisters, Mrs. Stephen Smith and Mrs. Peter Lawford.

The memorial is beside the Thames River, 21 miles southwest of London.

Carved on the face of the memorial block are these words:

"This acre of English ground was given to the United States of America by the people of Britain in memory of John F. Kennedy, president of the United States 1961-63, died by an assassin's hand on November 1963."

Then follows this quotation from Kennedy's inaugural address:

"Let every nation know whether it wishes us well or ill that we shall pay any price, bear any burden, meet any hardship, support any friend or oppose any foe in order to assure the survival and success of liberty."

The caretaker at Runnymede reported earlier this week that hundreds of sightseers had visited the memorial in advance of its dedication and "a lot of them were disappointed — they expected something bigger."

Runnymede is about 100 acres of lush green meadow sloping down to the Thames.

To the west can be seen the grey towers of Windsor Castle.

June 15, 215, King John came to Runnymede to put his seal to the Magna Carta. The signing took place on Magna Carta Island, 3½ acres of gardens and trees in the Thames. On the island is a 13-room house built in 1934 by a former high sheriff of Buckinghamshire.

The stone on which the king signed the charter is in the Charter Room of the house. Around the walls of the room are the shields of the barons present at the signing.

RUSK ACCEPTS

President Johnson asked State Secretary Dean Rusk to accept the memorial on behalf of the American people.

"I do so with the joy and sadness which shall forever mark those of us who served with John Fitzgerald Kennedy," said Rusk, who also was Kennedy's state secretary.

Former prime minister Harold Macmillan, an old friend, spoke of Kennedy's assassination, saying:

"None of us will ever forget that grim November day nearly two years ago when we heard the news. Sudden, unexpected, incredible, it seemed like some fantastic fiction and as the enormities story was unfolded, we were faced with the stark finality of the fact.

"Every household seemed in mourning as if one of the family had been suddenly and tragically snatched away. It was not just a public disaster. It was equally a personal, and personal, individual grief."

EMBODIED HOPES

His voice trembling with emotion, Macmillan asked:

"Was it not because he seemed in his own person to embody all the hopes and aspirations of this new world that is struggling to emerge phoenix like from the ashes of the old?"

Following Macmillan, Prime Minister Wilson said the occasion was made more moving and memorable by the presence of Mrs. Kennedy and her children.

Wilson said Kennedy saw every man, woman and child as his neighbors. He added that "Kennedy brought magic to every occasion and act of statesmanship."

Bank

His quit after the Liberal - dominated Senate threw out the government's bill to oust him.

The bill also provides for changes in the minimum secondary reserve requirements which the central bank may require the chartered banks to keep. It drops the out-dated idea that the Bank of Canada will "pay the bearer on demand" a dollar's worth of gold for a dollar bill.

RECEPTION GUARDED

It got a guarded reception Thursday night from Conservative Marcel Lambert (Edmonton West), who said he wanted to study the legislation before commenting in detail. But New Democrat Colin Cameron (Nanaimo - Cowichan - The Islands) said he didn't require any study to welcome the provision clarifying responsibility for monetary policy.

"Now we'll know where to fire the bullets," he said.

Most of Thursday was spent not on the bank bill, but on a resolution introducing changes in the National Housing Act to increase the amount of money available for direct housing loans, urban renewal, university residence construction and public housing.

Once all the amendments will rules by some $3,600,000,000 the government's commitment through Central Mortgage and Housing Corp.

The size of the increase, however, didn't please members taking part in the debate. They spent most of their time suggesting when more money could be spent.

Victor Kitber (L — Glengarry - Prescott) expressed the view that NHA discriminates against housing construction in smaller communities. Mr. Kitber thought the treasury should put up another $50,000,000 for full-time housing minister.

Couldn't

Ontario Court of Appeal, commissioner of the investigation studying the trading of Windfall and other companies involved in the general excitement.

Commission Counsel Patrick Hartt asked Mrs. MacMillan about the relationship between their exploratory diamond drill core rank on Windfall's property near Timmins and the stock market activity.

After Mrs. MacMillan replied she could not pinpoint the relationship, Mr. Justice Kelly interposed and asked what would have happened if the company had issued a statement saying no ore was visible in the core.

After a long pause, she replied she was not sure whether she could answer that fairly now because her state of mind "was so different then."

Mr. Justice Kelly, who noted he wasn't asking about her state of mind, repeated the question and after getting an answer of don't know, suggested dirtly such a statement wouldn't have accelerated the market any much.

COULDN'T BE SLOWED

Mrs. MacMillan replied that she couldn't say: "and I could be wrong"—nothing would have slowed the market action "that day, that week or the next week."

In other questioning, Mr. Hartt led Mrs. MacMillan through 33 different accounts in various names at several brokerage houses.

Pausing several times to look closely at some of the accounts, including some in the names of companies the MacMillans controlled, she said she had opened most of them by her people at their request and had directed the trading in most of them.

Emphasizing that she personally made no money out of any of the accounts, she described the account holders as all good citizens, many friends of long standing.

"If I have done something wrong I assure you I won't again," she said at one point.

New Board To Handle Fluid Milk

TORONTO (CP)—A new Milk Act was unanimously voted the Ontario legislature after a five-hour debate in the Ontario legislature Thursday.

The act, providing for the creation of a single milk marketing board to govern the handling of all fluid milk in Ontario, was presented to the legislature last Friday by Agriculture Minister William Stewart.

Mr. Stewart said the act will be administered by a milk commission replacing the milk industry board.

While the milk producers marketing board will be responsible for the marketing of all fluid milk, the cream producers marketing board and the cheese producers marketing board will continue to operate.

SEEKS SUSPENSION

In March, a report of an inquiry conducted, headed by Prof. S. G. Hanssmore of the University of Toronto, recommended the suspension or removal of the authority of the cheese board's chairman and directors.

The report said the board was dominated by one man and provided misleading financial statements.

Mr. Stewart approved of the cheese board's action in selling their powers to control sales. He suggested that the knowledge of the Ontario cheese board should be used in promoting export sale of both Quebec and Ontario cheese.

Mr. Stewart also told the legislature he thought the formula system for pricing milk for manufacturing remain at least until the marketing board is set up. It might then be decided that the formula is still needed, he said.

The formula, based on firm-set prices and other economic factors, has been used since 1954 in making changes in payments to farmers.

History of W.C.A. Outlined At 85th Annual Meeting

On the occasion of the 85th annual meeting of the Women's Christian Association, the board met at the home of Mrs. E. Hickey with the president, Mrs. K. Rose presiding.

In the business meeting which followed, the recording secretary read a summary of the year's accomplishments and proceedings. Mr. A. E. Purdy, chairman of the property committee, reported on renovations, decorations and improvements to the Residence at 38 Highland Ave.

Mrs. Hickey, treasurer, gave a detailed financial report, showing sources of assets, and an accounting of disbursements for the past year, and stated that the W.C.A. has operated the Residence successfully for nine years.

Mrs. H. Thompson, welfare convener, read her report showing the disbursements of the Lucky Order, which brought cheer and comfort to many of Belleville's needy citizens. During the year, a turkey luncheon, Mrs. R. Carmichael passed away.

Since new members have been acquired in the last few years, who are not familiar with the history of the organization, one meeting each year is usually devoted to a study of the history of the Women's Christian Association.

OPEN HOSPITAL

Mrs. Hickey gave a detailed report of its accomplishments since it was established. The women decided in 1879 that Belleville needed a hospital, and persisted in their efforts until it was built and the Belleville General Hospital opened its doors in 1886.

It was the first Canadian hospital to be built, owned and operated entirely by women.

The Women's Christian Association is the only organization of its kind in Canada. It is incorporated by the province of Ontario and has a charter to carry on philanthropic work.

New members of the W.C.A. was Mrs. D. R. Jacques, wife of the principal of Albert College. She died recently, a few months and was succeeded by Mrs. Nathan Jones.

CARE OF FRIENDLESS

A small area of the hospital was set aside for the care of the friendless. With the opening need the W.C.A. purchased a stone house on West Moira Street to be known as the "Home for Friendless". Later, this was sold and in 1921 they bought the Herchimer property on East Dundas Street as "The Home for the Aged" and operated the home there until the disastrous fire in 1946.

On June 10, the W.C.A. Home at 38 Highland Ave. was dedicated and is now known as "The Residence".

Since the W.C.A. made the City of Belleville a gift of the General Hospital, all its activities are now focussed on the Residence at 38 Highland Ave.

The Women's Christian Association has two representatives on the Hospital Board, Mrs. J. E. Marsh and Mr. John Legate.

MR. AND MRS. HOWARD W. THOMPSON

Thompson – Mossman

Large baskets of white "pompoon" 'mums mingled with white snapdragons formed the background setting in Christ Church (Anglican), Belleville, on Saturday, May 8, 1965, when Kathryn Lynn Mossman, daughter of Mrs. Alfred Earl Mossman, Belleville, and the late Mr. Alfred Earl Mossman, was united in marriage to Howard William Edward Thompson, son of Mr. and Mrs. Danecourt H. Thompson, Belleville. The Reverend Canon R. B. DeBlois Wright, rector of the church officiated at the double-ring ceremony.

Traditional wedding music was rendered by Mr. John C. Withers, the church organist who also accompanied six small choir boys in appropriate nuptial selections.

Given in marriage by her elder brother, Mr. Frederick E. Mossman, the bride wore a floor-length gown of white peau de soie featuring a fitted bodice with a scoop neckline enhanced with appliques of Alencon lace, and long lily-point sleeves. The bell-shape skirt was also outlined with appliques of Alencon lace and highlighted with a back panel caught with a bow. A shoulder length bouffant veil of nylon tulle fell from a crown of seed pearls and tear-drop crystals. She carried a cascade bouquet of red roses.

Miss Sharon Locke, as maid of honor and the other bridal attendants, Mrs. Frederick Mossman and Miss Anne Kotte were identically attired in floor-length gowns of turquoise organza over taffeta, highlighted with re-embroidered, Chantilly lace over-blouses and featuring Empire waistlines, highlighted with back panels caught with bows. They wore matching headdresses of roses. Each carried a bouquet of white and turquoise 'mums centred with yellow roses.

Mr. Vernon Hamilton, brother-in-law of the bridegroom from Peterborough, was groomsman, while Mr. John Mossman, brother of the bride from Oshawa and Mr. Tim Mossman, Belleville, brother of the bridegroom were the ushers.

A reception was held following the wedding in Christ Church Parish Hall where the bride's mother received the guests wearing a pale blue lace over taffeta sheath dress with three-quarter jacket and matching shoes. Her corsage was an orchid and matching beaded bag and gloves and a corsage of pink Sweetheart roses. The bridegroom's mother presided wearing a beige brocaded sheath dress with three-quarter matching jacket, blue organza hat and matching accessories with a corsage of yellow Sweetheart roses.

A guest book attended by two cousins of the bride, Miss Judy Day and Miss Sherry Latchford was signed by everyone after being greeted by the receiving line.

Mr. Ron Bonnor was toastmaster at the dinner served to 95 guests. Here the bride's table was centred with a three-tier wedding cake misted about the base with white tulle in which nestled tiny white and turquoise button 'mums. The colorful bridal bouquets completed the attractive nuptial setting.

For the wedding trip to New York and points east, the bride chose a three-piece suit of navy blue linen, white picture hat, matching accessories and a corsage of pale pink Sweetheart roses.

Out-of-town guests were present from Toronto, Whitby, Oshawa, Trenton, Madoc, Peterborough, Napanee, Frankford, Codrington, Roblin, Newburgh, Flinton and Los Angeles, Calif.

Previous to the marriage the bride was honored at a miscellaneous shower held at the home of Mrs. Jordan Latchford of Canniton, with co-hostess Miss Sherry Latchford, and at a personal shower at the home of Mrs. Floyd Locke, Elvins Street with Miss Sharon Locke as cohostess. A rehearsal party was given at the home of Mr. and Mrs. John osaman, Emily Street with the bride's mother as hostess.

Mr. and Mrs. Thompson will reside at 338 William Street, Belleville.

Dramas Highlight Program Of Area Hi-C Conference

Churches and banquet halls rang with 20th Century folk tunes, Quin-Mo-Lac Camp songs and general good fellowship as the annual United Church Hi-C conference continued through the past weekend in Kingston. The delegates were billeted in the homes of United Church members and their friends.

Those young people gathered from as far as Oshawa, Renfrew, Peterborough, Lindsay, Belleville and Trenton. Hi-C is the name given to 14 to 17-year-olds in the United Church Christian education program. There is an annual Hi-C summer camp at Quin-Mo-Lac which sustains and deepens the fellowship of these young people.

The weekend rally was planned by Hi-C leaders and members of Kingston and surrounding area. The Dean of the conference was Rev. Geo. Richardson of Athens, and song leader was Rev. Burn Purdon who will be ordained in June. Friday night began the weekend events with billeting, singing, devotions and lunch at St. Margaret's Hall. Mayor and Mrs. Fray congenially joined the crowd and stayed to get acquainted and have lunch with them. He spoke appropriately to the young people of keeping their principles and convictions strong. He said "each one of us really lives the Gospel according to us."

THREE DRAMAS

Saturday sessions were held at Sydenham Street Church. The main theme of the conference was, "Me! A Christian!" The program was presented in three dramas. The first, written by Princess Street young people and directed by Burn Purdon, involved non-Hi-C members picketing a Hi-C meeting and accusing the members of not practising what they preach. The purpose of the program was not to answer their questions but to help the young people to look at themselves and what they 'really' think about being a Christian. Hi-C groups were formed for follow-up discussion.

The discussion leaders were Queen's Theology students, Hi-C leaders, and United Church Kairos members. Young people in Grade 13, or 18 years and over).

The second play was written and directed by Bren Wallace, Kairos member, and acted by Princess Street Hi-C Group. This involved teenagers' attitudes toward others in the setting of a coke shop. The attitude of parents who claim to be Christian but set the example of gossip and cheating in their own homes.

The third drama was written and directed by Dera Purdon and acted by Kairos members of Princess Street Church. This involved a young typical teenager who thinks the world's and therefore the Church's problems are everyones else until a crises makes him realize that he is the church.

Saturday and Sunday luncheons were served by the U.C.W. Social Groups of Sydenham Street, United Church and Hi-C chairmanship of Mrs. Geo. Vosper, Mrs. Jack Crawford, and Mrs. Gage.

Saturday evening banquets were served at the YM-YW, St. Margaret's and Princess Street United Churches. Speakers were Mr. John Matheson, M.P. for Leeds, Mr. Ken Hayes, Alderman for Kingston, and Mr. Jake Edwards on Staff of Queen's Physical Education Department. Greetings from Kingston Church Circles were expressed by Rev. Kenneth A. Perdue, Rev. H. J. McAvoy, and Rev. E. W. Horton. Song leaders for the banquets were John Pressey, Fred Miles and R. Burn Purdon.

VARIOUS SPEAKERS

Mr. Matheson spoke to the young people with the message that "while you are young and strong, Edwards challenged you Jesus Christ and you will retain your youth and vigor, for this is a great country with its temptations and troubles we must face as adults."

Mr. Hayes spoke of keeping their principles high and to value their education.

Rev. Edwards based on physical fitness and the importance for young people to be physically fit and busy.

A dance followed at MacGillivray-Brown Hall to the music of the Regents. This was arranged by Chalmers Hi-C group.

ATTEND CHURCH

Sunday morning the large group of teenagers worshipped with Sydenham Street Church congregation filling the Church to capacity. In the light of teenage publicity today, it was a significant experience to see these young people worshipping together in such great numbers.

The sessions at Sydenham Street Church with an enthusiastic singsong and lunch. At conference filling the Church expressed the thanks of the Conference to Burn Purdon for his untiring work on behalf of Hi-C and young people, and Rev. Edwards has well in his ministry and his future studies in France.

HANDY HINTS

Dear Susanna: A practice that has facilitated sewing for me is that of standing my ironing board up in readiness as soon as I start to work on a garment. Almost every step of the way is made easier if you press as you go. When it comes to turning a hem, I just throw the shirt right over the board and go to it. Since the work is laid out firmly, I do a better job and save many an aching arm.

When hanging up bubble's drip dry shirts, I leave a plastic cleaning bag right on the hanger so there is never any danger of rusting the white material. Cut the plastic off a few inches below the bar if you wish to allow more air to circulate around the shirt.

MORE ON EGGS

Did you know that you should never use anything but medium to low heat for cooking eggs? Whether they are to be boiled, fried, poached, broiled or baked, high temperatures will toughen the protein and make the eggs rubbery . . . of course, if you are looking for more bounce to the ounce in your breakfast, then go ahead and turn up the heat! — SUSANNA

READERS' FRIDAY COLUMN

LETTER:

For years I have intended to write and tell you how much I enjoy your recipes and chit-chat with its "family" feeling. What finally brought me to the typewriter was the article in which you encouraged mothers to teach their children to enjoy cooking . . . I was busy saying "hear, hear" all the time I was reading it . . . A perfect recipe for beginners is Everton Toffee (see below) . . . Wishing you every success and assuring you of a new generation of readers coming up . . . Muriel R.

ANSWER:

Thank you. I made the Everton Toffee using a candy thermometer, Muriel, because you said "boil it until brittle — really brittle". I knew if it was good it would find space in this column and specific temperature would be important for amateur and experienced cooks alike. I boiled it to 290 deg. Fahr., but see how I adapted your recipe below.

FRIDAY

Dinner Menu

by Mary Moore

Fish Fillets and Asparagus Bake (see Wednesday) with Lemon Butter Sauce (see Wednesday; Potato Logs; Cole Slaw; Mandarin Oranges in Orange Jelly; Coconaut Bars; Tea.

EVERTON TOFFEE (courtesy Muriel R.):

1 cup light brown sugar, 1 cup golden syrup (cane sugar — Rogers — not corn syrup), ¾ cup butter.

Mix the three ingredients together in heavy saucepan, and stir well. Put candy thermometer in and boil to 290 deg. Fahr. (Muriel said "boil until really brittle when some is tested in cold water".) Have ready, well-buttered, a tin or aluminum pie plate. Pour toffee into it immediately and let cool at room temperature until hard. Invert pan, knock toffee out of it onto board and break it into bite-size pieces with handle of kitchen knife or a hammer.

QUESTION:

Having spent most of yesterday (Sunday, a rainy one anyway) looking for your recipe for Pineapple Bread, I figured the quickest way to get it would be to write to you for it. In any event I enjoyed browsing through oh so many of your recipes, finding so many old favorites to make again and vowing to "get with it" . . . Marion E. W.

ANSWER:

Thank you for a very kind letter. I believe the following is the recipe you want.

PINEAPPLE NUT BREAD (repeated from February 25/63):

2/3 cup sugar, 1/3 cup soft shortening, 2 eggs, 3 tablespoons sour milk or buttermilk, 3 cup well-drained crushed canned pineapple, 2 cups sifted all-purpose flour, 1 teaspoon baking powder, ½ teaspoon baking soda, ½ teaspoon salt, ½ cup chopped almonds.

Mix together thoroughly sugar, shortening and eggs. Stir in sour milk, pineapple. Add sifted dry ingredients and nuts. Bake in greased loaf pan for 50 to 60 minutes at 350 deg. Fahr.

Women Behave Like Women In Their Crimes Says an Issue of University Mag

By JOY MILLER
AP Women's Editor

NEW YORK (AP) — Those masculine critics who are forever lamenting the inconsistency of the other sex should ponder a college study of the woman murderer.

Women behave like women even in their crimes, says an article in the current issue of the magazine University Woman of Fairleigh Dickenson University. She murders in a manner consistent with her role in today's society—and that's about as consistent as you can get.

The article, by Patricia Turner of the magazine staff and Charles Siegel, a sociology student, is included in the publication's overall look at The Ills of Modern Woman.

The woman who murders, say student researchers, is different from the male murderer, and her womanly characteristics show up in the motives, methods and choice of victims.

"As if murderer," they say, "she reflects the roles she performs as a mother, lover, housekeeper, shopper, cook and nurse. However, she characteristically has difficulty in coping with the demands of her female responsibility."

Although men are arrested for murder nearly five times as often as women, the gap is narrowing as women are thrust more into the economic and political arena.

MORE MEN CAUGHT

In 1963, 91 per cent of arrests for murder in the United States were male, nine per cent female. By 1972, 17 per cent of all arrests for murder were female. And, suggest the authors, women are getting away with a lot more than is laid at their doorstep. Culturally women are kept at home and protected; their crimes are undercover to a much greater degree than are men's.

The American system of justice is more lenient with women, the article points out, with only 31 women included in the 3,606 murderers executed between 1930 and 1958.

Who is the woman murderer?

Say the researchers:

"She usually becomes delinquent at a later age than her male counterpart. . . . She has usually been married at least once, but the chance of marital failure is greater for her than for the rest of the population. . . ."

Her victim commonly has threatened her security within the home. It's traditionally a husband or child.

Husbands, when their demise is premeditated, usually succumb to poison carefully administered over a period of time. Arsenic is the favored poison because it can be purchased so easily as part of a housewife's shopping and disguised so easily in food.

POISON FITS ROLE

"The use of poison," says the article, "correlates with the woman's social role as shopper, cook and nurse, in which she is not often suspected of wrongdoing."

Of course, if she becomes enraged during a quarrel she will pick up the best weapon at hand, a gun if there's one in the house. If not, right there in the kitchen is always the homemaker's indispensable tool, the knife.

Women kill their children almost exclusively because "they are unable to cope with their responsibilities as child bearer and rearer."

Most frequent target is the illegitimate child, either because the mother can't or doesn't want to care for the child or because she fears society's disapproval.

"Some social scientists feel that as birth control practices become more prevalent, and fewer illegitimate babies are born, the incidence of infanticide will be decreased," says the article.

As for motives, with women humiliation, jealousy, frustration and emotional sensitivity are frequently observed, say the researchers.

One analyst, they point out, says that nine out of 10 times the impulse stems from that little recognized emotion that "is one of the strongest forces in the world—boredom." That, of course, would mostly apply to the husband as victim, say the college students.

The criminal woman" sums up the article, "is greatly influenced by her social roles. . . . Yet, paradoxically, our society's conception of the woman's social role may actually protect her from the discovery of her crime and subsequent conviction."

Tasteless Remarks About Glasses Upset Mother

DEAR ANN LANDERS — I know people who read your column even though they don't read one other thing. Will you kindly print this letter for the benefit of mothers whose young children must wear glasses?

Do people think that just because a child has an eye problem that he is also deaf? My son is seven years of age. He recently had surgery on his eyes and now must wear glasses.

Although the boy has worn the glasses for only two weeks, already the following remarks have been made in his presence:

ANN LANDERS

"Does your son mind wearing glasses? I had to wear those blasted things when I was a child and I hated them." Also: "What a pity! Do the kids at school call him four-eyes?" And this: "Isn't it sad that the boy has to wear glasses? Whenever I see a youngster with those ugly things on it just breaks my heart."

This morning a man at the bus stop offered this: "I'll bet that kid will keep you broke fixing his glasses. Mine used to break every other week."

Not one child has made an unkind or thoughtless remark. It is only adults who don't know better. Can you come up with something a mother can say to these stupid oafs? — CALIFORNIA.

DEAR CALIFORNIA — Try this: "We are very proud of Johnny. He understands it is important that he wear his glasses and that he take care of them. And now let's talk about something else."

* * *

DEAR ANN LANDERS — I am 23. Two years ago I met a nice fellow named Dale. He was doing graduate work. I found him interesting and pleasant. Dale spoke very little about his family and his early life. He said he came from an average home and that his parents were good, middle-class people.

At the same time I was dating Dale I was going with Gene — a boy I had known all my life. Gene's background and family is similar to mine — not rich, not poor — just medium.

Things became complicated during two fellows. I began to think seriously about marriage and decided it was time to choose between Dale and Gene. I chose Gene. We were not officially engaged, but close. Dale was hurt but said nothing.

Recently, my parents visited Dale's home town. When they returned they told me Dale's family is considered the cream of society and that they are extremely wealthy.

I am furious with Dale for deceiving me. Mother says he was smart to play it cool and protect himself against fortune hunters. I feel it is just as bad to be an heir to wealth and pretend to be average as it is to be average and pretend to be wealthy. Who is right? — GRETTA.

DEAR GRETTA — I have a strange feeling you are furious with yourself for not having latched onto Dale, now that you know he is loaded.

He is a pretty smart boy not to have waved the long green before your eyes. Boys who "accidentally" drop a word about the family chateau in Switzerland or the stables behind the house sometimes get girls who are searching for something bolder love.

No teen-ager is as confident as he appears. Get clued in. Send for Ann Landers' booklet, "Dating Do's and Don'ts," enclosing with your request 35c in coin and a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope.

Church Groups

CHRIST CHURCH PARISH GUILD

The regular monthly meeting of Christ Church Parish Guild was held Tuesday, afternoon with a good attendance of members. The business portion of the meeting was in charge of the president, Mrs. J. Cousins, who welcomed everyone.

Reports were heard from the secretary, treasurer, card-meal convener and remembrance convener. Reporting news of two recent wedding receptions were conveners Kay Lester and Lil Jordan. Those who helped make these occasions such happy events were thanked by the conveners and the president. Letters were read from Rev. James Smith, now on his way to his home-land in Tasmania.

Plans are well underway for the forthcoming Centennial Tea to be held on June 8th. Members were urged to finish up sewing, collect white elephants and look up their best recipes for this event. The special project for the Centennial, the attractive wall plaques, with a sketch of Christ Church are proving most popular and may be obtained at the tea. The devotional, entitled "The Grace of Humour" was presented by Mrs. Charles Bishop and contained the observations that "God gave us humor to save us from going mad" and "Humor had a definite place in the life of Jesus".

Following the meeting, members journeyed to St. George's Parish Hall to attend the tea sponsored by the St. George's Guild.

Coming events include a wedding reception in July and one in September. The June meeting will be held at the summer home of Mr. and Mrs. Earl Hickey.
